Water Rates About to Rise Again, But Not as Much as Before

By Brian Simon

As part of an annual approved set of increases, local water and sewer customers are about to see their bills rise again –though not as much as they did in previous years. The El Segundo City Council authorized new water and sewer rates in 2015 after a mandated Proposition 218 ballot protest process fell short of the required majority of customers needed to stop the increases. The additional fees help offset similar cost hikes imposed on the City by outside agencies. The rate increases are set to end in 2020. After that time, the Council would have to send out a new round of protest ballots should it want to impose additional annual rate hikes in the future (which have a maximum five-year shelf life/sunset clause before expiring).

Finance Director Joe Lillio sent out letters last month informing local water and sewer customers of the latest rate revisions that kick in on July 1, with various tables highlighting the differences between the current and new charges. For actual water consumption, the City utilizes a four-tier rate structure that considers the amount of water used per 100 cubic foot (or one unit), with the vast majority of residents running less than 20 units per billing cycle. The good news: For single-family residences, rates will remain the same in each of the tiers as the past year. Tier 0-10 will continue to pay $2.8200 per unit as of next month. Those using in the 10-20 range will stay at $5.1900. Lifeline members (who qualify to pay lower rates based on falling below prescribed income levels) in the 0-10 range currently pay $1.4100 and that will also stay put. And multi-family and non-residential customers will see no increases in their consumption rates.

Meanwhile the sewer fee, which has risen on average by 5 cents a month each year and is currently at the 73-cent-per-month level for single-family residential customers, will not go up either. The flat wastewater service fee will stay at $6.60 for single-family residences that have a three-quarter-inch meter. Those same residential customers will also be happy to note that their $16.63 monthly treatment fee will not change.

However, residential customers will see one key increase starting July 1: the capacity charge, which is based on meter size. A typical resident has a 5/8 x 3/4 meter. Those customers will see the fixed rate swell to $11.95 from the current $11.38, which amounts to a 5 percent increase. Lifeline capacity rates will grow from $5.69 to $5.98. Those with larger meters will also see 5 percent increases to their capacity charges on their next bills. But given that the consumption, sewer and other rates will not rise at all, the most common residential customer would only see their total bill go up by 57 cents per month for consuming the exact same amount of water as before.

Those who consume recycled water (certain commercial/industrial customers) will also see a rate increase of $35 a month for each of their tiers (measured in acre feet). This is not applicable to residential customers, who won't see this appear on their bills.

The Council decision to impose annual increases spurred from 2014 independent consultant studies on water and sewer rates to determine total fixed and variable costs. The reports concluded that if the City kept existing rates as they were, it would not generate enough revenues to support the operation and maintenance of the water utility and related capital improvements and equipment replacement. The City's goal was not to secure profits, but to keep the system self-sustaining with just enough overflow funds to cover emergency demands and handle long-term repairs and equipment upgrades. "The City has completed millions of dollars of water and sewer infrastructure improvement projects over the last few fiscal years, including main replacements and major pump station overhauls and consolidations," Lillio said. "These improvements were high priorities under the current master plans, and that strategy will continue over the coming years in accordance with the recommendations of this study."

A study now underway will determine if the current rates are sufficient to fiscally maintain the water and sewer operations and meet all capital needs for the next five years -- or if those need further modification. The Council will likely receive the report this fall and then decide whether or not to take action. "Since the City purchases 100 percent of its potable water from West Basin MWD, which in turn purchases potable water from the State Water Project through MWD, the price fluctuations

Stars Win Another Babe Ruth Title

Story and Photos by Gregg McMullin

The 64th El Segundo Babe Ruth League season is in the books. With a series of storms that canceled a number of games, there were only two rounds instead of the customary three. Normally the six teams would play one another once in each round and then at the end of the season in a playoff format pitting the winners of each round. The Stars ran the table and won the first round. Due to the inclement weather, the second round was canceled. The Oaks won the third round by defeating the Stars 1-0 and going 5-0.

