El Segundo's Malcolm Au Continues to be a Valuable Asset to the City

By Duane Plank

When an El Segundo Herald writer tracked down Malcolm Au for a phone interview that led to this profile, Au was nowhere to be found in the confines of our little community.

No, the 2020 UCLA graduate was traveling in a car more than 2,000 miles away, traversing the roads of the great state of Indiana, heading towards Lucas Oil Stadium in Indianapolis, where the underdog Bruins men's basketball team would later that evening edge a favored No. 1 regional seed Michigan Wolverine team, 51-49, to advance to the NCAA tournament's final four.

Au had a solid reason to travel to Indianapolis to watch his alma mater play in person instead of watching from the comfortable confines of a couch in El Segundo. In his initial tenure at the Westwood campus, during his freshman year, Au had served time as the men's basketball team manager before his world took a quick U-turn. He was compelled to "drop everything" and return to his native Singapore to fulfill a mandatory two-year military stint that is expected of all male citizens.

Au ironically noted that his two-year military career was a tad bit longer than his prior residency in Singapore, which he estimated was "a place that I had never lived for more than six months." Au has also lived in Korea, the United Kingdom, India, and Australia, and for a short time, in nearby Westchester. World traveler---except for the Westchester stay.

Au dutifully fulfilled his military requirements, recalling the return to Singapore and military service time as "a complete culture shock." He said that he "did my absolute best," rising to the rank of platoon commander, where he led and counseled a platoon of 40 men through 250 hours of "high-stress field operations to shape them into a well-disciplined, respectful, and mission-focused soldiers."

Au was hopeful that his military commitments could be delayed until he graduated from UCLA, but that was not an option, so he dove right into his duties, honing not only his physical attributes, but also his leadership skills. "I would not trade that experience for anything," Au said while noting that his military stint helped him develop into the person he is today.

Upon completing his military service in August of 2017, Au returned to the Los Angeles area and resumed his studies at UCLA and manager duties supporting the Bruin basketball team while diving into

Marisa Scarda and Mario Sandoval Bring Smiles with Natural Simplicity

By Kiersten Vannest

Flowers have a language. Their colors symbolize sentiments like love, friendship, and mourning. Their leaves can signify a season or a feeling. Their presence can speak to our relationships, and change our mood.

No one speaks this language better than Marisa Scarda and her business partner Mario Sandoval, who own and operate a flower shop here in El Segundo called Natural Simplicity. Natural Simplicity is celebrating its thirteenth year in business this year. Their flowers have made it to massive conferences, corporate events, social events, weddings, and even funerals.

While Mario designs the bouquets and handles the creative side of things, Marisa holds the fort down on the business and administrative side. Born in Argentina and raised in Hawthorne, Marisa began as a mortgage loan processor. In 2007, after fifteen years in the field, she took time off for maternity leave and came back to the market crash of 2008. It was time for a change.

At that point, a good friend of hers (Mario), who she'd known since high school, was operating a flower business out of his garage. She loved his work, and they decided to partner and open an official shop. Her husband, who worked in computers at the time, told her that

Attention Spectrum Customers

Spectrum has given its customers a very small notice of a very big change to its terms and services. Spectrum has changed its billing policy for phone and internet services without giving proper notice. Since January 2021, no matter when you cancel your phone or internet service, you will be charged for the entire month. One day over into the next pay period, you will be charged for a full month of services. Spectrum has provided notice of this change only on your December 2020 invoice. This billing policy change is not reflected on any subsequent invoices or their website under “terms and conditions.” For the year ended December 31, 2020, Spectrum’s revenue of $48.1 billion increased by 5.1% year-over-year. In 2021 they decide to what appears to be similar to price gouging their customers during a pandemic? •

Important Billing Message. Effective on or after January 30, 2021 and consistent with the Terms and Conditions of Service, Spectrum Business will no longer provide a pro Rata credit for services sold on a monthly basis that are canceled Prior to the end of the current billing month.

An image of the non-descript notice on a December 2020 invoice to announce Spectrum’s momentous decision that affects all its customers. There is nothing “consistent” here and nothing in their “terms and conditions” on their website as of April 6, 2021.

Celebrate the 50th Anniversary of “Week of the Young Child” with Starting at Zero

By Sandra Rojas for Cinemacy

This week kicks off the 50th anniversary of “Week of the Young Child”—a tradition started in 1971 by NAEYC to recognize the importance of early learning, young children, their teachers, families, and communities.

