Trivia Host, Former Pro Baseball Catcher Hopes to Bat One Thousand in Future Roles

By Brian Simon

Okay, here is our first question: You are to name three additional professions that Mike the trivia guy can list on his resume.

Chances are next to no one reading this will have the answer (even if they know who Mike is), and so they won't earn any points. However, if anyone happened to list a pro baseball player, EMT, and sports movie action coordinator, they can smile and move on to the next round.

Indeed, trivia is a longtime obsession for Mike Ribaudo, who hosts trivia nights in El Segundo at the California Smash pickleball center on Tuesdays and the Standard Station on Wednesdays. Participating teams showcase their hopefully vast retention of facts both commonly known as well as obscure in a multitude of categories. A "Jeopardy!" fan since childhood with an alleged memory like an elephant, Mike was born in Rochester, New York, but grew up in Sarasota, Florida, where he built a sizable trivia company in the early 2000s. Then "life happened," and he eventually sold the venture. However, he decided to resurrect his old career upon moving to El Segundo in 2023 and has built a strong following since kicking off weekly trivia at the Standard in 2024. Yet his own personal trivia might be more interesting than any questions he might conjure up at the neighborhood bar.

A self-described "so-so student" who got by just enough to pass his classes, Mike had little interest in anything but baseball as a youngster. He attended Sarasota High School, known as one of the most prominent baseball pipelines in the country that produced several Major Leaguers over the years. A catcher on a loaded team where he was admittedly only "the sixth or seventh best player," Mike managed to get drafted by the Milwaukee Brewers in the 57th round in 1993 when he was just 17. It was a little too soon for him. "I wasn't ready to go from aluminum bats to wood just yet, so I decided to go to college," he said.

Nonetheless, the sport he loved came calling again, and Mike debuted in the Baltimore Orioles system in 1995 in the Rookie (Gulf Coast) League. He jumped around from there, playing independent ball and serving Minor League stints with the Chicago Cubs, Houston Astros, and his beloved New York Mets organization before retiring at the age of 27. By then, he finally sensed he was not going to make it to "The Show." His frustrations came to a boil one afternoon when he earned the dreaded "Golden Sombrero" tag, given to a batter who strikes out four times in a game. "On the fourth one, I swung at a pitch in the dirt, and when the catcher tried to block it, my first instinct was to run to first," he recalled. "Instead, I picked up the ball and threw it to third base." The move resulted in a $100 fine, which his teammates chipped in to cover. "They thought it was hilarious." In an attempt to extend his career, Mike later transitioned full-time to a "submarine-style" relief pitcher. The opportunities were few and far between, unfortunately.

Despite falling short of reaching the "Bigs," Mike said he feels blessed to have played as long as he did when the median service time

Ladies Night was a Rootin' Tootin' Good Time

The ladies of El Segundo kicked up their heels and channeled their inner Dollys at the 18th Annual Ladies Night Out on Thursday, November 19, at The Terrace at Continental Park. The evening was charged with energy as over 450 women came together to eat, drink, shop, and, most importantly, spotlight 18 remarkable community members who continue to demonstrate their commitment to enhancing education in El Segundo. In a fun surprise, Ed! welcomed LA Chargers kicker Cameron Dicker to the runway, who modeled alongside his fiancée, Annie Buerk!

The success of this event would not have been possible without the generous support of our Event Sponsor, Continental Development Corporation, which provided the venue. El Segundo's Soccer Preview 2026-27

Story and Photos by Gregg McMullin

Soccer season is upon us, and the El Segundo Eagles are optimistic about a successful season. The soccer program has been highly competitive over the years, having won back-to-back boys' CIF championships and one girls' CIF crown. Each team plays a spirited game based on their strengths of competing at a high level, physical play, and skilled athletes.

Eagles Look to Experience for Success

Head coach Andrew Kelly is no stranger to the soccer community. He's been around the game for most of his life. He took over as the Eagles' head coach eighteen years ago and has guided the team to a number of league titles and two CIF championships, including a Regional crown. Andrew is guarded about how well his teams do to start the season but is confident they will be prepared.

Andrew says he first builds chemistry with his teams. He says it's the foundation of any good team. "We've been working on building chemistry, improving our fitness, and establishing our identity as a team. With so many new faces this season, a big part of our preparation has been getting players comfortable with one another and understanding their roles. We have a lot of work ahead of us, but the effort and attitude have been encouraging."

