City Council Establishes Top Priorities for Upcoming Year

By Brian Simon

In advance of a major budget meeting set for August 31, the El Segundo City Council on Tuesday afternoon held its second strategic planning session of the summer (with consultant Jan Perkins from Management Partners serving as moderator) to zero in on its top priorities for the coming fiscal year. Asked to sift through a list of nearly three dozen items on a worksheet presented last month, the Council members ultimately labeled six of those as "Tier 1" projects that will receive primary attention. The Council members had to literally affix an orange dot (each had 10 total at the start) next to the choices displayed on large sheets in the meeting room in the El Segundo Public Library. Items with the most orange dots (three or more) achieved Tier 1 status. Those with one or two orange dots fell into the "Tier 2" category as projects to be pursued as resources permit.

As part of the overall goal to enhance customer service and engagement, the Council wants to move forward with a community survey to measure satisfaction about City services and to understand more about El Segundo's changing population and interests. The process will seek customer feedback at the point of contact with City services. Plans for launching the survey—which will encompass both residential and business customers—are already underway and staff has identified a company to handle the particulars. The hope is to kick it off during the 2017/18 year and then use the results to determine future action.

Mayor Pro Tem Drew Boyles sees the survey as a way of "capturing data at the transaction phase." Councilmember Carol Pirsztuk added that if the City provides premium service, customers will be more willing "to partner with us to pay for that service."

Next up, as part of the goal to support community safety and preparedness, the Council wishes to increase the focus on crime prevention including greater community engagement. Police

Chief Bill Whelan will provide an overview of his organization and law enforcement strategy to determine what future resources may be needed to accomplish this objective. Pirsztuk said that in addition to providing crime updates, the department should also promote its achievements. "We still are a relatively safe city [despite crime increases here and everywhere else in the region]," she said, also suggesting

Construction Training Program Launched to Meet LAX Demand

By Rob McCarthy

The building industry and Los Angeles International Airport need construction workers to complete the airport's $14 billion facelift. The partners have launched a free training program that offers South Bay residents a gateway to a career in the building industry and a little piece of history. The Apprenticeship Readiness Program is open to residents of Inglewood, Hawthorne and Lennox who are at least 17 1/2 years old and have a strong interest in the construction industry. A California identification card and a Social Security card are required to join the program.

The eight-week training program, provided through HireLAX, offers job-seekers an introduction to construction careers, union rules, safety, basic on-the-job math skills, and first aid training. The classes at Los Angeles Southwest College will offer hands-on training with construction materials and tools, and assistance with creating a resume and preparing for job interviews to land a construction job.

The classes begin September 11 at the college, 1600 W. Imperial Avenue in Los Angeles. The instruction will take place from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. Participants must attend a mandatory orientation meeting at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, August 19. Register online at <https://hire-laxorientation2017-08-19.eventbrite.com>.

South Bay Chambers Approve New Aerospace Industry Alliance

The South Bay Association of Chambers of Commerce (SBACC) has approved a new organization to support the regional aerospace industry. The South Bay Aerospace Industry Alliance is a non-partisan community-based coalition of community leaders supporting the interests of the local aerospace industry, including the Los Angeles Air Force Base and the Space and Missile Systems Center (LAAFB/SMC) located in El Segundo. The Alliance is part of the SBACC, a regional association of 17 local chambers of commerce dedicated to regional issue advocacy in the South Bay.

The Alliance is composed of elected officials at all levels of government, local chambers of commerce, military veterans, business and industry representatives, non-profit organizations, education entities, and other groups and local community leaders.

"After over two years of planning, the Alliance is now a reality," said Michael Jackson, who has spearheaded this effort for the SBACC. "The aerospace industry has been the foundation of our South Bay community for over 60 years since the first military and defense programs were created. The Alliance will serve to engage our community year-round on aerospace issues affecting jobs and the local economy," Jackson added. "We're here because of the Los Angeles Air Force Base and the Space and Missile Systems Center in El Segundo that creates these jobs."

The Alliance will work actively to identify ways the South Bay community can work together with local defense companies and U.S. Air Force (USAF) leaders on common issues and concerns affecting the entire Southern California area. The Alliance has already been an informal partner with the USAF "P4 Partnership" initiative with LAAFB/SMC.