The debate about ways to enhance our system of education often lacks voices to represent our youngest learners. Our concern about increasing test scores for school-age children and similar standards of evaluation fails to shed light on the conversation we really should be having, and that is the attention to the earliest years. In the documentary what that education looks like. We quickly learn that, of all the states in our nation, Alabama is a shining star, leading the nation as an example of how to prioritize and embrace quality early learning. The collaboration they have established between the public, private, and business sectors to achieve this common goal is beyond impressive. The results of their efforts over the years continue to reflect indisputable positive results, and we should all be taking notes. As an early childhood educator for over 25 years, I found this documentary to be more than inspiring. It really captures the

Starting at Zero: Reimagining Education in America, director Willa Kammerer effectively highlights this too often neglected topic in a powerful way.

We see this movement begin to take shape at the top levels as Governors from states like Montana, North Carolina, Virginia, Mississippi and most notably Alabama, collectively recognize that our future depends on our ability to meet the needs of young children by providing consistent high-quality education experiences before they start kindergarten. Most importantly, however, is understanding essence of what a quality early education looks like, which is not just learning A-B-C’s. Starting at Zero reminds us all that, if we want to foster creative, collaborative, socially responsible individuals, we need to find a way to give all children a safe environment with high-quality teachers, so they can play, learn, create, laugh and eventually make a positive impact in the world. Eagles Look Competitive

By Gregg McMullin

With nearly all of Season II sports back in action, the El Segundo Eagles have seized the moment by continuing their competitive ways. The baseball team is on a roll, and the softball team was idle while the boys' basketball team opened their season with a Jaden Fode found an opening and pushed the ball in for another goal, and the Eagles came away with a 4-2 win.

El Segundo met their match against Torrance, which used their speed and great defense to hold off the Eagles 3-1. The Eagles win. The soccer teams are off to a slow start while the football team's woes continue.

Julian Rodriguez Leads Eagles

The baseball team is finding their way after a slow start to begin the season. With their impressive 6-2 win over Bishop Montgomery, the Eagles evened their season record to 4-4. It was a different story the first these two teams played. This time, the Knights couldn't capitalize on their home field advantage of wind and cold, resulting in a 1-0 win over the El Segundo. This time around, the Eagles took advantage of the wildness of Knight' starter Brody Lieble. He hit Brendan McAndrews and Evan Smith to start the game, and Julian Rodriguez, who was 2-for-3, doubled both runners in, and the Eagles had a 2-0 lead.

The Knights put together a two-run rally in the third inning. With two outs, Kahlil Brittenum reached an error, followed by Cole Blumenthal's single. Both scored on Ian Draves' two-run single to tie the game. The Eagles responded in their half of the third inning when Evan Smith singled and scored on Rodriguez's run-scoring single. The Eagles padded their lead with Rafael Smith's RBI single. Leading 4-2 in the sixth inning, the Eagles added two more runs when Marquise Wright scored on McAndrews' RBI single on Evan Smith's RBI single to make it 6-2.

Jake Stolnack picked up his second win with a complete game 5-hitter and lowered his ERA to a team best, among starters, to 0.30. In his three starts, Stolnack has limited the opposition to a .157 batting average.

Soccer Teams hit a Snag

This year's girl's soccer team returns 11 players, including five all-Ocean League players Natacha Lee, Annika Nelson, Katie Callahan, Michaela Turner and Trinity Parascandola. The defense is anchored by Lee, Dalia Ramirez, Lizzie Kapoor and Callahan, while Nili Kovacs returns in goal. Unfortunately, the team lost Abby Martinez, another standout on defense, due to an injury.

Midfield will consist of Parascandola, Turner, Charlie Gerson, Makana Burns and Savannah Schartz. The attacking line is full of talented athletes starting with leading scorer Chelsea Charles and Jaden Fode, Ciara Doggett, Annika Klishevich and Marisa Herrera.

The Eagles opened their season with a 4-2 win over North Torrance. Trinity Parascandola scored early in the first half, and Chelsea Charles powered one in from the right side. With the game tied 2-2 in the second half, Charles hammered one past a diving Saxon goalie to make it 3-1. Five minutes later, his office was subleasing half their space in El Segundo. They talked to the owner, and Natural Simplicity was up and running soon after.

