Honda Spreads Holiday Cheer

SoCal Helpful Honda Dealers have been sharing Random Acts of Helpfulness all over Southern California this season — such as buying pumpkins for families, delivering arts and crafts and costumes to children at local hospitals, bringing breakfast and lunch to fire stations, helping residents load groceries, delivering free treats to kids of all ages, and providing free parking and tickets to area sporting events. The Guys in Blue also surprised Honda drivers in Torrance by showing up at the pumps with free gas on Thanksgiving, and handed out free holiday trees at 17520 Prairie Avenue on December 4. Street Sweeping Enforcement Suspended Last Two Weeks of 2016

By Cristian Vasquez

On Tuesday night, the Torrance City Council agreed to support recommendation by the Police and Public Works departments to forgo parking enforcement for street sweeping during the holiday season, from December 18, 2016-January 1 2017. “We want to maintain weekly street sweeping operations, but during this time we will not issue citations,” Torrance Police Department Lieutenant Kyle Goffney said during his staff presentation. “We look forward to uphold this practice for future street sweeping schedules during the holiday season.”

During the August 16 regular meeting, Councilman Mike Griffiths brought forward the request to present an item allowing him and his colleagues to vote on repeating the two-week holiday reprieve for street sweeping violations. The request also asked that this exemption take place annually, during the last two weeks of the calendar year, making it a permanent feature in the parking enforcement operations schedule.

“I just want to thank the Police Department for implementing this,” Griffiths said. “I think that when people have their out-of-town family and visitors here, the worst thing we can do to them is ticket them accidentally for them not being aware of our street sweeping policies.”

The effort to protect unsuspecting visitors from street sweeping violations—as well as look out for local residents who are on Christmas break and forget about the schedules—dates back to last year when the Council approved a two-week suspension.

“In May 2014, the City of Torrance approved a new citywide alternate-day street sweeping program to improve street sweeping efforts and to comply with storm water regulations,” states the staff report signed by Torrance Chief of Police Mark Matsuda and Public Works Director Robert J. Beste. “All Torrance residential streets in the City of Torrance are swept once a week [Monday through Thursday], between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.”

At the moment, there are 13 days on the calendar when parking on street sweeping days is not enforced. Those include New Year’s Eve,

New Year’s Day, Martin Luther King, Jr. Day, Lincoln’s birthday, President’s Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Veterans Day, Thanksgiving, the day after Thanksgiving, Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. This schedule will be updated to include the end-of-year, two-week exemption. “We will continue to sweep our streets and the residents that are familiar with our programs will continue to do so [move] out of habit,” Griffiths said.

School Board Hosts Yearly Organization Meeting

By Cristian Vasquez

Members of the Torrance School Board conducted their annual reorganization of elected officers during Monday night’s meeting. For the upcoming year, Terry Ragins will serve as President, Michael Wermers as Vice President, and Martha Deutsch as Clerk. Appointed to serve as Secretary of the Board was Torrance Unified School District (TUSD) Superintendent Dr. George Mannon.

Education Code §35022 mandates that any district governed by five or more members must elect a president at its initial meeting, or at each annual meeting. Prior to the reorganization, Deutsch served as President, Ragins was Vice President, and Don Lee performed the duties of Clerk, while Mark Steffen and Wermers were Board members.

Furthermore, Education Code §35022 requires that a board’s reorganization meeting take place “within a 15-day period that commences with the date upon which a governing board member elected at that election takes office.” However, during years when no “such regular election for governing board members is conducted,” reorganization meetings must take place “during the same 15-day period on the calendar.” In both cases, the day and time of the annual meeting is to be set by the board during its regular meeting.

Torrance PD Community Pigeon Drop Advisory

A Pigeon Drop is a confidence trick in which a mark or “pigeon” is persuaded to give up a sum of money and/or jewelry to prove trustworthiness and secure rights to additional money or more valuable property like bars of gold. The scammers--suspects usually work in pairs-- make off with the victim’s money/valuables, leaving the marks with nothing.

