City Council Imposes One-Year Offer on City Employees Union

By Brian Simon

During a special meeting on Tuesday night, the El Segundo City Council imposed a one-year "last, best and final offer" to the El Segundo City Employees Association (ESCEA) after the parties were unable to come to a labor agreement since beginning contract talks more than two-and-a-half years ago. Most of the union members were in attendance, wielding signage with messages such as "Blue Collar Lives Matter" and "Willing to Deal." The Council vote was 4-1, with Don Brann dissenting. Mayor Pro Tem Drew Boyles was in Ecuador, but participated via teleconference.

Among the key components the City laid out, ESCEA personnel will receive a three percent base salary increase but will pay seven percent of their retirement (CalPERS) member share. The City's contribution for medical insurance will cap at $1,115.67 monthly for full-timers, while paid sick leave and vacation will no longer count as part of the overtime calculation. The employees' work schedule will also shift from a four-day week with 10-hour days to a two-week total of nine days and 80 hours in a move that will allow City Hall to reopen every other Friday. Additionally, future hires will not receive educational incentive and longevity pay. Although the Council agreed to impose the one-year arrangement, the City had previously put a multi-year option on the table with an overall salary and benefits increase that was declined.

The last ESCEA agreement expired on September 30, 2014, after which the City met with union officials 11 times before presenting the then-last, best and final offer on December 9, 2015. The ESCEA rejected the offer, leading to mediation hearings in March and April of 2016. A fact-finding followed last June with an advisory report issued in November. The end result was an impasse, leading to the decision to schedule this week's meeting in which the Council had the power to implement a one-year deal without ESCEA sign-off.

On Tuesday night, ESCEA chief negotiator and general counsel Wendell Phillips received permission to talk for up to 10 minutes rather than the usual five-minute maximum since he was the only public speaker. He contended that the fact-finding report from last year "should have been made public 10 days after it was submitted" and that its conclusions favored the union's position more than the City's. ## El Segundo High School Principal's Pay Scale Bumped Up

By Duane Plank

At Tuesday evening's succinct meeting of the El Segundo School Board, the members recognized the accomplishments of Project Lead the Way (PLTW) El Segundo High School students, heard quick presentations from soon-to-be-outgoing student representative to the Board Alex Nilsson and an Ed! Foundation representative, and quickly dealt with action and consent agenda items.

And the Board members also consented to a pay bump for whomever becomes the new principal at the high school. Jaime Mancilla, completing his third year on the job, has submitted his resignation, effective June 30, and accepted a position as a middle school principal at Ridgecrest Intermediate School in Rancho Palos Verdes. Mancilla came to El Segundo Unified School District in the summer of 2014. Dr. Logan Fox is the vice principal at the high school.

The Board approved the proposed pay bump to $128,831 per year for the newly hired principal, noting in the meeting agenda notes the need to "attract a talented pool of applicants for our current principal vacancy." Board Vice President Emilee Layne commented that a recent study had shown that, she said, the pay scale for the principal position in El Segundo Unified was on the low end of the districts surveyed. "I don't want people thinking that we are upping a salary [just] because. There was thought

City of El Segundo Posts Objections to Proposed LAX Projects

By Brian Simon

Back in the late 1990s and early 2000s, rarely a month went by in these pages without some article or update on the latest news regarding Los Angeles International Airport (LAX), plans to modernize the airport and the then-contentious relationship between Los Angeles World Airports (LAWA) and the City of El Segundo. But a 2005 legal settlement between the two parties ensured a cap on airport gate capacity to limit growth at LAX, while also providing dollars for local residential sound insulation. Meanwhile, the tragic events of September 11, 2001 prompted a substantial drop in passenger traffic well below previous levels. As a result, LAX has not been quite as major a topic in El Segundo news for the last decade-plus. That may be changing, however, as the 10-year settlement agreement expired and LAWA is now in the midst of a major modernization effort that has City officials concerned about potential adverse impacts on the community.

With its multii-billion-dollar Landside Access Modernization Program (LAMP), LAWA seeks to enhance the passenger experience by relieving traffic in the Central Terminal Area (CTA) as well as nearby streets and roads by providing travelers with new, faster and more efficient pick-up/drop-off options geared to decrease private vehicle trips to LAX—and at the same time improve air quality via reduced vehicle emissions. The key components of LAMP include an Automated People Mover (APM) system, two Intermodal Transportation Facilities (ITFs), a Consolidated Rent-a-Car Facility (CONRAC), improvements within the CTA, and a connection to the Metro rail system. More details on the project can be found here: http://www.connectinglax.com/files/LAX.Landside.Access.Modernization.Program_Fact.Sheet.pdf

The City of El Segundo last week posted a comment letter about the project on its website. "We believe that LAMP is a needed project for the region, but have strong concerns about its growth-inducing nature and the impacts that this airport growth will create," said City Manager Greg Carpenter. "Increased activity at the airport has the potential to increase vehicle traffic on our streets, and also create parking impacts and noise."

The City expressed similar feelings about a second project at the airport—Delta's $1.9 billion plan to upgrade and connect Terminals 2 and 3 over the next six to seven years. The move entails the airline's relocation from Terminals 5 and 6, with plans to provide a variety of amenities to modernize Terminals 2 and 3. More information on the Delta project can be found here: http://www.lawa.org/uploadedFiles/OurLAX/pdf/LAX_T2_3_Mod_Project_NOP-IS_Initial_Study_SECURE.pdf

City officials made their positions on both projects known in recent months through meetings with LAWA staff. El Segundo Mayor Suzanne Fuentes presented a list of objections at the Board of Airport Commissioners (BOAC) meeting when that group certified the LAMP environmental impact report (EIR). She did the same at a Los Angeles County Airport Land Use Commission (ALUC) meeting. "Protecting the quality of life for El Segundo's residents is always one of my top priorities as mayor, which is why I've been personally involved in discussions with Los Angeles World Airports about noise, pollution, and traffic caused by LAX," Fuentes said. "While we know that the airport will continue to grow, my focus is making sure that the impacts of that growth are dealt with as much as possible. In particular, I want to make sure that the City is protected from people using El Segundo to park and then ride-share to the airport. We will not be a dumping ground for LAX impacts."

