ESFD's Ocean Rescue Team Gets Off the Ground and Into the Water

By Brian Simon

When you think about firefighters responding to a call, the image often includes personnel in helmets and boots battling blazing embers in buildings or homes. Or, it might be paramedics rushing to a victim's aid. Going to the beach with fins and snorkels doesn't typically come to mind. However, the graphic changes completely in the case of the El Segundo Fire Department's (ESFD) Aquatic Rescue Response Team (ARRT).

It all started in the last couple of years after the department fielded a few calls from the local shoreline. As it stood, the ability to help out at the scene conflicted with the department's existing policies about entering the ocean. "We recognized the need to establish a formal program that would allow properly trained and equipped firefighters to safely enter the ocean and perform a rescue when necessary," Captain Andy Powell, who handles ARRT logistics and is also a participating member, said.

Several ESFD firefighters are former ocean lifeguards or have extensive experience and comfort in the water. Los Angeles County Lifeguards (LACL) provides daily, year-round, 24/7 coverage. Still, El Segundo personnel may sometimes be the first available to arrive at an emergency involving someone in distress in the water.

Twenty-three agencies earned official ocean rescue certifications from the United States Lifesaving Association (USLA). Still, ESFD is the only one in Los Angeles County to have achieved the distinction in 2025. The geographical area within El Segundo's jurisdiction covers two miles of coastline as well as automatic and mutual aid response in neighboring cities. Powell called the USLA designation a perfect fit for the department, adding an extra layer of emergency response capability when seconds can mean the difference between life and death. At the same time, he was quick to point out that ESFD "is not in the lifeguarding business, nor are we trying to replace the services provided by LA County Lifeguards."

To develop and implement the program, ESFD worked closely with LACL, conducting joint training exercises to prepare for certification. The process includes a 500-meter timed swim to qualify, based on USLA standards. Next is a 40-hour course covering various aspects of ocean rescues, with annual drills and recertifications to maintain qualification standards. The ARRT currently has seven certified rescue swimmers to ensure at least one is always on duty each day. "The community may occasionally see our firefighters training at the local pool or along the beach," Powell added.

Though relatively new to ESFD, Firefighter Paul Carey founded the program and brought the idea to staff. He described it as a great opportunity to better serve the beach community. "Members of every rank, from captains to engineers to firefighter paramedics, are trained to make ocean rescues year-round," he said. "Many of us bring expertise from previous careers as ocean lifeguards. We train alongside neighboring South Bay fire departments and LA County lifeguards to sharpen our skills and provide the best possible service."

New Policy Addresses Immigration Enforcement

By Rob McCarthy

The City Council Tuesday adopted an immigration-enforcement policy that restricts ICE searches at city buildings and worksites, carrying out an order from Sacramento to protect immigrants and their civil rights. Under the order contained in Senate Bill 580, the city staff will require legal proof before granting ICE requests.

The restrictions, all of which comply with state and federal law, allow city staff and officials to refuse ICE and Border Patrol requests to enter nonpublic areas without a warrant or court order. El Segundo had until Jan. 1 to incorporate SB 580, which the Legislature passed a year ago in response to immigration-enforcement sweeps across Los Angeles.

Without comment, the council accepted the state's rules for engagement with ICE agents and guidance for city employees. El Segundo's new "Immigration Authorities' Access to State and Local Agency Facilities and Physical Space" policy clarifies that agents may conduct searches in public areas, defined as spaces the general public is normally free to enter or access "without escort, appointment, or special authorization." Building lobbies, public counters, waiting areas, hearing rooms or courtrooms open to spectators,

ESUSD Board Meeting Report

The following information covers the October 27, 2026 ESUSD board meeting and was taken from ESUSD website:

Special Education Update

Rose Ahrens, Sam Hill, and Richell Squire shared a presentation with an update on the district's special education program.

The presentation emphasized the district's inclusion model, where all students participate with their peers in the least restrictive environment as much as possible. Inclusive settings support students' skills, confidence, independence, friendships, and belonging, and contribute to measurable academic growth.

To support inclusive programs at all schools, the district invests in staff professional development and targeted training to ensure they have the tools they need to help all students succeed. The department's professional development priorities are the New Teacher Academy for first- and second-year special education teachers, instructional aide training, and Empower training for all staff to build districtwide capacity.