These scams are perpetrated by adult males and females of all ages and races. Victims are male and female, all races, often elderly and initially approached by suspects in commercial parking lots during daytime hours.

The suspects present different scenarios to include:

1. Having inherited a large sum of money and needing assistance donating to a church or other non-profit/philanthropic cause since they are not American citizens. For their assistance, victims are offered roughly $100,000.
2. Needing assistance cashing a winning lottery ticket since suspect is not a U.S. citizen.
3. Finding a bag of money in a parking lot and offering to split it with the victim.

In these scenarios, one suspect first approaches the victim and later a second suspect inserts him or herself as a “stranger” willing to help. Suspects will often use the ruse of contacting a “lawyer” or “law firm” knowledgeable of their plight to aid in legitimizing themselves to the mark.

During the scam, the suspect appears to put his money with the victim’s money (in an envelope, briefcase or bag) with which the mark is then entrusted. The combined money is actually not put in the bag or envelope, but switched for a bag full of cut-up paper/newspaper. It’s not uncommon for the scam to play out over the course of several hours as the victim and suspect(s) drive (in the victim’s car) to the bank to withdraw money, to the victim’s residence to obtain cash/jewelry, and to the final location where the victim is abandoned by the suspects after having been asked to obtain medicine in a drug store, make a phone call or drive around the block.

In recent weeks, three victims fell prey to pigeon drops scams in Torrance. The victims were initially contacted by the suspects at the 21700 block of Western Ave, 190th and Anza and the 19800 block of Hawthorne.

North, South Ready to Reclaim Pioneer League

By Adam Serrao

The North High Saxons and the South High Spartans enter this basketball year having experienced two entirely different prior seasons. While the Saxons were making a run at the Pioneer League title, the Spartans were making a run to win a game. Any game. North’s success is something that the team will certainly try

In addition to the services of those two, the Saxons will enjoy key contributions from Yusei Shigeta, Stephen Nwaiwu and Shea Eddington for what should be a pretty high-scoring team. North has already taken to the court to begin the season in the Trevor Ariza Tip-Off Classic. Despite an opening round loss to Narbonne in the team’s first game of the year, Duperron to duplicate in a year that has now just gotten underway. For South, anything can happen in a season with a blank slate, but head coach Leo Klemm would certainly have to be looking forward to his team’s first win and any sign of taking a step forward from a year ago.

The Saxons’ successful campaign last year began after a discouraging start to the season. Head coach Gary Duperron and his club opened with three straight losses in the Westchester Tip-Off Classic and were left looking for answers. If there was any positive takeaway from the slow start, however, it was the fight that was inherent in the squad. North went on to rally in the next few contests and rattled off a five-game winning streak, while also victorious in eight out of nine. Once league play began, the Saxons were quite successful as well. A 7-3 overall record within their division was highlighted by a two-game sweep over South, an extremely close one-point overtime victory over West, and an 11-point victory over the eventual Pioneer League champion Torrance.

While the Saxons didn’t have enough to overcome Torrance in the standings, the team did manage to finish in second place with an overall record of 15-12 (7-3 in league). That record was good enough to get Duperron and his North High squad into the CIF Southern Section Division 3AA playoffs where they were set for a first round date with the San Marcos Royals. San Marcos came out of the gate ready to play, and by the end of the night had close to a 30-point lead on North. The Saxons’ playoff run and season would end in the first round with an 80-52 loss.

The Saxons are back and looking to make an impact early on in what is a season that is now in just its beginning stages. Despite losing two of its senior captains from a season ago in Shivan Ram and Isaiah Holmes, North has the potential to be a pretty stacked roster this year. Senior guard Gabe Nakano will be joined by junior power forward Saeed Galloway to head a list of returning players from last season.

remains optimistic about his club. “I think this was a positive effort for our first game,” the coach explained. “Our point guards did well and our second group showed sparks.” Look for more sparks from the Saxons all season long in what should be a long, but exciting season.

