Experience New Ideas at ESMoA

The El Segundo Rotary Club Continues its Philanthropic Mission

By Duane Plank

Like nearly every other service organization in the United States, the El Segundo Rotary Club (ESRC) and their myriad in-person outreach activities were severely impacted by the mandated lockdowns after the COVID-19 scourge hit California more than a year ago.

When business lockdowns and curtailments started to surface in the Spring of 2020, the Rotary Club had to pivot and explore innovative avenues to provide their services and expertise to local club members. Currently tallying out at more than 50 and dealing with the physical, emotional, and economic fallout created by a once-in-a-lifetime (we can only hope) pandemic.

The Rotary Club International, which was the brainchild of Chicago attorney Paul Harris, came to fruition in 1905. Initially, Harris envisioned a group where “professionals with diverse backgrounds could exchange ideas and form meaningful lifelong relationships.”

Over the years, the Rotary Club mission has evolved to also embrace humanitarian services, with the organization famously embarking on the enormous challenge of tackling the polio epidemic in 1979. Currently, the Rotary Club International boasts more than 1.2 million members, spread amongst 35,000+ clubs.

Valerie Smith is currently the ESRC president. Initially from Winnetka, Illinois, located not too far from Chicago, Smith traveled a somewhat circuitous route to El Segundo. She worked in the Peach Tree state of Georgia as a realtor and spent time in Dallas, Texas, running a Brunswick bowling center, before landing in El Segundo in 2014.

Smith said that, while the past year has been challenging for the club, the administration and members are still passionately forging ahead with their programs. Smith, whose one-year tenure as president is up in July, related that some of her constituency had, somewhat in jest, asked her that since, because of the pandemic, she had not “had the full experience of being president in Rotary; would you like to be president again?”

Smith, chuckling, said she told them, “Thanks for the compliment, but I don’t think so.” She will be turning over the responsibilities of the ESRC to longtime member Ed Su, the owner of Main Street’s venerable Studio Printing. Su is slated to take over the presidency reins later this Summer.

Once the pandemic and mandated lockdowns began, the ESRC, Smith said, became involved in a senior shopping program that facilitates the purchasing of necessities for older residents who have been cooped up at home. She noted that Rotary volunteers, racking up hours of steadfastly shopping for and delivering necessary items, had been able to

Experience Art at ESMoA

By Kiersten Vannest

“The nice thing is, you never know what you’re getting.” Stated Barbara Boehm, director of operations at the El Segundo Museum of Art (ESMoA), a public nonprofit. Hailing from Berlin, her background is in architecture, but now she handles all things informational regarding ESMoA, what they call an art lab here in El Segundo. She explains the innovative nature of the small museum located on Main Street.

Boehm and her “small, but mighty” team, Holly Crawford and Eugenia Torre, oversee the museum and its exhibits, programs, education, outreach, and beyond.

At ESMoA, the shows or exhibits are called “experiences.” They utilize all the senses and are thematic and conceptual. To enter one of their experiences is to see the world in a new way, consider a perspective you hadn’t, and hopefully, learn something about the world and yourself.

“We’re truly an art laboratory,” says Eugenia Torre, “We test things, and experiment, and things stick, and they grow.” Torre came from Italy and helped head ESMoA’s film festival, which incidentally became an international film festival as they received submissions from forty-nine different countries last year.

Past experiences include their ongoing “Living Library,” where real-life people offer their time as living books, open to answering questions, teaching, and just chatting. Guests have the chance to “check

Homeless Housing at Our Beaches

Have you heard about something that Bonin is trying to get passed that will allow him to place homeless RVs and temporary housing to place homeless? Really devastating since we all have been feeling safe walking or biking the paths thru Dockweiler and El Segundo beaches

- we've never had to feel unsafe and never see homeless at our beaches - lots of families go there! I see crime daily at the Westchester Park and we hear about homeless killing people everyday - we need to fight against this! I haven't found original documents but a person posted this on Facebook community today.