Mayor Pro Tem Drew Boyles outlined the City's concerns at the joint BOAC/Los Angeles City Planning Commission. The City filed an appeal of the LA Planning Commission's action on LAMP with plans to appear at the Los Angeles City Council meeting in June at which time the project could receive final approval. "Our environmental laws are about accountability--making sure that when an airport project impacts our city and our residents, that agency is responsible for lessening those impacts," Boyles said. "While we understand that Los Angeles World Airports is working hard to make LAX a better airport, those improvement projects could have negative effects on El Segundo, and our [city] council is 100 percent focused on ensuring that our residents are protected. We've been engaged with LAWA in active discussions and we're confident that our city will be better for that engagement."

According to Coby King, President and CEO of High Point Strategies, LLC, the firm the City of El Segundo retains for governmental advocacy on this matter, LAWA and the City have fundamentally different viewpoints on the projects. "The California Environmental Quality Act [CEQA] dictates that when a government agency takes on a project, it is required to provide analysis and a mitigation plan if environmental impacts are discovered," King said. "The main disagreement is whether or not this project—by making the airport much more efficient—will not only move people in and out faster, but also improve the airport since one of the main things people dislike about LAX is the poor customer experience. Through these projects, we feel the airport will attract new passengers who might not have otherwise come to LAX. However, LAWA officials believe that the projects will not generate new growth, but will only accommodate growth that's already coming and so they are not required to provide impact mitigation."

Statistics showed passenger traffic at LAX at almost 81 million in 2016 (it was as low as 56 million in 2009, but then began a precipitous yearly rise and exceeded the all-time volume in 2014 with 70.6 million going through the gates), with estimates that the number will swell to 96 million by 2030. The 2005 legal settlement that created a maximum passenger gate cap meant to constrain annual traffic to the airport's then-capacity of 78.9 million travelers per year. The gate cap provision runs through 2020, though the other elements of the settlement expired in 2015. "LAWA acknowledges the significant increase in future growth, but its argument is that the growth is coming anyway and that the facilities proposed are just to handle that growth," King added. "Our position is that the facilities will in fact cause some of that growth."

With LAMP, the current entryway into the airport from Sepulveda Boulevard will go away, as activity moves further east with new access points on Aviation Boulevard to the remote facilities designed to get people to the airport without using personal vehicles. "The idea is to relieve congestion in the Central Terminal Area, but the impacts are not theoretical—they will lead to traffic, air quality and noise issues that will directly affect the lives of El Segundo

Wiseburn School Board Hears Dana ELA Presentation, Fetes Retirees

By Duane Plank

Schoolchildren of a certain age once had their lesson plans guided by the tenets of what were termed the "three R's" (reading, riting, and rithmetic)--a phrase coined more than 200 years ago. With the onslaught of technology now confronting both teachers and 21st Century learners, the main presentation at the May 4 Wiseburn Unified School District School Board meeting could be considered a bit retro. It focused on the seemingly quaint idea of actually reading books and fostering student writing skills.

In her 25-minute presentation to the Board, Dana Middle School English teacher Lisa Wilberg highlighted the strides being made at the school in the English Language Arts department. Her presentation was entitled "A Path to Writer's Workshop."

Writer's Workshop is an interdisciplinary writing technique that is gaining traction in many elementary schools. It is a program that seeks to build students' fluency in writing, featuring continuous, repeated exposure to literacy through the process of writing.

Wilberg, discussed what she termed "big ideas "in increasing the student's breadth of understanding and achievement in the basic disciplines. "We want to create and maintain a culture of joyful literacy at our school, "she said. "We believe that all students are capable of reading, writing, and achieving at high levels." She noted that while 2017 career fields such as math, science and engineering are "booming," her belief is that literacy is at the core of the success that will be achieved in any of the STEM fields.

Wilberg highlighted the advancements being made at Dana from the 2011-12 school year forward as the ELA department started researching and implementing the mandated Common Core requirements, shifting the way English was taught in schools away from certain areas that may have had little real world relevance and applications. It means much more of an emphasis on critical thinking and much less focus on terminology. "I tell students all the time that you can't get better at reading without reading, Wilberg said, adding that the 2014-15 school year was the first time the new way of teaching English was implemented in Dana classrooms.

The 2016-17 school year has also seen the continued refining and mapping of ELA units. Wilberg said a Writer's Workshop program, initially developed at Columbia University, drew her interest. In the spring of 2016, Wilberg and other teachers and administrators were able to travel to Pacific Elementary School in Manhattan Beach and see how a neighboring school was implementing the workshop program. She came away very impressed with how engaged the Pacific students were in their writing, and is hoping to implement the workshop program at Dana.

Wilberg concluded her program with data on the strides made by Dana students, with 75 percent meeting or exceeding mandated standards. The California state average is 49 percent. She also detailed events like "Literacy Week" that took place just prior to the spring break. Wilberg is also continuing to visit other schools that are successfully implementing the

Appreciation of Tree Musketeers and Gail Church

After 30 productive years, the Tree Musketeers is sadly winding down operations. Thousands of trees have been planted in our hometown and throughout the South Bay, maintained locally by this youth-led organization. Millions of trees have been planted worldwide, inspired by what kids started here in El Segundo many years ago in Tara Church's girl scout troop. In addition to our improved landscape, its greatest legacy may be the leadership qualities developed in the kids that participated. This was not an accident. One of the core missions of Tree Musketeers was to develop these leadership skills and by all measures it has been tremendously successful. My family has participated in many ways over the years including serving on the Board of Directors, one of the most satisfying things I`ve ever done. Over these past 30 years, the kids, directors, and volunteers have come and gone, but the one constant presence has been Gail Church, Executive Director of the organization. Gail is a force of nature who has been the backbone of the organization and kept it moving forward. There was never a challenge Gail wouldn`t accept. No words can express our gratitude for her vision and dedication to Tree Musketeers. Many of the current youth leaders and their families have decided to keep the dream alive. As this effort continues to take shape, I urge the community to support them in any way they can.