If any team is fearful of another long season, it’s the South High Spartans. South secured its first win of the season fairly early on last year, but those wins unfortunately came few and far between for Klemm and his young squad of players. The Spartans enjoyed victories over West Valley, Montebello, Monrovia and South Tahoe last season. Once league play began, there wasn’t much to be heard of from the Spartans. An overall record of 4-22 was good enough for last place in the Pioneer League standings, leaving South High with nowhere to go but up this season.

A disappointing season was made even harder by an unsuccessful league play showing. Not only did the Spartans miss out on last year’s playoffs, but they were swept by North, West, Torrance and every other Pioneer League team in the 10-game divisional season. All of the stats listed above are certainly ones that Klemm would not like to relive, and he hopes to improve upon it this season. He and the Spartans will look to do so by regaining the services of one of their best players from a year ago, Jordan Tang. Along with Tang, Carl Richardson and Justin Chai will be joining back up with the green and white this season.

The Spartans will lose a total of 11 seniors from their 15-man roster of a year ago. An opening day loss to Palos Verdes to start the season certainly doesn’t bode well for Klemm and the Spartans--but in what is a very long year, the team has a lot of time to improve upon its standing from 2015/16. Up next for South High is a date in the 56th Annual Valley Christian Tournament where the team will be looking to gain its first victory since last December. – Asixlion@earthlink.net

A Day That Will Live in Infamy

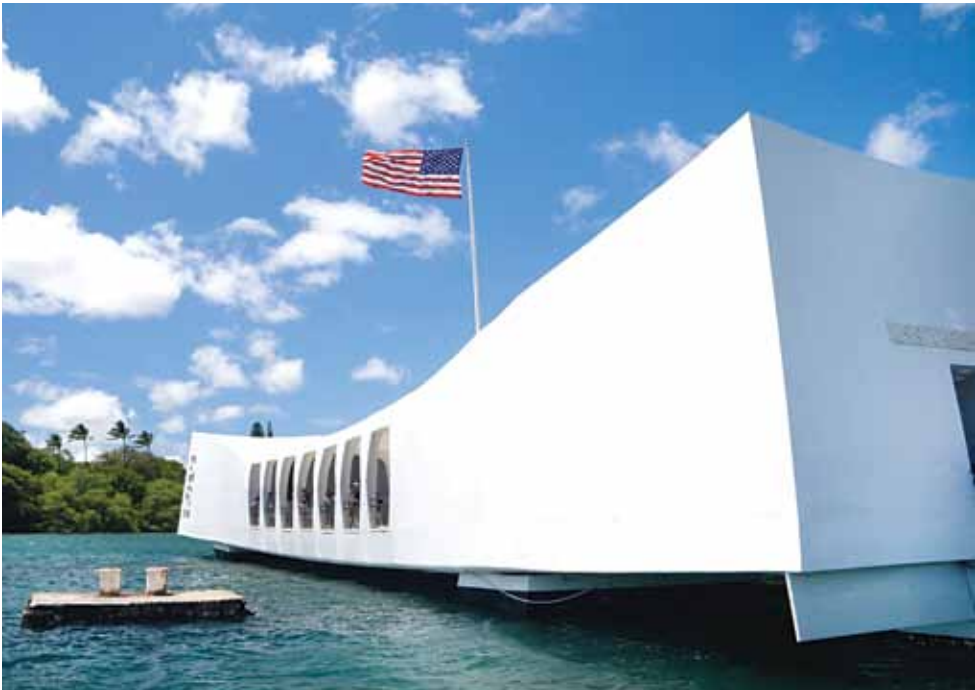

Story and Photos by TerriAnn Ferren

This December 7, 2016 at about 7:55 a.m. marked the 75th commemoration of the bombing of Pearl Harbor, on the island of Oahu, Hawaii, and the declaration of war by the Empire of Japan on the United States and the British Empire. On the following day, December 8, 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt delivered his “Pearl Harbor Speech” or his “Day of Infamy Speech” as it is known, to the Joint Session of Congress, beginning with the words, “A date which will live in infamy”. “Infamy: 1. Very bad reputation; notoriety; disgrace; dishonor. 2. The quality of being infamous; great wickedness...,” definition by the New World Dictionary.