The Stars and Oaks faced each other in the pivotal showdown in the third round. Both Sapanza would not be the hard-luck losing pitcher. The crafty left-hander threw a complete game seven-hitter and struck out seven to help lead the Stars to a 7-2 win.

In the first inning, Conrad Bernstein singled and stole second base and Maximo Martinez was hit by a pitch. Sapanza singled to centerfield scoring Bernstein. Then Trevor Steele fielder's choice scored Martinez. Adan Barbosa's RBI single scored Sapanza for a Stars' 3-0 first inning lead.

The Oaks had their opportunity to respond in their half of the first inning. McAndrews beat out a ball between third base and shortstop and Alex Corvera followed with another infield teams had entered the game 4-0. A win by the Stars would clinch the league title. The Oaks had a different plan: defeat them and force a one-game playoff. The two teams went with their top pitchers. The Stars started Lloyd Sapanza while the Oaks countered with Brendan McAndrews. The only run of the game came in the third inning when McAndrews scored on an infield error.

In the one game playoff, the Oaks once again started McAndrews while Sapanza was on the hill for the Stars. This time around, single. Sapanza survived the potential rally by inducing an inning-ending double play. In the second inning, the Oaks would score their only run when Marquis Wright led the inning off with a double to centerfield. Three batters later, Dylan Immel delivered an RBI single scoring Wright to cut the Stars lead to 3-1. With two runners in scoring position, Sapanza got a strikeout to end the threat and inning.

The Stars responded in the third inning by scoring two runs. With one out, Brian Pham

El Segundo School Board Makes Plans for 2019/20 School Year

By Duane Plank

The El Segundo School Board met Tuesday evening as it continues to button down vendor agreements in preparation for the 2019/20 school year. The group also welcomed new Richmond Street Elementary School Assistant Principal Carie Oulashian. El Segundo Unified School District (ESUSD) Superintendent Dr. Melissa Moore said that while this will be Oulashian's first administrative position, she has expertise in helping students who need "extra" support and also brings experience in the field of special education.

Oulashian, who most recently worked for the neighboring Wiseburn Unified School District (WUSD) will, according to Superintendent Dr. Blake Silvers, be greatly missed. "A huge loss to us," Silvers said. "It is a gain for El Segundo."

El Segundo resident Oulashian was in attendance Tuesday evening, and briefly addressed the Board, saying, "It is amazing to me that [my career path] brought me to my own backyard."

District Director of Innovation and Student Services Dr. Jack Plotkin presented a "Technology and Innovation Update." He and his team, including Executive Director of Information Technology Danny Gauna and Technology Coach Sean Brandlin, drilled down on the advancement of personalized learning tenets, meaningful technology integration, and technology infrastructure improvements in the ESUSD.

Plotkin said he was "excited" about the progress the District has been making and how the personalized learning program has been a boon by "offering tools to students to transform learning." He spoke about the need to focus on student-centered learning, stressing "autonomy, mastery and purpose" to garner student engagement.

The presentation began with a Digital Promise League of Innovative Schools brief, which aims to engage students with "relevant, inspiring and challenging work while in school," helping them to develop "agency in their learning -- the power to make choices and take action" for the rest of their lives. It was posited that the Digital Promise model dovetails with the ESUSD graduate profile, which strives to develop collaborative leaders; continuous learners; responsible, self-directed, resilient individuals; creative and critical thinkers; and competent and confident communicators.

The next slide touted the benefits of personalized student learning, helping students to "develop a set of skills known as the deeper learning competencies," including critical thinking, utilizing knowledge and information to solve complex problems, working collaboratively, communicating effectively, and learning how to develop academic mindsets.

Plotkin next delved briefly into evaluation metrics: achievement data, engagement data (encompassing student and parent surveys as well as discipline data) and data culled to include teachers' thoughts and "coaching conversations."

