The Grape Is Nourished by The Vine

By Ron Sokol

It was Sunday morning, and Pastor Greg was talking about worship.

“The grape does not grow separate from the vine and, in fact, is nourished by it. That is such a vital connection. So, too, our relationship to God. Our hearts in our bodies point up. We alone can extend our arms and hands above to express our gratitude and faith to God almighty.”

The Centinela Bible Church in Hawthorne is a comfortable setting. At service, there is live music and warm fellowship. There also is a play area in the back for kids.

Pastor Greg has been with the Church since around 2014 and has been at the helm since 2016. He is President as well of the Hawthorne-Lawndale Ministers Association. Greg and his wife Hannah are dedicated not only to the Church, but to the community.

As I have gotten to know this gentleman, it is clear that he and Hannah are genuinely dedicated to the world at large. Even so, I sense that Pastor Greg is working through the broader applications that faith is calling upon him and his wife. He has found great reason to trust and have real confidence in the goodness of God.

A little background: Greg Guich was adopted as a very young child and has never met his birth parents. He was brought into a good family with devoutly Catholic parents. Greg grew up with brothers and sisters, some from mom and dad, some adopted. For reasons he cannot quite explain, by 18, he had wandered off from faith and any interest in God. Sadly, he was not traveling in a positive direction.

“Being adopted has its own set of challenges, of course – mainly having to do with belonging and connection.” Pastor Greg then laughingly suggested he was likely the result of a quick ‘wink and a drink’...

“As a teenager, I got into some pretty dark stuff. Left home, did not communicate with family or friends, hitchhiked across the country. One day I came home out of the blue. I remember my mom looked at me for a long moment and, with a kind eye, calmly asked, ‘Don’t you think it’s time for you to talk to the Lord?’ Her face showed concern and genuine weariness. She’d had a renewal of her own faith some years earlier and had never stopped praying for me.”

His adoptive mother was encouraging him to make a choice. “At that point, I smirked – but still went out back into the small park behind the house and sat under a tree. I sat there for a long time. Eventually, I looked up into the sky, and for the first time, I really prayed. I asked God: ‘If you are there, if you are, if you care about me and what happens to me, then help me.’ I knew that if I did not respond, at

Three Films We Saw At This Year's Sundance Film Festival

By Ryan Rojas, cinemacy.com

Three years after its last in-person event in January 2020 (right before the COVID pandemic), the Sundance Film Festival returned to Park City, Utah to celebrate and market new indie films. Industry and talent once again flew in from all over the world to the small, snowy mountain city for world premieres, screenings, and interview panels for film fans and audiences. I was very happy that Sundance continued to offer its online insecurities pursue a rigorous genre of music that demands confidence in self-expression, is a captivating watch. I sought out this film, as mariachi music holds a personal place in my heart (my Dad has listened to it my whole life). Going Varsity in Mariachi is a great film for the whole family, and highlights the pursuit of a dream along with a connection to culture.

streaming for attendees again this year – a model they did exclusively for the past two years – so that I could stream films from my home in Los Angeles. While most of the films are still awaiting distribution, here are three titles that should be on your radar.

Fair Play

Fair Play was one of the buzzy titles that played at the festival. Set in the world of high-stakes investment banking, the film follows a newly engaged young couple whose relationship is put to the test when Emily (Phoebe Dynevor) is promoted to a top position over Luke (Alden Ehrenreich). As Emily climbs the ranks – leaving Luke further behind in the position he believed he deserved – their relationship is strained to the point of danger for each of them. A corporate romantic thriller in the style of Basic Instinct, writer-director Chloe Domont's directorial debut is a suspenseful and gripping watch and will be released by Netflix (who bought the film for a reported $20 million).

Going Varsity in Mariachi

This documentary showcases the world of high school mariachi, and the top schools in South Texas that reign supreme. The film follows Edinburg North High School, whose team of mostly young, inexperienced musicians set out to compete for the state championship. Seeing high school students dealing with

The film tells the story of Donya (Anaita Wali Zada), a young Afghani immigrant who lives a simple, quiet life in Fremont, California. It's a slice-of-life film in which we see her live ordinary moments such as working in a Fortune Cookie factory, being with friends, and beginning to date, all while slowly coming to terms with the life she left behind in war-torn Afghanistan. Shot in beautiful black and white, the film shows how certain mundane moments can feel beautiful and new. Directed by Babak Jalali and starring Anaita Wali Zada (in her first film acting role), Fremont was definitely my festival favorite. •

Good Night, Sleep Tight with Dementia (Part 1)

Tossing and turning, getting up every other hour, not being able to fall asleep, not being able to stay asleep... These are struggles many of us face during the night, but for people with dementia, these struggles come with extra baggage. The pain, confusion, frustration, and loneliness involved in Alzheimer's and dementia make bedtime a complex endeavor. However, there are actions we can take during the day to make nighttime easier.

