Herald Receives Rotary Club Honor

By Brian Simon

Tom Hacking could sense something was brewing even well over a decade ago. When the CEO of the medical imaging device manufacturing firm Radlink decided to move his company to El Segundo in 2014, the reasons seemed obvious. "I was impressed with the cleanliness of the area, the ease of access and the upscale reality of a place many people only associated with aerospace and an oil refinery," he said. "But something else was bubbling under the surface." That something else turned out to be a burgeoning epicenter for health professionals to set up shop. In particular, Hacking foresaw El Segundo as a go-to hub in the region for sports medicine and orthopedics. "It got jumpstarted with the sports teams that headquartered here and evolved because both the Los Angeles Lakers and LA Kings partnered with medical centers, allowing their athletes to get immediate care when needed," he said. "The team doctors came to them and worked with the teams to incorporate pre- and post-game treatment into their player development programs."

The Lakers and Kings were the first to make the jump to El Segundo, establishing their headquarters and practice spaces here in 2000 on Nash Street at what is now known as the Toyota Sports Performance Center (formerly HealthSouth Training Center). The Lakers then settled into their own headquarters on Douglas Street in 2017. Two years prior, the Kings consolidated their office and training facilities at their site. The LA Chargers were next, opening their 14-acre headquarters, The Bolt, in 2024 on what was formerly the southern portion of Raytheon's campus. Finally, if you drive along Rosecrans, you can't miss the ongoing construction of the new LA Sparks facility scheduled to open by mid-2027.

With these sports franchises in tow, the health giants followed. The list of tenants includes the USC Epstein Family Center for Sports Medicine housed within the Kings building; the UCLA Health Training Center serving the Lakers; the Torrance Memorial Specialty Medical Complex and Cedars-Sinai Surgery (both in the same center on El Segundo Boulevard), along with a bevy of prominent physician groups that also cater to the general population. "The teams are benefiting because health care is coming to them," Hacking explained. "No longer do their players have to travel to see an orthopedic specialist. But also everyone else in the area is benefiting because Cedars, the largest hospital group in the West, opened a multi-acre campus that includes operating rooms for minor procedures. High-profile practices like DOCS are buying or building in the area. In our building, USC recently opened a physical therapy center. It is always packed. The major medical centers in Los Angeles all have a presence in El Segundo."

Construction will soon begin on the $298 million UCLA Health South Bay Project at the eastern border of El Segundo. The sports medicine institute will feature an ambulatory surgery center with 10 operating rooms, physical

What to Expect from the Super El Niño

By Rob McCarthy

Don't be alarmed, but a super-sized weather system is building strength right now in the middle of the Pacific Ocean in the area that determines whether Southern California winters are dry or drenched.

Federal meteorologists on June 11 announced that an El Niño pattern was happening in the eastern Pacific Ocean near the equator. Scientists at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration reported a slight ocean warming of one-half degree Celsius for several months. Over the summer and fall, the warming continued and is now registering two to three degrees above normal, the latest data shows.

The warmer water expanded, raising sea levels by 18 inches and generating an underwater current—known as a Kelvin wave— that pushed massive amounts of seawater toward the West Coast. The flooding of neighborhoods in Long Beach's Belmont Shore on Oct. 22 wasn't some rogue event, given the oceanic changes happening off Southern California's coastline. Malibu, too, got battered last month by high waves.

Weather Service advisories, coupled with coastal flooding and unseasonal rainfall in California, convinced Gov. Gavin Newsom on June 21 to issue a proclamation ordering his department chiefs to fan out across the state and prepare communities for the worst-case scenario this winter. Lives, property, and the state's $4.5 trillion economy depend on it.

"The demonstrated potential for a very strong or historic-strength El Niño event to cause elevated coastal waters and high-impact storms in California warrants early, coordinated, and targeted preparedness actions," the governor's order read.

The magnitude of the expected storms is likely to be beyond the control of any single local government, state officials imagine. Sacramento has promised to send plenty of backup and equipment to the state's 58 counties to help deal with the real possibility of a destructive natural disaster lasting for months. Torrential rains and widespread flooding in Peru in July (its winter season) led the government to declare a two-month state of emergency.

Preparations for the super El Niño began before the end of summer to clear channels of debris and get public-works and emergency-response departments on the same page, according to Supervisor Lindsey Horvath. The goal is a near-seamless response when calls for mutual aid and water rescues start pouring in from cities and unincorporated areas, she explained.