The Alliance welcomes the participation of individuals and organizations who believe the local aerospace industry's presence in Southern California is essential to the South Bay economy.

Constuction Training

Eligibility is limited to residents of the South communities of Inglewood, Hawthorne, Lennox, Gardena, Westchester and Harbor City.

"The HireLAX Apprenticeship Readiness program is a first of its kind collaboration, providing the local community with specialized training, and connecting participants with the contractors who will hire them to be part of the construction teams modernizing LAX," said Samson Mengistu, Chief Operating Officer for Los Angeles World Airports. The project's partners include Los Angeles Trade Technical College and Los Angeles/Orange Counties Building and Construction Trades Council.

Participants in the program will receive "everything they need" to begin a union construction job, according to the organizers. Jobs will be waiting for those participants who complete the courses in November. Los Angeles County is facing a severe labor shortage in construction, and the upgrades at LAX are expected to strain local construction manpower even further.

"With the HireLAX program, we provide a new way for the local community to take a key role in the re-imagining of LAX, by linking workers to immediate and long-term skilled jobs, and making available the training they need to be successful," the airport's COO said.

The ongoing LAX modernization project encompasses terminals, runways and parking facilities and includes a proposed people mover that will connect off-site parking near the 405 freeway with the nation's second-busiest airport. Projected to last through 2023, the program is considered the largest public works project in the history of Los Angeles. It began in 2009 with the expectation it would create 121,000 construction jobs annually over the project's 14-year span, according to the Los Angeles World Airports website.

The Southern California construction business is booming with major improvements at Los Angeles International Airport expected to take years to complete and the Los Angeles Rams football stadium project in Inglewood breaking ground after a rain delay. Now, comes word the Los Angeles Clippers and their owner Steve Ballmer plan to build his team its own arena nearby in Inglewood, adding to the South Bay's pro sports presence. The basketball arena, which Ballmer says would be built near Century Boulevard and Prairie Avenue, could seat 20,000 fans and be finished in time for the 2023 season, according to published reports.

Southern California is the epicenter for the construction boom that is raising workers' take-home pay as union and non-union tradespeople find themselves and their skills in demand again. The building boom has created a labor shortage, which the construction industry says could be alleviated by more emphasis by local school officials on career and technical training programs. Jobs at construction sites offer good salaries and require only a high school diploma or the equivalent to land them. A national building trade recently called on lawmakers and labor and education officials to address the shortage of qualified construction workers by funding and reinvigorating career and technical education programs.

"It is time for elected officials to get the word out to students that construction offers high-paying jobs with upward mobility," said Stephen E. Sandherr, chief executive officer for the Associated General Contractors of America. With more major building projects in the pipeline in the Los Angeles area, his group is worried that high school and middle school students aren't aware of the career opportunities in carpentry, plumbing, electrical, concrete and other skilled labor for home and commercial construction jobs.

The Apprentice Readiness Program at Southwest College is designed to help entry-level workers overcome barriers to employment, including lack of transportation or past troubles with the law. Other barriers to full-time employment will be addressed, such as lack of a high school diploma or GED, childcare, homelessness, and an inability to afford tools.

The HireLAX Apprenticeship Readiness program will prepare a diverse group of local community members for placement into union apprenticeships, according to its organizers. Once hired, the recruits will continue to receive training both on-the-job and in the classroom, while earning prevailing wages and receiving health and retirement benefits. South Bay residents interested in the mandatory program orientation and registration on August 19 should contact Christina Watkins at (424) 646-7192, or email her at cwatkins@lawa.org. Mayberry Make Up Your Mind

More than four years into the process, and no one can figure out whether to turn our nice little Mayberry golf course into Wild Goose West?

Dang, back in the fictitious Mayberry era of North Carolina fifty + years ago, Sheriff

Taylor, the bumbling Barney Fife, homely Aunt B., and Otis the drunk could have built a golf course in less than four years, using their plows. Four plus years to figure out how to reconfigure the driving range? You gotta be kidding me.

City Council

to expand the local volunteer program. Boyles thought successes could be measured by looking at crime decreases per capita compared to other surrounding cities.