Student Achievement on California State Dashboard

Assistant Superintendent Dr. Olivia Yaung shared a presentation with this year's California State Dashboard student achievement data.

Highlights from the presentation included:

All eight state dashboard indicators were rated blue or green, the highest possible rankings.

English Learner progress improved from the lowest indicator (red) last year to the highest (blue) this year.

The district also saw notable improvements in college and career readiness and mathematics. English language arts performance remained consistent, with the percentage of students exceeding standards increasing by close to six percentage points over the past five years.

The district is focusing efforts on areas for improvement, including subgroup performance, middle school transition, and chronic absenteeism.

Measure ES Facilities Update

Dr. Melissa Gooden reported that the key priorities of Measure ES have been completed after approximately eight years of work, with final closeout activities underway. The district recently applied for an additional round of state modernization funding and is completing minor district office closeout work, including door and painting repairs.

Completed projects include improvements, additions, and modernization at the Eagles' Nest, Arena High School, and District Offices. There are approximately $2.25 million in open commitments and an estimated $2.6 million remaining in bond funds, which will be combined with state modernization funding to continue facility improvements.

Following the presentation, the board recognized Preeti D'Souza for her service as construction manager and bond program leader since April 2019.

Additional Board Actions

The board approved updated Board Norms and Protocols.

The board approved Addendum Thirty to the Master Agreement with PBK Architects, a no-cost closeout of the district office project.

The board approved a proposal from JR Universal to sand and paint the doors at Arena High School, District Office, and Eagles' Nest.

The board approved an updated Board Policy and Administrative Regulation related to General Obligation Bonds, as recommended by the California School Boards Association. •

El Segundo Eagles Basketball Preview

By Gregg McMullin

We've officially turned the page on fall high school sports, which means winter sports are about to begin. El Segundo High School's winter sports include basketball, soccer, and girls' water polo. We'll look at each team and a preview of what to expect.

Eagle Boys Basketball Team Has Great Potential

The Eagles have just one CIF title (1963) and three other finals appearances (1967, 2002, 2023). This season's team has a lot of potential, and there's plenty to be excited about. Fourth-year coach Scott Martin has high praise for his team and believes they can live up to the hype and win a league championship. Coach Martin has been with the Eagles for thirteen total seasons and says this team has some lofty expectations and should be an entertaining, deep roster.

Under Coach Martin's watchful eye, the team prepared for the 2026-27 campaign with extensive summer and fall practices, sometimes 4-5 days per week. They competed in weekly fall leagues and did well in the high-profile Palm Springs Tournament. He says the team jelled together and has continued to improve in all areas.

So, who should make an impact and lead the team this season? Coach Martin says several players will lead the team and has something to say about each. Carson Rollins, one of the team's captains, will help guide the team with his three years of experience. "He will hold down the forward position and brings athleticism, rebounding, and scoring around the rim."

According to Coach Martin, "Our primary ball handler could be junior point guard Luke Rathbun. He is a transfer from St. Monica and brings leadership, a point guard skill set, and defensive acumen." Another experienced player is senior guard Jalil Kalifa. Jalil brings added outside shooting to the team and added length at 6'4 ". "He is one of our top defenders."

A number of seniors with experience should bring the team added leadership skills and depth. Ezekiel Sea is a returning backcourt starter from last year. He will take on a bigger role, taking care of the ball and scoring, and he has a knack for defense. Jordan Slavens was one of the lead guards off the bench last season and will be counted on in an increased capacity this season. He brings effort, energy, competitiveness, and toughness to the team. Ryan Wiacek, fresh off a brilliant football season, brings strong leadership and a knack for defense. Ryan's strength is on defense, but he could be a threat from the three-point line on offense immediately.

Coach Martin is high on newcomers to the team. They will include a junior, a sophomore, and two freshmen. He likes their basketball IQ and believes each will have a significant role. Junior guard Cash Kirby will be relied upon to bring the ball up and to score with his slick ball-handling skills. Sophomore Cedric Sea could be an impact player for the Eagles this season with his knack for scoring and rebounding.