Chargers Ready to Take Over L.A.

By Adam Serrao

Now that the Chargers have officially moved to Los Angeles to share a market with the Los Angeles Rams, the team will certainly need to find a way to not only keep their fans from San Diego, but also accumulate fans that live right here in Los Angeles. With the recent release of the NFL schedule coming a few weeks ago, the Chargers got all of the help that they will possibly need. So far, the Rams haven't done much to steal the hearts of football fans here in L.A. besides simply show up first. If the Chargers can get on the board quickly with a few key wins in some primetime games, they may become the first team to gain loyalty in the race for fame and visibility in Los Angeles.

The time that you play and the days that you play on can do a lot for the image of a football team that is looking to gain popularity in a new market. Fortunately for the Chargers, not only did they receive primetime games in the upcoming season, but the Rams simply did not. The Chargers will open the season on Monday night in a game against the Denver Broncos and will play games on New Year's Eve and Thanksgiving Day this year as they battle against the Raiders and the Dallas Cowboys, respectively. Those games will undoubtedly draw the attention of football fans all across the nation. While the Chargers will be enjoying their lovely schedule, the Rams will be banished to London to play against the Arizona Cardinals and will have only one game to play on a day other than a Sunday when they take on the San Francisco 49ers on a Thursday in what is sure to be nothing short of a snooze-fest.

In addition to the advantage that they have in their prime television spots, there is much more allure surrounding the Chargers coming into this year's regular season as well. Sure, the Rams had all of the buzz when they got to Los Angeles first, but winning just four games in a season with a quarterback that has yet to prove himself has turned down the volume on their attempt to take over L.A. The Chargers, on the other hand, have Philip Rivers. They have Melvin Gordon, who took the league by storm last year, and Keenan Allen, who will try to remain healthy and stay on the field. Not only do they have better players, but they have the better stadium also. That's not to say that the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum isn't one of the most historic venues around, but the StubHub Center--while not the best in the looks category or with historical value--will give the league its first truly intimate venue. A stadium that only seats 30,000 people will certainly offer a football experience that fans simply haven't had before and is sure to tickle the curiosity of fans (and league owners) not only in Los Angeles, but across the league as well.

If there is any question as to which team will garner more headlines throughout the regular season, it will be figured out for fact

Eagles Fall to Santa Monica in Five Games

By Gregg McMullin

The El Segundo boys' volleyball team has quietly built a reputation for a successful program. Under the tutelage of head coach Anjinho Bacil, the Eagles have won four league titles and two CIF championships. This season, the Eagles are 17-8 overall and were ranked as high as fourth in the CIF Southern Section Division 2. In the last match before the playoffs that started Tuesday, the Eagles faced Santa Monica but fell to the Vikings in five games.

The Eagles have faced 16 teams this season that have advanced to the postseason. One of those teams was Santa Monica, which ended up sweeping through the Ocean League after defeating the Eagles for the second time 25-21, 25-23, 22-25, 16-25, 6-15.

El Segundo started the match as if it was on a mission. The Eagles wanted a measure of revenge after dropping 25-21, 9-25, 35-33, 19-25, 13-15 to the Vikings the first time the two teams met. Much like in the first meeting when the Eagles held a two games to one advantage, this time El Segundo won the first two games but couldn't put the Vikings away.

In the first game the Eagles jumped out to a 11-5 lead, but Santa Monica crept back into the game and trailed 23-19 before the Eagles rallied for a 25-21 win. In the second game, both teams were full of energy and El Segundo held the lead throughout--albeit by no more than three points. Mike Lynch ended the second game with a powerful hit and the Eagles won 25-23.

In the third game Lynch help cut into Santa Monica's 7-10 lead with another powerful hit. Joe Kelly's consecutive blocks brought the Eagles to 9-10. Will Lubs gave the Eagles hope for a sweep with a block for an 18-17 lead. Kieran McCarthy's hit gave El Segundo more hope with a 19-17 lead. But the Eagles couldn't hold on and fell 22-25.

In the fourth game, the Eagles started strong by once again leading 5-1. The Vikings turned the game around and won eight consecutive points. Luke Dallavo's block halted the Vikings' run. During a key rally, Dallavo made a dig and McCarthy's block pulled the Eagles to 8-9. It was the closest the Eagles would come, as they fell 16-25. The fifth game (6-15) was dominated by Santa Monica.

The Eagles started their playoff run Tuesday against Saugus. A win against the Centurions would send the Eagles to the next round against the winner of the Crescenta Valley/Camarillo match tonight. The quarterfinals are set for Saturday, with the semifinals next Wednesday.

Baseball Team Eyes League Crown

The Eagles took care of Hawthorne 4-0 and 14-0. In the first game, Jimmy Galicia went the distance in scattering seven hits while striking out seven. The Eagles, who were held to just six hits, scored single runs in the third, fifth, sixth and seventh innings.

El Segundo hosted the Cougars on the day it paid tribute to the 10 Eagle seniors on

The Secret Life of Souls

By Jack Ketchum and Lucky McKee

Reviewed by Roz Templin, Library Assistant, El Segundo Public Library

This book is a twist on the old "a boy and his dog" story, though the main character is a girl. Delia is 11years old and she is already enjoying some success in the entertainment industry. Her big break has arrived! She might be cast as a series regular in a television pilot. With that role clinched, her family will have it made.

Her mom Pat has "stage mother" tendencies, and her father Bart enjoys the toys he can buy with Delia's money. She has a twin brother named Robbie, who seems totally immersed in video games and books. He doesn't seem very impressed with his sister's career. Delia's best friend is her dog Caity.

We get to peek into Caity's personality from time to time when the authors allow us to live vicariously through the dog's own eyes and experiences. There is no doubt that Delia's feelings toward Caity are reciprocated.

