Employers Counting on Community Colleges to Help Build Workforce

By Rob McCarthy

A future-of-work report has sounded a call for more young people to attend community colleges and prepare themselves for middle-skill careers that offer higher-than-average pay, career advancement and—maybe, most importantly—jobs that aren’t going to a robot anytime soon.

South Bay employers and recruiters over the next five years can expect skills shortages for positions that require an associate’s degree or some college coursework. The labor economists with the L.A. Center for a Competitive Workforce in their report say that middle-skilled professions such as nursing, bookkeeping, auditing, and managing production and planning offer the best opportunities in Los Angeles County’s wide-open workforce.

Community colleges are employers’ best hope for getting out ahead of the coming skills gap, the report’s authors say. Jobs in warehousing, data collection, and labor physical are being replaced by machines and trusted to artificial intelligence. Automation won’t be a “pressing threat” to local employer for another 10 or 20 years, however, according to the labor economists.

When the door closes to these familiar jobs in South Bay’s aerospace and defense companies, another door is expected to open. Some technical training—not necessarily a four-year degree, and an ability to manage people and processes—are expected to be in high demand.

“Recent advancements in robotics, artificial intelligence and machine learning are poised to cause greater levels of disruption in the future—not only in manufacturing, but also across numerous other industries. Individuals will need skills that can be employed in conjunction with the functions of machines,” the authors noted. “This puts enormous pressure on community colleges and other education systems to create programs that will do just that.”

What lies ahead are opportunities for local community colleges to adapt their coursework and training programs with more emphasis on STEM (science-technology-engineering-mathematics) fields of study and soft skills that managers need to be successful, says the team at the competitive workforce center. The new venture is a partnership of 19 Los Angeles and Orange County community colleges that is headed by the Los Angeles Economic Development Corporation (LAEDC).

Other members include the L.A. Chamber of Commerce, Southern California Leadership Council, and the Center of Excellence for Labor Market Research at Mt. San Antonio College. The work admittedly is a balancing act. With this first report, they’ve identified what the greater L.A. labor pool is lacking in training, talents and experience. And, they’ve given administrators at community colleges a roadmap to support local business.

There were 776,000 students registered at Los Angeles-area community colleges for the 2014-15 academic year, according to the center. Two-thirds of those students enrolled in career education programs, which prepare them for healthcare, automotive, business and financial service careers. Students can choose from more than 200 career education programs offered by 19 community colleges in Los Angeles County and nine Orange County campuses.

“Since community colleges play a leading and vital role in training students to enter these target occupations, it is incumbent that more attention be given toward meeting forecasted employer demand,” the future-of-work report said.

Closing the supply gap by aligning the talents of community college graduates with talent gaps in Southern California industries is critical to the growth and prosperity of L.A. County’s diverse economy, the LAEDC authors stressed. There are 52 community colleges in greater Los Angeles, including our local campuses El Camino College in Torrance, Santa Monica College, Los Angeles Harbor College in Wilmington, and West Los Angeles College in Culver City.

Middle-skill jobs can pay close to $100,000 per year and they require only an associate’s degree from a community college. LAEDC’s workforce alignment team is bullish on six local industries for people with some college or a two-year degree: aerospace, biomedical manufacturing, entertainment, healthcare services, ports and related transportation support activities; and professional and technical services.

Employers in these six core industries will be looking to hire 55,000 people with middle skills between now and 2012, the LAEDC forecast said.

Aerospace: “The demand for workers with technical skills, as well as in-depth knowledge of mathematics and science, will continue to remain a high priority for aerospace establishments. Simultaneously, many workers in the industry across all occupations are nearing retirement age, including those in middle-skill occupations such as aircraft mechanics and service technicians, representing critical training opportunity for local community colleges.”