Seven years ago, I visited the WWII Valor in the Pacific National Monument in Hawaii. I visited the USS Arizona Memorial. The Visitors Center gives an excellent overview of the site and its history, which includes a 23-minute informative film. The only way to visit the memorial is by taking a boat to the monument. The memorial was built in 1962, designed by Alfred Preis, and although built directly over the sunken ship, doesn’t touch it. The USS Arizona, “...was bombed on December 7, 1941, about 15 minutes into the attack on Pearl Harbor, killing 1,177 sailors and Marines on board... The memorial honors the memory of the crew of the USS Arizona, as well as other service members and civilians who died during the attack. A total of 2,335 sailors, soldiers and Marines died as a result of the attack, as well as 68 civilians,” states the National Park Service website. The USS Arizona marks the resting place of 1,102 of the 1,177 sailors and Marines who were killed.

After reading about the attack while at the Visitors Center and what was going on prior to the attack that very day--plus watching a most informative film--I stepped onto the boat for the short trip to the monument, which is right next to the USS Missouri battleship (Mighty Mo) where the Japanese surrendered on Tokyo Harbor on September 2, 1945. The ride to the memorial was short, most of the people on the boat didn’t speak out of respect, and the tone was definitely somber. Stepping from the launch onto the floating memorial moved me, and a feeling of sacredness surrounded me--for under this monument, in these waters right below me, were the remains of our sailors, soldiers and Marines, plus the memory of the 68 civilians who died as a result of the attack. The names on the wall of those who were killed are forever memorialized. I spent quite a bit of time reading the names on the wall, wondering about those young men and who they were. Looking down into the water, I remember seeing parts of the ship and oil still seeping up from the damaged hull. The oil floating on the water reflected a rainbow of color as the rays of the sun hit the water. My visit was very sad and moving.

What must it have been like for those who were living during that time, here on the mainland, hearing that the United States had been attacked? I asked my parents, Tom and Teddy Lancaster, and learned things I didn’t know before. My mom said, “I was at twelve o’clock mass at St. Patrick’s Church in Los Angeles and the priest got up onto the pulpit and he announced that Pearl Harbor had been bombed and we were at war with Japan. Then I went home and I was a little bit scared ‘cuz I was a little girl. I remember I was about nine or 10 and my aunt Connie and Uncle Jimmy came over to visit my mom and dad. I was sitting on the floor with my head leaning on my dad’s lap ‘cuz I was scared. My uncle was saying we could be bombed and we would never wake up.” She then told me, “That night, paper boys were selling newspapers from their wagons yelling out, ‘Examiner, Times--paper with the headlines that read, ‘It’s War.’ I remember that whole day. I was scared when I went to bed.” Then I asked my daddy and he told me, “My memory isn’t as good as Mom’s, but I recall being in the kitchen in our house and my uncle Millard was outside in the backyard doing something with the car and he came in and I can’t remember who told us or where the news came from, but it didn’t have that much effect on me. I didn’t understand what was going on and didn’t pay much attention to it until several days later. Maybe because of the way it was presented, I wasn’t into listening to the news at that time. I was just a kid trying to keep my bike running.” At that point, my mom added, “The reason I remember is because I was at church and for the priest to get up and announce something like that, it was out of the ordinary and that is why I remember the whole day.” Then Daddy added, “We didn’t sit home that Sunday, when we had been to church that morning, listening to the news. News didn’t travel the way it does today. It was different. Grandpa is the one who heard about it first.”