A freak accident derails the family's hopes and dreams and soon the future looks precarious indeed. But Delia's resilience and her special bond with Caity lead them down another path.

There were a few odd plot turns and some of the characters' (the main ones as well as the peripheral) actions seemed questionable from time to time, but it has been quite a while since I have been moved to tears during certain passages from a book. Sometimes scenes and motivations seem beyond belief, but the emotion behind them feels real. The relationship that Delia shares with her dog is supernatural, but those of us who love animals and/or have pets can certainly testify that sometimes we share an awareness that can't easily be explained.

A standout is the talk show host Pearl, who tells it like it is. Pearl is on hand to do an episode of her talk show about Delia and her dog and winds up lecturing Delia's mom in a hilarious scene in a bathroom.

There are some disturbing actions that Delia's family members take in the course of telling the tale, however, and some of it is hard for a reader to take. People can be violent toward innocents, but sometimes those who seem the least prepared can defend themselves in ways you can't imagine.

Reading this book is worth the effort, even though some of the action careens toward serious mayhem. The Secret Life of Souls is a story told in several dimensions and you will appreciate all of them.

Burden Tells the Story of Self-Tortured Artist, Chris Burden

By Morgan Rojas for www.cinemacy.com

If you've been to the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, or the LACMA, on Miracle Mile, you've seen the exhibition "Urban Lights"– a cluster of lampposts just outside of the museum's entrance. This installation, which consists of 202 authentic streetlamps from the 1920s and 1930s, has been a tourist attraction and talking point since its creation in 2008--some even calling it the symbol of Los Angeles. The documentary Burden explores the unconventional life of the "Urban Lights" creator Chris Burden, a former resident of Topanga Canyon and world-renowned performance artist whose career was made from controversy and shock value

In this compelling portrait, filmmakers Richard Dewey and Timothy Marrinan delve deep into the artist's past for a glimpse into the eclectic and eccentric life of Chris Burden. From his early days as an art student at UC Irvine, Burden was an unconventional guy. For his master's thesis, he created the "5-Day Locker Piece," which consisted of him caged in a 2' x 2' x 2' university locker for five days. His peers thought he was crazy, but brilliant. His professors called him "a walking slap in the face." And while his performances may have raised eyebrows both in and out of the art world, there was no denying that Chris Burden was a pioneer.

He may have compared himself to da Vinci, Michelangelo, van Gogh, and other great artists of all time, but unlike the spectator approach we take in viewing those great works, Burden's talent forced the viewer to be physically active in the experience. He gravitated toward avant-garde sculpture work, living on the edge of sadomasochism and coming close to death many times for the sake of his piece. He did it all, from being shot in the arm to nailing his palms to the back of a running car for hours (which David Bowie alludes to in his song "Joe the Lion" off his 1977 album Heroes), Burden was known for eliciting the energy in everyone around him.

Burden is able to share many stories from the artist's past through interviews with Chris himself and those who knew him well. Roger Ebert called him a "strange kind of importance" in a profile piece he wrote for the Chicago Sun-Times. His wife talked about her anxiety when Chris would self-harm in the name of art. In one art piece, titled "The Confession," Chris confessed to an extramarital affair--a fact his wife was totally unaware of prior to watching his performance. The anecdotes relived by those who knew him, including past teachers, classmates and fellow performance artist Marina Abramovic, are entertaining, cringe-worthy and darkly humorous.

Chris Burden was constantly asking, "What can art be? If art was violent, painful, or scared the s- - - out of you, is that art?" He set out to answer those questions through his various projects and crossed the boundaries of "appropriate" too many times to count, but in doing so, he made a name for himself. Chris hated the comparison of him to the stuntman Evel Knievel, a man he called "a trickster," while he proudly considered himself as "real." I have to admit that after watching Burden, I would have to agree that Chris Burden was indeed the real deal.

Unfortunately, Chris died from cancer in 2015 at the age of 69 and just days shy of the unveiling of his last completed installation, "Ode to Santos Dumont." His wild personality attracted attention, but it was his true talent that made him an artist. He left a legacy through his contribution of the LACMA's "Urban Lights," which is photographed almost as much as the Hollywood sign, but his true gift to the community has been his individuality and reminder to other artists to just be themselves.

Burden is not rated. 88 minutes. Opening at the Nuart Theater this Friday and now available on demand, iTunes and Amazon Video. •

LAX Relocations Mean Major Changes for Passengers

The biggest airline relocation in Los Angeles International Airport (LAX) history is about to take place as Delta Air Lines relocates from Terminals 5 and 6 to Terminals 2 and 3. Airport officials say the end result will be more efficient airline operations between partner carriers, and planned facility improvements for Terminals 2 and 3.

The activity taking place on the nights of May 12, 14 and 16, into the early morning hours the following day, has been planned for nearly a year. It is part of a larger effort that began when American Airlines and Delta Air Lines swapped four gates in Terminals 5 and 6 at the end of January. Each night when the airlines that are moving have completed their operations, they will begin the process of moving equipment to their new home, where they will begin operations the next morning. In many cases this means aircraft will be towed from one terminal to another, ground service equipment and entire offices will change places in the early hours of the morning. Delta will move portions of its operations on each of the three nights--May 12, 14, 16. Delta will operate from as many as four terminals between May 13 and 16. The remaining airlines will move on one day and start in their new location the next morning. Extra staff and volunteers will be on hand to help guests find their way around.

There will be a moratorium on construction in the Central Terminal Area (CTA) during the week of the moves. While that week will be most busy, passengers using LAX should always plan ahead to navigate sidewalk and vehicle lane closures and in-terminal work. Construction alerts showing Central Terminal Area (CTA) roadway lane restrictions and sidewalk closures, as well as a pedestrian walking map and helpful airline terminal finder, can be found at www.laxishappening.com. LAX provides real-time traffic status in and around the CTA, and space availability in the terminal area parking garages and Lot C on Waze, the community-based traffic reporting app.