Sports Pump Up the Volume, the Fans and the Local Economy

By Rob McCarthy

Life in the Southland is an all-you-can-eat buffet for sports fans. Baseball lovers have their choice of the Dodgers or the Angels. Pro football fans who like hard-hitting action pull for the Rams or the Chargers (or both). If pro basketball is your jam, the Lakers and the Clippers share the court in the L.A. sports scene.

The Lakers keep their development league team -- formerly called the D-Fenders -- at their team headquarters in El Segundo. The squad is now called the South Bay Lakers.

On ice, there are the past Stanley Cup champion Kings and the Anaheim Ducks who play down the I-5 in Orange County. On the pitch, the Galaxy and Los Angeles Football Club -- the LAFC, for short -- provide thrills for local legions of soccer fans. The L.A. Sparks of the Women's National Basketball Association are right in there too. Led by their All-Star forward Candace Parker, the Sparks don't share the city with another WNBA team.

Ditto for the college sports scene with the longstanding rivalry between UCLA and USC in every sport. Loyola Marymount in Westchester has a rich past in basketball and baseball, and the men's basketball program at Cal State Dominguez Hills in Carson can't be overlooked. Interest in sports runs so high here that one team for each sport isn't enough.

It's likely there is a professional or college sporting event to attend every night of the week. The NFL stadium being raised in Inglewood is a source of pride for its city leaders and residents, and an exclamation point on the Southland's claim to being the epicenter of the sports and entertainment business. Where LeBron James goes, championships follow.

"The King" didn't get a three-peat in his L.A. debut season and win an NBA championship like he did in his first seasons in Miami and back in Cleveland for a second stint. He did command the spotlight and energized Lakers fans waiting for another championship. Look out, Boston with its current World Series and Super Bowl championships: the Dodgers and the Rams could make L.A. a dual champion soon.

Competition on a field, a court or a track is in L.A. County's DNA. How else to explain why this area is the only ever to witness a "Super Sports Phenomena?" This oh-so-rare event occurs when each major team (think Dodgers, Angels, Lakers, Clippers, Rams, Chargers, Kings and Ducks) all played a game on the same day. Even more incredibly, both two Major League Soccer teams were in action on the pitch that day too.

Local fans come, they cheer, they support pro sports to the tune of $4.5 billion, according to newly released data from a team of economists who studied the fiscal impact of pro and college teams in Greater Los Angeles. Unlike other cities that asked taxpayers to foot the bill for new stadiums, the NFL stadium in Inglewood is privately funded and when it opens will contribute tax dollars to the state and local governments.

The Los Angeles Sports Council, a nonprofit organization that encourages community involvement in local sporting events, wanted to know how much pro and college sporting events contribute to the region's economy.

The council recruited the applied economic data team with the Los Angeles Economic Development Corporation to crunch the spending numbers from 2018. The team looked at full- and part-time employment, direct spending by the teams, their vendors

West Basin Increases Grass Replacement Rebate to $3 Per Square Foot

The West Basin Municipal Water District (West Basin) will add $1 to the popular Turf Replacement Program rebate offered by the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California (MWD). The extra dollar, approved by the West Basin Board of Directors, will increase the total rebate incentive for eligible applicants to $3 or more per square foot of grass removed. The District is also offering a free series of grass replacement classes to encourage residents and businesses of the West Basin service area to apply for the increased rebate.

The free classes, which kicked off yesterday and will last through October, will help attendees understand program requirements, learn how to properly remove grass and successfully convert their yards to a drought tolerant, California Friendly landscape. Upcoming classes will take place in Inglewood, Hermosa Beach, Culver City and Gardena.

Service area residents may RSVP for any class by visiting www.westbasin.org/grass-replacement or calling (310) 371-7222. Registration is required for event attendance. Space is limited and refreshments will be provided. Class attendance is not required for rebate eligibility. More information about MWD's Turf Replacement Program and other water-saving rebate programs is available at www.bewaterwise.com.