– Mary Storm

Your Neighborhood Therapist

Dear Neighborhood Therapist,

It seems like things are going back to normal quickly and I'm not sure I'm ready for it. I was lucky enough to be able to work from home, and now I find myself rushing to do things that I promised myself I would do during the pandemic and feeling like I have "nothing to show" for all this time at home. I didn't clean the garage, renovate anything, or read an encyclopedia. Looking back, it's hard to actually think of anything I accomplished, and I cannot figure out how that happened. I feel like I should have done so much more, and I feel like a loser because of it. Is there something wrong with me?

– Am I Lazy? El Segundo

Dear Am I Lazy,

It's tempting, isn't it, to think that if we had a year to work from home we would be able to dedicate countless hours to self and home improvement? With no commute, no restaurants or bars or concerts or museums or classes to go to, and nowhere to travel, we could finally get to all those projects we've been putting off. Cleaning out the garage. Organizing the closet. Throwing out old clothes. Learning to play the guitar.

We internalize productivity from a young age, to a point that we feel in our bones that mere survival is never enough. We feel that we must constantly optimize, increase our output, and get bigger and better. Because idleness is one of our dominant culture's worst transgressions, we tend to feel even when that idleness is forced upon us.

So no, there is nothing at all wrong with you. What you are feeling is what a lot of us are feeling: the anxiety created when our lived experience does not fall in line with what we think our culture expects from us. The fact

‘Shiva Baby’ Review: Fans of ‘Fleabag,’ This Film’s For You

By Ryan Rojas for Cinemacy

In Judaism, “sitting shiva” is the week-long mourning period that is observed following the passing of a first-degree relative. In Shiva Baby (now available to rent on Apple TV+), the same sort of deep mourning is felt by a millennial undergrad over the current state of her young life and uncertain future. When Danielle (Rachel Sennott) returns home from NYU to join her family to attend a funeral, expectation that both her age and gender are typically met with. In doing so, Shiva Baby shows a very real and untraditional character of female empowerment.

I absolutely love recommending a film like Shiva Baby, a directorial debut that is both successful in its own right and makes me look forward to what lies next for the whole filmmaking team. Especially as theaters slowly re-open and new releases continue to

she knows that she’s also entering the lion’s den of an overbearing family who all ask “How are you?” in the same sort of triggering tone that’s equal parts overly eager and concerned.

Danielle easily soothes family members expectations with talks of post-grad ambitions (either business or law school), while concealing the fact that in actuality, she’s academically middling and currently involved with a sugar daddy in the big city. It’s not until the arrival of an unexpected guest that Danielle’s shakily constructed life starts to crack, making for an event where everything is set to come out.

Shiva Baby is such a refreshing and enjoyable new comedy due to how totally authentic the characters and situations all feel. It’s not altogether surprising, given that the film is based on the experiences and observations from writer and director Emma Seligman’s own life, here making her directorial debut. Seligman’s shrewd observations of the Jewish culture along with a new millennial identity make for a wonderfully cringe-worthy but very real culture clash. From the specificity of detail in the shiva setting and the hilarious characters who attend it, down to its stark portrayal of young people owning their newfound sexualities, Shiva Baby is the type of equal-parts defiant and personal filmmaking that make for the best kind of directorial debuts.

While set to a fairly conventional narrative structure (that of a person returning to the home they once left and by doing so, are forced to confront their true selves), Shiva Baby merely uses this foundation to then make daring leaps from. Danielle (played note-perfect by newcomer Rachel Sennott) brings a new young woman character (made popular by Lena Dunham’s Girls and Phoebe Waller-Bridges’ Fleabag) to the big screen, who, for all of her flaws and poor decision-making, remains unapologetically herself. By her casually decided choices of engaging with a sugar daddy as well as exploration of bi-sexual attractions, Danielle subverts every struggle to find mass distribution, it’s such a gift to get the chance to be able to see a new film like this one that also happens to be one of the funnier adult comedies to come out in recent times. Get behind this one, baby.

77 minutes. ‘Shiva Baby’ is not rated. Available to rent on Apple TV+. •

Eagles Finding Their Way Through the Seasons

By Gregg McMullin

High school sports are nearly all back to normalcy during an abnormal time. The water polo programs completed their season, which was the culmination of Season 1 CIF sports that included cross country, girl’s volleyball, and football, which ends their season in two weeks. Unfortunately, the girls’ volleyball season was canceled due to restrictions. With Season Two in full swing, including baseball, softball, soccer, lacrosse, basketball, and boy’s volleyball, the Eagles are stretched thin filling out rosters. But, as El Segundo athletic director Steve Shevlin says, “All the schools are feeling the effects of filling team rosters, and multi-sport athletes are scarce this year.”