More information on the upcoming changes, including a fact sheet listing the affected airlines and a map showing the locations as of May 17, 2017, is available at http://www.laxishappening.com/laxonthemove.aspx •

Credit Scores Expected to Rise a Bunch in July

By Rob McCarthy

New credit-scoring rules this summer will lift average scores by 20 points and push millions of American consumers into the good-borrower category, the industry's California-based leader predicts. FICO, which developed the credit-scoring system used by consumer lenders, reported that the average credit score in April reached 699. That average score for American borrowers set a record and was just one point shy of the "good" range of 700 to 749. FICO is a San Jose, California-based analytics company that focuses on credit-rating services used by lenders and employers.

About July 1, the nation's three credit-reporting bureaus no longer will count tax liens and civil judgments against FICO credit scores. Nearly 11 million people should see a 20-point jump in their credit scores, and another 700,000 people would see their scores go even higher.

The credit bureaus Equifax, TransUnion and Experian are changing the rules in response to findings by a federal agency about shortcomings in how the bureaus use public data in credit scoring.

The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau's April report highlighted a need for changes, specifically better identity-matching of consumers to avoid misreporting of unpaid taxes, child support or debts. Civil judgments can hurt a person's credit score more than ordinary loans, according to industry experts. The effect of a court-ordered judgement on a FICO score is almost immediate, they add.

Not all tax liens or judgments will disappear from people's FICO scores, but most of them will, according to the Consumer Data Industry Association that represents the credit bureaus. The change is expected to push more consumers above the 700 mark and closer to the 750-800 range that signifies excellent credit.

The two biggest factors in the FICO scoring model is paying bills on time and not carrying high balances or overextending available credit limits. Car and personal loans and credit card balances that together exceed 30 percent of a person's available credit are counted against their score.

Other factors in the scoring method are length of credit, new applications for credit, and whether a borrower shows a mix of credit. The scoring favors a combination of auto loans, home equity, personal loans and some credit cards. Credit report errors about late payments and balances are common and affect a FICO score.

The Federal Trade Commission has estimated that 20 percent of consumer credit reports contain errors. Because of the error rate, consumers are advised to check their credit reports every year for accuracy. Consumers who believe their credit reports contain bad information may write a letter asking the credit bureau and the company that reported the information to make a correction. Both must investigate the dispute.

Using a credit repair service is another option for contesting and removing errors from a report. The Fair Credit Reporting Act protects borrowers and consumers by requiring the credit bureaus to provide correct and complete information to lenders when they process an application. Consumer protections of the act include:

- The right to receive a free copy of your credit report.
- The right to know the name and identity of anyone who received your credit report in the last year, or the past two years, for employment reasons.
- A lender must tell you the name and address of the credit bureau it used to deny an application.
- The right to a free copy of the credit report that was used to make the denial; a request must be made within 60 days of the denial.
- A consumer may add an explanation to a credit report if the company or bureau refuses to correct disputed information.

Lenders have been advised to be cautious about reviewing a loan applicant's creditworthiness after July 1. Financial planner and blogger Sean Williams with The Motley Fool writes that consumers' credit habits will be the same in two months, regardless of their higher FICO scores. "Lenders could find themselves at a higher risk of loan defaults as these tax liens and civil judgments are removed from people's credit reports," Williams warns.

the roster. After introducing the seniors, the Eagles took it to Hawthorne by scoring eight first-inning runs on their way to a 14-0 win.

Spencer Long was nearly unhittable in the five innings he tossed. The senior right-hander gave up one hit and struck out nine. Justin Ostler struck out three in one inning and Jarod Whitney finished up by throwing the seventh inning and striking out the last hitter.

Long was not only stellar on the mound, but was also two for three with three RBIs and scored three times. Spencer Palmer and Nico Celestial each hit home runs, while Sean Emery hit his team-leading fourth triple of the season.

The Eagles finished their play in the Redondo Tournament with a 6-1 win over West Torrance. Justin Ostler threw a complete game four-hitter, walked one and struck out one to improve to 4-0 on the year.

The Eagles, 23-6 overall, played at Santa Monica on Tuesday and host the Vikings tonight at 6 p.m. in the last regular season game. A win would give the Eagles the Ocean League title.

The Eagles' final push for a playoff spot was this week. They were tied with Culver City with a 6-2 record entering the week with a game against Hawthorne on Monday and their nemesis league-leading Santa Monica last night. With the schedule in favor of Santa Monica, a league title for the Eagles is most likely out of the question.

The Lady Eagles played host to North Torrance in their final non-league game and fell apart losing 8-1. The Saxons scored an unearned run in the fourth inning to take a 3-0 lead. The wheels fell off in the fifth inning when the Saxons pushed across five runs on just three hits to take an 8-0 lead.

The Lady Eagles' only run came in the seventh inning when Julia Chavez, who had two of the team's four hits, smacked an RBI double to score Jade Johnson. El Segundo needed at least a split this week to guarantee an invite to the postseason. The playoff draws will be announced on Sunday morning. • behind this," she said, citing the need to attract quality applicants for the open position.

With Superintendent Melissa Moore out of town attending an educational conference, the meeting was chaired by Executive Director of the Office of Pupil Services Dale Lofgren, who will be retiring at the end of the school year. Moore was attending the Arizona State University Global Silicon Valley conference in Salt Lake City. She had been awarded one of about 500 full scholarships granted to school superintendents, paid for by the Walton and Gates' foundations, to attend the conference that dealt with leading-edge technology and innovation, and boasted an array of eminent speakers and presenters.

Said Moore prior to her departure to Salt Lake City: "I feel extremely honored to have received this full-scholarship," and she noted that she looked forward to sharing the information gleaned from the conference with Board members and District staff.

The first two presentations highlighted the exploits of PLTW students at the high school who either competed in a recent Chevron-sponsored Design Challenge competition, or were recognized for their accomplishments in the field of information technology and computing.