Coach Kelly says three key players will be counted on for their experience, skills, and leadership. "Bryant Waites, Caden Hahn, and Heath Shope will be three players we rely heavily on this season. They will form the spine of our team through the middle of the field and provide the experience, leadership, and consistency we need. Their ability to set the tone and bring the younger players along will be important to our success."

The Eagles are a young team, but Coach Kelly is confident there is depth from the new players to be successful. "We have quite a few new faces this year, and we'll need contributions throughout the roster."

The Eagles are not going to be a team that can rely on just a handful of individuals. "Our depth will come from players embracing their roles, competing every day, and taking advantage of opportunities when they arise," said Coach Kelly.

So, who are the newcomers who could make an immediate impact? Coach Kelly said, "With the amount of turnover we've had (referring to those who graduated), several newcomers will have opportunities to make an immediate impact." He says some players are going to have to grow up quickly at the varsity level. "I'm looking forward to seeing who embraces that challenge and establishes themselves as someone we can count on."

What is on the schedule for the Eagles this season and what are some key dates to look forward to? Coach Kelly says, "As always, we're looking forward to a competitive preseason that will prepare us for the demands of Bay League play." He says the focus is on continuing to improve throughout the preseason so that they are playing their best soccer when league competition begins. "We know there won't be many easy games, and that's exactly the type of competition we want."

Key dates on the schedule are non-league home games with Ventura on December 3 and Eisenhower (San Bernardino) on December 18. The prestigious South Torrance Holiday Tournament, which runs December 21-23, could be a real test. Then it's on to the Bay League tilt that includes games against Mira Costa, Palos Verdes, North Torrance and Redondo.

Coach Kelly expects the team to be competitive even with so many players gone to graduation. "We've lost our leading goal scorer, so replacing that production will have to be a collective effort rather than relying on one individual." He says they are going to need goals from different players and contributions from across the field. There will certainly be some growing pains with so many new faces, but he believes they have the pieces to compete. "How quickly we come together as a group will go a long way in determining our success."

This will be a different-looking team than in years past, but that's part of high school soccer. Every season presents new challenges and opportunities. Coach Kelly said, "What won't change is our expectation that the boys compete, work hard, and represent El Segundo High School the right way. I'm excited to see how this group develops, and I hope the community comes out to support the boys throughout the season."

The Eagles started their season beating Cabrillo (Long Beach) 1-0 when the Jaguars were forced to forfeit the game due to disciplinary actions. It gives the Eagles an early-season win, but they would have wanted to earn it on the field.

Lady Eagles Looking Forward to Continuing Playoff Streak

The Eagles have had recent success that included back-to-back CIF championships in 2021 and 2022 and six consecutive trips to the playoffs. Head coach Rob Duffy and his staff are excited about this year's team. He says that the team is poised to make another postseason playoff appearance.

Coach Duffy, in his fourth year, has prepared his team for the grueling season with offseason training at Gate 14 for strength and conditioning. He has also had the team compete in tournaments and held preseason training at Campus El Segundo.

There are a number of players who will make an instant impact and lead the team. Coach Duffy says five key players with experience have an opportunity to make the team a winner. Rosa Luarca, Saya Elliot, Layla Gomez, Kailey Keith and Quinn Ramirez come to mind, while the team's depth is solid with Brook Immel, Ashlynn Ward and Audrey Winkle.

The schedule is a rigorous one that starts with a home match with Bay League powerhouse Palos Verdes on Monday, November 30, at 3:30 p.m. They are competing in the Best of the West Tournament on Saturday, December 12, before their Pioneer League opener on December 16.

Expectations are high for the Eagles and point to competing for a league title and a run at a third CIF championship.

Basketball Teams Start Season on a Positive Note

The Eagles began their schedules with the boys splitting their first two games. They fell to Esperanza (Anaheim) 66-64 and then whipped South El Monte 70-55. They look poised to have an exciting season. They host the Diego Rivera Huskies next Wednesday at 5 p.m.

The girls started out with a pair of wins over Edgewood and Legacy before losing

CITY OF EL SEGUNDO
WATER DIVISION

IS YOUR GRASS ABOUT TO GO DRY?

New water rules for El Segundo businesses, HOAs and public properties

California's AB 1572 and El Segundo Ordinance No. 1688 (adopted October 20, 2026) ban using drinking water on "nonfunctional turf." That means decorative grass nobody uses, like lawns in parking lots, medians and building frontage. If the only time anyone walks on it is to mow it, it probably counts.