Water Polo Teams Finish their Seasons on Winning Note

An entire water polo season usually takes three months to complete. But the Eagles completed their 11-game season in less than two weeks. The boy’s team, which featured six seniors including Jaden Van DerWoude, Brian Schodorf, Mason Jaeger, Ryan Calvinlim, Ethan Kelch, and Ryan Whalen, finished their season 7-4.

The high-scoring Eagles romped to a 19-0 win over Torrance. Whalen started the barrage of goals early in the first quarter when El Segundo raced to a 9-0 lead. Ten different players scored goals for the Eagles, led by Max Hale, who powered in five goals and an assist while Paxton Fastman had four goals. El Segundo throttled South Torrance 24-9 in another win. Hale and Mason Jaeger led the scoring with four goals each, while Schodorf and Ethan Kelch each had three goals.

qualify for a governmental program that netted the city of El Segundo $13,000.

She also mentioned that the ESRC had raised $3,000 in a club fundraising drive, with the greenbacks being earmarked for the continuing fight against polio. The ESRC partnered with local restaurants in the fundraising drive, which promoted the purchasing of gift cards. It was a win-win situation, with the collected funds adding to the coffers in the fight against disease and El Segundo Rotary's incoming president Ed Su of Studio Printing, helping to support local restaurants as they continue to operate under the guise of mandated governmental restrictions. The Rotary partnered with the Kiwanis Club, the El Segundo Library, and the Recreation Department on the creation of a Great Pumpkin sleigh that traversed the streets of the city during the Halloween time-frame, as well as diving in to participate in a candy giveaway to local kids at Joslyn Center.

Smith said that the Rotary also sponsored a Halloween decorating contest, as well as a similar decorating contest that took place before Christmas, hoping to give Zoomed-out youth and parents the opportunity to decompress a bit from the daily routine of staring at screens and helping to foster their artistic ambitions.

Smith said that the Rotary Club has, at this point, been able to weather the COVID storm, noting that the ESRC has been able to continue what she termed the "mini-grant program for teachers." She said that the grants, capped at $250 bucks, were given to 26 teachers.

The 54th annual Mayor's breakfast was held virtually on April 2. El Segundo Mayor Drew Boyles happens to be Smith's son. She said that the Rotary Club had decided to veer the virtual breakfast into a fundraising opportunity, with prizes involving restaurant and Chevron gift cards. As of press time, she had raised, through donations, more than $3,000. "With literally no cost involved," Smith said, "I am excited that we can raise that much money." The proceeds are set to be split by the El Segundo Education Foundation and the charitable literary group "The World is Just a Book Away," which was slated to provide a speaker at last Friday's virtual meeting.

Other charitable events that the ESRC has participated in since the lockdown include the purchase of 24 sleeping bags, which were donated to needy people who are living in tents on hospital grounds in West L.A. The ESRC had received funding from a Los-Angeles based water district entity. Because in-person events have had to be curtailed, the club has looked for innovative ways to serve local citizens. Their members have given food and cards to residents at a local veteran's home and plan to award scholarships to El Segundo High School seniors.

Smith said that the ESRC has ramped up its work with CASE, a philanthropic organization that attempts to provide food products and other dry goods to locals in need and donate goods to U.S. Marines stationed at Camp Pendleton in Oceanside. And the club has plans in the works for a Mother's Day gift-basket promotion.

COVID, Smith said, has not stopped the work of the ESRC. "We have actually been pretty busy," Smith said. "Even without doing the huge events that we usually do, like (the August) Movie in the Park, we are able to continue the kind of work that we want to do in the community."