On April 22, six El Segundo High students took part in the Chevron IED Design Challenge. Tasked with designing a "Duplo Toy Storage Container" in a six-hour timeframe, the students had to collaborate on designing a container that was "economical, functional, and [would] appeal to kids." The six students worked in teams of three each. The team comprised of Gabriella Desch-Obi, Noelle Kartvedt and Spencer Moore, all ninth graders, grabbed first place in the competition. Also, skillfully representing the high school was the fourth place finishing team of ninth graders Fiona Elliott, Charlene Kim and Jake Layne.

Mancilla introduced teacher Jennifer Cho, the faculty advisor to the teams. She spoke about the competition and lauded the "amazing, amazing, amazing students" who had taken the high school's Intro to Engineering Design course, and were first-time participants in the competition. The team of Desch-Obi, Kartvedt and Moore then captured fourth place in the state competition in San Diego on May 6.

Senior Gillian Cornwall was the senior recognized by the Board for her selection as a local winner for the National Center for Women and Technology Aspirations in Computing Award. Selected because of her aptitude and interest in information technology and computing, as well as her plans for related post-secondary education considerations, Cornwall was also mentored (like the students who picked up the Design Challenge accolades) by Cho, who will be leaving the District at the end of the school year to continue her career in education in Boise, Idaho.

In an email, Cho said, "I am both sad about leaving such an amazing staff and community, but equally as excited for my bright future with my fiancé. I have grown to love El Segundo High School and the amazing community and hold the same high standards in my search for my next school community."

Consent agenda items passed included the approval of consulting contracts, teacher personal development days, campus clean-up HVAC services, and data processing services.

Other than the pay bump for the principal position, action items passed included approval of El Segundo Middle School's Middle Years Programme (MYP) Design Courses, and the ratification of a resolution declaring the week of May 21-27 as Classified School Employees Week.

City Council

described the medical component of the City's offer as the "big bone of contention," calling it "expensive" with "no allowances" for ESCEA workers. He noted that the police and fire union deals included a higher ($1,425) medical award—and while he didn't "begrudge" the amount, he pointed out that that those employees get paid considerably more than ESCEA people. He later stated that the bottom-salary ESCEA workers "almost qualify for food stamps." Phillip also indicated that his group---which came to prefer the four-day, 40-hour workweek after initial concerns when it was first instituted--would have been "willing to live with" coming in on Fridays as a trade-off for getting the higher medical stipend.

Phillips explained that the City wished to craft a similar deal to one approved with the Police Support Services Association (which features the lower medical total). He asserted that the City put the ESCEA under a barrel when the latter expressed a willingness to talk in November 2016—with the upshot that the union would have to put out an "unacceptable offer" or else the City would impose one of its own. "We were told…as a precondition we had to waive our rights to mediation, impasse and fact-finding," Phillips said, adding that "there's been a change in circumstances" with new deals in surrounding cities.

City Manager Greg Carpenter discussed the City's objectives to adopt labor agreements that are more financially predictable and no longer based on previous percentage-based formulas. He explained that retirement/pension costs now take up close to 20 percent of the City's budget with that amount expected to double in five years--so the goal is for employees to take on a greater share of this liability. The move to rein in special compensation (i.e. special education, longevity) is also part of the plan going forward.

The City's labor negotiator, Steve Filarsky, summarized the areas of agreement and dispute in earlier talks with the union. He said both parties were in accord on a seven percent base salary increase that then tacked on three more percent in year three—in exchange for the employees absorbing the seven percent employee portion of their retirement contribution (a "10 for 7" deal). But Filarsky reported that the ESCEA was not amenable to changes in overtime and sick leave pay as well as the proposed special compensation revisions. He also expressed surprise about Phillips' remarks about the medical component, saying, "This is the first time I've heard health insurance is the only thing holding up an agreement." Filarsky additionally confirmed that the City posted the fact-finding report online not long after its release. Phillips later clarified that he meant a public hearing on the report should have taken place back then.

Filarsky noted that the City has been willing to continue labor talks with "supposals" and settlements, but "wanted to avoid going back to square one" whereby a new offer goes out, ESCEA rejects it and the entire mediation, impasse and fact-finding process occurs all over again—with no guarantee of an agreement after another year goes by.

Councilmember Mike Dugan said the City negotiated in good faith and extended an offer that he deemed competitive, fair and equitable compared to other municipalities. Explaining that the Council was now following a necessary process on how to resolve the situation, he expressed optimism about the future. "But we're dealing with the past here tonight," he said (note: the imposed offer covers the 2014/15 fiscal year and negotiations will still proceed on the subsequent years). Councilmember Carol Pirsztuk agreed, emphasizing that there are "limited steps we can take" and that "we want to get into the future." Speaking of the "long process" at hand, Mayor Suzanne Fuentes addressed the employees in the audience. "Everyone out there is a person with a soul and we care about you," she said, while pointing out that the City has gone from $10 million in the red a few years ago to plus or minus $1 million. "We're trying to make our ship solid so everyone has a future."

Brann's comments on the matter came earlier in the meeting and resulted in applause from those in attendance. He called for the parties to resume dialogue and continue communicating. "The impact on morale and production is serious," Brann said. "Imposition does nothing but damage morale further… It's all about relationships and trust. We haven't established that here." •

residents," King said.

King pointed out that the Delta project would double the current square footage of Terminals 2 and 3 while widening the latter by 90 feet. "The project will involve a huge amount of demolition and construction with around-the-clock shifts," he said. "It would also add up to three new passenger gates. And while construction itself is further away in the northwest part of the terminal, noise travels more at night and a lot of additional truck traffic on Imperial Highway will impact residents."