"After fires, floods, and landslides, we know exactly what is at stake when heavy rain hits Los Angeles," Horvath said. "LA County crews have been doing the work year-round; now we're making sure every part of County government is ready to move together when conditions change."

Horvath organized an El Niño town hall session on Sept. 28 and compiled a to-do list for residents to consider and complete before the expected series of rainstorms rolls ashore.

"The time to prepare is now," she said, encouraging people to stay informed by signing up at alert.lacounty.gov to receive emergency notifications, including evacuation

The rising ocean temperature and an undersea Kelvin wave moving west greatly increases the chances for more coastal flooding this winter. Last month, waves crashed over rock berms and into moving traffic on Pacific Coast Highway, north of Malibu. Photo credit: Rob McCarthy.

Eagles Lose Nail-Biter in CIF Quarter-Finals

By Gregg McMullin

The El Segundo Eagles boys' water polo team was making its twenty-sixth consecutive appearance in the CIF Southern Section playoffs. After defeating Santiago in the first round, they turned their attention to their second-round opponent, the Capistrano Valley Cougars. The Eagles dominated throughout and defeated the Cougars 18-10. That win propelled the Eagles into a quarter-final matchup against the St. John Bosco Braves. The third-seeded Braves scored a late goal in the fourth period to seal a 10-9 win over the Eagles.

The Eagles are playing their best water polo of the season, and it couldn't have come at a better time. Against Capistrano Valley, the Eagles showed their maturity. You play your regular-season schedule to reach the postseason playoffs and hope you are peaking at the right time. The Eagles played a complete game against the Cougars, passed well, had a strong counterattack, and played solid defense.

The Eagles scored three quick goals to start the game. Christian Ramirez assisted on a goal scored by Bryson Duffaut on the second possession of the game. On their next possession, the Eagles' counterattack was highlighted by a pass from Austin Lane to Reid Chrisman for a score. On their next possession, the Eagles' up-tempo counter found Michael Lambert, who found Duffaut open for an easy score and a 3-0 lead. A steal by Lane led to a five-meter score by Ramirez, and Austin Miller closed out the first period scoring with an inside goal and a 5-1 lead.

The Eagles stretched their lead with scores by Austin Lane and Joshua Rhyu for a 7-1 lead. The Cougars scored three consecutive goals to narrow their deficit. The Cougars took the Eagle's leading scorer Austin Miller out of his zone by neutralizing him. But Miller found an opening and scored with just over two minutes remaining in the first half. The Cougars' Colin Carlin ended the first half scoring with a shot attempt from outside and an 8-5 lead for the Eagles.

The Eagles dominated both sides of the pool in the second half. With crisp passing and a shutdown defense, the Eagles outscored the Cougars 10-5. Austin Miller scored four second-half goals, half goals, including one that he stole and went the distance for an easy goal inside.

The 18-10 win propelled the Eagles into the quarter-final matchup against the third-seeded St. John Bosco Braves. These two teams were evenly matched, and it was demonstrated during the 10-9 win by the Braves.

The Braves' Nicolas Brake scored on a reverse play that surprised the Eagles to start the scoring. The Eagles responded immediately with a score by Joshua Rhyu. But in this tight game the Braves used their counterattack to score by Joe Luyben to make it 2-1. Austin Miller tied the game at 2-2 with a penalty shot. Trailing 3-2 late in the first period, the Eagles' Michael Lambert scored the equalizer with time running out in the first period.

In the second period, Johnny Amaral scored from two meters to tie the game at 4-4. The Eagles' only lead of the game came with 3:25 remaining on a five-meter score by Joshua Rhyu. The Braves would counter by scoring the next three goals that extended into the third period and a 7-5 lead. Austin Miller's penalty shot and Bryson Duffaut's score even the game again with 2:15 remaining in the third period.

The fourth period was a tense battle between these two heavyweights. Trailing 9-7, the Eagles worked their passing game to perfection when Johnny Amaral fed Austin Miller inside, who fired a goal past Brave goalie Marcelo Cerna with 1:12 remaining in regulation. But the Braves countered with a two-meter goal by Luca Short with forty-one seconds remaining for a 10-8 lead. Austin Miller wrapped up his stellar high school career by scoring with fifteen seconds left to make it 10-9. The Braves ran out the clock and, with it, the Eagles' fantastic season.