After speaking with my parents, I called my aunt Wilma for her memories of that day. She told me, “At the time, we were just kids and I was 12, 13 years old. It was a terrible thing because we had good [Japanese] people just down our street who had a store and all of a sudden, it was – they have to leave, they have to leave – and it was a sad time because there were so many Americans killed and even though we did not know a thing, you know kids don’t know anything but what they hear. I the first picture. That is how we saw what happened.” Then my aunt told me that within a short period of time, the draft was initiated and rationing of gasoline, shoes, meat, butter and sugar began. “I still have Don’s books and my [ration] books in my ‘hope chest,” she said. Rationing shoes? I was not aware that shoes were rationed, but I suppose that makes sense. She also remembers blackouts and air raid wardens (a person in charge of making sure all lights were out during an air raid).

Later, I asked Irene Barlough and her husband Ernie about their remembrance of December 7, 1941. Irene was 18 or 19 years old at the time and told me she woke up that Sunday morning to the terrible news on the radio. Irene told me, “People were out in the streets saying the news that Pearl Harbor had been bombed. I thought sad days were ahead of us and I was scared to death. It was very serious. My parents didn’t say very much, but they remembered WWI and they thought there would be another war. I had two brothers that would have been drafted – which is the first thing they thought about. It was a very scary period. We just waited for what was going to happen. There was no TV in those days, the radio was on all the time.” Ernie then told me, “They were getting ready to institute the draft, which scared everybody ‘cuz anybody 19, 20 years old was sure to be drafted. I went down to report to the draft board and one person asked me, ‘Would you like to be in the Navy?’ and I got in the Navy that way. It was ‘43, I think [when I joined].” Irene and Ernie were married in 1946, after the war was over.

Listening to those who remember the bombing of Pearl Harbor gave me a view of the horrible event not found in history books. Lives were put on hold, the world held its collective breath, and the reality of the event led to WWII. Let us pause and remember the date “that will live in infamy,” its significance and the lessons learned.

Planning a trip to Hawaii? I promise a visit to the Pearl Harbor Memorial will be memorable. Tickets are free and reservations are accepted up to 60 days in advance through the website www.recreation.gov or over the phone by calling 877-444-6777. •

Middle Schools to Participate in AAU Women’s 2017 Tech Trek

Through a unanimous vote by the members of the School Board, TUSD middle schools received permission to apply to participate in the American Association of University Women’s (AAUW) 2017 Tech Trek. Board approval for the weeklong science camp, scheduled for the summer, comes at no cost to the TUSD and will allow the middle school girl students interested in applying to do so.

Tech Trek is a science and math camp dedicated to developing interest and excitement, along with self-confidence, in young women who are on track to begin the eighth grade during the upcoming fall. The camp curriculum specifically targets girls entering the eighth grade. Through hands-on activities in math, science and related fields, students get an introduction to science and math in hopes of sparking an interest in the subjects that will trickle outside of the classroom.

While the AAUW organizes Tech Trek, credentialed middle school teachers and guest presenters conduct the camp and its classes. Included in the week of activities are study trips and many kinds of hands-on experiments and activities. The camp will be hosted at the University of California, San Diego; University of California, Santa Barbara; University of California, Irvine; and Whittier College.

As stated in the Board agenda, “each TUSD middle school may nominate five or six seventh grade girls based on their performance and potential in mathematics and science. An AAUW committee comprised of Educational Partnership Committee members and business partners, who contribute money for the scholarships, will make the final selection from the nominees. An essay from each nominee and an interview will help determine the winners.”

AAUW Tech Trek camps have been designed and hosted in an effort to help girls build and pursue their interests in science, math, engineering and technology (STEM). The Torrance Branch of the AAUW has more than 100 members who reside in the South Bay Area. Nationwide, the AAUW is the leading organization promoting equity and education for women and girls. Founded in 1881, the AAUW has studied and taken positions on issues ranging from an educational, social, economic and political nature--all in an effort to be a source of change. The non-partisan and nonprofit organization includes more than 170,000 members and supporters across the United States. In addition, there are 1,000 local branches and more than 800 college and university partners.

One of this year’s goals for 2017 Tech Trek is to provide a $750 scholarship, through corporate donations, for at least one girl from each TUSD middle school. •

Armstrong Theatre Hosts Taiko Recital

All Photos by Peter Thornton.