To develop quality infrastructure and technology, the Council wants to see successful implementation of new technology. With assistance from the Technology Committee, staff and department heads arrived at a shortlist of 12 key technology projects—with some already funded with current fiscal year monies or other sources (grants, equipment replacement/asset forfeiture funds, developer fees). However, funding for five of the projects would need to come out of the 2017/18 budget. Pirsztuk pointed out that “this list has been gone through with a fine-tooth comb. It has been vetted.”

At the behest of Boyles and under the umbrella of the goal of developing as a choice employer and workforce, the Council also prioritized conducting a third-party Human Resources audit of the municipal code as a way of looking at all City procedures.

Under the goal of championing economic development and fiscal sustainability, the Council called for implementing a Downtown El Segundo beautification program, along with a vision for the district that will include promotion and funding for marketing. Formation of a Downtown Advisory Group is now in progress and discussions will center on ideas for landscaping and other improvements. The Capital Improvement Program Advisory Committee also identified several Downtown-related projects on its wish list for next year. Pirszuk additionally suggested a management component to ensure that Downtown does not eventually deteriorate again after initial improvements. Last but not least, all five Council members tacked on an orange dot to address the growing issue of the City’s pension liability. Boyles summed it up by saying that “the biggest line item in our budget has to be addressed.” As presented earlier in the meeting by Finance Director Joe Lillio, the news was sobering. Due to various factors driving up costs, current long-term projections indicate the City’s total annual pension price tag will rise from $11 million in 2017/18 to $22.8 million by 2026/27. In addition to doubling the yearly cost in 10 years, this also represents a cumulative increase of $69 million over that time period.

Lillio explained that the unfunded liability is what’s driving pension costs for cities—i.e. already retired employees. One method to reduce the overall cost is to add payments to the pension fund. When the Council adopts the 2017/18 budget, it will have a $3 million surplus available and will consider staff recommendations to allocate around half of that to capital improvement projects, $865,000 to technology improvements and $700,000 towards the pension fund. Lillio said allocating the $700,000 would save the City about $1 million in interest payments versus earning $8,000 in interest if that money is left in reserves.

Speaking of reserves, the Council will also vote on whether to increase those from 18 percent (of general fund expenditures) or move up to 19 percent next year as part of an incremental move to return to the 20 percent level of the past. Staff recommends holding reserves at 18 percent, as well as keeping a $2 million balance in the economic certainty fund.

El Segundo Inline Hockey Crowns Champions

By Gregg McMullin

The 2017 El Segundo Inline Hockey Association’s summer season crowned its champions. When other kids were spending time at the beach, riding bikes or going on vacations, these athletes were honing their inline hockey skills for the past few months. It culminated with the two top teams in each division playing for the chance to place their names on the El Segundo Cup, which resembles the NHL’s Stanley Cup.

The Instructional division, coached by Tommy Tartaglione, featured 10 young athletes who were first-time skaters and range in age from four to nine. No score was kept—but each time a player knocked one to the back of the net, it was just as exciting watching these young athletes’ smiles.

Old Yeller Wins Pee Wee Division

Austin Kehl led his Old Yeller team to an 11-7 win over Team Gold. Kehl, who scored seven goals on an array of scoring opportunities, also assisted on two other goals. Brett

Old Yeller increased its lead to 7-1 early in the second half thanks to the passing of Old Yeller and Kehl’s slap shot. Trailing 7-1, Team Gold changed some offensive strategies and Ari Silverman closed the deficit with two quick goals followed by one by Larry Klingaman to make it 7-4.

Kehl, who had shown he could take over a game with his scoring abilities, scored two more times in a short period of time to make it 9-4. With a little more than three minutes remaining, Team Gold pulled their goalie and played with an extra attacker. Klingaman took advantage and scored twice, with Trevor Wessel adding another to close the gap. Mathew Riley found an empty net score for Old Yeller and Alex Rubin scored the game’s final goal for Team Gold with time running down for the final 11-7.

Silver Bullets Defeat Blue Sharks 10-4 in Mites Finale

The Mites Division are athletes between the ages of five and eight. With the way the Players from the Instructional Division pose with their trophies.

Wilkinson scored twice and assisted on five goals. Mathew Riley scored the other one for Old Yeller.