Tennis Team Season Ends but Future Looks Bright

The ESHS Girls' Tennis team ended the regular season at the Pioneer League Individual Finals at West Torrance High, with Alessa Morales and V Sanchez reaching the second round in doubles and Morales advancing to the second round in singles the day before.

The Lady Eagles ended the 2026 regular season with an overall 3-11 record, with seniors Kiara Lavalle, Minjee Gales, Parie Desai, Laura Dysim, and co-captains Sana Miyashita-Tsai and Camie Haug serving their last serves representing the Eagles in the Pioneer League.

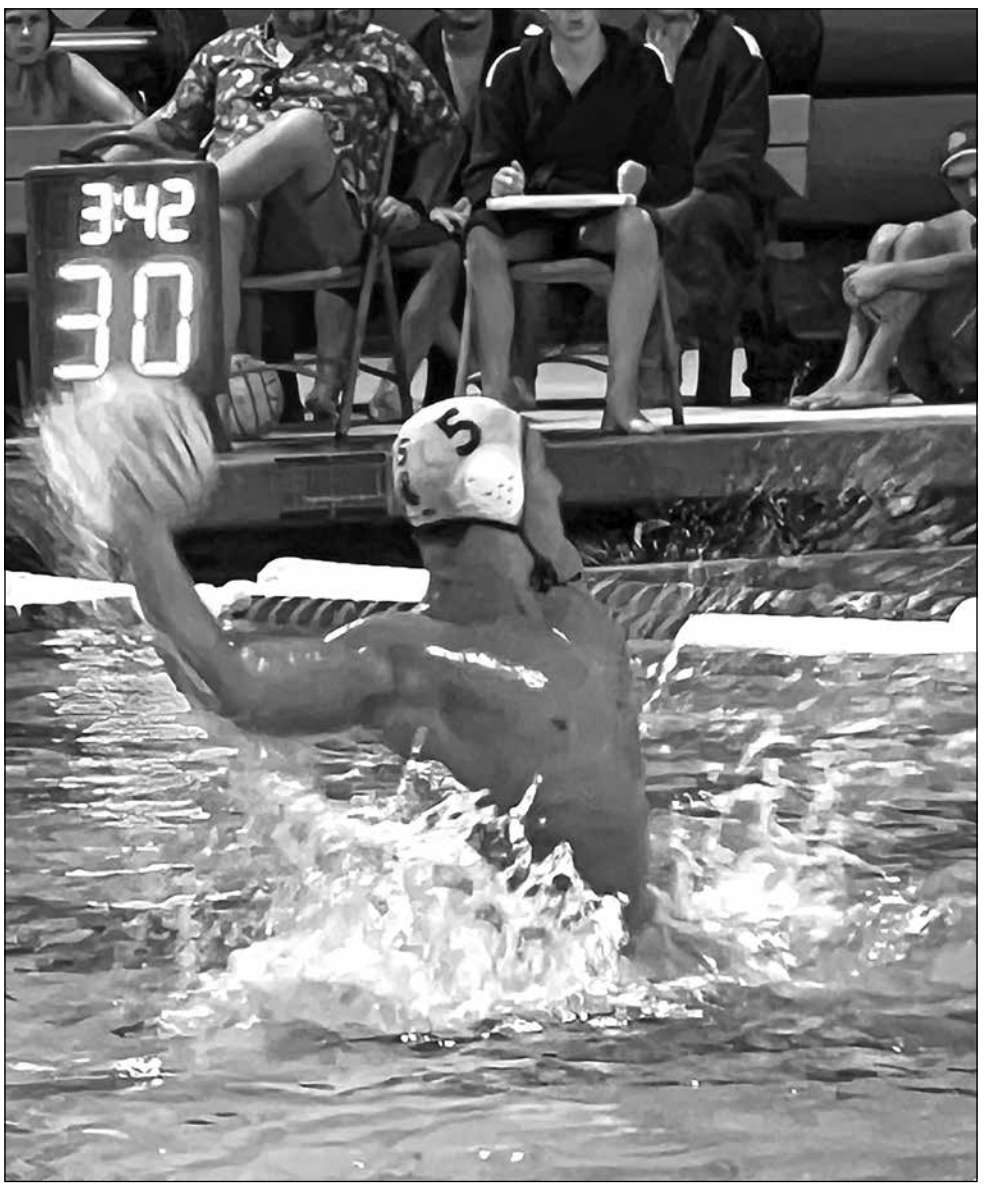

"We had a lot of growth this season, and it was exciting seeing how much the team as a whole improved throughout this season," explained head Coach Bonnie Maye. Our staff of incredible coaches, including Jamie Sanchez, Chrissy Kehl, and Steve Kigawa, has been instrumental in developing our program and our athletes.