Approval for LAMP is closer to reality, with the draft and final EIR going to the LA City Council Committee this month and then to the Council itself in June. If approved at that time, a 30-day period will follow during which any party may file a petition in Superior Court. "If we haven't resolved our issues or achieve a settlement with LAWA by then, we will file the petition if we feel it's appropriate," King said. The action would be similar to a complaint in a lawsuit with the case eventually going to trial where a judge would rule if El Segundo's arguments have merit. King noted that the City of Los Angeles, with Mayor Eric Garcetti behind the effort to fast-track construction, indicated it will move forward with the project even if the matter goes to court. "We will know one way or the other by end of July--either we will have a settlement agreement or the City of El Segundo will decide whether or not to file a lawsuit," King said. "We're in discussions with LAWA about many items we're advocating for and there is no doubt they are 100 percent clear on what the position of El Segundo is. It's in the best interests of both LAWA and El Segundo to settle this so LAMP can move forward and so we can avoid the costs of litigation." •

classified employees, Layne said, "In our small district, a lot of people wear a lot of hats. There are a lot of things that happen behind the scenes that people are not aware of."

The only information pending action on the agenda was consideration of the math textbook adoption for the middle school. The textbook has been vetted by teachers and administrators for the past six months and has been available for public and staff review. If all goes smoothly, the textbook adoption will be brought back to the Board as an action item at the May 23 meeting.

Tuesday evening's informational calendar, shared by Lofgren, included a special Board meeting that will be held on Monday, May 22 and will focus specifically on the matter of investing and/or spending the proceeds from the 2016 sale of the Imperial Avenue property. The long-time surplus District-owned property was sold to home-builder DR Horton for $22,625.000.

Other upcoming District events include Friday evening's Ed! Foundation Gala at Chevron Park, and the always anticipated El SegundoHigh School Prom that will take place on May 20. •

Writer's Workshop curriculum. She cited the program benefits, which include giving the students a large amount of writing choices, being highly adaptable, and focusing on clear, specific writing skills. "This is where we'd like to go," Wilberg concluded. She added that she hopes to return to a future School Board meeting with a proposed budget in hand to implement the Writer's Workshop program in the District.

After the presentation, School Board Vice President JoAnne Kaneda added her input: "I have four sons who are all engineers, and each one has told me that what differentiates them from other engineers, who might be just as good at engineering, is their ability to read and write."

A second presentation highlighted the tech opportunities available in the District. Nancy Wloch and Margaret Thelen, two members of the American Association of University Women, were on hand to brief the Board. Their organization raises funds to send seventh grade middle school girls to week-long summer science camps as part of a program that is called Tech Trek. They announced that Dana students Carolina Echavarria, Nayeli Ortiz and Sierra Clark were scholarship recipients. Echavarria will be attending the program at UC Santa Barbara; Ortiz at UC San Diego, and Clark at Whittier College. Said Superintendent Tom Johnstone, "It's a great program. The girls that go have a wonderful experience."

Dana students Aidan Cessor, Logan Evans, Garrett Hoff and Diego Diaz were recognized for their top finishes in the school's recent Geography Bee, with Cessor also competing at the state-level bee held in Fresno. District Spelling Bee 1-3 finishers were also recognized. They included Zachary Roach (Dana); Aldo Ayala (Burnett Elementary); and Eva Reyna (Dana), with Roach advancing to compete in the LACOE "grade bee" in Alhambra on March 29 for students in grades four two six.

After the special presentations concluded, Board members thanked the presenters. In his comments, President Israel Mora mentioned a recent joint meeting between the DaVinci School Board and the Wiseburn Board: "What is special in our District is how well we work together," said Mora.

Four retiring District teachers were recognized during the action item portion of the 90-minute meeting. The retirees are Jeanette Payne Sutton, currently teaching fourth grade at Anza Elementary and completing her 34th year of service to the District; Sheila LaCour from Dana, who is retiring after serving the District for 28 years; Susan Coulbourne, who also teaches at Dana and is wrapping up 20 years of service; and Dana teacher Erma Bisignano, who is finishing her 14th year. Johnstone noted that having four teachers retire at the same time is a unique event for a district the size of Wiseburn.

The Board then took action approving a traffic signal analysis study that would address student safety and traffic congestion issues as construction continues on the Douglas Street property leading up to the August 22 opening at the new Wiseburn High School.

Consent agenda items were quickly addressed, including the approval for students and staff to participate in the Robert H. Herndon Memorial Science Competition that takes place at the Aerospace Corporation on May 25.

In his remarks, Johnstone painted a positive picture of the current events in Wiseburn. "We have the right people in the right places at the right time," he said. Great things are happening."

The next regularly scheduled Wiseburn School Board meeting is on the calendar for Thursday evening, May 25, and will be held on the Cabrillo Elementary School campus. • rather quickly. The league scheduled both the Rams and the Chargers to play on the same day and at the same time in Los Angeles on three separate occasions throughout the regular season. The Chargers will battle against a playoff team from last season when they take on the Miami Dolphins at the StubHub Center, while down the road the Rams will be playing in the Coliseum against a Washington team that lost most of its star players over the offseason. While the Chargers are taking on a team that most L.A. fans wanted to see play in Los Angeles in the first place when they host the Raiders at StubHub on New Year's Eve, the Rams will be struggling to get fans to the Coliseum to watch them take on the 49ers. The third date will see the Chargers take on Washington while the Rams take on Philadelphia. The Rams may have the better matchup on paper, but much of the allure is lost when it is realized that the home team will almost certainly lose the game.

When it comes down to it, wins and losses will decide who will own the city of Los Angeles first. Behind Jared Goff, Todd Gurley and perhaps defensive star Aaron Donald, most moderate NFL fans would be hard-pressed to name five other players on the Rams who are presumably supposed to bring their team to a victorious season this year. The Chargers have the players with name recognition, the stadium that fans are curious about, and the dates that will keep them on the minds of all fans who are looking to give their loyalty to a team in Los Angeles. If the Chargers stay healthy--which has been a big if lately--they may have a chance to challenge the rest of the AFC West for a division title. The Rams, on the other hand, will be lucky to get any positive production out of Goff, their second-year QB. Even if they do, it certainly won't be enough to challenge the likes of the Seattle Seahawks and the Cardinals in the NFC West.