Staying Active

We all know that wonderful, feels-like-eternity, restful sleep after a long day full of activities. Help your loved one set up their day for that same kind of sleep. Stimulating activities like outdoor walks, meeting up with friends and family members, doing puzzles, and artmaking can help your loved one have a full, joyful day that leads perfectly into well-earned sleep. Exposure to natural sunlight, like taking a short walk or doing some brain-stimulating activities on a porch or balcony, can work wonders for regulating the body's internal clock, getting necessary vitamin D, and uplifting the mood.

Napping

One of the most common tips to help people sleep at night is to avoid taking mid-day naps, however if napping is a part of the person's routine, it can be incredibly beneficial. The thing to keep in mind is that, in order to be most effective, naps should be taken at the same time each day, in the same place, for the same short amount of time. This consistency allows them to sleep in stretches of time that work for them, keep them feeling rested and energized, and incorporate their needs into their sleep routine. Of course, every person is different, and some may benefit from napping where others may not. The most important thing when it comes to building a routine is that it be both beneficial and sustainable.

Medication

As our loved ones get older or when medical issues such as dementia emerge, medications can become a regular subject of thought and conversation. In addition to finding the right medication at the right dosage for the right symptoms, it's also important to navigate the side effects that come with certain medications. Many prescriptions for dementia include trouble sleeping as a side effect, but that does not mean it has to be avoided. Side effects can often be managed by speaking with your loved one's doctor or pharmacist about adjusting the time of day or how medications are taken.

The process of navigating different medications can be confusing, and often counter-intuitive. For example, it might seem like a good idea to give your loved one a sleeping pill to combat their nighttime restlessness, but when dementia is involved, many hypnotics and sedatives can exacerbate the confusion they are already facing and make things worse. This is one of the reasons it is so vital to always consult a doctor before making any changes to your loved one's medications and routines.

Hydrate

Drinking plenty of water is something that any doctor will tell you is important for everyone, and that many of us do not do enough of, but that is even more true for people suffering from dementia. Dehydration can exacerbate confusion, weakness, and pain, in addition to leaving people more susceptible to illnesses like urinary tract infections. The best way to keep a loved one with dementia hydrated is to encourage them to drink fluids often but in small amounts. If your loved one tends to wake up in the middle of the night, it could be helpful for them to drink most of their water in the morning and early afternoon.

Be Kind To Yourself

Stress is one of the biggest enemies of a good night's rest, and dementia itself is an incredibly stressful undertaking. Once you have done all you can during the day to set your loved one up for a good night's rest, the best thing you can do is take a deep breath, let the stress go, and acknowledge that you and your loved one have both done your best. That relaxed, positive attitude is contagious and your loved one will feel and take on your sense of peace as they settle into a calm, restful sleep. •

Ways to Save on Your Auto and Home

(BPT) - Home and auto owners are aware of the financial responsibilities associated with each, but those looking to save money understand it goes beyond only reducing mortgage or auto payments. Regular preventative maintenance will keep your property in good condition while helping you save money in the long run.

"People often think about maintenance when something needs to be repaired, but the truth is that taking care of your property before it breaks might save you even more money," said Kevin Quinn, vice president of claims at Mercury Insurance. "Policyholders who take care of necessary tasks in order to maintain their personal property may help prevent major problems from happening later on."

There are routine measures you can take now that might help keep certain costs down when it comes to owning a home or vehicle.

Auto

One of the easiest ways to save money on auto expenses is to keep driving your vehicle for as long as possible. Most cars are built to last and the average age of a vehicle on the road today is at an all-time high of 12.3 years old. Keeping up with recommended maintenance such as regular tune-ups and repairs can save you from needing costly ones in the future, ultimately saving you more money.

Proper tire inflation. According to the Department of Energy, drivers can improve their fuel mileage up to 3% just by keeping their tires inflated to the proper pressure. The right amount of air contributes to increased gas mileage, a safer ride, and reduced tire wear. The appropriate tire pressure for your vehicle is usually found on a sticker inside the driver side door or within your car owner's manual.

Check your wheel alignment. Do not ignore the signs of a potential wheel alignment problem such as a vibrating steering wheel or a slight pull to one side when driving. Bad alignment can cost you by lowering your gas mileage or putting wear and tear on your tires which may necessitate replacing them sooner than normal.

Keep a maintenance log. Maintaining records of your vehicle's service history can protect its value. If you decide to sell or trade in your car, you can demonstrate its reliability and dependability with documentation. A well-maintained vehicle with proof of service may be worth even more money.