Three freshmen that have unlimited potential are Holden Jones and Enzo Blanco. Holden started for the Eagles during their summer and fall tournaments and games. He led the team in points, field goal percentage, rebounds, and blocked shots. He looks to be a four-year impact player for the Eagles. Enzo started at the point guard spot for the Eagles in the fall and has a bright future as PG for the Eagles. Griffin Wantz is a late addition to the roster after playing football. Griffin gives the team depth at the 4/5 position. Coach Martin is excited about the long-term core of Holden Jones, Enzo Blanco, Griffin Wantz, and Cedric Sea.

Coach Martin says this is one of our deepest teams in a number of years. We are able to put on the floor a variety of different lineups. "Holden Jones has hit the ground running for the Eagles. At 6'5", 180 lbs, he brings us a skilled forward that will get better throughout the year. We have experience, great size, and athleticism."

What does the schedule look like, and what are some key dates to keep in mind? The Eagles are entered in just one tournament, but Coach Martin says the team is eyeing their league opener on December 16

Sophomore forward Zoey Pitman looks to bolster the Eagles' offense this season.

Four-year starter senior guard Ella Sabosky will lead a young and talented Eagles team.

Students Sign Athletic Aid Agreements

On Wednesday, November 11, eight senior athletes from El Segundo High School took a momentous step toward bright futures beyond high school. Bella Beltramo, Lundin Leitch, Joslyn McCarthy, Marilyn McCaverty, Sullivan McLaughlin, Chase Mattoon, Austin Miller, and Sydney Neely all signed their Athletic Aid Agreements (formerly known as the National Letter of Intent), affirming their commitment to further both their academic and athletic journeys at the schools they had previously verbally committed to. These athletes have devoted countless hours to training, practicing, and competing, all while balancing challenging school schedules as well as just being a teenager. With less than 7% of high school athletes (about 1 in 13) earning the chance to compete at any collegiate level (DI, DII, DIII, NAIA) these eight seniors have risen to this incredible achievement.

at home against the Torrance Tartars. The season opener was Tuesday on the road, and the team will play its home opener on Wednesday, December 2 at 7 p.m.

The team expects to compete for a league title and a playoff berth. After two down years, the Eagles are energized with a deep roster. Coach Martin says the team hopes the team will get its continued community and school support, "They are imperative to our success. We invite you to join us at our home games and cheer us on. You will get to see a defense-first team and a roster that is connected as a unit."

Lady Eagles Have a Talented Young Team Ready to Compete

Head coach Terrence Wilson begins his sixth season leading the Eagles and says he is excited for his young team. A mix of senior leadership and underclassmen gives the Eagles the potential for a successful season.

They prepared for the season by competing in a summer league at Downey High School and some fall games at Serra High School. According to Coach Wilson, the Eagles showed how competitive they were and offered a glimpse of how successful they could be.

Senior guard Ella Saboksy leads a young team with her four years starting for the Eagles. She brings a high IQ, ball-handling skills, and accurate outside shooting. Sophomore guard Ella Huang led the Eagles in scoring as a freshman and looks to return as one of the team's main offensive threats. Tessa Tipton brings her athleticism, competitiveness, and experience to the lineup. Freshman Charlotte Lee looks poised to make an immediate impact.

Others adding depth to the team are sophomores Zoey Pittman and Ella Francisco and freshman Skylar Nakagawa.

Expectations for this young team are to push the tempo and play aggressive defense. Coach Wilson said, "I think this will be a really good year for us. We are going to compete and fight all games, and we should surprise other teams."

The Eagles' schedule starts with three home games beginning Monday. They faced Edgewood on Monday; today, they host Legacy at 5:30 p.m., and on Friday, they host Norwalk at 5:30 p.m.

The Eagles will be an exciting team to watch and are looking forward to the community coming out to support them. •

Yesteryear by Caro Claire Burke

By Kristen Morell, Librarian I, El Segundo Public Library

Yesteryear by Caro Claire Burke follows Natalie Heller Mills who is a 32-year-old social media influencer whose carefully curated traditional lifestyle is challenged in ways that force her to rethink her identity and the life she created for her family. The book is an interesting and thought-provoking novel that explores motherhood, marriage, gender roles and the expectations placed on women. I found the contrast between the picture-perfect image of traditional living and he reality behind it to be quite interesting. The story offers an intriguing look at motherhood, marriage, and the pressures that come with trying to live up to certain expectations. It also does a good job of showing what really happens behind closed doors and how different that can be from what is shown online. The pacing of this story was pretty good, although some sections held my attention more than others. I also liked that the story kept me guessing, as I genuinely did not see the twist coming. The characters were interesting and generally well developed. There were moments that made me pause and consider their decisions and motivations. Overall, Yesteryear was a worthwhile read. It may not be for everyone, but I enjoyed its distinctive storyline and the questions it leaves the readers with. It is an interesting combination of a family drama, psychological thriller, and social commentary that stays with you for awhile after you finish reading it. To check out Yesteryear, place a hold on the book on our library website: www.elsegundolibrary.gov. •