Old Yeller jumped out to an early lead when Kehl received a pass from Wilkinson and found the back of the net. Moments later, Wilkinson received a pass from Kehl and made it 2-0. Kehl would score three more goals with relative ease as Old Yeller increased its lead to 5-0. Wilkinson found an opening and slid one by Team Gold goalie Mark Monin to make it 6-0. Team Gold made it 6-1 with time running down in the first half when Ari Silverman pounded one to the back of the goal.

Silver Bullets and Blue Sharks played, you would have thought these two teams were filled with older players based on their skating, passing and overall athleticism.

The Silver Bullets proved to be the better team, thanks in part to the eight goals scored by Blake Romo. The Silver Bullets’ defense stymied the Blue Sharks and Silver Bullet goalie Xavi Avalos had plenty to do with shutting down the high-scoring Blue Sharks in the first half. He made seven saves and looked intimidating in goal.

The Silver Bullets scored early and often and were relentless at sending the puck at Blue

Dodgers Fill Team’s Few Holes at the Trade Deadline

By Adam Serrao

Though it may be hard to follow a baseball team that is blacked out from most television sets in its own city, it’s not hard to realize that the Los Angeles Dodgers are having what might wind up being the absolute best season by any team to ever play the game of baseball. When last week’s trade deadline passed, that “best team” got even better. The Dodgers might not have had to make any moves at all to improve a team that already has a better record than any other team in the game this year. By acquiring Yu Darvish from the Texas Rangers and Tony Watson from the Pittsburgh Pirates, though, the Dodgers may have just cemented themselves a spot in this year’s World Series.

Fans deserve to be somewhat skeptical of the Los Angeles Dodgers, especially since the team has made it to the postseason with World Series aspirations for what seems like an eternity now. Yet still, every single year the Dodgers disappoint their fans and fall short of what is, of course, the team’s ultimate goal of bringing a World Series banner back to Los Angeles for the first time since 1988. While a roster that may go down in history as one of the best ever is certainly no guarantee of a world title, enjoying the history being made along the way is certainly something that should not be taken for granted.

New Dodgers starting pitcher Yu Darvish will undoubtedly become a part of that history and he immediately got off to a great start with his new team by pitching a seven inning shutout while striking out 10 batters last Friday night against the Mets. Acquiring Darvish was not a necessity for the Dodgers. However with Clayton Kershaw’s absence from the rotation, Darvish’s presence immediately gave the team another ace to lean on in the postseason. The four-time All Star was acquired by the team just seven minutes before the deadline—again highlighting the Dodgers’ flare for the dramatic that has followed the team around all season long.

The Dodgers didn’t give up much for Darvish, either. Willie Calhoun was the biggest name to join the Rangers in the deal, but parting with a player in the farm system who wasn’t even a top three prospect was a small price to pay for someone of Darvish’s stature. “We got our Ferrari,” Dodger closer Kenley Jansen said of the deal. That Ferrari has increased the Dodgers’ odds of winning the National League West from 100 percent—where they already stood—to, well, more than 100 percent. The arrival of Darvish has also drastically increased L.A.’s chances of finally bringing home a World Series title.

Another player who strengthened Los Angeles’ World Series odds was left-handed reliever Tony Watson. If the Dodgers had any holes on their roster whatsoever, it was at the number two spot in the starting rotation and in the bullpen with the need of a shutdown left-handed specialist. Darvish fills the void of the former, while Watson has stepped in to fill the void of the latter. Watson has been one of the best setup men in the league since entering the majors in 2011. In limited action thus far with the Dodgers, he has already shown an impressive ability to get the best hitters on other teams out—a skill that will certainly be needed come playoff time when the Dodgers look to eat innings in order to bridge the gap between their starting pitcher and Jansen.

Darvish’s addition does more than just add another ace to an already loaded pitching staff. He also brings a right-handed quality pitcher to a rotation that is otherwise filled with lefties. “He seems like he just fits in perfect,” Dodgers catcher Yasmani Grandal said. “I was just happy that we got a horse—another horse—that we could fit into the rotation, so now you’re not seeing three lefties in a row. We knew we needed a righty starter.” Grandal wasn’t the only Dodgers player excited about Darvish’s arrival. “Just electric stuff,” Justin Turner gushed. “He’s got five great pitches. We’re excited to have him.” Jansen echoed Tuner’s sentiments. “Everyone was excited,” the Dodgers closer said. “Our goal is to win the World Series, ownership wants to win the World Series, so we’re all happy to have him here and see him pitch.”