Natural Simplicity

One of Mario's many arrangements.

Marisa's job consists of going out and talking to hotels and restaurants, meeting with clients, handling the back end parts of the shop, and assisting in set up on event days.

With just Marisa, Mario, their driver, and a couple of people who help out in the shop, they have event setup down to a science. "Usually, we don't have a lot of time to set up for weddings," says Marisa, "Most of the places give you an hour tops."

First, the client comes in, hopefully with some idea of what they want, and discusses their vision with Mario. Mario listens for things like color schemes, soft or bold colors, feelings, and styles. Clients sometimes bring in Pinterest boards to give him a better idea of what they want. From there, Mario begins work on the bouquets, and Marisa works with the venue and other vendors to organize the setup. From there, they have to wait till all the other vendors set up their services, and then they come in with the flowers Mario prepared and set it up as quickly as possible.

Mario goes to the flower market in the early hours of every morning. This way, all the flowers he works with are fresh. Marisa gets to the shop early as well and preps bouquets for the day's deliveries.

During the pandemic, the shop hit its most difficult time when the LA flower market shut down. No shipments meant only working with local flowers and on limited supply. Despite that, they worked with what they had, and the shop is now back up and running. "We'd love to expand, but there's only one Marisa and one Mario," she says.

Though they love designing the arrangements and planning for events, their favorite part of the job is the community they've built. "We have a lot of customers that we've worked with for years," she explains, "So we know what their mom or girlfriend or wife like, so they can just say make an arrangement." Sometimes a new customer will come in and say they're going on a first date, for example, and Marisa be able to recommend a soft color that doesn't spell romance the way a dozen red roses would. That recommended flower might carry through their relationship.

The best arrangements, they share, are the ones in which a customer gives Mario a direction and free creative license. He doesn't plan out any of the arrangements he makes. Rather, they all live in his head and flow through his hands into a beautiful bouquet.

To make your fresh flowers last longer in a vase, Marisa offers this simple yet under-used advice: water them. The most common mistake she sees buyers make is filling the vase once and never again. "The flowers are drinking a lot of water the first couple of days," she says. In addition, take out the flowers that have died so they don't affect the water or the flowers that are still thriving and keep them in a cool place. Marisa's favorite flower is the tulips, and when she brings home a bouquet of tulips, she likes to toss a penny in the bottom of the vase to make them last longer.

With thirteen years under their belt, they've come to know and love their El Segundo base. As much as they love putting together arrangements and working with the flowers, it's the smile on their customer's faces that is their favorite thing. Marisa says that flowers bring happiness to the sad and joy to the happy. "We have one of those little stepping stones that are around town, and ours says, 'The Earth laughs in flowers.'" She plans to continue to bring smiles to the city of El Segundo. • took an early 1-0 lead thanks to Chelsea Charles, who powered her goal attempt past an outstretched Torrance goalie. Torrance used some clever passing and took advantage of open opportunities to score two first-half and second-half goals. El Segundo's offense pressured Torrance goalie Audrey Silverman when the opportunity came up, but she made team and brought length and athleticism to the varsity level. Chaikovsky can shoot the ball and, with his size and intelligence, will anchor the inside of the Eagle's defense. Awada is a great athlete that can finish at the rim and defend inside.

Three sophomores and two freshmen will round out the roster this season. Sophomores

There were times when El Segundo's offense showed signs of sustaining a drive, only have it stalled by a turnover or a penalty. In the second quarter, the Eagle's only score was set up after a roughing the kicker penalty by West Torrance on fourth and long. Conrad Bernstein then directed the offense down the field and found James Pearson open for safety concerns. Head coach Shawn Green met with his coaching staff and the seniors before making the decision, and all were in agreement. Thus, ends a shortened season for a team that was down to their fourth-string quarterback, second string running back, and a backup secondary while playing three backup linemen.

seven saves or deflections, and the Eagles came away with a 3-1 loss.

The boys' soccer team opened their season with a 4-3 win over Peninsula. Trailing 3-0 in the second half the Eagle scored four goals, one each by Duke Durand, Andre Hernandez, Jackson Bevelhiemer and Constanin Papadopoulos . Since then, the Eagles have stumbled over the next three games when they fell to Mira Costa, North Torrance and Torrance.