As mentioned, Smith will be turning over the ESRC leadership reins to longtime Rotary member Su this Summer. "He has avoided the presidency," she chuckled. "I think they ask the newer members in the club" to become president. "He has been such an asset to me as president-elect. A fabulous person who has stepped up to help me," she said. "A real asset to the club. He will run (his) presidency the way that he wants to do it, as we all do. It will be really cool. I am hoping that we will get to the point that we can meet in person. Having Zoom meetings every week since last March is tough."

Su said that, as a longtime ESRC member, he had "avoided" taking on the presidency responsibilities, as he focused on the needs of his daughter, Sydney. But she is heading back East in the Fall to attend college, so Ed said, "now I am free." He hopes to continue many of the traditional, in-person events that have been a trademark of the Rotary Club for years, building relationships with those like-minded folks in the city. "It all comes down to helping more people," he said.

Su said that when he became an ESRC member some 20 years ago, he was looking to find a way to give back to the community. The Rotary Club provided a good fit to utilize Su's philanthropic philosophies. He said he was "very comfortable" with the members he met two decades ago, which prompted him to become a member.

Su is ready to lead the ESRC forward starting later this Summer. Asked if it was finally his turn to ascend to the organization's presidency, Su said that "it was probably my turn to become president a long time ago," he laughed, "but I was able to wiggle out of it. My main goal is to do more work and to reach out to more people who need help."

It seems that the COVID scourge cannot stifle the continuing efforts and the implementation of charitable works by the members of the ESRC. •

Reasons To Stop
Delaying A Colonoscopy

(BPT) - Thinking about a colonoscopy may make you uncomfortable, and maybe even a little worried - especially if you have never had one before. But a colonoscopy is a relatively simple procedure that may help save your life by identifying the early signs of colorectal cancer.

While you may have delayed some medical visits because of the pandemic, you can rest assured that health care providers have worked hard to help ensure that procedures like colonoscopies are conducted safely. Putting screenings off, in contrast, may be dangerous: Delayed cancer screenings during the initial months of the COVID-19

Nearly 148,000 new cases of colorectal cancer were expected to be diagnosed in the U.S. in 2020. About 80,000 of those cases were estimated to be among adults 65 and older. And yet only 61% of Americans age 50 and older have had a colonoscopy.

Colonoscopy Prep

You may be asked to begin a procedure to help prepare the bowel and colon for examination.

Your doctor will likely instruct you to cut out fiber from your diet two days before your colonoscopy. One day before, you will eat no solid foods, and no liquids that are orange or red. You may consume clear pandemic are estimated to result in 10,000 excess colorectal and breast cancer deaths.

Why Screening is Important

It's a good reminder that the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force recommends adults age 50 to 75 be screened for colorectal cancer. According to the American Cancer Society, colorectal cancer is the third-leading cause of cancer-related deaths in the U.S. - and early in the disease, there are often no symptoms.

"Too often, when people begin experiencing symptoms of colorectal cancer, the disease has advanced to a point where it's much more difficult to treat," said Dr. Philip Painter, chief medical officer, UnitedHealthcare Medicare and Retirement. "That's why it's so important to get screened at age 50 if you have no risk factors - and earlier, if you do."

People who are longtime smokers, overweight, physically inactive and those with a family history of colorectal cancer in a parent, sibling or child are at an increased risk.

juices, gelatins, popsicles, clear broth and coffee or tea without creamer. The evening or morning before your exam, you will drink a liquid that will induce bowel movements.

You may find that the preparation for a colonoscopy is not as unpleasant as you have heard. In recent years, colon-cleansing solutions have become better tasting, and lower amounts of the laxative solution are sometimes used.

The procedure itself is not lengthy - typically, about 30 to 60 minutes. Sedation is usually recommended, and you may feel slight cramping during the exam, but many may feel nothing at all.

If your results are negative, doctors typically recommend another colonoscopy in 10 years.

"Taking preventive steps like getting your colonoscopy can literally save your life," Dr. Painter said. "If you are over 50 and have not yet had the test, it's best to get that scheduled as soon as possible."

that our dominant culture does not account for pandemics - we have no frame of reference for the current situation - means that our thinking defaults to, "I should be productive." But maybe you actually shouldn't. We just don't know.