Home

Check your home's insulation. Opening up that first energy bill is often a surprise for that point, then the life that I had been living would soon catch up with me, and I would not last very long."

Pastor Greg pauses, and takes a little breather, after which he smiles: "I did not have a monumental moment. I did not get hit by lightning, and I had no ground-shaking revelation, but I knew that I was different. God heard my prayer and, with infinite kindness, reached out to me. For the first time, I knew that in spite of everything I had done wrong, God loved me."

It is several decades later. Pastor Greg is well, with much work still to do. There was, however, no sudden involvement in ministry. He worked a period of time in the family electrical business and spent time in the military. He will obtain a Bachelor of Arts college degree from Hope International University and a Master's from Channel Islands Bible College. Wife, Hannah, is an integral part of his life, happiness, and ministry. They met at a Starbucks, and 15 years later always visit a store on that date to have a little something to celebrate their first "Hi, who are you?"

Pastor Greg is part of IFCA International, which describes itself as "a movement of churches, pastors, missionaries, lay leaders, and organizations committed to advancing" Christianity. This may be why he has ventured out, under a missionary calling to help "church plant" in a small town in the Philippines. He and Hannah have begun a secondary ministry for struggling pastors outside the US. This started last year with workshops in Soddo, Ethiopia, and Tamilnadu, India. He brought information and instruction, which he describes as "a simple hack for finding a fresh message from God." Greg and Hannah have set up workshops for hundreds of local pastors in these countries and are currently in contact with some of the larger national indigenous church denominations to further the effort.

Notably, Pastor Greg found that the ordinary Ministry tools found just about everywhere in the West are either unknown or just not available in other countries. "Here in the US, pastors have substantial Biblical resources, including Bible Dictionaries, Concordances, Theme Books, Surveys, Histories, and Biography. But, very little is translated outside of the English language." A non-profit is being set up to further the effort, and, as of this article, visits are planned next month to Guatemala and Belize.

Because the needs are so great, Pastor Greg and his team are actively laying the groundwork necessary to continue the international outreach to other pastors. They see it as "an incredible privilege" to labor for the honor of God, who reached down and brought faith to Greg all those years ago under that silent tree.

Well, ok... you do have some inspiring content above. That said, hold just a second: I am trying here to tell you about Greg Guich. As such, I would be remiss if I did not include that he and Hannah have recently taken Salsa lessons. I do not want to give the misimpression Pastor Greg (who motors around the South Bay on a motorcycle) is without a good level of fun and diversion.

After all, Pastor Greg told me he is "the product of a wink and a drink." So be it, but what I see is a person who has grown from an aimless wanderer, on a path to nowhere, to someone unique, lifted up to a path focused on helping others, to make the world brighter, and to strengthen the human spirit.

Can I get an Amen? •

Test Your Food Sensitivities and Improve Your Health

(BPT) - Research has found that 70% of illnesses can be prevented by changes in lifestyle and diet. While many Americans may believe that food affects their health, most don't know what to believe when it comes to eating healthfully. Many people don't think much about the connection between food and health, until they experience symptoms directly related to eating, such as digestive issues.

Fad diets and the "one size fits all" approach may promise quick and lasting results but do not improve body composition or promote better health. Although good nutrition is crucial for optimal health, well-being, and disease prevention, it is an area that is misunderstood and a source of confusion for many people.

With so many competing eating plans and diet products on the market, finding the right information is difficult. The truth is, many health conditions, including being overweight, migraines, rashes, arthritis, fatigue, bloating, gastrointestinal disorders, irritable bowel syndrome (IBS), Crohn's disease and even certain respiratory conditions and skin disorders are affected by an overlooked or misunderstood food sensitivity. Non-celiac gluten sensitivity is one such example.

Unlike a food allergy, which generates an immediate response and can more easily be identified and isolated from your diet (such as a peanut allergy), food sensitivities will produce a delayed reaction, and can be from a multitude of substances. As a result, they are much harder for people to detect. It's vital to know about food sensitivities that may negatively affect your health.

Science-based testing, individualized nutrition guidance, and customized meal planning are key to the most effective approach.

Researchers at Yale School of Medicine conducted a landmark study showing that patients with IBS who follow individualized diets based on the Alcat food sensitivity blood test experienced significant symptom improvement. One of the study's authors, Dr. Wajahat Mehal, a professor of digestive diseases at the Yale School of Medicine, said he found the results convincing enough that he now offers the test to his patients with IBS.

State-of-the-art biological testing such as the Alcat test provides a cellular-based lab analysis to evaluate over 450 food substances and additives to determine which foods and ingredients may be the offenders. The test provides a detailed analysis that ranks the degree of reactivity in three categories - mild, moderate and severe - to help a nutritionist customize a meal plan to best support your health.