Absolutely nothing is guaranteed when it comes to playing the game of baseball in the month of October. No matter what a team’s roster might look like, how good they’ve played in the past, or how overpowering their statistics may seem, a World Series victory is never something that can be called a certainty. The Dodgers were the World Series favorites before they won at the trade deadline. The acquisition of Darvish and Watson cements that favoritism, but also puts a certain level of pressure on a team to win when it counts for the first time in 29 years.

Preparation

1. In a medium bowl, toss blueberries with flour. Add sugar and vanilla extract. Toss to combine. Set aside.
2. Allow store-bought crust to come to room temperature. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Line a baking sheet with parchment paper and set aside.
3. Flour a work surface and roll out the warmed pie crust to 1/4-inch thickness. Cut into eight rectangles about 3-by-4 inches in size. Scoop a scant 1/4 cup of the blueberries into the center of four dough rectangles. Place the remaining dough rectangles over the top of each blueberry filling. Use a fork to seal the edges of each pie and transfer pies to the prepared baking sheet.
4. Pierce the tops of the pies with a paring knife a few times and brush with egg wash. Bake for 30 minutes or until dough is golden brown. Allow pies to cool completely before icing. Use a fork to stir together the confectioner's sugar and 1 tablespoon of milk. Drizzle over cooled hand pies. Serve with a glass of cold milk. •

Law Enforcement, Criminals Must Be Accountable For Their Actions

By Cristian Vasquez

A video of two U.S. Customs and Border Protection Officers encouraging a drug smuggler to drink out of a bottle filled with liquid methamphetamine has caused the smuggler's family to file a lawsuit against the agency. Before getting into the core of this piece, it must be stated that in this case I in no way supported any type of lawsuit against the agency--nor am I in favor of the $1 million settlement that the family received. In a video from 2013, Cruz Marcelino Velazquez Acevedo is recorded in the process of committing a crime as he crosses the border into the United States. Due to his initial decision, the 16-year-old died. Hence, there is no agency to blame for Velazquez Acevedo's death other than that of the individual. Was death the appropriate consequence to a horrible decision being made by a teenager? Absolutely not. Velazquez Acevedo made two horrible choices that day: smuggling drugs across our borders and drinking liquid meth in hopes of not being detained by customs.

Having said that, the two agents who encouraged and allowed for the smuggler to drink this poison should face consequences. As a country that prides itself in law and order, and that has a fundamental belief in due process, this death at the San Diego/Tijuana border is untimely, unfortunate and should have been prevented. In the video released by CBP, officers Valerie Baird and Adrian Perallon are seen engaging with the teenager. Velasquez Acevedo, who was carrying a backpack, had two bottles of tea-looking liquid that soon after tested positive for methamphetamine. After a brief dialogue between the agents and Velazquez Acevedo, the agents begin making gestures for the teen to drink from the bottle. After a few sips Velasquez Acevedo is directed to second inspection where he is asked to take (and does) two drinks from one bottle. Two hours later he was dead.

Did Baird and Perallon really force him to drink? Not at all. These officers did not hold a gun to Velazquez Acevedo's head, nor did they funnel the drugs down his throat. However, they behaved in a manner that lacks not only human decency and common sense, but they displayed an absolute lack of professionalism. CBP released a statement through its Office of Professional Responsibility and declared that no additional action was needed, so the officers involved would not be disciplined.

Again, I'm not defending the smuggler or the family's absurd lawsuit. It is not CBP policy to force smuggling suspects to consume the substance/s they are alleged to be trafficking, nor does CBP force accused smugglers caught with white powder to snort the substance. Thus, the agency should not have to pay for the actions of two reckless officers. There is an operating procedure in place for a reason. We have due process--but because these two officers failed to uphold those standards, their actions contributed to the death of a teenager. Not one penny should have been paid out to the family, but CBP Officers Baird and Perallon should have been reprimanded. These officers upheld their commitment to vigilance and service to country, but they failed at integrity. •

Lefty Media Launches Feeble Attack on Trump Immigration Strategy

By Duane Plank

As unemployment continues to plummet, as the stock market surges, as the corpulent little lunatic in North Korea remains cowered by America's overwhelming military power, what was the big angle CNN followed last week? One of their pompous, look-at-me reporters, White House guy Jim Acosta, started whining like a little petulant child at a White House press conference. The Trump administration had rolled out new strategies--not laws--to parse legal immigration.