Strong performances from the underclassmen this season show they continue to improve their competitiveness. With more than fourteen returning players next season, the future looks bright for the Eagles.

The Plunge Holds First Swim Event

The revitalized and refurbished Plunge, the iconic swim stadium, recently held its first of what could be several swim meets. Event spokesman Dave Tong said the Beach Bash swim meet is not for Beach Cities Alpha (BCA) competitive swimmers. Rather, the meet is for our younger lessons and pre-competitive swimmers. The meet is also an "intra-squad" meet, so it is only for BCA families. The current enrollment is about seventy (70) swimmers from all over the South Bay (including El Segundo kids!). The swimmers range in age from six to twelve.

Debating Darcy by Sayantani Dasgupta

By Kim Harris, El Segundo Middle School Library Assistant

Debating Darcy by Sayantani Dasgupta is a young adult retelling of Jane Austen's book Pride and Prejudice. The book takes place in New Jersey, not England and it revolves around a high school debate team. Leela Bose is a Desi girl who loves being on the debate team. She is an only child, so has made the debate team members her family. Leela loves debating and crushing her opponents through speech. When she meets Firoze Darcy, a debater from an elite private school, she can't stand him. Like Lizzie Bennet and Darcy, Leela often argues with Firoze and enjoys debating with him. Leela and Firoze see each other often because both are part of the same high school debate league.

Debating Darcy by Sayantani Dasgupta

The high school setting is perfect for Debating Darcy. Leela's debate coaches are Mr. and Mrs. Bennet, Caroline Bingley (Ro) is Leela's adversary and Ro's brother Charles is in love with Leela's best friend Jay. The book is very diverse: Leela is a Bengali Indian, Tomi is African American, and Jay is Asian. Firoze is also Indian. The diversity of the characters blends well with being a debate team. Leela and her team travel around the state on weekends participating in the tournaments. When Leela first meets Darcy, she hates him because she thinks he's arrogant, bossy and uptight. They run into each other a lot during the tournaments and get to know each other better.

After competing in several tournaments, Leela decides to switch to debate so she can beat Firoze at his own game. She enjoys debating but doesn't enjoy the sexism that occurs against the girls. The judges mark down points if the girls' uniforms are a little askew but do nothing to the boys for the same problem. Leela is very vocal about women's rights and speaks up whenever she can. When she gets called out by a judge, it is Firoze who defends her. Leela begins to realize that Firoze is not a horrible person, he's just shy and she begins to fall in love with him. The other three debaters on Leela's team are Lidia, Kitty, Kate and Collin. Lidia and Kitty are freshman and professional flirts. During one of the last competitions, Lidia is banned from competition because it was rumored that she was with a member from another school. At first, everyone believed her, until Leela asked Lidia who she was with and realized that something happened to her. Understandably, the whole team was outraged and decided to call out the judges and debaters. Leela did this through a passionate speech and got applauded by everyone. Did the speech change the way the competition is judged? Do Leela and Firoze end up together? Read the book to find out!

I really enjoyed this book! Pride and Prejudice is one of my favorite books and I liked this interpretation. Some of the issues are intense, but there are also many funny scenes. Dasgupta does a good job incorporating the original book into a modern high school story. Firoze's mom is the head Dean at Pemberly College and many of the towns have the same name as the villages in England. It's a fun read and makes you root for Leela and Darcy. warnings and orders.

Horvath reminded motorists not to take chances around waterlogged streets and intersections. "Never drive or walk through flooded roads. Stay away from downed power lines and flooded areas," she warned. Watch for rising water, move to higher ground if you see it, and follow evacuation warnings and orders.

Keep enough food, water, medications, and other essentials to last 10 days. Prepare your home: Clear gutters, downspouts, and storm drains, fix roof leaks, and get sandbags before heavy rainstorms are forecast, her office recommends. Also, check on neighbors — especially older adults and children — who may need help.

Consider buying flood insurance because standard homeowner policies won't cover flood damage. A new flood insurance policy won't take effect for 30 days, so property owners should act soon.