We should all give ourselves a break. In the best of times, it's much easier to make a resolution than to keep it. Often we are not as tough or resilient as we think we are, or expect ourselves to be. Though the crisis may be on the wane, its ripples may last for years. We're on our way (but not there yet, by a long shot!) back to a version of normal that is mostly similar to what we were living in February of 2020, but nonetheless altered. Some will pick up right where they left off, but for others the changes have been nothing short of permanent and life-altering.

These initial steps back into former circles may be uncertain, awkward, or uncomfortable.

The circles may have changed. People passed on; others moved away or moved in; jobs and circumstances changed. Even in those moments where you take stock and say, "I'm ok," most of us have been and remain in survival mode. There is no right way or wrong way to survive. We would do well to assume people did their best, and treat them - and ourselves - accordingly. You get to do that, too.

In the final game of the season, the Eagle held off a physical Santa Monica team 11-8. Brian Schodorf, who scored three goals and four assists, powered in his first goal shot to give his team a 2-1 lead in the first period. Schodorf fed Max Hale inside, who tapped in another score. The eagles built a side to make it 13-7, and with time winding down Ramirez took a pass from Avary Torrez and scored the Eagle's final goal to make it 16-9.

It was a successful season for both teams because there was a season when at one point, it was in doubt. These resilient athletes hits by going 4-for-4 with a double and three runs scored. Rafael Smith was 2-for-3 with three RBIs, and Christian Kramer had a big day going 2-for-2 with three RBIs.

Defensively the Eagles played a clean game and backed up Jake Stalnack's complete game two-hitter with flawless defense. Stalnack struck out five, hit a batter, and walked one in his 78-pitch effort.

The Eagles faced perennial South Bay powerhouse Redondo and came away with a 6-5 comeback win. Kenny Chung started for the Eagles, and the hard-throwing right-hander gave up four first-inning runs highlighted by Joseph Replogle's homerun. Chung settled down and held the Sea Hawks in check until the seventh inning, when they score another run.

The Eagles had problems putting together a rally-scoring inning to start the game, but that changed in the third inning. The Eagles combined to score three runs on four hits and took advantage of a walk. In the fifth inning, the Eagles took a 5-4 lead when they scored two more runs. In the sixth inning, Chung's RBI single scored Brendan McAndrews to give the Eagles a 6-4 advantage. In the seventh inning, Chung ran into trouble when he gave up two walks and an RBI single to Replogle to make it 6-5. Lloyd Sapanza came on in relief in the seventh inning and quieted the Sea Hawks, and the Eagles came away with the 6-5 win.

Chung picked up the win and helped his cause by going 3-for-4 with two RBIs, and Dylan Immel went 3-for-3 and scored twice. The Eagles played host to Bishop Montgomery this past Tuesday and host Mira Costa next Tuesday at 6 p.m.

Softball Team Continues to Roll

The Eagles had a pair of wins over traditionally good teams. They dispensed Mira Costa 4-1 and then defeated Culver City 7-3. In each game, the Eagles looked solid in all facets of the game, including timely hitting and good pitching.

The Eagles took a 2-0 lead into the third inning in the game against Mira Costa. Laila Phillips gave her team a 4-0 lead with her first home run of the season. The Mustangs would score an unearned run in the fifth, but that would be it. Eagle starter Bailey Gertsch went the distance, striking out 12, and improved to 2-0 on the year.

Against Culver City, the Eagles scored two runs in each of the first three innings on their way to a 7-3 win. Phillips was 2-for-3 with an RBI and one run scored. Bella Gridley was 2-for-4 and hit her first home run of the season. Sofia Temblador started for El Segundo and gave three runs on seven hits and struck out five.

The Eagles host Palos Verdes next Wednesday at 3:15 p.m.

Football Team Thrown for Loss

The Eagles were coming off a devastating loss in which they lost six players to injuries. Facing Torrance with an already depleted roster that was down to 26 players made the game an even more of a challenge for the coaching staff. They were down to a third-string quarterback, a running game by committee, and several new linemen on both sides of the ball.; the result was a 28-6 loss to the Tartars.

El Segundo's offense was tested all game long, and the defense was on its heels constantly because of the field position Torrance had. Torrance running back Nathaniel Nelson opened the scoring on a 14-yard run in the first quarter. Matt McComas tossed a 12-yard TD pass to Sergio Sanchez in the second quarter for a Torrance 13-0 lead.

