Michelin Resigns, Council Selects Planning Commissioner for Seat

By Derrick Deane

In a swift turn-around, the Hawthorne City Council will have a new look as it heads into their first meeting of the new year. Councilman Nilo Michelin submitted his written resignation to City Manager Arnie Shadbehr just days after the final scheduled meeting of 2018 had concluded.

Michelin had been in a dilemma as to whether he could serve as both a councilman for Hawthorne as well as a newly elected member of the El Camino College Board of Trustees, a seat he won on Election Day in November 2018. He was sworn in at El Camino on Dec. 17. In a special City Council meeting held days later, his colleagues and Mayor Alex Vargas formally received and accepted his resignation.

With the vacated seat bringing back memories of the seat fill-in process that took place after Vargas won his mayoral campaign in 2015, residents were adamant that the Council first hear from the public before making any appointments. One of the agenda items from the special meeting held on Dec. 20 included the consideration and appointment of a city resident to the vacant seat. That agenda item was followed with the swearing in of the newly appointed councilmember by the City Clerk.

Former City Councilmember Angie Reyes English was quick to call out the rush in the appointment, stating, “If there is an appointment to be made, it should be according to the order of the ballot.” English finished third in voting behind Olivia Valentine and Alex Monteiro for two seats on the dais. “I should be considered for appointment because I finished third on the ballot, just like Councilmember [Olivia] Valentine was considered [in 2015] and she finished fourth,” English said during the open public comments portion of the meeting.

Before coming to a decision, Vargas checked with City Attorney Russell Miyahara on what the Council’s options were in terms of filling the vacant seat. Miyahara stated that the Council could either go through the same application and nomination process from 2015 – one that resulted in four consecutive meetings with no majority agreement on a candidate to fill the seat. Miyahara also said another option was for the Council members to state a candidate’s name and vote on them one-by-one until there was a consensus majority pick.

The final option involved holding a special election to fill the seat. According to City Clerk Paul Jimenez, a special election would cost $500,000. Additionally, a special election would not take place until November 2019, leaving a vacant seat on the Council for essentially an entire year.

“We have an alternative here,” Vargas said. “As you know, in 2015 what kind of circus atmosphere it was. There were candidates, there were people who weren’t even residents who were advocating for people and it was bumper cars. Nothing really got done.”

Vargas added he decided to put the seat filling on the special meeting agenda and added, “If there is no consensus on a candidate, I do have a name that I would like to put out there.” That name, agreed upon by Mayor Pro-Tem Hadir Awad during his comments on the process, was Mike Talleda – the president of the Wounded Heroes of America non-profit organization and head of the Hawthorne Planning Commission.

While Vargas and Awad were in agreement with their nomination, Monteiro indicated where he stood before an official vote was cast. “This person only has two years and they’ll run in 2020 during the election,” Monteiro said, adding that during the 2015 selection process, a precedent was set wherein the Council did not have to automatically go to the next runner-up to fill a vacant seat. “I’m going to vote my conscious that Mike Talleda is a man of integrity. He’s been in this community since 1976 and I have seen him in action and how he votes against density in this city. I want to make sure that we select a person that is going to carry our vision of no more apartments in this city because this city is very dense. We have parking issues, we have trash issues and we have the mall issue.”

Valentine also voiced her support, citing Talleda’s work with veterans. The Council voted unanimously, 4-0, to fill Michelin’s seat with Talleda.

“Protecting the city from unscrupulous developers is something I think he is very keen on and the high density is something we need to be careful with,” Vargas said. “There are good projects and when they come, we’ll be able to recognize them and we’ll have a member on the Council that because of his experience on the Planning Commission, is onto what’s good and onto what’s bad.” Vargas added that Talleda is very fiscally conservative due to his involvement with his non-profit organization.

“I feel privileged to be a part of this team,” Talleda said after he was sworn in. “I think it’s a great team. I think you’ve got some great people on this council and I feel an honor and privilege to contribute. I am pretty passionate about veterans. They’ve taught me a great deal about humility. That’s my goal – to be a good member in standing.”

