Restaurateur Krieger Tries to Keep His Bars Afloat in the Hospitality Game

By Duane Plank

Kristian Krieger, the co-owner of El Segundo Main St. establishments the Tavern on Main and Brewport Tap House, had spent a few hours prior to our phone interview completing his application for a financial grant from the County of Los Angeles, hoping to receive government funding to augment his efforts to stay in business through the "Keep LA Dining" program.

The recent shutdown of bars and restaurants in L.A. County, again, has not been all that appreciated by business owners, who are being driven out of business after some of them spent precious dollars to adhere to the new outside dining protocols that were just rescinded. Or by the restaurant and bar employees who have been jettisoned, again, and await the receipt of their unemployment money.

Wandering around town on my daily stroll, I took note of a whiteboard post on a now-shuttered Richmond St. bar with a spacious "Patio" in the back, which may have summed up the feelings of many in the California hospitality industry. Scribbled in large letters on the board: "Closed." Underneath the closed notation, in much smaller letters, were management's Holiday greetings to a couple of California politicians. "(Expletive) you, Newsom/Garcetti." You can use your imagination to discern what the "expletive" was.

While hoping to receive the L.A. County dining grant, which is capped at $30,000, Krieger said that the application process, and the hoops to jump through, were trying. He said that the initial window to apply for the grant was at midnight, "why start it at midnight?" a timing he said was "mean and stupid." After initially trying to apply for the grant, four hours later, before the sun came up, he was stymied, with all his entered information wiped-out. The powers-that-be had underestimated the amount of COVID-weary bar and restaurant owners who would apply for the cash, and the website crashed.

A Philadelphia-area native, Krieger, who has co-owned the Tavern since 2002, and Brewport since April of 2017, relocated to Hacienda Heights at the age of five when his mother and stepfather moved to California. After completing high school, Krieger said that his mother and stepfather planned to return to Pennsylvania, an East Coast journey he said was of no interest to him.

"They pretty much ditched me," he said. "So, I said, 'bye', I am good here." He ended up attending college at UCLA, where he spent his five years in Westwood ensconced in the cozy confines of fraternity row, living the life of a Greek God.

It was while attending UCLA that Krieger became intrigued with the possibilities of owning a bar/restaurant. During his collegiate years, he promoted a one-day-a-week college night at a Westside bar and distributed a tabloid publication to colleges from Long Beach to the Valley that noted the myriad opportunities for college students to engage in the vagaries of alcohol-fueled collegiate after-hours shenanigans.

Krieger then toiled for a few restaurant chains that ended-up hightailing it out of California. "I was the merchant of death," for businesses, Krieger said, noting his employment with chains that had vanished.

During his tenure at Hennessy's, Krieger managed all three of the South Bay stores, which led to the opening of the Tavern on Main on April Fool's Day, 2002. Krieger said he liked the idea of debuting his new venture on April 1 and that opening his own place had "kind of been a goal for a while."

As restaurants and bars struggle to stay open during the pandemic (Hennessy's has currently fully closed their three South Bay stores at this point), Krieger said that it is somewhat a roll-of-the-dice when deciding to go full shutdown or try to subsist on takeout and delivery until the hospitality industry returns to a semblance of normalcy.

He noted that the shutdowns' timing has been more impactful at Brewport, where a spacious store remodel was completed a year ago, and the necessities for the outdoor dining option had been added in the lot behind the store. "The Tavern is doing better than Brewport," he said.

Through all the turmoil, Krieger gives high praise to the City of El Segundo's leaders, who have done whatever possible to help the bar/restaurant owners and employees.

"The City of El Segundo has been great from the get-go," he said, once the pandemic started affecting bars and restaurants in March. Krieger has worked with the Chamber of Commerce and local restaurateurs to develop the Gundo-to-Go program and to secure the outside dining barricades that were set up on local thoroughfares.

Pat Cox, who co-manages and partners with Krieger in running Brewport, has known Krieger for about 15 years. Cox said he felt confident in entering into a business relationship with Krieger "because he seemed to have a (positive) demeanor with customers," also noting Krieger's interaction with the community, and possessing a "good pulse of what is going on in town." Cox said Krieger is able to stay "grounded," focusing on the needs of both his customers and employees. "He is generous with his time and his passion for doing the right thing," Cox said.