Basketball Team Opens Season with Win and Optimism

It's been a long wait, but the high school basketball season is finally here. The Eagles will play a modified schedule that is more like a sprint playing 13 games in six weeks than a standard 28 games over four months. According to head coach David March, the program will continue to focus on being a tough, defensive-minded team that wins through pressure defense and an analytics-based offense. Since March, the group is really excited to be back together for the first time and focused solely only on their return to the Pioneer League.

There's a lot of optimism with three talented seniors, including Leo Cagan, CJ Hardy-Taylor and Gideon Telahun, returning, and each has all-league potential. There are four juniors, including two returners including Preston Engle and Tyler Murray. Engle is one of the most offensively gifted players in the Pioneer League, while Murray is a tough-minded guard. Dani Awada and JJ Chaikovsky played together on the JV Farren Affel, Holden Coulter and Jesse Gutierrez will join freshman Carlos Guardiola and Jack Pintens in what will be the youngest team Coach March has had during his tenure at ESHS. The group brings good length, with Coulter, Guardiola and Pintens all being 6'5 or taller. Coulter and Pintens bring guard skills, and Guardiola brings inside toughness with his 6'5 and 215-pound frame.

Prior to the Eagles season opener, they had just one practice session inside a gym, and that was on game day. They capitalized on their shoot around and defeated Artesia on the road in a 55-39 win. Led by CJ Hardy-Taylor (13 points) and Preston Engle (21 points), the Eagles jumped out to a 10-1 lead with a hard half-court trap and pressure. The game was highlighted by a monster dunk by CJ Hardy Taylor that delighted his teammates.

Coach March was pleased with the team's first game and said, "The kids played hard and competed against a team that had more prep time. It was a great start to the season. Everyone played, and six players got their first taste of varsity basketball.

The Eagles play their home opener Friday at 5:30 p.m.

Football Team Slowed by Injuries Ends Season

The Eagles traveled to West Torrance with a depleted roster due to injuries and came away with a disappointing 36-8 loss. The Eagles were down to starting a third-string quarterback and three backup linemen as well as playing others out of position.

Chelsea Charles (Blue) looks to pass in traffic.

a 17-yard gain and another first down. That set up a 27-yard catch and run touchdown pass from Bernstein to Pearson.

It was El Segundo's lone score of the night and the last of the season. The Eagles were scheduled to face Lawndale Friday night in the season finale for each team. Due to injuries that have decimated El Segundo's roster, it was determined that the Eagles would not play their final game for

Around Town

Finally!!!! The El Segundo Little League's sixty-sixth season began this past Monday. It's been long overdue, thanks to a pandemic that canceled the 2020 season. Now that the young athletes are back, why not stop by and cheer them on at Brett Field, Walton Field (Center Street School) or Arena Field (behind the football stadium at the high school)? Be mindful of social distancing and mask-wearing requirements. •

extracurricular activities, including joining the student alumni association and the Sustainable Action Research Program.

“My time at UCLA was beyond fantastic,” Au said. “It was amazing to be involved in so many parts of the campus, including athletics, the Alumni Association, and the Sustainability (program).”

On his endeavors with the UCLA Alumni Association, Association Director Alyson Beckman, also Au’s collegiate advisor, said that Au “is just one of the most disciplined, mature, and kind people I have ever met,” noting his “professionalism, focus and drive. He is someone who you want in your corner, whatever you are doing in life.”

Post-collegiate graduation, Au, who matriculated from El Segundo High School in 2014 and served a stint as the Associated Student Body (ASB) president and student representative to the El Segundo Unified School District school board, returned to the South Bay to again live in El Segundo, the city which his family settled in back in 2006 when Au began attending Richmond Street School as a fifth-grader.

Au fondly remembered growing up in El Segundo and his participation in the high school ASB, as well as playing basketball and running track and field. Au said that it was during his years at the high school that “I fell in love with the outdoors, and through a few classes, became passionate about the environment,” a calling that was also fueled by spending considerable time at the local beaches, as well as hiking and backpacking throughout California.

Long-time neighbor and friend Quinn O’Connor is glad to stay in proximity with Au. “I have known and been friends with Malcolm since he moved to El Segundo in the fifth grade circa 2006,” O’Connor emailed. “Not only were we in the same class, but he was my neighbor, living two houses down from me.