Meteorologist Richard Thompson with the National Weather Service in Oxnard says that strong El Niños in the past make it likely that rainfall totals for 2026-27 will exceed the normal 12 to 15 inches at the coast and 30 to 40 inches in the mountains. The amounts and impacts this winter will vary by location and time of year, according to him.

"The strength of the El Niño is the driving factor," Thompson explained. "Based on the odds we've seen with other El Niños, you can expect above-normal rainfall. How much above normal is still up in the air."

It's even possible the atmospheric disruption won't wring more precipitation from the winter storms. So, don't live in fear of the rapidly strengthening El Niño, he says in a reassuring tone. "Prepare, don't panic." •

EL SEGUNDO UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT SEEKS APPLICANTS FOR INDEPENDENT CITIZENS' BOND OVERSIGHT COMMITTEE

The Board of Education of the El Segundo Unified School District is seeking qualified, interested individuals to serve on a committee of community leaders which will serve as the Independent Citizens' Bond Oversight Committee ("COC") for the implementation of the District's Measure ES school facilities bond program. There are two openings on the ESUSD COC: one representative who is a parent in a parent/teacher organization and one representative of the community at large.

Proposition 39 Bond Election

On November 6, 2018, voters residing within the El Segundo Unified School District passed Measure ES. Measure ES is a $ $92,000,000 bond measure that authorizes funding for needed repairs, upgrades, and new construction projects to the district's schools.

Establishment of a Citizens' Oversight Committee

After a bond authorized under Proposition 39 is passed, State law requires that the El Segundo Unified School District Board appoint an Independent Citizens' Bond Oversight Committee to work with the district.

Committee Responsibilities

In accordance with Education Code Section 15278(b), the Citizens' Bond Oversight Committee shall:

- Inform the public concerning the district's expenditure of Measure ES bond proceeds.
- Review expenditure reports produced by the district to ensure that Measure ES and bond proceeds were expended only for the purposes set forth in Measures ES; and
- Present to the Board in public session, an annual written report outlining their activities and conclusions regarding the expenditure of Measure ES bond proceeds.

If you are interested in applying please visit the district website at https://www.elsegundousd.net/page/citizens-bond-oversight-committee to access the application or pick up an application from the district office at 614 Sheldon St. El Segundo, CA 90245. 4 Ways to Preserve Veterans' Stories for Future Generations

(Feature Impact) History is built from stories and memories, which is why it's important to listen to the people who were there as the world changed. Family stories, photographs, letters and memories all have a place in the broader story of humanity, but if they aren't recorded and preserved, they can fade over time.

Because more than 70 years have passed since the Korean War ended, opportunities to hear firsthand accounts from earlier conflicts grow fewer as time passes. Veterans and their families may be able to help record stories and lessons from "The Forgotten War" that might otherwise be lost.

You don't need to be a historian to help preserve your loved ones' memories and experiences. Programs like the Library of Congress Veterans History Project are dedicated to collecting stories from people like Private First Class Robert Lawrence Barber, who wrote regular letters home to his mother while serving in Korea. They paint a harrowing picture of combat, exhaustion, cold, fatigue and the stark realities of war that should never be forgotten. Experiences away from combat can be equally revealing, from daily routines and friendships to unexpected challenges.

Consider these ways to help the veterans in your life preserve their stories and leave their mark on history.

Start the Conversation Now

When it comes to recording memories, time is of the essence, especially for those who served in Korea. Decades may have passed, but each day makes a difference. Sit down with your loved one and gently start the conversation. You don't have to get the entire backstory at once, but you can begin asking questions about their military experience and give them time to gather their thoughts.

Record Their Story

How a story is told can add dimension to the story itself. An audio or video recording preserves your loved one's voice, expressions and emotions along with their words, giving your family memories to look back on for generations. Choose a quiet, comfortable space and test the equipment before recording.

Consider Preserving the Story Beyond Your Family

Family stories are most meaningful to those who know and love the storyteller, but they also matter to the world. Sharing veterans' stories - including difficulties and ordinary moments - offers others a firsthand view of military life. Libraries and oral history archives may be able to preserve qualifying material for a wider audience.

"We want all stories, not just those from the foxhole or the battlefronts, but from all veterans who served the United States in uniform," said Monica Mohindra, director of the Veterans History Project. "What did they hear? What did they see? What did it mean to them?"