Firefighter Mike Diller spent 22 years as an ocean lifeguard, giving him firsthand understanding of the challenges and rescue needs of a coastal community. “Having the capability to respond rapidly and effectively to ocean emergencies is essential,” he said. I’m proud to be part of a department that recognizes these needs and is committed to working alongside LA County Lifeguards to protect better those who live in and visit our area.”

Ocean rescue response provides two paramedic engineers, a rescue ambulance, and a battalion chief, with additional resources available when needed. The two local fire stations house equipment such as fins, buoys, masks, snorkels, chem lights, and thermal imaging, all of which can be used in various ways. ESFD also has access to El Segundo Police Department drones that can be deployed to survey an emergency scenario and relay critical information before personnel arrives.

Though he confirmed the team has yet to go out on an emergency ocean call, Powell stressed that it’s only a matter of time before the phone rings. “These are common calls and the water is staying warmer longer in the year,” he said.

With seven members at the moment, the program has room to expand as the department continues to hire firefighters with a background in ocean lifeguarding. “We don’t want to be in a situation where we can make a difference but not be prepared to do so,” Powell explained of the group’s mission. “I can see this team evolving as it relates to equipment and techniques, but at the end of the day it’s our personnel that have to get in the water and make the rescue.”

Powell, an engine captain, said he is proud to watch the ARRT’s progress as it completes its first year. “It is a great example of a firefighter identifying a need, taking the initiative to develop a solution, and receiving the support of department leadership to make it a reality,” he said. “We are especially appreciative of our fire chief’s support and commitment to getting the program off the ground.” • and parking areas designated for visitors would qualify.

Immigration agents face a higher bar, however, to access staff-only offices, break rooms, file and evidence storage rooms, server rooms, employee-only corridors, detention or holding areas, and areas requiring a badge, key, or staff escort to enter. All of those are considered nonpublic, though the definition can change depending on circumstances, as the El Segundo policy states.

City employees are expected to act professionally and stay calm when speaking with immigration officers, and not to grant immediate access or requested information. Staff should immediately notify the City Attorney's office, the City Manager, or the Human Resources director if immigration enforcement agents demand entry after being told it violates city policy.

Under no circumstances should a city employee get physical with immigration people. "Document the encounter to the extent feasible, including whether access refusal to nonpublic areas was met with resistance," the policy reads.

City staff must ask for the agent's name, identification number, and agency in response to any request for information. Employees are cautioned to avoid making "immediate disclosure decisions" without review and to require the agent to support a request with documentation.

Under the state-ordered response to immigration crackdowns at workplaces, schools, courts and hospitals, El Segundo designated who will evaluate and respond to immigration authorities' requests for information. They include the city attorney's office, city clerks, the police department records manager, and the city manager or deputy city manager.

The rationale for Sacramento's decree for cities begins with the negative impact that "indiscriminate immigration enforcement against persons who do not pose a public safety risk" has on state and local functions. Second, state lawmakers noted that the California Constitution confers an inalienable right to privacy for all Californians. That language appears in El Segundo's new policy.

ICE raids damage the trust between immigrant communities and government agencies, SB 580 charges. "Immigrants are valuable and essential members of the California community and indiscriminate immigration enforcement against persons who do not pose a public safety risk to Californians has a significant negative impact on state and local functions," reads El Segundo's SB 580 policy.

SB 580 states federal immigration enforcement is a state concern, and therefore applies to all cities. The policy is based on federal and state laws, including the Fourth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

California law generally prohibits state and local law enforcement agencies from participating in immigration enforcement, while federal statutes limit restrictions on sharing citizenship or immigration status information. Courts have upheld California limits on sharing such information, the SB 580-inspired policy reports.