Acosta bumbled about the inscription on the Statue of Liberty and immigrant rights, engaging White House adviser Stephen Miller in an uncomfortable tit-for-tat exchange. According to the unelected reporter Acosta, we shouldn't limit illegal immigrants and lessen their opportunities to troll the streets, at times preying upon and murdering American citizens? And we can't limit legal immigration either. Open borders for all. And we can't limit the gang member thugs from the gang MS-13 from entering this country to mingle with our citizens. In Acosta's world, we should accept them all, with some adding nothing, taking everything...because not allowing them in, or to stay, would "tear apart families."

There is no solid proof that stopping illegals from entering America, or shipping illegal criminals back is "tearing apart families." Just another page out of the lefty playbook, a playbook that has one theme: obstruct the Trump administration.

Failed presidential candidate Al Gore, who has his own leftist playbook chapter, is pushing a new film about climate change, and that the world will soon be over unless we conserve, conserve, conserve. Some have been promulgating this charade for decades, and the planet is still thriving. According to published reports, Gore's mansion in Tennessee consumes 30 times more energy than the average person's abode. How does that rate on the conservation scorecard?

Gore is a first-rate hypocrite. And now Gore has come out and likened climate change issue to the civil rights movement. Really?

This past week, some southpaws were still pushing the Cal-Exit scenario. They posit about our big economy, our big this, big that, and that we need to be our own country. A sanctuary country, not just state, where illegals are more than welcomed.

To the do-gooders proposing California's exit from the United States...do we the people of Cali have a vote? I have no interest in leaving the U.S. of A and becoming some third-world country.

Finally, did you happen to hear about the unhinged one, Congress lady Maxine Waters, who went on her typical impeach rant about The Donald, and then segued right on to her impeach Putin diatribe? Now Max is a tad bit up there in years, as are, seems to be, a lot of Dem politicians in California. She apparently meant that after Trump was impeached, convicted and cast back to one of his golf courses for good, she would set her sights on getting rid of VP Mike Pence. Not Rasputin Putin.

Putin, Pence. Easily confused by the veteran Congress lady. What's the difference? Don't ask the producers at CNN. Shockingly, they didn't play up Waters' faux-pas. •

Sharks' goalie Sean Gil. Romo sent a bullet past Gil in the opening minute of play and then he scored on a breakaway three minutes into the first half. Aiden McDonald made it 3-0 when he scored unassisted. Romo found a rebound and slid the puck in to give his team a 4-0 lead with just over 10 minutes gone in the first half.

The Blue Sharks fought off adversity and Lucas Lioacono found an opening and scored past a diving Avalos to make it 4-1. The Silver Bullets responded with three goals by Romo to close out the first half. The first one came on an assist from Rishi Nair. The second one came off an assist from outside by Aiden McDonald and the last one just before halftime came as a result of a shot on goal that caromed back and he shot it back in to make it 7-1.

To start the second half, the Blue Sharks struck first. Sean Gil received a pass from Carter Robinson and he blistered his pass to the back of the goal to make it 7-2. The Silver Bullets made sure a comeback was not in order.

The Silver Bullets used a number of passes to get Aiden McDonald a good look at the goal. Cole Davidson fed a pass down low and McDonald found an opening for the score. Romo then took a long pass from McDonald and fired it to the back of the net for another score.

Carter Robinson celebrated his goal for the Blue Sharks when he took a pass inside from Lioacono on the right side to make 9-3. Each team would go on to score a goal apiece for the final 10-4 score.

Tornados Hold off Titans to Win Squirts Division

What started out to be a lopsided game ended in a close 8-4 win for the Tornados. This was a fast-paced game with plenty of opportunities for each team to score. The Tornados' Kyle Oracion, who scored six goals, was also one of his team's top defenders.