If you have oral history interviews, and/or original photographs, letters or other records, consider contributing them to be archived and made accessible to future generations. Staff members are available to help you curate and select physical materials to contribute to the nation's library.

Give Old Photos and Letters Context

Brush the dust off those old photo albums, scrapbooks and memory boxes because they may contain tangible pieces of history. A photograph, letter or piece of memorabilia could be what a veteran needs to bring fuzzy memories back into focus - whether it's seeing the face of an old comrade or reading a letter written home. That gives you the opportunity to hear new stories and fill in context.

4 Tips for Efficient EV Charging at Home

(Feature Impact) - Your car has one job - to take you where you need to go. For electric vehicle (EV) owners, that means keeping it charged so it's ready to hit the road when you are.

Charging your car at home is convenient and cost-effective, especially if you have the right equipment and routines. Consider these quick tips from the EV experts at Schneider Electric.

Install a Level 2 Home Charger

While many EV owners start with standard Level 1 charging using typical 120-volt household outlets, upgrading to a 240-volt Level 2 charger can offer extra efficiency and convenience. With significantly faster charging speeds, these units increase your driving range per charging hour and can replenish your battery in a fraction of the time.

Charge During Off-Peak Hours

If your electric company has variable pricing based on the time of day, you may be able to lower your utility bill by shifting your charging routines. This could mean doing most of your charging overnight and unplugging during peak daytime hours when rates are often more expensive.

Consider a Smart Charger

Since Level 2 chargers can add significant electrical load to your home, many EV owners are concerned they'll need to make costly electrical upgrades to accommodate the higher power requirements. Instead, consider a smart Level 2 home charger with dynamic power management like the Schneider Charge.

With built-in technology called SmartAmp, this charger intelligently monitors the electrical demand in the home and adjusts the output to your EV accordingly. Whether you're running a dryer full of laundry or turning on the air conditioning, the system can automatically dial back the charging power to your EV when necessary then ramp it back up when demand drops. This way, you won't have to worry about overloading your electrical system or being forced to install pricey new panels so you can get everything done.

Since it works with all standard EV charging formats, it's built to fit your current vehicle and whatever you buy next. Plus, through the connected app, you can conveniently schedule charging with a tap, giving you the ability to manage your EV routine remotely - or just set it and forget it.