The current general manager of the Tavern on Main is Xavier Flamenco, who has

The Vast of Night is a Low-Budget, Sci-Fi Sensation

By Kailee Andrews for cinemacy.com

The UFO genre has always had a divided soul, split evenly between bleak body horror and wholesome tributes to connection. With his invigorating period piece, The Vast of Night, first-time feature director Andrew Patterson parachutes into this divide and sets up camp by offering a story that invokes both the light and dark potential of the genre. The film's brilliant title sets the mood just right. Depending on the reading and intonation, The Vast of Night, now streaming on Amazon Prime, could sound hopeful, full of starlight and promise, or intimidating, tinged with unknowable threat.

Set in 1950s New Mexico, this Twilight Zone inflected story recounts the events of one dizzying evening, in which a young switchboard operator, Fay (Sierra McCormick), ambitious long takes that establish the small town and roving characters with verve. The film's most complex take runs from Fay's office to the high school where the town is gathered to watch a big game (if they could only fix the mysterious electric issues), and beyond.

As you may have surmised from the film's stylized poster of a radio tower, radio is a major influence on this narrative. And it's radio that creates the film's treasured pauses, where 10-minute monologues breathe in near absolute stillness. Several times, the screen goes black to allow complete engagement with sound and imagination. It's a confident and assured maneuver. It's also aggressively out of line with most trends in genre filmmaking (today, most action and sci-fi blockbusters hold shots for an hears a radio signal of unknown origin. She ropes in local radio host, Everett (Jake Horowitz), to investigate and they soon find themselves fielding calls from impassioned strangers who claim to know something about the classified history of these signals, and the lights in the sky that accompany them.

The most winning element of The Vast of Night is the way it infuses you with wonder. It captures that breathless, fantastic emotion so well, from the way it shocks us into stilled awe to the way it animates our curiosity. Much credit for this infectious energy also goes to the camerawork. The first act is stacked with average of 3 seconds, constantly refreshing the visual field).

The Vast of Night is a film of complex moods and messages. It's enamored with the restorative joy of Fay's hope for the future, but also full of reminders that the connected world she longs for isn't guaranteed to be just. That connection, whether made through radio waves or small-town sports, is just as capable of fostering division as progress. But, as the film insistently repeats through its sound design and style, no matter what era, face to face and voice to voice storytelling will always offer some of our best hopes for sifting out the truth. •

Your Neighborhood Therapist

Dear Neighborhood Therapist,

I am now at the "sandwich" stage of my life, caring both for aging parents and young children. I don't mind it, but at the end of the day I'm exhausted. It's like having a second and third job, not to mention the additional burdens of doing it with coronavirus raging. I don't regret it for a second, but sometimes I just want to be "seen." Does anybody understand how hard it is? Does anybody appreciate it? — Struggling to Keep Up, Manhattan Beach

Dear Struggling to Keep Up,

It's not that nobody appreciates it, or understands how hard it is. It's just that sadly, few people will admit this in public. It is one of the terrible secrets of our culture that we too often diminish the value and importance of taking care of others. Indeed, we "feminize" the art of caregiving, both personally and professionally, beginning by paying professional caregivers far too little money given the demands and importance of their job. Men are frowned upon when they take their full paternity leave - if they have it available - or leave work to take their children to doctor's appointments.

May I propose we think of caregiving in a completely different way?

What if instead of a burden, we think of caregiving as "productive" time, as essential as any human activity? What if we consider caring for others just as important as caring for ourselves? Is there any reason not to think of it this way?

Some people (by which I mean, "men," mostly) tend to think that the way to build relationships is to create major memories and moments. Trips, concerts, parties, extravagant gestures. These extraordinary events may be more memorable - because they are extraordinary - but they are not more meaningful. Sometimes the smaller interactions are the most meaningful, even if they take time to register: putting the coffee in a more reachable place; taking the time to tell a child a story; or walking slowly down the stairs with someone to make sure they don't fall; holding a sick friend's hand; driving someone to the doctor's office; helping them carry their heavy groceries inside. All of this is not only worth it. It's essential.

Taking care of someone towards the end of their life is just as important as taking care of someone at the beginning. It's frustrating that in caring for an aging parent, we may never get to see the fruits of our labors. But that's not the point: how about taking a moment to reflect that we are the fruits of their labors.

