West Basin Seed $$ Makes Yard Conversions More Affordable

By Rob McCarthy

The West Basin Municipal Water District made some noise last week with an announcement about its turf removal program. It raised the incentive by $1 for customers to plant yard-sized gardens that can thrive using less irrigation. Outdoor irrigation of lawns and flower beds account for half of the water used in the South Bay.

The average check from West Basin to owners who replace grass with drought-tolerant landscaping around their properties is $3,900, according to district spokeswoman DeAnne Blackmon. That's based on an average lot size of 1,300 square feet. The turf removal incentives are flexible and can include residential properties up to 5,000 square feet, she said. A property that size could be in line for a $15,000 check for outdoor improvements.

John Arney runs a landscape construction company in the South Bay and says any size check from West Basin will "get the ball rolling" on an outdoor renovation of the grounds. Expect to pay anywhere from $7,500 to $15,000 for a professionally designed and installed landscape, said the owner of Helix Landscape Construction. "If you're dissatisfied with your landscape as it is and someone is giving you four grand, those are two very good incentives," he said. Grass lawns are fine "for any other area other than the dry Southwest where we're in a desperate situation with water shortages."

West Basin is hosting classes for residents to learn how to remove turf and choose landscaping. The Metropolitan Water District is paying $2 of the incentive, and the local water supplier sweetened the offer by adding another dollar starting in July. The next landscape conversion class is at 5:30 p.m. on July 16 at Inglewood City Hall. Residential and commercial property owners are invited to enroll by calling (310) 371-7222.

Adding California-friendly, drought-tolerant plant varieties around a property can save 1,800 gallons of drinking water each month, according to West Basin. The water supplier is committed to securing a safe and reliable source of drinking water for its South Bay customers. It also hopes to increase the participation in the turf removal program, which is funded by the Metropolitan Water District and the local West Basin district.

The do-it-yourself approach won't work for everyone. There's the turf removal, which is physically demanding. The sod is heavy, Arney said, and it needs to be hauled away and disposed of properly. A property owner can expect to need to hire laborers and a dumpster for the demolition stage of the landscape remodel.

Arney recommends choosing plants in one-gallon buckets because they cost less and will fill in eventually. Going from a green carpet of grass in front and back to a new garden takes patience, but Arney said the right selection of California-friendly plants will fill in over time. "Plants need some room to grow into one another," he explained. And landscapes deserve trees, which have a cooling effect on the garden and the ground loses less water to evaporation, he added. The one-gallon buckets work best and come with advantages over the larger five-gallon sized plants that admittedly are more mature. "A one-gallon grows faster than a five-gallon," Arney said. "If you go with California natives, you save on installation costs on your planting budget."

Any qualifying project starts with a landscape plan. The design guides every step of the installation, including new irrigation, plants, trees, paved walkways and lighting, Arney noted.

The site plan depends on the look of a home, whether it's a World War II-era bungalow or a modern structure. Three popular types of landscapes fit the home architecture of the South Bay, he said. A modern landscape is one of them, and involves cast concrete pavers and a narrow selection of plant varieties throughout the garden. Arney said one to two types of drought-tolerant plants complement a modern home's outdoor features.

A Mediterranean landscape is another local favorite and features plant varieties for the South Bay's coastal climate with moderate temperatures and mostly sunny days. The English cottage landscape is popular here too.

In addition to the July 16 landscape conversion class in Inglewood, other sessions are planned for August, September and October. Program details are listed at www.westbasin.org/grass-replacement as well as the dates and times of the informational sessions for West Basin customers interested in converting to a grass-free exterior.

The loamy soil found in El Segundo, Hawthorne and Inglewood is easy to work with, unlike the heavy clay soils found along the Palos Verdes Peninsula. Those residents incur higher costs and more labor to excavate grassy front and back yards because the pieces weigh more and machinery is needed rather than hand tools, according to Arney.

Customers who want more curb appeal can change the exterior look of their home with landscaping. The money from West Basin goes almost halfway toward paying a landscape contractor or making it a DIY project. The rebates are available on a first-come basis, and renters may participate with written consent of their landlords.

Gumball: 19-05682: 1 Year Old/Pit Bull Mix/Male

"Hello, Gumball here! I'm super cute, playful and affectionate, so I know I'd make an excellent Friend for Life. Let's play with some toys, have a snuggle, and become besties!" <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=19-05682>

Sasha: 19-04792/4 Months Old/Domestic Short Hair/Female

"I'm the pretty 4-month-old kitten known as Sasha. My favorite things include playing with my sibling and cuddling up with a warm blanket for a catnap. Come check meowt if you need a cutie in your life today!" <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=19-04792>

Whitney: 19-05439/3 Months Old/Pit Bull Mix/Female

"Whitney here! I'm a sweet, gentle girl who loves to play with toys and take nice long walks. I'm a beautiful girl with an even more beautiful personality. Stop by and see for yourself!" <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=19-05439>

Dustin: 19-05004: 5 Years Old/Domestic Short Hair/Male

"Meow meow! I'm Dustin, one of the friendliest kitties you'll ever meet! Besides making new friends, I also enjoy snuggling on laps and birdwatching. If you're in need of a soft, loving Friend for Life, I might just be the one for you!" <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=19-05004>