Track Your Habits

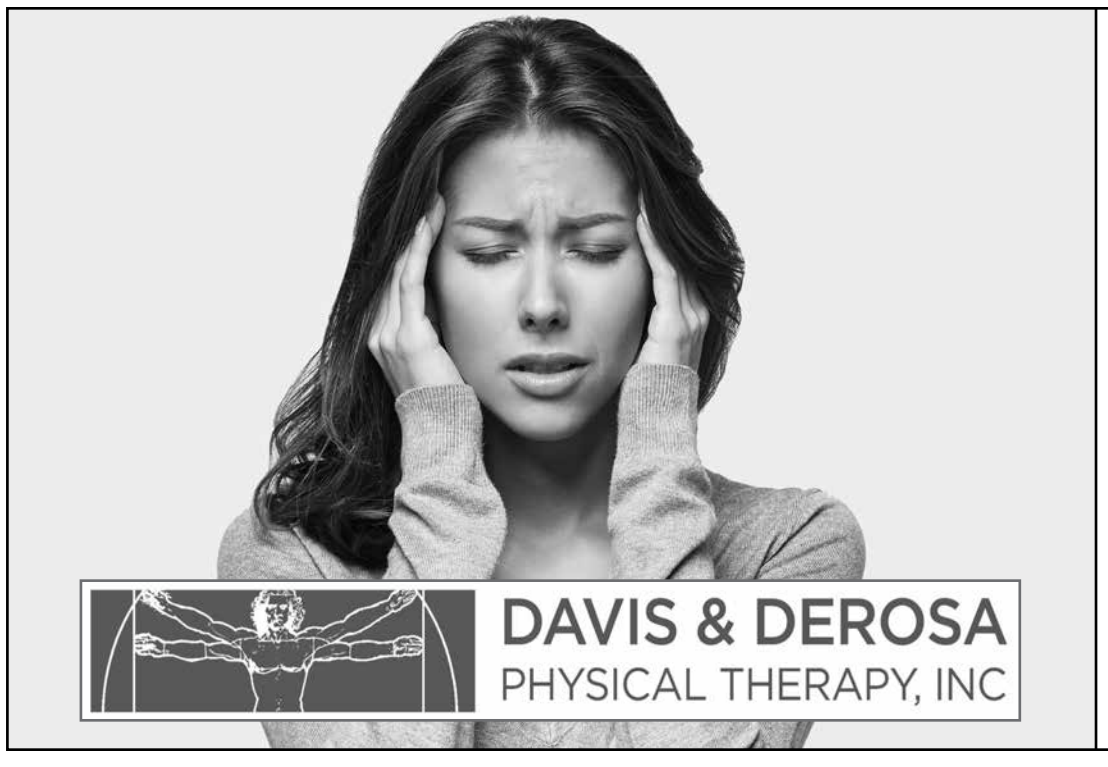

Understanding your current charging habits can help you fine-tune your routines over time. Smart chargers can make tracking simple and automatic with apps that allow you to access information like how often you're charging your vehicle, how long it takes and how much energy it consumes.

Tong and others believe the Beach Bash aligns with what "we at BCA understand to be the City's primary goals with the Plunge." He says he attended the donors' opening event, and the message he took away was that the Plunge introduced young people to swimming and that their journeys into the world of aquatics (swimming, water polo, lifeguarding, etc.) started there.

That is exactly what the Beach Bash is for! The meet aims to teach kids just getting started the basics of a swim meet. Tong says the Beach Bash should help parents get used to timing and other volunteer roles; think "Swim Meet 101."

Two City Council members, Lance Giroux and Michelle Keldorf, who expressed interest in attending, made remarks before the meet began. Tong has worked with the City's aquatics director (Joe Lormans) to submit an official request to participate in the event. Tong and others hope this is the start of many swim meet events at the Plunge that our community will come out and support. • therapy centers, advanced imaging, and both specialty and community pharmacies. The complex will also be the new home of the UCLA Clinical Microbiology Laboratory, providing high-level diagnostic capabilities. The new location will also reduce overcapacity issues at the Westwood and Santa Monica hospitals. "The facility will enable us to leverage the existing lab infrastructure and add technologies to expand our patient care services, "UCLA Health Associate Director of Communications Rami Jandali said. "The location and infrastructure of the building align with UCLA Health's mission to provide leading-edge health care to the Los Angeles community."

UCLA's arrival is further evidence of El Segundo evolving from general outpatient care to a destination for high-end surgical offerings.

In selecting its new base of operations, the Sparks saw El Segundo as a perfect fit from several angles. "From the beginning, our vision for the Sparks' new practice facility has been about more than building a place to train; it's about creating the best possible environment for our players to perform, recover, and thrive," Sparks President Stacy Johns said. "When we looked at where to make this long-term investment, we weren't just evaluating a site. We were evaluating the ecosystem that would surround our athletes every day." She went on to note, "El Segundo is uniquely positioned to become one of the premier destinations for professional sports, and the addition of UCLA's new medical campus further strengthens that vision. The combination of world-class healthcare, sports medicine, performance resources, and the concentration of professional sports organizations creates an environment that's difficult to replicate anywhere else. We believe it's the ideal place to build the future of the Sparks and continue raising the standard for women's professional sports."

The $150 million project is also among the largest single-team financial investments in the history of women's sports..

El Segundo's growth potential also didn't escape DOCS CEO Dr. Jason Snibbe, who purchased a building in town that will house a future spinal care and orthopedics practice, as well as a surgery center, clinic, and complete imaging center, among other services. "The sports teams that are in El Segundo provide a great community of athletics and support," he said. "I think El Segundo will transform into a medical destination for patients all over the world. It has great airport access and easy access for patients. We are committed to investing in El Segundo now and in the future."

Airport access is just one of the benefits El Segundo brings to the table. Along with a desired higher-income demographic providing a strong patient base, its reputation as a business-friendly city with flexible commercial zoning and comparatively lower tax structures creates both logistical and financial advantages for large medical uses to settle here. That component spurred a swell of biotech and life science firms, including Kite Pharma and ImmunityBio, alongside the Chan Soon-Shiong Institute for Medicine, which focuses on the latest cancer research advancements. These arrivals were also pivotal in Radiology Partners' decision to relocate its headquarters to El Segundo.

Access to El Segundo's world-class health care services is one of many reasons the Los Angeles Sparks chose to build their new facility here. The rendering shows the exterior of the complex scheduled to open in mid-2027. Photo Provided by LA Sparks.