Mattel Global Day of Play

On Thursday, June 20, Mattel hosted several activities for its 2019 Global Day of Play at its El Segundo headquarters: Employees engaged in an epic "Play Date" for more than 200 children from LA's Best, Boys & Girls Club of Carson® and patient families from UCLA Mattel Children's Hospital, who visited the Mattel campus to create unforgettable memories through play.

Representatives from UCLA Health were onsite, joined by community partners from the Los Angeles Lakers, the Los Angeles Dodgers and former Dodgers player Eric Karros. The teams held a basketball "pop a shot" competition. The LAFC also brought team mascot, Bond the Falcon, for a meet and greet with the kids and volunteers. Finally, volleyball world champion Sinjin Smith taught volleyball skills to kids on Mattel's sand volleyball courts.

Sky Brown, the youngest pro skateboarder and summer games hopeful, showcased her skills and did a meet and greet with the kids. Athletes from Special Olympics Southern California® participated in a UNIFIED bocce competition with Mattel volunteers.

Mattel employees also partnered with Save the Children® to write letters to send to sponsorship programs in Indonesia and paint banners that will be hung in schools, shelters or childcare centers across the United States to inspire hope and encourage continued learning. They will also assemble more than 1,500 "play kits" – backpacks full of toys, games and activities – for kids impacted by devastating emergencies and rebuilding efforts following California's wildfires, to be distributed by the Red Cross Los Angeles, Salvation Army™, Save the Children and Baby2Baby™. Globally, Mattel is partnering with hospitals and nonprofit organizations around the world to bring play to children.

singled and stole second base. Sapanza singled to centerfield and advanced to second base on a passed ball. Trevor Steele’s sacrifice bunt attempt was muffed at first base, but Pham did not advance and held at third base. Barbosa hit a towering fly ball to centerfield for a sacrifice fly that easily scored Pham from third base. Tommy Tichy’s RBI single to centerfield scored Sapanza to extend the Stars’ lead to 5-1.

McAndrews gave way to Corvera, who limited the Stars to an infield single by Steele in the fifth inning and a single to left field by Jordan Blake in the sixth inning. In the seventh inning, the Stars rallied for two more runs. Pham singled and took second base on a wild pitch. Sapanza, who was 3-for-4, singled to centerfield and advanced to second base on an indifference stolen base attempt. Steele struck out, but the ball scooted away to help score Pham from third base. Sapanza came around from second base when the throw to first base was off line to make it 7-1.

Other than a leadoff fourth inning single by Joaquin De Pablo and a fifth inning walk to Cameron Johnson, the Oaks were quiet until the seventh inning. Marquis Wright came within a whisker of a solo home run when he hit a double high off the centerfield fence. Two batters later, Cooper Gamble hit a double in the gap that easily scored Wright to make it 7-2. The Oaks’ comeback attempt fell short when Sapanza induced a strikeout and an easy ground ball to Tichy at first base.

The Stars, who had the best record in league play, completed their championship season and gave the team its 19th league title and the first for manager Kiko Martinez.

All Star Teams Announced

The Babe Ruth All Star teams were announced and each team (13s, 14s and 13-15s) will play in their respective state tournaments beginning next weekend, July 6. Manager of the 13-15s Joe Dornblaser has an experienced team. He’ll be coaching players that competed on all three levels of the El Segundo High School baseball program, including the varsity, JV and frosh/soph teams.

The names are familiar ones who have played together on numerous all-star teams. With Dornblaser and assistant coaches Bill Nusbaum and Bob Gilbert at the helm, this year’s 13-15-year-old team could make history. All three coaches were players on the 1974 Babe Ruth World Series championship team, so they have plenty of experience. If history repeats itself and El Segundo returns to the World Series in Bismarck, North Dakota, the players will be met by members of the 1969 El Segundo Babe Ruth World Series champions. Team members, including former Major League pitcher Scott McGregor, have been invited to commemorate their 50th anniversary championship. McGregor will be the keynote speaker at the banquet for the players and coaches.