Bio-medical: “The industry remains poised for growth as demand for innovations that will improve the health and well-being of the population continues to grow. Aside from the hundreds of high-skill, high-wage workers employed as chemists, industrial and medical engineers, and software developers, many workers in the industry are also middle-skill

Hawthorne Native Earns Scholarship Grant for Secondary Education

This month, the Café Bustelo® brand awarded Hawthorne native Janel Navarro a $5,000 scholarship for her will to obtain secondary education and motivation to give back in the face of adversity. Navarro never dreamed of success as the daughter of two Mexican immigrants. Instead she woke up every day and worked hard at it. Although she grew up at times homeless and without anyone to teach her English, Navarro remained focused on her academics and chose to pursue school. Inspired by her parents’ unrelenting work ethic to thrive in America amidst the many challenges they faced as immigrants, she is excited to further her education in the hopes of becoming a social worker, serving as an advocate for other immigrants living in the U.S. and helping them pursue dreams in line with their passions. – Source: Café Bustelo

Department of Labor Awards Grants to SBWIB Programs for At-Risk Youth

The U.S. Department of Labor announced the award of $1.1 million in YouthBuild grant funds to the South Bay Workforce Investment Board (SBWIB) and its partners, Century Center for Economic Opportunity (CCEO) YouthBuild, and Habitat For Humanity of Greater Los Angeles. The funds will support academic and occupational skills training for at-risk youth and will directly benefit South Bay area youth in Inglewood, Hawthorne, Lawndale, El Segundo, Gardena, Carson, Hermosa Beach, Manhattan Beach, Redondo Beach, Torrance and Lomita. “We are grateful to once again be recognized by the Department of Labor with this much needed grant award,” SBWIB Executive Director Jan Vogel said. “We anticipate that after they complete occupational skills training and earn industry-recognized certifications, these YouthBuild participants will be able to secure good paying jobs and get on a path to self-sufficiency,” he concluded. The SBWIB and CCOE’s YouthBuild program aligns with former President Obama’s My Brother’s Keeper initiative and job-driven training agenda by promoting a “stepping stone” approach to a seamless progression from education to work-based learning. It includes classroom instruction and occupational skills training within the construction building trades for youth ages 16 to 24 at approved worksites managed by Habitat for Humanity. The YouthBuild participants have either been in the juvenile justice system or have aged out of foster care, have dropped out of high school or are otherwise at-risk of failing to reach key educational and career milestones. The program provides young adults opportunities and career pathways to gain the skills and education they need for employment and to become leaders in their communities. –Source: SBWIB

Looking For Balance? Your Diet Might Be A Place To Start

(BPT) - Adults today are constantly searching for balance in life. While balance can be broadly defined, in simple terms it is rooted in equal proportions. The human body demands an equilibrium in order to sustain proper mental, physical and spiritual health. But, achieving balance can be difficult when everyday personal and environmental stresses (such as work, poor diet, harsh sunlight and pollution) expose the body to cell-damaging oxidative stress. Meanwhile, an increasing number of adults are not getting the nutrients they need to keep their bodies properly fueled to meet the demands faced in a single day. In fact, according to a survey from Instantly, more than 53 percent of Americans skip breakfast at least once a week, while 12 percent never have breakfast at all. The World Health Organization recommends eating at least 400 grams, or five servings, of fruits and vegetables per day, but approximately 75 percent of people worldwide fail to meet that minimum recommendation, creating significant nutrient gaps. Let’s face it, it can be tough to eat a healthy and well-balanced meal morning, noon and night. For that reason alone, supplements, which fill in nutrient gaps, can ensure you get the right quantities and varieties of nutrients your body needs. Supplements are becoming a critical part of the everyday routine for those looking to do it all and still ensure optimal nutrition. When you incorporate the adequate amounts of vitamins and minerals into your diet, particularly plant-based supplements that add phytonutrients, you can easily fill nutrient gaps and achieve optimal nutrition. The first step in achieving nutritional balance is understanding the nutrients your body needs to function properly. Knowing what phytonutrients are, and the health benefits associated with them, is key. Phytonutrients are nutrients found in fruits, vegetables and other sources. They are associated with a variety of health benefits, such as eye, bone, joint and heart health, as well as supporting the immune system and brain health. Many phytonutrients are also powerful antioxidants that help fight cell-damaging free radicals. The vitamin B family is made up of eight B vitamins, each of which helps your body form energy. Your body requires a regular supply of B vitamins in order to support energy-yielding metabolism. Most importantly, B vitamins need to be taken in the right amounts and at the right times. Amway’s Nutrilite Vitamin B Dual-Action supplement provides your body with an instant and extended release of B vitamins to create and sustain energy within the body. “Amway’s Nutrilite Double X supplement is strategically designed to provide key vitamins, minerals and phytonutrients your body needs,” said Steve Missler, Principal Research Scientist at Amway. “Together with Vitamin B Dual-Action, these two products help provide the body with the quality nutrients needed to function properly and maintain a healthy balance. However, as with all nutrition plans, it is important to consult with a medical professional or health expert to determine your specific nutritional needs.” When it comes to finding the right supplement, another tip is to look for third-party verifications of product quality. Nutrilite Double X and Vitamin B Dual-Action supplements are certified by NSF International, an independent, accredited organization that conducts rigorous tests to assure consumers that products contain what is stated on the label. It is important to ensure that the supplement you choose is also gentle on your stomach. Starting your day with a healthy breakfast along with a supplemental source of phytonutrients and B vitamins can help ensure you get optimal nutrition throughout the day. •