Staff and students from Asano Taiko U.S. and the Los Angeles Taiko Institute entertained a captivated audience at Torrance’s James R. Armstrong Theatre on Saturday, December 3 with amazing performances as well as explanations of the roots and contexts of Taiko, a demonstration of the “kuchishoga” aural teaching method, and commentary on the challenges of learning to play these traditional Japanese drums. •

The event included an outstanding performance by a group of young ones with special needs.

The emotions of the players highlighted how much fun they were having.

A group of young Taiko players led by Principal Yuta Kato.

The energy and power of this group shook the theatre.

The performance included other instruments besides the Taiko.

Over 150 Taiko students performed, including the very young who were enthusiastic and professional.

City Council

Parking Enforcement Officers with the Torrance Police Department are responsible for ensuring compliance of the City's no parking ordinance during street sweeping days. A three-year research effort by staff determined that there are an average of 65 parking citations issued during the two-week period when the Christmas and New Year's break takes place. While staff determined that the average number of citations during that time frame was still lower when compared to the yearly average, it was decided that suspending street sweeping parking enforcement for the holidays was best.

"Torrance residents are reminded that all vehicles determined to be in violation of a parking ordinance other than the street sweeping violation ordinance will still be subject to a parking citation," states the staff report. "Street sweeping operations will remain in effect throughout this period during the holiday period. Therefore, we encourage residents to move their cars on a voluntary basis."

The staff report concludes, "It's essential

DIY Projects for Your First Home

(BPT) - "Where should I start?" It's a question many homeowners ask themselves.

DIY is a great place to start for new homeowners. DIY projects are very versatile - they can easily be adapted to your skill level, budget and desired project. With a little extra time and creativity, you can transform your home.

Other benefits to choosing a DIY project are that they are typically more cost-effective than the alternative and they offer an added sense of ownership and pride in your home.

Since DIY project ideas are endless, it's important to choose ones that will improve your home's value at a reasonable cost. A DIY project should make your life easier and more enjoyable. These are some top recommended DIY projects for first-time homeowners. They won't break the bank but they will deliver a bang for your buck.

Add Crown Molding or Update Casing and Trim

The addition of crown molding to the top of interior walls is a subtle change with big impact. Casing, which is the trim around doors and windows, can also make a huge difference. The replacement of dated crown molding, casing or trim can make a room look newly updated. Go one step further with a fresh coat of paint on the walls, and you'll basically have an entirely new room. For more information on how to install crown molding, check out these simple steps.

Replace Doors

Doors are often forgettable, but don't have to be. Replace hollow core bedroom, bathroom and closet doors with wood alternatives for an instant dash of richness. And don't limit yourself to traditionally-styled options. From specialty woods to glass panels, there are plenty of options to choose from.

Clean and Refinish Wood Decks

As long as your wood is in good shape, all you need is deck cleaner and wood stain to turn something dated into the focal point of your backyard. You can buy deck cleaner at your local hardware store. Wood deck stains are available there or at a paint store. You'll be amazed to see weathered wood look like new again.

If you haven't cleaned or refinished a deck before, there are step-by-step instructions.

Update Closets

Add built-in shelving or simply streamline clothes hangers for an organizational boost you'll thank yourself for every day. Or you can tackle a popular closet upgrade: lining a traditional closet with cedar. Natural cedar looks great, smells great and keeps moths and mildew away. It's a classic and high-end upgrade that's not terribly expensive or time-intensive. When your friends or family open your closet, they will be pleasantly surprised.

Use tongue-and-groove cedar to line some or all of an existing closet. You can leave baseboards in place if they're thicker than the cedar. If not, remove them with a pry bar before the cedar installation. Use nails to attach the cedar to the wall studs, or adhere them with a construction adhesive. Prepare to feel like a bona fide fancy grown-up when it's done!

These are just a fraction of the many DIY projects possibilities. The most important piece of advice is to have fun and don't be afraid to try new things. The more DIY projects you complete, the more confident you'll feel. To get started, pencil in a dedicated DIY day on your calendar and enjoy the process! •