The Rams moved to L.A. first--and for that reason, they currently have more fans in the area. With a little time and a lot of winning, though, the Chargers will be poised to take over as the team of Los Angeles well before the new stadium in Inglewood is prepared to open. A successful team is one that has the ability to gain attention across the league and the ability to gain fans from within the city. The current construction of the Chargers, which is in very stark contrast to that of the Rams, will have L.A.'s newest team taking over the city sooner than anyone would have otherwise thought possible.

Credit Scores

FICO is the most popular credit score formula used by lenders, though there is a recent competitor called VantageScore. The three major credit bureaus created VantageScore, which uses some of the same predictors as FICO to rate a borrower's creditworthiness. This alternative to FICO also uses what it calls "trended data" in scoring. The data focuses on how a person used available credit over a 24-month period, and looks at money management skills by comparing payment due dates with the actual date a bill was paid, according to Investopedia.com.

The last time FICO changed the scoring rules was in August 2014 when it decided that unpaid bills that were settled with a collection agency should not count against a person's current creditworthiness. •

Purrrfect Companions

Purdy

George

Phoenix

This week's kitties (and many others on our website) are all deserving of a home with a family to call their own.

Are you unable to adopt, but would love to have a kitty in your home? Consider fostering. Children who assist with foster care learn to help an animal and feel like they have accomplished something. They learn that because of someone's irresponsibility, this pet is homeless and they can be a solution to the problem and give back to their community. When foster families and individuals let these animals go to their new homes, they have the joy of knowing they have helped give an abandoned pet a second chance in life.

With "kitten season" in full bloom, there is an urgent need for foster parents. Whether you care for one or many, once or frequently, Kitten Rescue would love for you to become a foster parent. They offer training, guidance, medical care (if needed) and lots of moral support. Fostering brings you the rich reward of knowing you personally saved this kitty's life in providing a safe, loving home while waiting for adoption. Interested? Please email them at foster@kittenrescue.org for more information.

Purdy is a very sweet little girl who loves to cuddle and snuggle with other kitties. She loves to suckle on the other cats! Purdy wants to glue herself to the side of any kitty who will let her, making her the purrfect companion cat for a lonely kitty in need of a hip attachment. She follows the resident cats around in her foster home, always rubbing against them and staying right with them. She loves to romp and play. Because she is so young, she's still very energetic and silly. Purdy will carry toys around in her mouth and cry over them. She has even run on the FastCat Cat Wheel all on her own! Purdy needs a calm, quiet household with someone who understands cats and needs a kitten to be their cat's best friend. She cannot be a single cat, as she adores other cats so much, and would do best with a very outgoing, confident, people-loving playmate. She sleeps on the bed and loves to hang out with you on the couch when not glued to another kitty. The rest of the time, she is busy exploring the house and playing with the other cats.

Flora appeared in a back garden, skinny and desperate for love. She was fed there for two weeks and gained weight. She then went to her foster's house to become an inside-only kitty. She's now normal weight, loves affection and has adjusted to being inside (she did nothing but sleep and eat at first). Flora loves to play with toys and is respectful of her foster sister senior cat. Her beautiful, captivating eyes appear as if she has eyeliner around them. This affectionate girl would be fine as the only cat in your home--or with care, she would adjust to another feline companion.

George was found abandoned with his siblings and brought to a shelter when they were just days old. He was bottle-fed around the clock, traveling back and forth to work with his foster mom every day for five weeks to be fed every few hours. Being hand-raised, George is wonderfully outgoing, affectionate and cuddly! In his first foster home, he was raised with three kitty-lovin' dogs, other adult kitties, and a young child (of the two-legged variety)--all of whom George absolutely adored. In his second foster home, he bonded quickly with his new foster mama and foster kitten siblings, and is accustomed to new adult cats and small dogs. If you're looking for a teenage kitten that will play, play, play and then fall asleep in your lap and snuggle next to you all night long, George is your guy! He's exceptionally intelligent and curious, and quite talkative.

Ragnar is pure joy. It must be good to be Ragnar because everything is just so much fun for him. He is a super sweet, cuddly, affectionate goofball with just a hint of cerebellar hypoplasia (his reward for surviving panleukopenia)--not enough to cause any real impairment, but enough so that he has a slight head bobble and is pretty clumsy in a very endearing way. It certainly doesn't slow him down, as he gets the zooms just like any other kitty his age. Ragnar has been brought up in a home with several cats and kittens as well as dogs. He's more a fan of his feline compadres and would be a great companion for anyone who likes to cuddle and play. He'll let you pick him up and carry him around like a baby, and bring a smile to your face with his sweet and clumsy shenanigans.

Phoenix is a handsome, shorthair orange and white tabby who was rescued in Istanbul, Turkey. He also has a wonderful personality. "What? Looks and personality?!" Trust him--it is possible! Phoenix is playful, loving, affectionate, easygoing and super sweet. He loves being petted and purrs loudly when you pet him. Phoenix loves giving you hugs and kisses and taking naps on your lap. He also enjoys grooming and snuggling with his kitty friends. Good with both boy and girl kitties, he has a lot of fun playing with his friends and toys.

Shakespeare is a snuggle machine and will purr you up a sonnet! He is a big guy, but his bashful gaze is nothing short of heart-melting. He loves to be held, hugged and to have his little face rubbed. He can be a little mischievous, likes playing with water, and requires lots of attention and entertainment. Shakespeare is talkative, friendly and gentle. He would be great partnered with a relentless kitty friend that needs mellowing, or a big cat family. This gentle boy comes with a sensitive stomach and requires a strict raw food diet.

These kitties are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org or email us at mail@kittenrescue.org.

Your tax-deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 914 Westwood Boulevard, #583, Los Angeles, CA 90024.

On Saturdays, we have adoptions from noon to 3:30 p.m. in Westchester at 8655 Lincoln Boulevard, just south of Manchester Avenue, and also in Mar Vista at 3860 Centinela Avenue, just south of Venice Boulevard. Our website lists additional adoption sites and directions to each location.

Pets can get loose or lost through mishaps and travel quickly. Microchip: it works!