TELE-TOWN HALL MEETING

Our City Manager, Arnie Shadbehr, invites you to call to be part of a Tele-Town Hall Meeting on Tuesday, October 17th from 7p.m. to 8 p.m. A Tele-Town meeting is when you call in on your phone and join the proceedings. The phone number to call is: 855-756-7520 Ext. 36529#. This meeting will give our city manager an opportunity to explain what the tax proposal is that we will vote on in November. The City is running a deficit. Without increasing our revenue, City services will continue to be limited. Our police officers and city employees have had to make concessions in their contracts so that the residents can still receive the first class services that they deserve from the City. So, before you vote, make plans to find out the real info regarding this measure.

"PUNCH YOUR LIGHTS OUT!"

It was October 9, 2007, ten years ago this week, that I began my political career. I remember it well since October 9th is my ol' lady's birthday. I went before the city council as a concerned resident. At that time I thought the mayor and his buddies on the city council were playing games behind our backs. I went to confess to them that I had written a campaign flyer for a council candidate that slammed the mayor's "team" that had controlled the City too long. Wow! I was not prepared for what happened after I sat down. Each council member took turns blasting me, accusing me of slander and threatened to sue me. The highlight of the evening was when a council member told me that he had the right to jump over the podium and "punch my lights out". Being new to this political mudslinging, I was shaking in my boots. At that time I had not learned how to "just go home and have a cold one". People who were there and others who viewed it on YouTube in the ensuing days and months were amazed that an elected official would actually physically threaten me from the dais. Not much later after that incident, I was encouraged to run for City Clerk. Dummy me, I consented to placing my name on the ballot. The rest is history. The voters who voted me in must have thought I was an honest, fine outstanding man full of integrity. Little did they know that they were electing a drunken old man who tries to write a weekly column full of nonsense.

Brandi

Brandi and her brother Corey are an affectionate, beautiful and docile pair of youngsters. They love getting snuggles and chin scratches. Brandi has the personality of a fluffy, super soft, happy panda and purrs in approval when getting lots of love. This sweet darling is curious and a little shy, but enjoys being held and brushed. She is playful, but also a pensive young girl. Corey is a chill, go-with-the-flow kind of guy. The day he came to his new foster home, he sat on the lap of his foster dad like, "What are we watching, the news? Boring, but I'll give you company." He follows you to the kitchen to see what strange human activities you do. Brandi and Corey are bonded siblings and would be happy adopted together. They also like other friendly, beta, fun young kitties--so we would consider allowing them to be adopted separately if it's the right fit.

Peter is an affectionate and cuddly kitten. He's a lot of fun and loves to play with toys and wrestle with other kittens. Peter moved to the Kitten Rescue Sanctuary with his mom

Kenny

Corey

Cobbler (like Peach Cobbler) is just “yummy.” As a three-week-old kitten, she was abandoned under the stairwell of a nice gentleman’s apartment. He took her in and contacted Kitten Rescue to save her. Because of all the human TLC she received, Cobbler adores people. She is not afraid of anyone and loves to run right up to greet you. Cobbler loves to roughhouse with her foster siblings, but sometimes when her foster mom comes around she wants to crawl up onto her lap to snuggle. She gets along great with other kitties and must have a young playmate. Children are great too. Cobbler is ready to snuggle with you for the rest of her life.