Oracion scored in the first 30 seconds of the opening face-off. He added another goal two minutes later with an assist from Karsten Hirasawa. Oracion took another pass from Hirasawa and finished it off to make it 3-0.

The Titans finally broke through when Noah Esquivel fed Jaiden Rico inside for a score to make it 3-1 with 13:57 remaining in the first half. The Tornados responded quickly when Jordan Lyles found a loose puck near the goal and pushed it in. Hirasawa picked up his only score of the game on a slap shot that zipped by Titan goalie Zach Cauble for a 5-1 Tornados lead.

The Tornados hoist the El Segundo Cup to celebrate their championship.

Noah Esquivel on the attack for the Titans.

Ari Silverman breaks away late in the first half before scoring.

Once again the Tornados' Oracion responded with a goal off an assist from Roland Hoffman's perfectly placed pass for a 6-2 lead. With 31 seconds remaining in the first half, Esquivel took a pass from Kwon and pushed the puck to the back of the net for the Titans to make it 6-3.

In the second half, both teams were defensively minded. Kwon scored on a breakaway to bring his Titan team's deficit to 6-4. Oracion finished off the scoring for the Tornados with a goal assisted by Conrad Hoffman with 12:50 remaining. He also scored off a rebound into an empty net to give the Tornados their championship.

It was another successful summer campaign for the El Segundo Inline Hockey Association, thanks in part to league president Jeff Tiddens. Before you know it, the winter season will begin. For info, send them an e-mail at info@esiha. •

PETSPETSPetPETS

Wowser Schnauzers

Brooklyn

We are looking for volunteers to help with our pet adoption fairs that are held every Saturday at the Petco located at 537 N. Pacific Coast Highway in Redondo Beach, from noon-3:30 p.m. If you are interested in volunteering and can commit to at least one Saturday a month, please contact us at info@msfr.org. You can also visit all of our Miniature Schnauzers & Friends rescues at the adoption fair or check out our website, www.msfr.org. If you have any questions about a particular dog's availability you can email us at info@msfr.org. Schnauzers! Bet you can't adopt just one!

"Did you know that there's a Brooklyn in California? Not the former city that is now part of Oakland, but me! My name is Brooklyn and I'm in Southern California looking for my forever family. I'm an adorable one-year old female 'Schnoodle' (Miniature Schnauzer/ Poodle mix) who is just a tiny eight-pound bundle of love. I was trying to acclimate myself to the new neighborhood when I became lost and ended up at an LA county shelter as a stray. While I was on my own, I picked up these nasty things called foxtails and they became embedded in my ears. They drove me crazy and in the end I actually had to have surgery to remove one of those stinkers. I guess you could say that I'm just a happy, friendly little gal who is still very puppyish--so I'd advise you to watch your shoes and computer cables! I've been told that I'm cute as a button with my natural tail, my 'schnauzery' coloring and my 'poodle' fur. Plus, my personality is just as endearing. I love people, dogs, cuddling and playing. Could I be the perfect gal for your family?"

Hobbes

Stanford

If you're interested in Brooklyn, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

"The name Hobbes is of Old English origin and means 'bright flame.' I'm not sure if the name suits me, but it's definitely as unique as I am. I'm a two-year old male purebred Miniature Schnauzer who made a run for it on the Fourth of July with three of my friends, also Miniature Schnauzers. A few days later we were picked up by animal control and taken to an LA county shelter. I think our appearance made it obvious we were strays since we all were a filthy, matted mess. Another rescue group took two members of our pack, but my gal pal Harlow and I were rescued by MSFR.

Harlow has found her forever home, so now it's my turn. I had an underdeveloped eye that resulted in a deformity. In order to avoid any issues, the veterinarian recommended removing it. I've had the surgery, am all healed and now that my fur has grown in you really can't tell the difference. I just look like I'm winking at you! Initially, I was pretty skittish and scared because I hadn't really been socialized, especially with people, at my previous residence. It didn't take long for me to realize I was living the good life and now I'm a friendly, little guy that loves attention. I'm only 12 pounds, so I'm easily transportable--and with my natural ears and tail, I'm quite the looker. Uh, speaking of my tail, it's actually three-quarters of tail since part of it was caught in something and has broken off. The slight kink in it just adds to my 12 pounds of charm. If you have a dog, not to worry because I will need to go to a home with a doggie pal to show me the ropes."