When the Ban Starts on Your Property

Jan. 1, 2027: City and public agency properties
Jan. 1, 2028: Commercial, industrial and other institutional properties
Jan. 1, 2029: HOA and common-interest common areas

Violations can bring city citations and state penalties, and each day counts as a separate violation.

The Good News

Lawns used for sports, recreation or events can still be watered. So can trees and other non-grass plants. Single-family homes are not affected.

The City of El Segundo's Water Division Can Help You

- Find out which of your turf is "nonfunctional"
- Switch to attractive, water-wise landscaping
- Apply for available turf-replacement rebates

Get ahead of the deadline. Call the City's Water Division at (310) 524-2745 or visit https://www.elsegundo.gov/waterops for more information.

is roughly two years. He traveled to towns large and small all over America, interacted with droves of interesting individuals, and had the opportunity to meet and even play against legends such as multiple Cy Young Award winners Randy Johnson and Roger Clemens in spring training games. "I did not enjoy facing them," he admitted. He also confirmed through first-hand experience that the late great speedster Rickey Henderson spoke about himself in third person.

Despite his run-ins with various icons of the sport, Mike was quick to identify his pick for the best baseball player he ever saw. "Brian Cole," he asserted without hesitation. A teammate in 1999, the Mets' top prospect and Minor League Player of the Year in 2000, Cole tragically died in a car crash at the age of 22 just before his inevitable call-up to the Majors. Oh, what could have been…

Perhaps the highlight of his tenure behind and in front of "the dish," Mike enjoyed a hot streak to remember in 1999 as a member of the Capital City Bombers when his manager gave him the green light to start every day for a week. "I hit .550 with four home runs and was named the Mets' player of the week for the entire organization," he said. That extra playing time might have been a gesture to make up for sitting him more than Mike might have deserved. "I hit .307 the previous year and thought I would get into more games." Incidentally, in that high-average season, he had the distinction of walking exactly zero times all year (and only 13 times total in his career). So he wasn't what they call a "patient hitter."

Though playing the actual game was no longer an option, baseball remained pivotal in the next phase of Mike's journey. Sitting at home with "nothing going on," he received a call from a close buddy about a potential movie role. "He asked if I was interested in being a stunt double for a catcher in the film," he said. "The role was for a skinny dude, but I weighed 215 pounds. My friend asked if I could lose 15 pounds in a week. I said I could do it in three days."

On the set, the director took a liking to Mike and offered him a speaking part. From there, he became a go-to guy for stunts and action choreography in baseball and other sports movies. Among his credits, he was baseball coordinator for Disney's hit "Million Dollar Arm" and Columbia Pictures' "Moneyball," assistant basketball coordinator for the Adam Sandler comedies "Grown Ups" and "Grown Ups 2," and baseball technical advisor for "Superman Returns," in which he also performed stunts. He additionally acted in the famed football feature "We Are Marshall."

In the midst of the burst of initial film activity, Mike and a partner co-founded the trivia company after recognizing a demand for it in the region. Then for a couple of years, he worked as an Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) after completing the necessary training and passing state-prescribed tests. He also got married and had two children (now 20 and 14). However, his success ultimately stalled after he experienced a series of personal setbacks. He and his wife separated, film work slowed, and then the pandemic squelched any efforts to revitalize his career. Realizing he had reached a dead end in Florida, Mike packed up his few belongings three years ago and headed to Southern California, initially staying at a hotel in Manhattan Beach before settling in El Segundo. Things are on the up and up once again, and Mike is hopeful about the future. "I'm rebuilding my contacts here in the movie world and am co-producing a sports documentary set to be released next year," he reported. He also ventured out of sports in his on-camera work last year, appearing as a Navy SEAL team member in the Netflix series "American Manhunt" about the capture of Osama bin Laden.

Mike did not expect to revisit the trivia realm until his girlfriend, whom he describes as the love of his life, suggested he give it another go. "She has been so encouraging," he said. "She also has two amazing daughters whose father passed away eight years ago, and now they refer to me as their dad. I love them like they are my own."

In his trivia role, Mike likes to inject energy, personality, and humor into the proceedings along with a healthy dose of rock and roll (just in case this pops up in one of the rounds some night, his favorite guitarist is Jack White). "I do a lot of research and come up with my own questions," he emphasized. "I set it up so that everyone will want to stay the entire time." Staying in general is also his own goal. "I love it here in El Segundo," he said. "The people are so welcoming. It's like nowhere else."