Leo was found by a Good Samaritan. He was in pain, dehydrated and not able to walk after he was hit by a car. He was brought to the Kitten Rescue Sanctuary and after a visit to the vet, he was found to have a fractured pelvis. Leo is now fully recovered and ready

Peter

Cobbler

Nellie is a Nebelung mix. Because we don't know her parents, we call her a mix. The Nebelung is a rare breed of domestic cat. Nebelungs have long bodies, wide-set green eyes, long and dense fur, and mild dispositions. They have a very distinctive, silky, semi-long, blue-grey coat, and are very graceful cats. Nellie is super sweet and a great bed snuggler! She is looking for a special someone(s) who will love her and make her feel safe and secure. Nellie would do best as an only cat or with another cat who mostly ignores her.

On Saturdays, we have adoptions from noon to 3:30 p.m. in Westchester at 8655 Lincoln Boulevard, just south of Manchester Avenue, and also in Mar Vista at 3860 Centinela Avenue, just south of Venice Boulevard. Our website lists additional adoption sites and directions to each location. •

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL, or estate, or both of MELVIN LEE GREEN.
A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by ERNESTINE GREEN in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES. THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that ERNESTINE GREEN be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 10/31/17 at 8:30AM in Dept. 79 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012
IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.
Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Caltech Scientists Awarded 2017 Nobel Prize in Physics for Gravitational-Wave Detection

The 2017 Nobel Prize in Physics has been awarded to three key players in the development and ultimate success of the Laser Interferometer Gravitational-wave Observatory (LIGO). One half of the prize was awarded jointly to Caltech's Barry C. Barish, the Ronald and Maxine Linde Professor of Physics, Emeritus and Kip S. Thorne (BS '62), the Richard P. Feynman Professor of Theoretical Physics, Emeritus; and the other half was awarded to MIT's Rainer Weiss, Professor of Physics, Emeritus.
On September 14, 2015, the National Science Foundation (NSF)-funded LIGO made the first-ever direct observation of gravitational waves—ripples in the fabric of space and time predicted by Albert Einstein 100 years earlier. The public announcement took place on February 11, 2016, in Washington, D.C. Each of the twin LIGO observatories—one in Hanford, Washington, and the other in Livingston, Louisiana—picked up the feeble signal of gravitational waves generated 1.3 billion years ago when two black holes spiraled together and collided. Two additional detections of gravitational waves, once again from merging black-hole pairs, were made on December 26, 2015, and January 4, 2017; and on August 14, 2017, a fourth event was detected by LIGO and the European Virgo gravitational-wave detector.
The detections ushered in a new era of gravitational-wave astronomy. LIGO and Virgo provided astronomers with an entirely new set of tools with which to probe the cosmos. Previously, all astronomy observations have relied on light—which includes X-rays, radio waves, and other types of electromagnetic radiation emanating from objects in space—or on very-high-energy particles called neutrinos and cosmic rays. Now, astronomers can learn about cosmic objects through the quivers in space and time caused by changes in gravitation.
The Nobel Prize recognizes Weiss, Barish, and Thorne for their “decisive contributions to the LIGO detector and the observation of gravitational waves.”