El Segundo responded with a touchdown drive that was aided along by three major penalties. It was also set up by a pass from Conrad Bernstein to James Pearson for a first down. The play also drew two penalties that moved the ball deep in Tartar territory. Bernstein then ran a naked bootleg eight yards for the Eagle's only score.

"It was a difficult loss to digest knowing how hard these guys played," said head coach Shawn Green. With so many injuries, Coach Green played with several players on the field out of their primary positions.

The Eagles face West Torrance on Friday at 7 p.m. and return home to finish the season next Friday night against Lawndale. •

Brian Schodorf was a big reason the Eagles were so successful.

9-1 lead in the third quarter before Santa Monica started chipping away at the lead In the fourth quarter. Schodorf scored from outside to give the Eagles an 11-5 advantage before Santa Monica closed out the game with three consecutive goals.

The girl's water polo team closed out their season with an impressive 8-3 record with their 16-9 win over Santa Monica. Prior to the game, the four seniors on the team were honored, including Eden Walsh, Victoria Rodriguez, Genevieve Fernandez, and four-year starter and the University of Hawaii committed Christina Mullane.

In the third quarter, with the Eagles leading 9-7, Stephanie Rodriguez took a volley pass inside to score and extend the lead. Emily Ramirez found an opening from the right fought through adversity to make it a season they'll never forget.

Baseball Team Back in the Winning Column

The baseball team's three-game losing streak was the longest skid in three years. That all changed with a 20-0 romp over Peninsula that saw the Eagles score in each inning and then backed that up by holding off Redondo 6-5 in two non-league games.

Facing Peninsula was just what the Eagles needed to come out of their slump. They played a clean game, the pitching was superb, and the offense was hitting on all cylinders. Over six innings, the Eagles hammered out 20 hits and scored 20 runs (15 earned runs).

Key Ways to Stretch Your Paycheck

(BPT) - Feel like your paycheck is gone before your next payday? You're not alone. A 2020 survey, "Getting Paid in America," revealed that 2 out of 3 Americans are living paycheck to paycheck.

Not only is this stressful and frustrating, it can cause you to have fewer choices for managing your money and be more expensive way in helping you improve your financial well-being for the future.

[1] How America Banks: Household Use of Banking and Financial Services (2020, October 19)

[2] Payday Lending in America: Who Borrows, Where They Borrow, and Why (2012, July) •

for you in the long run. Nearly 12 percent of U.S. households use expensive methods like money orders, check cashers and bill pay services to access the money they earn, which can lead to a downward spiral of further expense and debt.[1] And for those who borrow money to hold them over, it may take about five months to pay off loans, costing an average of $520 in additional financing charges.[2]

The good news? There are ways that can help you stretch your dollar further, from one paycheck to the next.

1. Go digital

If you're not getting what you need from your current bank or are looking to bank for the first time, you should know that digital banking these days is a safe, accessible and affordable option.

2. Direct deposit = Quick Access to Pay

Did you know you can actually access your paycheck a day or two early? When you've got bills due or need groceries before your paycheck hits your bank, you need your money quicker. Options like payday loans can end up costing you hundreds in fees and even cashing your paycheck can delay your payday even further.

3. Plan Ahead to Avoid Fees

First, get a clear picture of where your money is going each month - and when. On a calendar, map out what bills are due when, when subscriptions like Netflix will charge you, and when you'll be paid.

If one part of the month contains most of the due dates, call your creditor to ask if you can move the due date, easing the strain on that pay period. If you can get bills paid on time, that means fewer late fees - and a better credit score in your future.

4. Build Savings Little by Little

Since there's no way to be ready for every unexpected bill or expense, you'll have more peace of mind if you start building an emergency fund right away. Setting aside even a small amount each pay period will add up over time. You'll thank yourself when an emergency doesn't plunge you into debt.

5. Start Safely Building and Improving Credit

Having a higher credit score makes it easier and less expensive to borrow money when you need to - such as for a car loan or home mortgage. Building better credit takes time, but there are ways to do so today that will open the door to better options tomorrow. Taking these steps may help you get to your next payday with a lot less stress. A little planning and the right tools can go a long

Within their organization, the museum has three pillars of its structure: experiences, arts education programs, and artists in residence. The experiences consist of workshops, art talks, presentations, and other public events, all of which are free and open to the public.