After some urging from Vargas, Talleda stated one of the issues that his Planning Commission colleagues wanted to address to the Council. It involved a proposed hotel on 116th Street and that only the owners had been given notice about it, while the residents in the area remained in the dark. Talleda felt that the residents should be notified about the potential development and that the notice should also be bilingual. The issue was agendaized for the next Council meeting. •

Cinemacy’s Top Films of 2018

By Morgan and Ryan Rojas
for www.cinemacy.com

The films we consider to be among the top picks of 2018 represent a combination of genres that had the greatest emotional impact on us, coupled with movies that felt innovative or groundbreaking. Here are three films that we consider to be the best of this past year. For our complete list, visit www.cinemacy.com.

Roma-Ryan

It seems like the best film in any given year ends up linking to the present climate of social politics and culture. The film that had the most profound effect on me that stands in dignified defiance to the loud, shouting discourse leading American politics today is a story about a quietly humble and sympathetic Mexican maid whose sole purpose is to tend to her family. Alfonso about my adolescent experience. I laughed, I cried and I felt nostalgic for my younger self, but mostly wished I could go back in time and whisper in my ear, “You are cool enough!” The film is a poignant reminder that every second spent doubting yourself are seconds wasted! And while confidence and personal growth will always be relevant to our coming-of-age journey, watching Eighth Grade for the first time offers the realization that I truly wasn’t alone. Growing up can be tough, but Bo Burnham just made it cool to be a misfit...and to that I say thank you from all the former misfits who are now adults who have found and embraced their uniqueness.

Minding the Gap-Both

The story of young skateboarders who seek to escape their dysfunctional family upbringings by goofing off together was brought to the big screen this year in Jonah

Top 10 Films of 2018, Images Courtesy of Netflix, A24, Hulu.

Cuarón, whose previous work is the space-survival film Gravity, is the vision behind this visually rich autobiographical film. Roma is also a triumph for breaking from traditional narrative film style in a liberating way. Shot in black and white 65mm film, there are a number of striking images that transcend the movie. Roma emerges like a flower, blooming throughout its duration until it finally reaches a beautiful emotional catharsis. Credit the streaming giant Netflix for putting stock in this auteur director’s original film.

Eighth Grade-Morgan

How did Bo Burnham get access to my middle school journal? Without a doubt, Eighth Grade is the film that hit closest to home with so many relatable moments that I had to remind myself that this is not a documentary

Hill’s semi-autobiographical directorial debut Mid90s, but it was the Hulu original documentary Minding the Gap that proved to be the deeper and more affecting examination of the same subject. What starts off as a skate video following the fun hangouts within a group of Illinois kids slowly takes shape into something much bigger -- an examination of issues like employment insecurity, racial tensions and domestic abuse are experienced first-hand. Most impressive is this captivating story (of which comparisons to Boyhood have been attributed) that is portrayed by one kid in particular, Bing Liu, who applies his one-man movie-making skills to write, shoot, direct, edit and interview all of his friends in what was one of the most unexpectedly affecting films of the year. •

El Camino Welcomes Back Brian Wilson for Alumni Award Gala

By Rob McCarthy

El Camino College will honor four exceptional alumni, including Brian Wilson of The Beach Boys, at the 2018 Distinguished Alumni & Gratitude Awards reception and dinner on Feb. 1. The event is hosted by the El Camino College Foundation, which has expanded its annual awards with two new categories to honor supporters of the two-year community college.

El Camino College Distinguished Alumni have furthered their educational and career goals and have shown outstanding achievements in their chosen field in addition to philanthropic and volunteer work, according to a press release about the upcoming event. Over the years, honorees have gained local, state, and national recognition for their involvement in the fields of art, medicine, politics, business, and education.

“We look forward to recognizing the accomplishments of former El Camino College students at the 2018 Distinguished Alumni & Gratitude Awards event,” said El Camino College President Dena P. Maloney. “Our outstanding alumni have made a positive impact on their communities and beyond and continue to inspire current students to succeed.”