“I am delighted and honored to congratulate Kip and Barry, as well as Rai Weiss of MIT, on the award this morning of the 2017 Nobel Prize in Physics,” says Caltech president Thomas F. Rosenbaum, the Sonja and William Davidow Presidential Chair and professor of physics. “The first direct observation of gravitational waves by LIGO is an extraordinary demonstration of scientific vision and persistence. Through four decades of development of exquisitely sensitive instrumentation—pushing the capacity of our imaginations—we are now able to glimpse cosmic processes that were previously undetectable. It is truly the start of a new era in astrophysics.”
“The prize rightfully belongs to the hundreds of LIGO scientists and engineers who built and perfected our complex gravitational-wave interferometers, and the hundreds of LIGO and Virgo scientists who found the gravitational-wave signals in LIGO's noisy data and extracted the waves' information,” Thorne says. “It is unfortunate that, due to the statutes of the Nobel Foundation, the prize has to go to no more than three people, when our marvelous discovery is the work of more than a thousand.”
“I am humbled and honored to receive this award,” says Barish. “The detection of gravitational waves is truly a triumph of modern large-scale experimental physics. Over several decades, our teams at Caltech and MIT developed LIGO into the incredibly sensitive device that made the discovery. When the signal reached LIGO from a collision of two stellar black holes that occurred 1.3 billion years ago, the 1,000-scientist-strong LIGO Scientific Collaboration was able to both identify the candidate event within minutes and perform the detailed analysis that convincingly demonstrated that gravitational waves exist.” •

Treat Yourself to the Moving, Magical Testament to Childhood, The Florida Project

By Ryan Rojas for www.cinemacy.com
In 2014, Boyhood stunned audiences by showing a boy growing up and coming of age over a 12-year span. The film's depiction of childhood captured these universally familiar moments so simply, so beautifully. The naturalness of such well-chosen non-actors conjured up a sense of cinema verité magic in a way that most movies cannot. Another indie film that recaptures this sense of magic is this year's The Florida Project. Writer/director Sean Baker, whose previous film, Tangerine (which was shot on an iPhone), tells the story of childhood and the theme of limitless boundaries that either dance around reality or run straight into it.
Quite simply, The Florida Project is a story about kids being kids. Taking place at an extended stay motel where folks and families of all types live while they scrape together next month's rent, the kids scurry through the stairs and parking lot with a sense of boundless energy that leaps off the screen and into audiences' hearts. We follow one precocious six-year-old girl, Moonee (Brooklyn Prince), and friends over one mostly-unsupervised summer. They run, play and cause mischief throughout a string of motels (called the Magic Castle motel and Wonderland Inn) where they live with their financially strapped single mothers. Their general safety is overseen by the motel's manager Bobby (Willem Dafoe), who, despite needing to clean the grounds and the bed bugs, keeps an eye on the group of little ankle biters before they zoom off each day.
To execute a film like this, putting your trust in one largely unproven young star, would seem like an impossible task--and yet it's not for Baker, whose casting of Brooklyn Prince makes the film soar. Prince as Moonee is a petite package of rambunctiousness and non-stop energy. But although she's sugar-hopped and manners-deprived, it's not Moonee's fault. She is being raised by Halley (Bria Vinaite), a single mother who could easily pass as her older sister.

Halley is pierced, tattooed, stoned, and encourages her child's untethered ways-- for who is she but a grown-up child herself? Moonee is always brimming with life and charisma, which makes her interactions with Bobby heartwarming ones. This beautiful guardian-from-afar relationship is brought to life by Dafoe, whose often manic-obsessed performance is dialed all the way down, and he shines in such a humanist light that it should be remembered come awards season. Dafoe also navigates working with the non-actors beautifully; lending the soft and patient heart that sees him stand as paternal to young Moonee when things go south for her mom.
Baker, whose previous film Tangerine so beautifully captured and celebrated the fringe society that lives outside the middle class, does so again here on an even grander scale. The Florida Project more artfully compels audiences to recognize what Baker is showing as the most glaring hardship of all: the tragic conflict of expectation versus reality in America. These motels, so seedy under the weight of once-wonderful facades, live on the outskirts of Disney World itself--road signs, disheartened tourists and knock-off merchandise further illustrate how they all live in this B-dream.
These snapshots of scenes, stitched together to show the life of these characters day-in and day-out, culminate and then crash in the film's tear-jerking final sequence, reminding us that the dream ends--and in the eyes of a child, that is heartbreaking. The Florida Project, a beautifully photographed film with such natural performances, is a gentle reminder that while wonderland might be a myth, it's the wonder of childhood that makes living magical.
115 minutes. The Florida Project is rated R for language throughout, disturbing behavior, sexual references and some drug material. Now playing at The Landmark and ArcLight Hollywood. •