In a separate matter, the council agreed to revise El Segundo's social media policy, which governs how council members, advisory board appointees, and staff communicate on online platforms such as Facebook and YouTube. City Attorney Mark Hensley gave a lengthy explanation of how the state's open-meeting law applies to social media. The Brown Act forbids a council majority from discussing city business in private.

Hensley cautioned council members against expressing opinions about city business on social media, advising them to save them for public meetings. Council members may use social media to announce a meeting or public event and encourage attendance. Political campaign posts by candidates are exempt from the open-meeting law.

Elected and appointed officials must not use social media platforms to like, share, retweet, blog, or engage in serial meetings, or otherwise "discuss, deliberate, or express opinions on any issue within the subject matter jurisdiction of the body of which they are a member," the policy states. However, city representatives should not engage in arguments on social media or answer questions except to provide general information.

The 14-page document includes a ban on city employees using any social media to discuss city business. Several residents addressed the council, questioned the legality of the restriction, and requested more transparency about the policy and a recap of how the original social-media policy was established in 2018.

A section of the social-media revision addresses removing comments on social media posts. Deputy City Manager Barbara Voss clarified that comments aren't allowed on the city's primary Facebook page. She explained that other Facebook pages used by the fire and police departments, parks and recreation, the public library, and the Teen and Josyln centers do accept comments. "We don't actively hide comments," she told Mayor Chris Pimentel, relaying an oft-asked question about why some posted comments don't appear.

The city will monitor all posts and comments uploaded to El Segundo's social media channels and reserves the right to remove content that does not comply with its policies. Violations include comments unrelated to city operations and non-approved advertising and commercial promotion.

The city guards its social media pages from offensive language and images; threats; disparaging remarks about race, nationality, religion, or sexual orientation; and attacks on any person. The city turned off comments on its main Facebook page because they are covered under the Public Records Act, and including them would create an enormous amount of work sorting, compiling, and attaching them to meeting agendas, Mayor Pro Tem Ryan Baldino said. "Otherwise, when you have a meeting, you're printing everything off the Internet to bring in," he added.

Councilman Drew Boyles was mayor in 2018 when the existing social-media policy was established. Doing so allowed El Segundo to create council meeting recaps and showcase community events. "I would use it extensively for things that had been decided," he added. "I would say even that could be a slippery slope," using an example of a tax measure that the council approved, but later comes back for reconsideration.

In other council action:

City revenues from taxes and other sources rose between July and September while expenses fell, according to the finance department. The first fiscal quarter saw modest gains in utility use tax, business licenses and property taxes; sales and use tax and the transient bed tax on lodgings remained flat. The General Fund held $2.8 million more at the end of September than a year ago.

A request from the Development Services Department was approved to amend the bylaws of the Senior Citizen Housing Corporation Board. Michael Allen explained that language in the bylaws about the purpose of the housing corporation isn't consistent with what the IRS wants to grant nonprofit, tax-exempt status. The council agreed to remove the reference in the bylaws to the El Segundo entity being "for social welfare programs."

A dozen curb ramps will be installed using $120,594 in Community Block Grant funds. This decision followed a public hearing. El Segundo needs 8,000 curb ramps, according to Development Services Director Michael Allen. The yellow ramps comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act. However, City Council candidate John Pickhaver reported that people who use walkers say the dot pattern on the ramps is troublesome.

Formal bidding requirements were waived so the city can hire an architect to get started with the redesign of the Joslyn Center Improvement Project. Design services are expected to cost $252,150. The city manager suggested setting aside an additional $25,000 for contingencies, and the council gave its OK. •

Transform Your Autumn Garden with Fall Mulching

(Family Features) - Applying mulch during the fall months provides multiple benefits for your garden and landscape. A key element in boosting curb appeal, mulch also insulates soil, protecting plant roots from extreme temperature fluctuations, and suppresses weed growth.

The optimal time to apply mulch is after the first hard frost but before the ground freezes solid. Applying mulch too early can attract pests and diseases that thrive in warm, moist environments. Conversely, mulching too late can prevent the soil from warming up sufficiently, potentially stressing plants.

Consider these steps for effective fall mulch application:

Prepare Your Outdoor Space

Remove weeds and debris from the area you plan to mulch. This allows for even distribution and ensures the mulch layer is free from potential pest habitats.