On the museum education and programming side, Holly Crawford heads up an effort to increase diversity, inclusion, and community relations. This includes school programs and artist-led workshops and family days, and says Crawford, going on to say that pre-pandemic, she was rarely home, going from work to art openings, to meeting with artists. As things begin to reopen with the rollout of the vaccine, she is beginning to attend galleries and arts events again, always in search of new artists to work with and connect.

The third pillar of ESMoA is their Artist in Residence program (AIR). Each year, an artist is selected to complete a residency at ESMoA, culminating in the installation and exhibition of their work. “It’s designed for an artist or a writer or a musician to create an original

The entire ESMoA team is always looking for new ways to connect with the local community. Designing Spaces For Living, Working And Playing At Home

(BPT) - Over the last year, life has been synonymous with ongoing changes, and chances are your home has had to adapt to these changes too. Your kitchen table might now be your office, the living room now serves as a classroom and your kitchen island is now a space for virtual social hours with friends. Are you longing for more functional and flexible spaces that work for your evolving needs? You're not alone.

"Spending more time at home and needing it to work in new ways has caused homeowners to rethink their spaces," says Leigh Spicher, National Director of Design Studios for Ashton Woods. "With more of your life at home you need spaces focused on how you live with the ability to transform, as necessary."

While some people are remodeling their homes to accommodate the new normal, others are selling and taking advantage of historically low interest rates in order to build their own home to perfectly fit their needs. No matter which category you fall into, Spicher shares the top trends in home design so you can elevate your home to prioritize agility, functionality, comfort and style.

Design rooms for dual purpose

Gone are the days of single purpose, defined spaces like "living," "dining" or "bed" rooms.

With the need for home offices and virtual learning spaces, families need more room to complete the tasks within their homes. But imagine the functionality your home would have if creative solutions allowed one room to flex for multiple purposes, embracing the practical needs of your home today with flexibility for tomorrow.

Designer tips:

- Carve out space in larger-than-necessary rooms for different purposes. For instance, an open area in the owner suite or extra walk-in closet makes room for a nursery. Or the seating area in a home office may better serve as a home gym.
- Clean out the hall linen closet and add a small desk with playful artwork to serve as a child's learning space. It will be less distracting than a playroom or bedroom and creates a space all their own.
- Add a built-in or console for office organization in a dining room or clean out old and unused dishware from the china cabinet to make room for office and school supplies. Both solutions offer a beautiful focal point in the home while being utilized for more practical everyday needs.

Usher in light in the new year

Rooms are often not designed with proper lighting. Objective layers of lighting and correct temperatures of that lighting play a key role in not only how your space looks and feels, but also how it functions. A single layer of lighting often leads a room to be too dark or one dimensional, while many layers of different temperatures can make a room feel "off."

Designer tips:

- Ensure each room has the four layers of fundamental lights as needed. Each room should have a main source of lighting like recessed can lights. Then add task lighting like a reading lamp or under cabinet lighting in the kitchen. Accent lighting such as small track lighting should be used to illuminate a focal point. And finally, add a decorative light such as a chandelier or sconce to complete the room.

- First, determine if you want your room to feel warm or cool, and then ensure those layers of light all work towards the same color temperature. When you purchase lightbulbs, the packaging will include this little detail.

Create a space for what's most important

Functional spaces are made for the way you live while offering opportunities for connection - and trends are following suit. Spicher says homeowners are adopting a "new traditional" style that is both comfortable and contemporary - making way for natural spaces where memories can be made. This means family rooms are designed with group gatherings in mind with furniture and flow that encourages conversation and interactions.

Designer tip: Make sure there is a room or at least a "zone" in your home that is absent of technology. Turn off and cover the TV to create more room for those games, puzzles and good conversation without distractions. Think back to that "traditional" formal living room and design spaces intended for connection and visiting with friends that are a more approachable and comfortable look for everyday living.