The 13-15 all-stars begin their journey at the five-team state tournament at Kendall Field in Torrance starting Sunday, July 7. The Pacific Southwest Tournament is scheduled to be played in Taft, California and will hosted by Northwest Bakersfield Babe Ruth League.

The 14-year-olds have a talented team and could advance out of the six-team state tournament being played at La Crescenta/Glendale Babe Ruth starting July 6. The winner will advance to the Pacific Southwest Tournament in Arroyo Grande, hosted by Five Cities Youth Babe Ruth League. Manager Larry Robinson is no stranger to all-star competition. The former standout catcher has been an assistant or manager on three teams that have advanced to the World Series.

The 13-year-old team has a number of players on its roster from last season’s team that advanced to the Little League Southern California All-Star Tournament. Should it win the seven-team state tournament, held at Westchester Babe Ruth starting July 6, it will advance to the Pacific Southwest Tournament in Price, Utah starting July 22. • related to the purchase of potable water are completely out of the City’s control,” Lillio explained. “Also, the wastewater from the west side of town ends up getting treated by Hyperion [City of L.A.]. The cost of treating sewage is also completely out of the City’s control. Both the cost to purchase potable water and the cost to treat sewage have been increasing to the City.”

In factoring the prior water rate hikes, the City based the numbers on MWD estimating a 5 percent annual increase of its pass-through costs to agencies. Earlier increases saw larger jumps on the sewer side to catch up with pass-through costs from the Hyperion to the City. Those eventually leveled out.

Despite the multiple rate upticks, the City still reports water charges lower than neighboring South Bay communities that also continue to raise their rates due to pass-through costs. Even so, local residents and businesses have various options to lower their water bills. Despite the heavy rains of the past winter and confirmation this past March that California is now officially

Technology and innovation were featured next, with the implementation of “transformative technology” touched upon, with the role of the “tech coach” highlighted. Brandlin took the lead, speaking of how students effectively utilize technology in the classroom. He touted how teachers have embraced new technology, noting, “It’s incredible what they do in the classroom.”

The last part of the presentation, helmed by Gauna, focused on tech updates, including the implementation of new security cameras, as well as new classroom audio and video equipment. Gauna gave credit to his team for their diligent work, saying, “Our team is happy” and pointing out the upgrade in District IT infrastructure. He also mentioned how one of his priorities is bolstering the District’s Cybersecurity Education Security options.

Moore emphasized that the presentation was “especially important “as the District continues its efforts to upgrade teaching/student technology in the 2019/20 school year. “Things are happening in this district,” Moore said.

Board members raised questions about the personalized learning program, which were addressed by the presenters. “We are going in the right direction for sure,” Brandlin said.

One of the items listed in the classified personnel report was the retirement of long-time District nurse Louise Berg. “We are sad to lose Louise,” Moore said. Member Emilee Layne also lauded the stalwart work of Berg and agreed that she would be greatly missed.

Consent items passed later in the meeting included the renewal of agreements with Straight Up Communications and Charter School Management Corporation; an agreement with Palos Verdes School Garden Consultants for work at the elementary schools; and contracts that will supply garden and art consultants for Arena Alternative High School.

Moore said prior to the meeting that the agreement with local firm Straight Up Communications, which will be entering its fifth year, had been ramped up as the communications company will now also be tasked with providing cogent information to the community about facility projects and the work of the Citizens Bond Oversight Committee. It will additionally provide graphic design services for the development of brochures and special projects. Straight Up Communications’ mandate will be to continue to increase the District’s brand and cultivate parental and community engagement.

The agreement with the Charter School Management Corporation will continue to have the company manage the District’s CalPads and PowerSchool database, including gathering and reporting student information.