Choose Your Mulch

Select an appropriate type of mulch based on your garden needs and aesthetic preferences. Consider materials that provide both insulation and nutrient benefits, such as organic mulches like wood chips, shredded leaves or compost that break down over time and add organic matter to the soil. For decorative purposes, bark mulch can provide an aesthetically pleasing appearance while performing similar protective functions.

Apply the Mulch

Spread a layer of mulch about 2-4 inches thick around your plants to allow for adequate air circulation and moisture retention, making sure to keep the mulch a few inches away from plant stems to prevent rot and pest infestations. For trees and shrubs, create a donut-shaped ring of mulch around the base.

Check and Maintain Mulch

Regularly check the mulch throughout the cooler months. Add more mulch if necessary to maintain the desired thickness, especially after heavy rains or wind.

Dry Eye: An Overlooked Symptom of Perimenopause and Menopause

(Feature Impact) - Dry eye is one of the most overlooked symptoms of perimenopause, the phase of fluctuating hormones leading up to a woman's final period, and menopause, the point in a woman's life when she's gone a year without a period.

In fact, 79% of women1 recognize hot flashes as a symptom of menopause, but only 14% recognize dry eye as a menopause-related symptom, according to the 2026 Bausch + Lomb (Peri)Menopausal Survey. What's more, 78% of women1 were surprised to learn that dry eye is a symptom of perimenopause or menopause.

"Dry eye is still widely overlooked as a symptom of menopause, and many women think it's just a minor nuisance, but the truth is it can significantly affect your daily life," said Neda Gioia, OD, CNS, IFMCP, FOWNS, founder, Integrative Vision. "Early symptoms are often misunderstood or self-treated but it's very important for women who experience symptoms to see an eye doctor and get an accurate diagnosis and treatment."

During perimenopause and menopause, declining hormone levels can impact tear production, tear quality and tear evaporation, contributing to dry eye symptoms including redness, fluctuating vision and a gritty or tired feeling in the eyes, all of which can impact day-to-day comfort and quality of life. If left untreated, dry eyes may worsen over time, potentially impacting eye health and vision. Among peri-, menopausal and post-menopausal women who experienced dry eye, 80% said the symptom came as a surprise.

Respondents reported their dry eye symptoms caused difficulty reading (58%), difficulty using screens (53%), difficulty driving (26%) and reduced productivity (17%), underscoring the often-overlooked impact dry eyes can have on everyday life.1

However, there are a variety of products and treatment approaches available to help manage dry eye symptoms. For example, Bausch + Lomb offers a range of options designed to address the main causes of dry eye.

A doctor-recommended, clinically proven once-daily soft gel supplement that targets the key root causes of dry eyes, Blink NutriTears supports healthy tear production and provides lasting, continuous relief.* § As part of a comprehensive approach to dry eye management, the supplement can be used with Blink Triple Care Preservative Free Lubricant Eye Drops, which are designed to directly address tear evaporation, one of the leading causes of dry eye, and provide instant and long-lasting symptom relief.

An eye care professional can help determine the approach that's right for each individual. To learn more about dry eye and products to help combat it, visit JustBlink.com.

Why You Should Consider a Rate Lock-In When Securing Your Home Loan

(StatePoint) - When it comes to home loans, interest rates matter – a lot. Differences as small as one-quarter of a percentage point can save you thousands of dollars over the life of a home loan.

One thing to keep in mind as you move through the mortgage process is that your interest rate isn't guaranteed until it's locked in. A rate lock can help you stay on budget and protect you from rising rates before closing.

What is a Rate Lock and Why is it Important? A rate lock is an agreement between you and your lender. It guarantees that the interest rate you are offered won't change for a set amount of time — even if rates go up before you close. A rate lock means you don't have to worry about the ups and downs of the market while you wait for your loan to close. Knowing your interest rate ahead of time can also help you set a monthly budget. Without a rate lock, rising rates could push your payment higher, which could make your new home harder to afford.

When Should You Consider Locking Your Rate? The right time to lock in your rate depends on the current market, how close you are to closing and how comfortable you are with risk. If rates are lower and you're happy with your loan type and monthly payment, it may be smart to lock it in. Your lender is your best guide. They can help you decide when to lock in your rate and how long to keep it locked.