This year’s honorees include Rocky Chávez, former California assembly member, 76th Assembly District; Sherry Kramer, director of community affairs and government relations with Continental Development Corporation; Dan Keenan, senior vice president, Keenan & Associates; and Brian Wilson, musician, singer, songwriter, record producer and co-founder of the Beach Boys.

Rocky Chávez joined the U.S. Marine Corps after graduating from El Camino and Chico State University. Chávez was a member of the college wrestling team, qualifying for the U.S. Olympic trials in 1968 and 1972. He served in the Marines for 28 years, rising to the rank of colonel. Chávez continued in public service by founding the School of Business and Technology, a charter high school in the Oceanside Unified School District and served as director from 2002 to 2008. His service extended to the Oceanside City Council where he was elected in 2002.

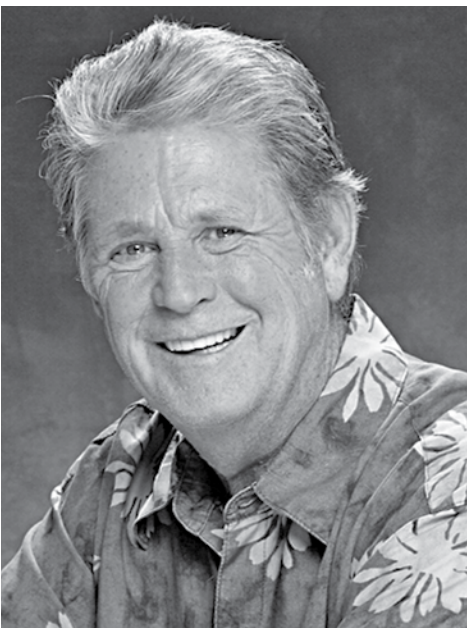

In 2009 he was appointed by then-Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger to serve as the undersecretary of the California Department of Veterans Affairs and later as acting secretary. Chávez was first elected in 2012 to represent the 76th Assembly District, which includes Camp Pendleton, Carlsbad, Encinitas, Oceanside and Vista. He has served on many committees representing education, veterans, utilities and energy. He helped his family during grade school and college by working in agriculture, including summers picking grapes in Fresno County.

Dan Keenan is senior vice president at Keenan & Associates in Torrance and works closely with public agencies and his company’s benefit consultants to design and implement retirement programs. El Camino College is a family tradition for Keenan. He and his six brothers all attended El Camino College. After graduating from South Torrance High School, Keenan attended El Camino from 1973 to 1975, where he played football, wrestled and earned an associate degree. He transferred to California State University, Long Beach and earned a degree in human resources management.

Keenan has served the South Bay in various capacities since his youth. He has since volunteered as a coach and is very active at St. Lawrence Martyr Church in Redondo Beach. Keenan has also been involved with the American Youth Soccer Association Region 34 of South Redondo Beach as a coach, referee, board member, regional commissioner and referee administrator since 1991. He is currently an executive member of Keenan & Associates’ Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) Committee with emphasis on outreach to the community and assisting youth with mentoring and Right Start programs.

Since 2006, Sherry Kramer has been the director of community affairs and government relations for Continental Development Corporation. The commercial real estate business develops and manages office, hotel, retail and medical complexes throughout the South Bay and San Francisco. She attended El Camino College before transferring to California State University, Long Beach where she earned a degree in speech communications. Kramer is active in several area chamber of commerce organizations, including El Segundo, Torrance, Palos Verdes Peninsula and Manhattan Beach, serving as chairwoman several times.

Kramer is involved in many philanthropic organizations, serving as a board member of Torrance Memorial Medical Center, CSU Long Beach, the South Bay Police & Fire Memorial Foundation, and Torrance Cultural Arts Center. She has also served on the Education Foundation boards in El Segundo, Manhattan Beach and Torrance. Among her numerous community honors, she was named Switzer Learning Center South Bay Woman of the Year, and the L.A. County Board of Supervisors and LA County Commission for Women “Woman of the Year.”