We don't always have to be producing something, or learning something, or maximizing efficiency, or totally caught up on the news. There aren't many blockbuster movies or popular songs about caring for loved ones, and so this most essential and beautiful of human activities continues to live beneath the surface of our dominant culture. Hey, Hollywood producers out there: could you do something about that, please? I promise, there is a big, interested audience.

CHRISTMAS CHARACTERS (PART 2)

This year the Grinch has been replaced by the Corona who stole Christmas. So much of the fun stuff that we used to do to celebrate Christmas back in the pre-V day has been stolen away by "The Virus that stole Christmas". We all have felt like a Grinch sometime in our lives. We just don't feel like celebrating when irritating relatives come over to spend "family time" together with us. We really don't like the pressure of finding the perfect gift for our ol' ladies when they have everything they could ever want already. We are sick and tired of turning on our car radios and hearing Bing sing "It's beginning to look like Christmas" on every one of our preset stations. Americans make one holiday into a two month shopping spree with all of us supposedly in the "giving spirit" mode. Santa and the Grinch really don't have much to do with the birth of a Savior, who has come to take away all of that Xmas anxiety. Last week we talked about some of the muddy, low down characters like donkeys and herdsmen. The young lady named Mary, who was chosen by God to give birth to Jesus, was as ordinary as any teenage girl. How would you feel if some angel appeared to tell you that you were to be pregnant before you "knew" a man? How would you feel knowing that the baby inside of you was going to be the Savior of the world? Mary was a sinner just like me and you. She was born into this sinful world. Jesus was without sin. He was both 100% man and 100% God. Mary being impregnated by the Holy Spirit. How might you ask could this be? The incarnation of our Lord is a life saving miracle for us all. God became man so that we could live eternally. Wow! This is pretty heavy, deep stuff. I like to keep things simple. God sent his only Son to live, die and arise again for us. That is the greatest gift we could ever receive. That is what Christmas is, the birth of a Savior. Don't be anxious about all of this secular Christmas, virus, politically correct crap that is going on all around us. Rejoice, relax, be happy, have a cold one, celebrate, enjoy the happy times social distancing, and remember that Jesus came because God loves us much more than we can imagine. We can have peace during all of this mess. Peace out my friends and loyal readers. God has our back. Now, if I can only find an appropriate gift to give to my lovely wife, things would be good.

known Krieger for more than two decades and had worked with Krieger back in the Hennessey's days. Flamenco, who has drawn a paycheck from the Tavern for more than seven years, said he enjoys his work. "We get along very well," he said. "I think that since we both worked for the same company for a long time, we both adopted some of the basic business policies that (Hennessey's) followed," and that allows Flamenco to have a general idea on how Krieger will react to business challenges.

"Kristian is one of the nicest guys I know," Flamenco said. "He is one of those people who goes out of his way to try to keep people happy.

Krieger is sanguine in his COVID-19 assessment. "It is tough, we have been beat-up bad, but I also realize that everybody must do their part, but the only way that we are going to get past this is to get it under control and make it to the other end." He thinks that most of the elected and non-elected officials, statewide are "trying, doing their best... (but I) think they re-opened too fast," which led to COVID spikes. "I am out every single day in the public...I am concerned, but not petrified because that is what I have to do," while noting that the recent shutdown could lead to the permanent closure of many area establishments.

Krieger said that the Tavern, which once employed about 40 workers, now has about a half dozen. And Brewport is also working with a skeleton crew.

When not contemplating new menus and business plans, Krieger, who lives on the westside of El Segundo, said that he likes to hit the golf links once-a-month for a little rest and recreation. But his day planner is mainly filled with work-related entries. He said that he is "working more and harder than before."

trying to plan for the next day, as well as for what the hospitality scenery will look like in three months.

He said that he is hopeful that once the vaccines become readily available, the city will again approve outside dining, at least through summer.

nearly two decades, Krieger remembers when "Mayberry" pretty much shut down after dark. But times have changed, and Krieger said that 180-degree turn started to occur when other bars/restaurants bars started to take hold on Main Street, noting Rock & Brews, which is located a stone's throw from the Tavern. Suddenly, in-and-out of towners who had gravitated to the blossoming hedonistic bar scene in Hermosa Beach were either staying in town or making El Segundo a destination spot for their revelry.

Krieger said he does not begrudge other establishment's successes, saying that "as long the Tavern's sales were going in the right direction, they could be as successful as they want."