Luna

With “kitten season” upon us, there is an urgent need for foster parents. Whether you care for one or many, once or frequently, Kitten Rescue would love for you to become a foster parent. They offer training, guidance, medical care (if needed) and lots of moral support. Fostering brings you the rich reward of knowing you personally saved this kitty’s life in providing a safe, loving home while waiting for adoption. Interested?.....please email us at foster@kittenrescue.org for more information.

Here are a few of the precious cats and kittens waiting for their fur-ever homes.

Luna can take your breath away with just one glance into her sweet face and blue eyes. She will knock you off your feet when you discover she gives hugs! She came to us frequently as a visitor for food. One day Luna showed up pregnant looking for a quiet place to have her babies. Her little ones have been adopted, so now it is time for Luna to find her forever home where she can be loved. She prefers a quiet home with little foot traffic as she is shy, but so very loving. If she chooses you as hers, Luna will perch herself on your back and hang out while you work or relax. Luna loves being by her human and will sweetly lay near you as you go about your day.

Dot is a friendly, easy going kitty. She gets along with cats, people and her ideal home would have a cat-friendly dog or two, as she is especially fond of small dogs. Dot enjoys playing with the feather on a stick toy and she is a Temptations junkie! An outgoing kitty, Dot likes to chat with you about her thoughts on things and would love to be in a home that she can call her own.

Sun is sweet and friendly guy who loves to get petted and brushed. This playful, social kitten loves to be on your lap while rumbling with his purrs. Sun is bonded with his brother Moon who is gaining confident by having his brother around. They both spent their first four months on streets in LA before we got them. They have come a long way in learning to socialize with humans in their foster home and have shown amazing results. Sun must be adopted with his brother Moon or to a home with another cat.

Moon is little, adorable, sweet, shy kitten who loves other cats. He is bonded with his brother Sun from whom he gets his comfort. Moon likes to talk and lets you know if he wants treats, food or being petted. Moon should be adopted with his brother Sun or to a home with another cat.

Joey came to Kitten Rescue when her owner passed away. Joey has the softest fur and enjoys being petted. Though a little overwhelmed at first in her new surroundings, she has adapted well to her foster home. Joey is a quiet girl, and her ideal home would be a calm one. She can be adopted as a solo kitty or into a home with another cat. Joey likes to sunbathe and is looking forward to a home where she can nap on the sofa and binge watch Netflix with her human.

Patrick was living in the streets surviving from the kindness of a man who fed him and provided shelter by leaving his sliding door open. Patrick grew up knowing the kindness of humans, but never the joy of their touch. While in our care, Patrick has discovered pets and now he cannot get enough! Seriously, he always wants to be pet. We believe he is trying to make up for the years of going without. This boy has found his voice and is not afraid to ask for what he wants. Patrick has shown he is a wonderful conversationalist! He does not like to be out of the family loop. Being with someone who is home most of the time and with a fellow kitty would make a lovely home for this sweet boy. His biggest motto is “Must love Meows” If you do, Patrick is the one for you!

These kitties are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org or email us at mail@kittenrescue.org.

Your tax-deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 914 Westwood Blvd. #583, Los Angeles, CA 90024.

On Saturdays, we have adoptions from noon to 3:30 p.m. in Westchester at 8655 Lincoln Blvd. just south of Manchester Ave.

Patrick

and also in Mar Vista at 3860 Centinela Ave, just south of Venice Boulevard. Our website lists additional adoption sites and directions to each location.

Adopting one animal may not change the world, but it will forever change the world for that animal. •

Happy Tails

Time for a Working Cat follow up!

When visiting the city shelter, we always ask whether any of the feral cats we pull for our “Working Cats Program” came from the same colony. If possible, we try to place them together with their colony mates. These two cats were able to be matched as being from the same colony. Now they are loving their life as mousers at a Chatsworth dog boarding facility.

Pretty Kitty and Pretty Kitty Girl (PKG) have been together for a year. Their guardians tell us that they play together, love each other and are enjoying life at the kennel. We love the Happy Tails of our Working Cats! #workingcats #krworkingcats #savingferals #

When you adopt a “pet without a partner”, you will forever make a difference in their life and they are sure to make a difference in yours. •