The Board also approved multiple agreements regarding the District’s conformity to special education guidelines set down by the State of California. Board Clerk Tracey Miller-Zarneke then kicked off the action item portion of the meeting, noting the financial gifts bestowed on the District, 16 in all. The largest ($15,000) came from the El Segundo High School PTA. Other donors included the Center Street Elementary PTA, the El Segundo Middle School PTA, JW Photography, El Segundo Rotary Club, El Segundo Kiwanis, Chevron, Ambreen Zaheen-Watson, and Gerald A. Brooks.

Next the Board approved a new Financial Algebra course at El Segundo High, the District’s Local Control Accountability Plan, the 2019/20 fiscal budget, and the annual transfer of funds to keep up with retiree benefits and deferred maintenance issues. The members also approved a one-year deal with Sodexo America to provide food management services for the upcoming school year. “Our overall goal,” said Moore, “is to increase participation in the program. Hopefully that can be accomplished through oversight and better menu development, maximizing the use of commodities that we get from the government, and to reduce food waste.”

District Chief Business Official Kim Linz spoke about the selection of Sodexo and then introduced a representative from the new meal provider, who answered Board member inquiries.

The Board also approved agreements with Marymount University and Cal State Los Angeles to provide student teaching opportunities for their students.

With no information pending action items listed on the agenda and a very limited July District calendar, Board member reports then followed, praising recent graduation and promotion ceremonies. Moore gave her report, thanking the members for their diligent, unpaid work and highlighting Board achievements over the past school year. President Nancy Cobb adjourned the open session of the meeting a bit after 8:30 p.m.

The next El Segundo School Board meeting will take place on July 9. • and support industries that benefit from sporting events, and they calculated the amount of tax revenue collected last year.

The amount of money pumped into the local economy because of pro and college sports in 2018 was a staggering $6.2 billion, the data showed. That figure includes direct spending by the teams to vendors and wages paid to employees. Workers were hired for 39,100 jobs at the stadiums, outside in parking lots, at ticket offices and off-site with the vendors and suppliers, the L.A.-based economists discovered. The majority of workers in this entertainment field are team players: 22,600 are directly hired by the teams and events.

Those team jobs, including staffing for the Bruins and Trojans home games, generated more than $3 billion in wages across the L.A. metro area. Another $327 million in taxes was distributed to local governments. The South Bay cities of El Segundo (Lakers and Kings), Carson (home field to the NFL Chargers and the MLS’ the Galaxy and Los Angeles Football Club), and Playa Vista (the Clippers) are in better financial standing because of their teams.

The professional sports create a higher tax revenue stream than the local colleges do, the LAEDC team reported. Pumping nearly $250 million into state and local government coffers, the pros are a significant contributor to budgets for local schools, parks and public works projects. That stream of tax dollars is only expected to grow starting next year when the Rams and Chargers move into the new, gleaming NFL stadium at Hollywood Park.

Colleges also pump money into their campuses and into the outlying businesses, the study found. UCLA bested crosstown rival USC in home attendance at all sporting events in 2018. The Bruin fans numbered 526,000 compared to 469,000 for the Trojan faithful.

Loyola Marymount drew 100,000 spectators to its games and matches. Pepperdine University ranked fourth in local collegiate fandom at 92,000. Cal State Long Beach ranked fifth in the Greater L.A. area for collegiate crowds at 83,000 a year ago, according to figures from the U.S. Department of Education.

UCLA also had the most student-athletes in the region with 818. USC was ranked third in this non-economic category with 626 behind Mt. San Antonio Community College. A couple of lesser-known schools --Claremont McKenna and Cal Lutheran University in Thousand Oaks --rounded out the top five for the largest number of athletes enrolled in 2018.

College athletics is a $1 billion industry locally and responsible for creating 10,700 jobs that coordinate, staff and support the NCAA athletes at both large and small schools. Unlike the professional sports, colleges are non-profits and all revenue from sales of tickets and merchandise go directly to the school and its students, the authors noted. •