“Malcolm is one of the most passionate people I have ever met,” O’Connor related. “When he cares about something, whether it be a crucial cause or a compelling conversation, it consumes him, driving his every thought and action. From his passion flows a focus and effort that makes him an incredibly effective person. He picks up new skills quickly and strives to excel at whatever it is he is doing at that moment.

“Malcolm is always game. He loves a challenge, especially if it is something someone says cannot be done. And he is always got his friends’ back,” O’Connor said. “He will run through fire with you if it’s something you need to do.”

Karen Byrd, a recently retired teacher at ESHS, looked back fondly on her ex-student: “Malcolm took Advanced Placement Environmental Science with me as a junior and Advanced Placement Biology as a senior” she emailed. “During this time, I saw characteristics of a scientist in Malcolm such as curiosity, persistence, courageousness, patience, communicative, and open-mindedness.

“He also was an outstanding role model and leader in both classes.” Continued Byrd.

“I have a specific example that exemplifies these characteristics and has stuck with me all these years. In a laboratory experiment, the class needed to plot data on a table and do mathematical work to develop a class average. This lab took the whole period, and the class arduously made calculations to come up with accurate results. With two minutes left in the class, Malcolm realized that the numbers did not add up, and he also realized it was his table that had made a mistake. He admitted to the mistake even though he knew that he would receive harsh castigation from his peers. However, he did not shy down after this failure but rather tried to learn from his table’s mistake. He took the numbers and went home, and determined the class average by himself. Very few, if any, students would have done what Malcolm did that day. He stood out from the rest as a true leader.”

In her role at ESHS, activities director Robin Espinoza worked closely with Au. She is not surprised in the least with the ascending pathway of Au’s success. “When I think back to Malcolm’s tenure as ASB President,” she emailed, “I always smile because he taught me more that year than I taught him- about persistence, drive, and not giving up. He would have a new idea and present it to me, and despite any odds, I found myself nodding...’ yes, ok, we can do that’ because I knew he had the energy to do anything he put his mind to. He was impressive. He is impressive,” she continued. “When he stumbles, it drives him to be better. His grit is the type that tells everyone around him that they too can rise.”

Au’s environmental interests led him to UCLA, where he began studying Environmental Science and Environmental Engineering, leading to Au graduating in June of 2020 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Environmental Science, which has been a springboard to his current job opportunity, working for Grades of Green, as a “sustainability analyst,” advising and mentoring domestic and international student-led teams in tackling a climate solutions campaign.

His boss at Grades of Green, Anjuli Keontopp, emailed that “We have all been impressed with Malcolm and the work he has done in his short time at Grades of Green. He has had an unforgettable impact on our student’s minds, Grades of Green’s programming, and our team’s hearts! (He) clearly possesses a breadth of knowledge about the environment,” she said, “that he can share with the students he mentors. His considerate approach, great problem-solving skills, and desire to make an impact are what have really made all his work at Grades of Green successful and transformative.”

“As a Program Advisor,” Keontopp continued, “he works tirelessly to find the best way to reach students - regardless of their age and location - and has empowered his student teams to make a powerful environmental impact throughout the U.S. and in other parts of the world, such as Africa and India.

“Malcolm has been a pure joy to work with and get to know,” summed up Keontopp. “We cannot wait to see how Malcolm changes the course of our planet’s future for the better just as he has changed Grades of Green.”

Those who may follow college basketball know that, alas, the UCLA Bruin basketball team’s Cinderella run to the final four ended in dagger-to-the heart fashion. The victims of a miraculous off-the-glass 40-foot buzzer-beater to decide the game by a Gonzaga’s Jalen Suggs, in overtime that shocked the Bruins, sending them packing their bags to return to L.A.

Au was an in-person witness to the unfolding basketball miracle. “Yes, unfortunately, I was there at the game,” Au said. “Absolutely heartbroken. I had such high hopes coming into the game because I know the guys, and I know how much they wanted to win. I also know Coach Cronin’s coaching style, and we were not going down without a fight. It was a dog fight the whole way, and we played so well despite a lower seeding and being underdogs the whole tournament. From a fan’s perspective, it was fantastic to be able to be in the arena. That was honestly one of the best college basketball games I have watched live, and I am so proud of the whole team, coaching staff and managers. At the end of the day, both teams played such a great game, and it just did not go our way. It was encouraging to see how the guys carried themselves after the loss.”

It seems that the ex-Bruin Au exemplifies many of the same tenacious and classy traits as the players on the UCLA basketball team. •