What You Should Know Before Locking Your Rate. Rate locks are only good for a set period. Standard locks are offered for 30, 45, 60 or 90 days. You'll need to close your loan before the lock expires or you might lose the rate.

Some lenders may charge a small fee for rate locks, while others may include it under covered costs. Usually, a longer lock period will have a higher fee. Ask your lender if there's a cost and whether it's refundable.

If interest rates drop after you've locked, you usually stay locked in at the higher rate. Some lenders may offer a "float-down" option, which lets you take advantage of a lower rate if one becomes available. Terms and availability of float-down options vary, so ask your lender what they offer.

Rate locks do offer some flexibility. If you find a more attractive rate from a different lender, you are not obligated to keep your rate lock. If you choose to work with a different lender, any rate lock fees paid should be reimbursed.

Always get your rate lock agreement in writing. It should clearly state the interest rate, the type of loan, the length of the lock and any associated fees.

To see how your mortgage rate can impact the amount of your monthly payments, use Freddie Mac's Fixed-Rate Mortgage Calculator. Additional Freddie Mac resources for homebuyers can be found at https://myhome.freddiemac.com/buying.

A rate lock can be a smart move, giving you more control, stability and peace of mind during what can be a stressful time. Just be sure to talk to your lender early in the process to learn your options. A little preparation can go a long way toward easing your homeownership journey.

Since 1997, Kitten Rescue has rescued cats and kittens from a variety of situations. When they are finally ready for their fur-ever home, we will help match you with the purr-fect one. When you adopt, you save a life… and in turn enrich your own.

So many wonderful kittens and cats are often overlooked by no fault of their own… senior cats, bonded pairs, blind or deaf kitties, FELV+ cats and black cats (whose black canine counterparts are also passed by). All would cherish the chance to become a member of your family. Kitten Rescue would love the opportunity to answer any questions you may have.

Kitten Rescue operates solely on the time, energy, and dedication of our generous volunteers. In fact, Kitten Rescue could not survive without the help of our volunteers! We have many volunteer opportunities and ways you can get involved. Training can be provided. If you have experience or would like to gain experience — we want you on our Kitten Rescue team! Go to our webpage KittenRescue.org, and click on "Get Involved".

Luther is your quintessential kitten! Cute as a button with a gorgeous striped pattern, she loves playing, Churu sticks, and pets (in that order). Originally born outside, Luther is still a little wary of humans, yet she loves other cats. She needs a quiet and gentle family who will patiently get to know her, until she gets comfortable enough for her impish nature to truly shine. Given that she is still getting used to life inside, she is not the best fit for homes with loud children or dogs. Other than that, she is a fun-loving girl looking for a family to adore her. Email her foster parent to set up a meet and greet: kaz.bear@proton.me.

If you're looking for a chill dude to relax with, Jinx is your guy! Jinx came into our care after his owner died along with several other cats. A little shy at first, Jinx will come around once he gets to know you for pets and treats. He gets along well with other cats and could be your new buddy to hang out with and binge your favorite shows. Contact his foster parent at orlyahar@gmail.com for more information.

Every day is a special occasion with Hocus, this handsome tuxedo cat. This sweet black and white boy has the personality to match his good looks. He is friendly, curious, loves to play or curl up with his human. He enjoys the company of other cats and, because he is a young gentleman, would do best in a home with another playful kitty who will show him the ropes. Hocus is ready to find a family who will love him forever! Please contact his foster at capata@gmail.com

Pocus is a tiny tuxedo with a huge personality. This petite black and white beauty has mastered the perfect combination of play hard/cuddle hard! She is a champion snuggler with a magical purr, and enough confidence to greet everyone with a friendly meow. Her ideal forever home will include a playful feline friend who also enjoys curling up together after the fun is done. Please contact her foster at capata@gmail.com

These cats and kittens are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information to see these or our other kittens and cats and for a list of our weekend adoption events, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org.

The donations and support we receive from individuals like you, who share our love and commitment to helping cats and kittens in Los Angeles, are the sole reason we are able to do what we do. We are grateful for your financial help. By making even a small donation today, you can touch the lives of the many deserving, wonderful animals in our care. There are many ways you can donate and help, and every dollar means so much. Kitten Rescue is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit. Your tax-deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 3519 Casitas Ave., Los Angeles, CA 90039.

Saving one animal won't change the world, but the world will surely change for that animal. •