The easy-to-understand test report includes:

- Foods-to-avoid list

• Comprehensive "Understanding your Alcat Test Results" ebooklet

• Personalized rotation plan

• Optional 30-minute educational session with a nutrition expert

• Opportunity for more extensive nutrition therapy with the PreviMedica team

To date, the Alcat Test has helped over half a million people change their health. "For the past several years I've been experiencing a decline in my health - joint and muscle pain, fatigue, headaches, digestive problems, skin rashes, acne, rising blood sugar and blood pressure and steadily increasing weight regardless of how hard I dieted," said Laura from Kansas. "I took the Alcat Test on the recommendation of my doctor. I'm six weeks into the elimination and rotation and the results have been nothing short of a miracle. I've lost 13 pounds, my skin is clearing up, sleep well, digest well, feel strong and have a lot of energy. I realize now that I've had food sensitivities all my adult life - I'm only sorry it's taken this many years to get to the cause of my health problems."

new homeowners. Beyond trying to install energy-efficient appliances or lighting, new homeowners should check the adequacy of their insulation. Single-family homes, especially those built before 1960, may need an insulation refresh.

“Insulation is what helps keep your home warm in winter and cool in summer,” said Bonnie Lee, Vice President of Property Claims at Mercury Insurance. “Well-insulated homes provide year-round comfort while reducing heating and air-conditioning bills.”

Upgrade to smart home technology. A home equipped with a smart home system that monitors fire, water, and theft may qualify for a homeowners insurance discount.

“Many insurance companies offer discounts to homeowners who install smart-home devices because the technology is able to catch common problems early and can help prevent expensive claims,” said Lee. “By using devices that monitor your home’s safety and help with preventative maintenance, you may be able to save money on your insurance premiums over time.”

Increase your deductible. A deductible is the amount you would have to pay out-of-pocket for damages before your insurance would kick in if you make a claim. If your budget allows you to pay a higher deductible in the event of loss or damage, your insurance premium will most likely go down.

Bundle your insurance. Bundling your auto coverage with homeowners insurance will qualify you for a multi-policy discount and save you money on your premium. It will also help streamline the process should you need to make a claim on both your home and auto at the same time. Contact your insurance agent to review bundling policies and rates.

the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (844) 477-7869 or visit this Internet Web site WWW.STOXPOSTING.COM, using the file number assigned to this case 104139-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: Effective January 1, 2021, you may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (855) 313-3319, or visit this internet website www.clearreconcorp.com, using the file number assigned to this case 104139-CA to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. Avocado Ranch Pork Chops

Provided by Campbells Soup Corp.

It only takes 5 minutes to prep this recipe for Avocado Ranch Pork Chops and Rice, which makes it perfect for a busy weeknight. We show you how to cook the rice and the pork chops at the same time, so that you can have a home-cooked dinner on the table in 30 minutes! Two pantry favorites, condensed cream soup and ranch dressing mix, blend with chili powder and Southwest seasoned vegetables for a Tex-Mex spin on the usual pork chops and rice. Serve with fresh avocado and cilantro on top to make it look as good as it tastes!

Ingredients

- 3 cups water
- 2 cups frozen seasoned Southwest vegetable blend (corn, peppers, onions)
- 1 envelope (1 ounce) ranch dressing mix (amount divided in recipe steps below)
- 1 1/2 cups uncooked long grain white rice
- 6 boneless pork chop, 3/4-inch thick (about 2 pounds)
- 1 teaspoon chili powder
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 can (10 1/2 ounces) Campbell's® Condensed Cream of Mushroom Soup or 98% Fat Free Cream of Mushroom Soup
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh cilantro
- 1 avocado, pitted, peeled and diced (about 1 cup)

Directions

- Step 1: Heat the water, frozen vegetables and 1/2 package dressing mix in a 3-quart saucepan over medium-high heat to a boil. Stir in the rice. Reduce the heat to low. Cover and cook for 20 minutes or until the rice is tender.
- Step 2: While the rice is cooking, season the pork with salt and pepper and sprinkle with the chili powder. Heat the oil in a 12-inch skillet over medium-high heat. Add the pork and cook for 6 minutes (make sure the skillet and oil are hot before adding the pork to prevent sticking) or until browned on both sides. Stir in the soup, milk and remaining 1/2 package dressing mix and heat to a boil. Reduce the heat to low. Cover and cook for 5 minutes or until the pork is done.
- Step 3: Stir the cilantro into the hot cooked rice. Top the pork with the avocado and additional chopped cilantro, if desired. Serve the pork and sauce with the rice.