If you're interested in Hobbes, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

"Hi! My name is Stanford and I'm a stunning four-year old male purebred Miniature Schnauzer that is full of surprises. When I arrived at an LA county shelter after being brought in as a stray, they were pretty certain I was injured because I was very fearful and couldn't be handled. Surprise #1: After being thoroughly examined by the MSFR veterinarian, he found that there wasn't anything wrong! I was just terrified and really stressed out by the noise, commotion and loneliness of the shelter. That and the fact I was a bit of a dirty mess didn't help in getting me adopted. Once I was rescued and had a day or two to decompress, my loving affectionate side emerged and now everyone thinks I'm a real sweetie. Surprise #2: Because of my initial appearance, no one had a clue that I was quite the looker. Actually, my luxurious coat was so long and heavy that I appeared to have flat ears. Once I was groomed, what a difference! My coat is now lush, shiny and...wait for it...Surprise #3: I have the most awesome bat ears! Even though at 25 pounds I'm a bit on the large size for a Miniature Schnauzer, I'm a really great guy who gets along well with other dogs. I'd be the perfect addition to your family and can guarantee I'll be lots of fun."

If you're interested in Stanford, please email info@msfr.org for more information. •

DIY Pressure Washing: How to get Great Results

(BPT) - Clean siding and trim can do as much for a home's curb appeal as fresh flowers, neatly trimmed hedges and a repainted front door. You could scrub for hours trying to remove dirt, mold and mildew, or you could do the job more quickly and easily with a pressure washer.

However, if you decide to pressure wash your home's siding, trim, fence or other surfaces on your own, it's important to choose the right equipment for the project, and to know the basics of good pressure washing.

Pressure washers use powerful pumps to boost water pressure and force water through a special nozzle. The intense spray powers away dirt, grime and debris, and depending on the type and size pressure washer you choose, they can be great for both major and minor home cleaning projects. While professionals often use gas-fueled versions for home renovation projects, electric versions like those from Karcher are affordable, convenient, and easy to use and maintain for most around-the-home applications such as siding, driveways, fences, patio furniture and vehicles.

Pressure washers use less water and complete cleaning jobs more quickly than simply scrubbing by hand. Generally, the higher the PSI (pounds of pressure per square inch) the greater a pressure washer's cleaning power. However, PSI is not the only consideration when choosing a pressure washer.

You should also look for ease of setup and use, and availability of accessories like extensions and wands for the different projects you might want to complete with your pressure washer.

It's also important to understand the type of detergent the washer will use in addition to water. Some cleaners might be too harsh for certain applications. Never use bleach with a pressure washer, as this can permanently damage the pump.

Pressure washers are powerful pieces of equipment, and you should always follow basic safety practices, such as using eye and face protection, and the manufacturer's instructions for use. Be aware that using too high a pressure setting or holding the nozzle too close to surfaces could cause damage. Further, there are some things you should never do with a pressure washer, including:

- Never point the jet at people, animals, windows or the pressure washer itself.

- Never stand on a ladder when using a pressure washer. The kick from the wand could cause you to lose your balance. Instead, use an extension wand or second-story nozzle to clean overhead areas.

- First, place drop cloths over nearby shrubs and greenery to protect them from the spray and detergent.

- With the washer set at low pressure, apply detergent, moving from top to bottom.

- Use clean water and a higher pressure setting to rinse off detergent, again moving from top to bottom.

- Use a sweeping motion to clean, and keep the nozzle at least 6 inches from the siding.

- Whether it's a cement retaining wall, a brick path or a patio of stone pavers, first rinse the surface to be cleaned using fresh water.

- If you're using detergent, apply it at a low pressure and work in smaller sections of about 25 square feet.

- Using a rotating turbo nozzle and a sweeping motion, clean by holding the nozzle 3 to 6 inches from the surface.

Before tackling any project with a pressure washer it's a good idea to test the unit in a small, out-of-the-way spot to ensure you won't damage the surface you want to clean. To learn more about pressure washers and how to clean items around your home, visit www.kaercher.com.