As the interview wound down, Krieger wanted to add one thought. If you are looking to help bars and restaurants in these cataclysmic times, a great way to do that is to purchase Holiday gift cards, he opined. Those purchases give establishments a much-needed cash flow as we endure a new kind of Holiday season.

"Gift cards, gift cards, gift cards," he repeated. "It is a great stocking stuffer. That will help the restaurants right now, and then when things get straightened out, people can start using their cards," calling it an across-the-board way to support struggling businesses.

So, if possible, open up your wallets to support local businesses. •

Lower Your Out-Of-Pocket Medication Costs In January

(BPT) - January is right around the corner. Whether or not you stay up to mark the new year, an expensive reality hits many Americans on Jan. 1: medical insurance deductibles reset to zero and out-of-pocket costs go up.

Along with co-pays and coinsurance, those out-of-pocket costs can put essential medications out of reach. Many people are forced to choose between paying bills, their medications, and putting food on the table. It's no wonder Gallup polls consistently find healthcare costs to be one of this country's greatest worries.

But there are ways to cut those high out-of-pocket costs. The Patient Access Network (PAN) Foundation, a national charity that provides financial assistance to help people pay for their prescription medications, offers these tips for reducing your out-of-pocket costs for the lifesaving medications you need.

Talk to your healthcare team. Be honest with your doctor and pharmacist about the challenge of affording your medications. It may be difficult for you to talk about your finances, but remember, your healthcare team is on your side. Let them know what you can afford and they may be able to tailor a treatment plan that fits within your budget.

Look into 'Extra Help.' Medicare beneficiaries may qualify for programs like, Extra Help, also known as the Low-Income Subsidy program. This program can significantly reduce your prescription costs.

Ask for generics. Many name-brand drugs now have generic equivalents, especially if the drugs you're taking have been on the market for a while. Generics are significantly cheaper than their name-brand versions. And don't worry. Generics are run through the same safety and efficacy tests by the FDA to ensure their quality and effectiveness.

Sign up for FundFinder. FundFinder is a free web-based app developed by the PAN Foundation that connects you with a charitable patient assistance foundation that could help pay the out-of-pocket costs for your prescription medications. Rather than having to monitor multiple foundations to see if they're offering funding, FundFinder checks for you and alerts you through email or text when the financial help that you need is available at PAN or another charitable foundation.

Shop around. You'd be surprised how much drug costs can vary from pharmacy to pharmacy. Make a few calls to make sure you're not paying more than you have to for the medications you need. And ask about discounts and coupons, like the NeedyMeds discount card, which could help you save up to 80% off prescription drug prices.

Check your state's assistance programs. Many states have assistance programs for residents who are having trouble paying for their medications. The first place to start is with your state's department of health. They can tell you about the programs that are available and whether you qualify. They also may have information about other programs in your area that are designed to help people afford their medication.

Looking ahead to the new year should be full of hope, not worries about affording prescription medications. You can learn more about patient assistance charities like PAN and the ways you can get help paying for your prescription medical treatments at panfoundation.org. •

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF INGLEWOOD, CALIFORNIA ESTABLISHING CAMPAIGN FINANCE CONTRIBUTION LIMITS BY ADDING SECTION 2-247.1 (CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTION LIMITS AND REGULATIONS) TO ARTICLE 8 (COUNCIL DISTRICTS COUNCIL MEETINGS CITY FACILITIES) OF CHAPTER 2 (ADMINISTRATION) OF THE INGLEWOOD MUNICIPAL CODE.

WHEREAS, the City of Inglewood (the "City") currently does not have campaign contribution limits or regulations; and

WHEREAS, Elections Code Section 10202 (automatically repealed on January 1, 2021) and Government Code Section 85702.5 (effective on January 1, 2021) further permits the City to establish its own campaign contribution limits that are different from what is established by Government Code Sections 85301(a) and 83124; and

WHEREAS, it is the purpose and intent of the City Council in enacting this Ordinance to preserve an orderly political forum in which individuals and groups may express themselves effectively; and

WHEREAS, based upon the forgoing, and pursuant to Government Code Section 85702.5(a), the City Council desires to establish a campaign contribution limit that is different from what is established by Government Code Sections 85301(a) and 83124 by adding Section 2-247.1 (Campaign Contribution Limits and Regulations) to Article 8 (Council District Council Meetings City Facilities) of Chapter 2 (Administration) of the Inglewood Municipal Code.