Brian Wilson is widely known as the co-founder of the Beach Boys, which he started in Hawthorne in 1961 with his brothers Brian, Dennis and Carl Wilson; their cousin Mike Love; and friend Al Jardine. An accomplished musician, singer, songwriter and record producer, Wilson is a Grammy Award winner and a member of the Rock & Roll Hall Fame. He enrolled at El Camino College in 1960, majoring in psychology while continuing his music studies. In 1961 he wrote his first all-original melody, which was eventually known as the hit song “Surfer Girl.” Band members drew on the music of jazz-based vocal groups, 1950s rock ‘n’ roll, and rhythm and blues to create their unique sound. Wilson often incorporated classical elements and unconventional recording techniques in innovative ways. He is widely regarded as one of the most innovative and significant songwriters of the late 20th century. His style and techniques have continued to influence producers and musicians through the decades.

New this year, the El Camino College Foundation will also honor one area philanthropist and one local corporate partner with the inaugural Gratitude Awards. This award recognizes long-time support of El Camino College students to help ensure they have a successful and productive educational experience.

Frances Ford is the 2018 Community Gratitude honoree. Her passion for helping El Camino students spans decades and was inspired by her late husband’s commitment to the college. Warren Ford, a chemistry professor for 36 years at the school, was extremely dedicated to El Camino College and the students. Professor Ford started teaching when he was 28 years old, after a short career at Warner Bros. He was known for always finding the time to see one more student, answer one more question, or work on one more problem. It was his desire

Hawthorne Happenings

News for the City of Good Neighbors from an Old Guy Named Norb Huber

NAME CHANGE?

The name of this rambling has been “Hawthorne Happening” even before I took to writing it nine years ago. The title is a misnomer now. A misnomer is a “wrong or inaccurate name or designation”. I really don’t know what is happening in Hawthorne. Most people in Hawthorne don’t know what is happening in Hawthorne. That is why I felt it important enough to sit down once a week to try to let people know what was happening in Hawthorne. But now that I am living 400 miles North, for the life of me I don’t know what is happening. These days I mainly talk about life and cold ones and God. I really should come up with a new name. How about these names: “Huber’s Happenings”, “Thank God for a Cold One”, “Here’s to You, God”, “Don’t Be Stupid, Relax!”, “Formerly Hawthorne Happenings”, “An Ex-Resident’s Rants”, “Life After Hawthorne”, “A Jolly Journal from an Escapee”, or finally “A Cold One and A Nice Old Lady: What More is There?” Since I don’t get paid to write this, since all 10 to 15 loyal readers read this each week, since no one really cares what I write, I guess I can call it any darn thing I want to call it. Maybe I will change the title every week. I have tried to give this job away. I’ve tried to recruit a co-writer. I have talked to my relatives and they have told me to stop writing this hog wash. My dear, almost 90 year old, mother-in-law has been embarrassed by my expounding the virtues of beer and God. She blames her son, the Lutheran pastor, for not stopping me. All of this just motivates more. “Resilience” is the name of the beer being sold by Sierra Nevada Brewery of Chico, CA. All of the sales from this beer is going towards the Camp Fire Relief Fund. Resilience is a great word. It means to be “able to withstand or recover quickly from difficult conditions”. Basically, this is what I have been preaching about all this time, have a cold one, be resilient. When life gets unbearable, just chill out and trust God.

RAIN, WIND AND COLD

It never rains in Southern California, but it does up here. Our neighbor’s tree blew down. Just a few mudslides around the burn areas. The snow pack should be getting close to average. It’s only the second week of January and many of us are longing for that sunny weather of the Spring and Summer.

UPCOMING HAWTHORNE EVENTS

Who knows?

No one sent me any, so there must be none. If there are any, send them my way, let me know what is happening.

“Your time is limited, so don’t waste it living someone else’s life. Don’t be trapped by dogma, which is living with the results of other people’s thinking. Don’t let the noise of others’ opinions drown out your own inner voice. And most important, have the courage to follow your heart and intuition.”