Final question: Before his Minor League and movie soundstage days, Mike Ribaudo suited up for Sarasota High School's baseball squad. What was the name of the team mascot?

Answer: The Sailors, which seems fitting for a man who went on to navigate many different fields (and a few troubled waters) over the decades. • to Norwalk. The Eagles played brilliantly in their two wins but missed too many opportunities and were missing four players during their loss.

Ella Sabosky scored 26 points, including making 9 of 10 free throws, to lead the Eagles against Edgewood, while Ella Huang added 17 points. Sabosky led the Eagles with 23 points, including 16 second-half points, against Legacy. Huang poured in 15 points, three assists, and four rebounds against Legacy. Freshman forward Charlotte Lee added 10 points and five rebounds.

The wheels fell off against the Norwalk Lancers. The Eagles missed easy layups, made too many turnovers, and were playing shorthanded. The Eagles trailed by as many as 22 points in the fourth quarter. They cut into the lead; that included Isabella Cardenas' three-pointer, which cut the deficit to ten points. Ella Huang led the Eagles with 17 points while Ella Sabosky added eleven points.

Bring Colorful Birds to Your Yard This Winter

(Feature Impact) - When the weather gets cold, the skies turn gray and the trees lose their leaves, you might find yourself missing color when you look outside. Attracting birds to your backyard can cheer up your morning coffee views and give your feathered friends a safe place to land for a while.

Try these tips to create a safe, bird-friendly outdoor space this winter.

Get a Variety of Bird Feeders

Different birds prefer different feeders, so if you want to make your yard a haven for a wide range of species, set up more than one kind. Tube feeders attract small perching birds like chickadees and finches, hopper feeders draw in bright cardinals and blue jays, suet feeders appeal to woodpeckers and platform feeders mimic ground foraging for many birds.

Place feeders at least 3 feet from your windows to reduce collision risks as birds take off after eating - or outfit the glass with decals or tape to ensure they can see it. No matter what kind of feeders you get, follow the corresponding care and cleaning instructions to reduce the risk of bacterial or fungal growth.

Select the Right Kind of Seed

The ideal seed blends for your feeders depend on which birds frequent your area, but you should generally look for options with high percentages of protein and fat. Not only do these nutrients provide birds energy, but they also help them produce oil to insulate their feathers from the cold wind. Black-oil sunflower seeds, peanuts, safflower seeds and high-energy suet cakes are good options to give birds the nourishment they need.

Provide Warm Water

During the winter, it can be difficult for birds to find fresh, unfrozen sources of water to drink and bathe in. Investing in a heated birdbath or submersible deicer for your existing one can make your yard the hot neighborhood spot for winter songbirds and warblers who need a place to get hydrated and clean their feathers.

Add Shrubs for Shelter

To give your backyard birds shelter as well as food, consider planting native shrubs or trees near your bird feeding area. This gives them an easy place to escape predators, get out of the icy wind and even enjoy fresh berries if you choose fruit-bearing plants. Even a pile of brush left over from your fall cleanup can become a refuge for birds to warm up and scavenge for insects, but evergreen shrubs like holly, bayberry and viburnum are ideal and can bring even more color to your winter landscape.

City of El Segundo
Public Hearing Notice

The PLANNING COMMISSION will hold a public hearing on:

EA-1391, Revision A to Site Plan Review No. SPR 25-02 for the Professional Sports Team Headquarters and Training Facility

Project Address: 2011-2021 Rosecrans Avenue

Project Description: Amend Condition of Approval No. 8 to clarify which mitigation measures from the original Beach Cities Media Campus Project EIR must be implemented by the current development; increase the size of the building from 60,159 gross square feet to 64,778 gross square feet (representing an additional 4,619 gross square feet of enclosed interior space at the rear of the building); acknowledge the project site as being the entire 6.39-acre site since the property will not be subdivided and remains a single lot; modify the driveway by removing a center median that was to separate the two lots; and, reconfigure parking by relocating some of the 54 parking spaces around the perimeter of the building as originally approved, to a new 141-space surface parking lot to the east of the building along with associated landscape improvements, thereby increasing the total number of parking spaces from 54 spaces, to 176 spaces.

Applicant: Emily Hillery, representing LA RE Development Holdings, LLC
Hearing: Thursday, December 10, 2026, 5:30pm
City Council Chamber