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF INGLEWOOD, CALIFORNIA, DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1.
A new Section 2-247.1 (Campaign Contribution Limits and Regulations) to Article 8 (Council District Council Meetings City Facilities) of Chapter

2 (Administration) of the Inglewood Municipal Code is hereby added to read as follows:

A. Purpose

The purpose of this Section is to encourage public confidence in the political process and to prevent corruption and the appearance of corruption by limiting the source and amount of contributions that may be made to candidates and committees controlled by candidates for elective offices.

B. Definitions.

Except as more specifically provided herein, the definitions set forth in the Political Reform Act of 1974 (Government Code sections 81000 et seq., as amended) shall govern interpretation of this Section and are hereby incorporated herein by this reference.

"City Election" shall mean any primary, general, or special election, including a recall election, held within the City of Inglewood for elective City offices. Each primary, general, or special election is a separate election for purposes of this Section.

"Elective Office" shall mean members of the Inglewood City Council, the Inglewood City Clerk, and/or the Inglewood City Treasurer.

"Person" shall have the same definition as "person" in California Government Code Section 82047, as it may be amended from time to time, and which currently provides as follows: "an individual, proprietorship, firm, partnership, joint venture, syndicate, business trust, company, corporation, limited liability company, association, committee, and any other organization or group of persons acting in concert."

C. Campaign Contribution Limits.

1. A Person shall not make to a candidate for Elective Office, or a committee controlled by that candidate, and a candidate for Elective Office, or a committee controlled by that candidate, shall not accept from a Person, a contribution totaling more than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) for a single election.

2. The City Council may adjust the contribution limit set forth in Subsection "C" of this Section in January of every odd-numbered year, commencing in 2023, to reflect any increase or decrease in the Consumer Price Index, All Urban Consumers. Those adjustments shall be rounded to the nearest one hundred dollars ($100).

D. Contribution Limits to Other Candidates.
A candidate for Elective Office or a committee controlled by that candidate shall not make any contribution to any other Elective Office candidate in excess of the limits set forth in Subsection "C."

E. Limits on Transfers of Contributions.

A candidate for Elective Office may transfer campaign funds from one controlled committee to a controlled committee for Elective Office of the same candidate. Contributions transferred shall be attributed to specific contributors using a "last in, first out" or "first in, first out" accounting method, and these attributed contributions when aggregated with all other contributions from the same contributor shall not exceed the limits set forth in Subsection "C."

F. Limitations on Campaign Loans.

1. The provisions of this Subsection "F" regarding loans apply to extensions of credit, but do not apply to loans made to a candidate for Elective Office by a commercial lending institution in the lender's regular course of business on terms available to members of the general public for which the candidate is personally liable.

2. Notwithstanding paragraph 1 of Subsection "F", a candidate for Elective Office shall not personally loan to the candidate's campaign, including the proceeds of a loan obtained by the candidate from a commercial lending institution, an amount, the outstanding balance of which exceeds one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000). A candidate for Elective Office shall not charge interest on any loan the candidate made to the candidate's campaign.

G. Contributions After Election.

H. Limits on Carry-Over of Contributions.

Notwithstanding Subsection "E," a candidate for Elective Office may carry over contributions raised in connection with one election for Elective Office to pay campaign expenditures incurred in connection with a subsequent election for the same Elective Office.

I. Contributions Before an Election.

A candidate for Elective Office may raise contributions for a general election before the primary election, and for a special general election before a special primary election, for the same Elective Office if the candidate sets aside these contributions and uses these contributions for the general election or special general election. If the candidate for Elective Office is defeated in the primary election or special general election, or otherwise withdraws from the general election or special general election, the general election or special general election funds shall be refunded to the contributors on a pro rata basis less any expenses associated with the raising and administration of general election or special general election contributions.

Candidates for Elective Office may establish separate campaign contribution accounts for the primary and general elections or special primary and special general elections.

SECTION 2.

Any provision of the City of Inglewood Municipal Code or ordinances thereto, inconsistent with the provisions of this Ordinance, to the extent of such inconsistencies and no further, are hereby repealed or modified to that extent necessary to effect the provisions of this Ordinance.

SECTION 3.