Radlink CEO Tom Hacking saw El Segundo's potential as a regional medical hub when he moved his company here in 2014. Photo Provided by Radlink.

Meanwhile, Radlink Chief Technology Officer Wenchao Tao doubled down on Hacking's assessment. "From my perspective working with orthopedic imaging and surgical technology, El Segundo is evolving into a true healthcare innovation hub," he said. "Having healthcare providers, researchers, and medical technology companies in close proximity encourages collaboration and accelerates the adoption of new technologies that ultimately improve patient care." Major technology firms such as KARL STORZ, which houses its advanced surgical imaging operations in the city, anchor the innovation ecosystem.

The goal is that while athletes take advantage of care in close proximity, the rest of the community can too. "South Bay residents are among the fittest anywhere, but sports injuries occur," Hacking said. "When the injuries require replacement parts like hip, knee, or shoulder, patients used to spend days in the hospital. Now, with new technology and surgical methods, many go home the same day. It's truly a win-win." •

Directions

- Step 1: Move oven rack to lowest position. Heat oven to 325°F.
- Step 2: Discard giblets and neck from turkey or reserve for another use. Using fingers, gently loosen skin covering turkey breast and thighs; spread butter evenly under skin.
- Step 3: In small bowl, combine garlic salt, oregano, rosemary, mustard, coriander, red pepper, salt, and pepper. Rub spice mixture over turkey skin.
- Step 4: Fold wings across back of turkey so tips are touching.
- Step 5: Place turkey, breast side up, on rack in shallow roasting pan. Drizzle oil over turkey.
- Step 6: Tie legs together with butcher's twine.
- Step 7: Insert ovenproof meat thermometer so tip is in thickest part of inside thigh muscle and does not touch bone. Do not add water to pan. Roast uncovered 2 hours.
- Step 8: Remove twine holding legs to allow the inside of the thighs to cook thoroughly and evenly.
- Step 9: Roast 2 hours 15 minutes to 2 hours 45 minutes longer, or until the thermometer reads 165°F and legs move easily when lifted or twisted (cover loosely with foil if necessary to prevent overbrowning). Remove turkey from oven; let stand 15 minutes before carving. •

Getting Your Wood-Burning Fireplace Ready for Winter

(Feature Impact) - As cold temperatures creep in, you might be dreaming about cozy fall and winter evenings in front of a glowing, crackling fireplace. Before you (literally) fire it up for the first time, consider these steps to make sure your wood-burning fireplace is ready to heat your home cleanly, safely and efficiently.

Clear Out Old Ash and Debris

When you haven't used your fireplace for a while, it can build up dust, soot and debris. As the first step of your annual checkup, clean out last season's leftovers but leave about a 1-inch layer of ash at the bottom of the firebox to provide insulation and make it easier to get wood burning.

Schedule Professional Maintenance

Chimney sweeps still exist, although they don't look like the soot-smudged lads from old movies anymore - and these days they come with a collection of high-powered modern tools to remove buildup from chimneys and flue systems. Experts can also look for ventilation issues, cracks in the masonry and other potential hazards. The National Fire Protection Association recommends getting your chimney inspected once a year and cleaned or maintained as needed.

Consider Efficiency Upgrades

To keep your fireplace working better for longer or improve its energy efficiency, explore your options for upgrades suited to your fireplace type. Glass fireplace doors, new dampers or a high-efficiency fireplace insert can all help reduce energy loss and improve heating performance. Adding or replacing a chimney cap and applying waterproof sealant to the bricks every five years can help protect your chimney from moisture damage over time.

Burn the Right Kind of Wood

Not all wood burns alike, so you can improve the warmth and efficiency of your fires simply by choosing the right kinds of logs. Stock up on seasoned hardwood dried for 6-12 months and store it in a dry, well-ventilated area away from your home so it doesn't attract pests like mice who may want to take up residence. Avoid burning painted or treated lumber, wet wood or household trash, which can produce excess smoke and harmful pollutants.

Use Safe Fireplace Equipment

Beyond the fireplace itself, check your setup and tools to make sure you have everything you need to safely start and maintain your fires. If you have an open fireplace, make sure to use a sturdy fireplace screen to contain any stray sparks. A good-quality poker, tongs, shovel and brush can also help you control logs and embers, manage ash and keep your fireplace clean throughout the season.