If any section, subsection, sentence, clause, or phrase of this Ordinance is for any reason held to be invalid or unconstitutional by a decision of any court of any competent jurisdiction, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this Ordinance. The City Council hereby declares that it would have passed this Ordinance, and each and every Section, subsection, sentence, clause, or phrase not declared invalid or unconstitutional without regard to whether any portion of the Ordinance would be subsequently declared invalid or unconstitutional.

SECTION 4.

The City Clerk shall certify to the introduction, approval, passage, and adoption of this Ordinance by the City Council and shall cause the same to be published in accordance with the City Charter, and thirty days from the final passage and adoption, this Ordinance shall be in full force and effect.

Ultimately Andy loves people and is comfortable meeting new people.

Andy's sister, Darla, is extremely affectionate and loves to snuggle with people, her sister, and most of all, both at once! She is outgoing and adventurous, while always seeking your cuddles and approval. Darla loves to lick your face, press noses, and lay all over you. She is quite active and loves to chase laser pointers, feathers, and balls. Darla is extremely comfortable with dogs, cats, and gentle children. She is closely bonded with her sister, Andy. If these two are not in eyesight, they become worried and will meow until reunited. Darla is overall quite quiet, but will be vocal when asking for food, warmth, and cuddles.

Chewy was rescued from a colony with his three sisters at around three months old. Of all his siblings, Chewy was the quickest to be socialized and took to getting love and cuddles from his foster daddy. He is a sweet and loving baby that enjoys being cradled and given attention. Chewy will make a wonderful addition to any home. He gets along well with his siblings and loves cuddling with the older cats in the home. This precious boy would likely do best in a home with another buddy if not adopted with one of his siblings.

If you are looking for a buddy who is bursting with playful energy, but chill enough to snuggle up with you while you lounge, Rupert is your man! Rupert is extremely open, friendly, and loves everybody. He snuggles up with you while you work or relax, employing himself as your professional lap warmer so you are always nice and toasty. This sweetheart is a cuddle-bug with kitten energy and pep! Rupert has the whole work-play balance thing figured out. Now he is looking for a family with whom he can share his finely honed cat expertise! Rupert needs to be adopted with another kitten or to a family that already has a young or active cat, he cannot be a single cat.

Sumac is a gentle, sweet young kitty who purrs to the touch and loves to get attention from her people. She likes to engage with her buddies for a romp through the play tunnel or a wrestling tumble across the floor. She is observant and curious, taking it all in from the top of her cat tree. As a gentle little friend who can be your hug buddy, Sumac could be the match you have been waiting for! Sumac is a medium energy teen who loves to play with her friends, but is only an occasional initiator, often preferring quality time with her buddies over play. Sumac would be best paired with one of her siblings, Basil, Valentino, or Oregano, rather than an unfamiliar adult cat.

Ringo and Starr are quite the lovable pair of bonded siblings. Starr loves cuddles and warms up to people quickly if they give her attention and rub her head. She will then follow you around to get more pets and cuddles. Ringo is a little more cautious about new people, but you can easily earn your way into his good graces through his tummy – he loves treats especially shredded chicken. These two are remarkably close and spend their days napping together, grooming one another, playing together and just loving each other. They are also very playful and will chase a laser around the living room or show off their jumping skills to catch a feather wand.

These cats and kittens are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. Temporarily, adoption events are suspended. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org or email us at mail@kittenrescue.org.

With our city and state shut down, we are faced with the delicate balance to protect our fellow humans from the spread of COVID-19, while continuing our mission of saving the most vulnerable victims of the homeless cat crisis. We know that these are hard times for everyone. If you can give a little, it will go a long way. They are still counting on us during these difficult times.

Your tax-deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 914 Westwood Blvd. #583, Los Angeles, CA 90024.

Saving one animal won't change the world, but the world will surely change for that animal. •

Tanya (now Eloise) is home!

We had our first adoption from our "Clear the Shelter" #GivingTuesday project. Beautiful four-year-old Siamese Eloise, fostered by @pamallison, is in her forever home with @monet_weir. We are so happy for them both! Tanya has been through a lot recently. First, becoming adjusted to shelter life, then being part of the "clear the shelter" caravan and finally settling into a foster home.

Nothing brings us more joy than to see our kitties get their wonderful forever home. Have a great life Eloise! •
