High School Senior Achieves

Sarah Ferguson, a senior at Hawthorne High School, has won a $500 scholarship to aid her tuition at UC Berkeley this year. As well as working and taking classes at a community college, and keeping up with her schoolwork, Sarah was placed at Hawthorne Middle School with the Academic Lifelong Learning (A.L.L.) program providing homework assistance, tutoring, and learning activities that support high academic achievement. In college, Sarah will be pursuing a B.A in Psychology and American Studies with an emphasis in Human & Industrial Services. Photo courtesy of South Bay Workforce Investment Board.

Council Presents 2015-2016 Budget

By Derrick Deane

Community recreation services and city management offices look to be the big winners in the proposed 2015-2016 budget that was presented at Tuesday’s city council meeting.

In total, four city departments would see a dramatic increase in funding under the proposed budget. The City Clerk’s department would see an increase to $293,439 while the City Manager could receive $679,833, a 50 percent increase from the current $451,000 in the 2014-2015 budget.

Administrative services would also get a 41 percent raise in funding to just under $2 million, but the biggest winner under the current proposed budget would be Recreation and Community Services which would see a 151 percent increase in funding. Under the current budget, the department receives just under $2 million but could see that number jump to $4.4 million for 2015-2016.

With money shuffling around, there are losers as well. Public Works would see a 44 percent cut in their budget to just under $3 million while the Planning department would lose 37 percent of their funding to drop to under $1 million for the year according to finance director Rickey Manbahal.

It has been 12 years since the city has passed a budget on time but Mayor Chris Brown was adamant and hopeful of getting things resolved on time this year.

The city is estimating 2015-2016 revenue to come in at around $64.7 million, with a combined $23 million coming from sales, utility, and property taxes.

Four key sectors will take up the majority of the income, with public safety consuming 67 percent, or $43.3 million of the general fund. While public safety receives much of the fund, police department funding would drop 1 percent from $34 million in 2014-2015 to $33.6 million in 2015-2016.

“We need to revisit this budget and see if we can’t get more funding for public safety and our police officers,” Brown said.

An issue with businesses paying their annual taxes that don’t reside in Hawthorne, either because they are mobile or online was raised by Council Member Angel Reyes English.

“We have an auditing firm that is looking at businesses that are conducting business in the city without licensing. We also have a collection agency that collects past due invoices that are beyond 60 days, so there are two different functions,” Manbahal said when asked by English on why businesses are “in a sense, paying dual for permits.”

Manbahal followed that for businesses that are housed in Hawthorne would pay an in-town business license tax and gross receipts. If the business is out of town, collecting payments in the city of Hawthorne, there is a different rate that is being collected.

Council Member Alex Vargas questioned why businesses should pay for a penalty that they are planning to appeal. Manbahal replied that it was in the business’ best interest to pay so that their costs didn’t continue to climb. He added that in doing so, businesses can fill out a form to appeal, which the city would review and make the necessary adjustments.

“So you’re saying for them to pay the penalty, pay everything and then try to appeal it and see if they can get the money back? That kind of sounds backwards,” Vargas said, to which Manbahal became resigned to the fact that that was the process the city currently has and reiterated that if a penalty isn’t paid, then it continues to accrue penalties.

Manbahal then went on the defense stating, “The problem is, they’re approaching me when it’s too late. If it doesn’t get to the penalty phase, then yes, I can educate them. I’ve spoken to a lot of business owners and a lot of them are in agreement when we’re done. I give the real, simplified version and it is in their best interest, when they apply for a license, to look at the code and if they have any questions, to ask us about it before they take that initial step. I’ll educate as much as I can.”

Meanwhile, English stressed that the city was fortunate to have these businesses operating in Hawthorne and that more needed to be done to support them.

“We’re very privileged to have these businesses here and it’s very easy for them to pick up and go elsewhere,” English said. “Let’s make it as friendly and simple as possible so that they fully understand what they are paying and why.”

Brief contention came when New Life Christian Fellowship Church was granted $885,000 in Housing and Urban Development (HUD) money to be used to create affordable rental housing in the city.

“As a ministry for the past 25 years, we have done a lot of support of this city,” Marjorie Drake, a member of the New Journey Ministries, said. “We have helped individuals with their rent and utilities bills and I’m really excited to see us come together and work as a community.”

Vargas questioned why the paperwork for that grant hadn’t been passed along to the City Attorney’s office for approval until late last week. City Attorney Russell Miyahira stated that he had looked over the paper work for the appropriation of the money over the holiday weekend and that it all checked out.

Vargas cautioned that this should not be how things work and one member of the audience, Alex Monteiro, stated that there needed to be more transparency with the matter.

“When you’re talking about giving other Community Housing Development Organizations (CHDO) the opportunity to apply for this money, you can certify them, but to certify them and then immediately give them $885,000, I don’t think that should be happening,” Monteiro said.

Other items the council approved without discussion included a combined $40,000 to repair air conditioning and the roof at the police department, $15,000 for tree trimming, and $1.34 million for construction as part of the Hawthorne Boulevard Mobility Improvement Project. •

Cyber-Seniors Proves that you Can Teach an Old Dog New Tricks

By Morgan Rojas for CINEMACY

The thought of teaching technologically challenged senior citizens, many of whom are in their late 80s, how to navigate a computer, let alone the internet, sounds more like a punishment than a reward. Why anyone at that age would willingly subject themselves to such an ominous learning curve makes no sense to most elderly people, but to a special email after typing “www.email.com” into the search browser.

To engage this group into sticking with the program, a video competition is created to see who can get the most views on YouTube. With the help of their teenage mentors, the seniors set out to make a video based on what is important to them. 93-year-old Marion channels her inner Snoop Dogg and group of seniors, the motivation comes from the thought of reconnecting with family members and loved ones. Director Saffron Cassaday documents the heartwarming journey of these hilarious senior citizens learning all about the Internet in the film Cyber-Seniors.

Growing up in an era when letters were written by hand, the very thought of sending an email is mind-boggling; What used to take days to receive can now be read in a matter of seconds. Two teenage sisters, Macaulee (16) and Kascha Cassaday (18) developed the Cyber Seniors program from a high school class project. After seeing firsthand how their grandparents were affected by Internet independence, the sisters were inspired to help other elders reconnect with loved ones in their lives.

In the Cyber Seniors program, teenage students sign up to guide the elderly in navigating the web. The comedic moments are organic; 88-year-old Shura is awestruck that she can “chat” with fellow Cyber Senior Ellard, 89, on Facebook. 76-year-old Annette is only concerned with dating websites and sets up a profile right away. Other seniors get confused when they can’t access their makes a rap music video about still having all of her teeth, as she sports a sideways baseball cap and all of her vintage art-deco necklaces. Shura loves to cook, and decides to demonstrate how she makes lunch, which consists of ironing her grilled cheese sandwiches (which actually works)! Other videos are just as funny, which include golf and exercise tips for seniors, how to pick up men, and gardening tricks.

Despite its amateur, low budget “look,” Cyber-Seniors should be taken seriously as a documentary. It is not all jokes either; there are unexpected emotional moments that affect director Saffron Cassaday, unintentionally pointing out the importance of family and desire for connection. You will fall in love with the men and women and can’t help but laugh alongside them as they enter the vast world of technology for the first time. Running at a brisk 74 minutes, Cyber-Seniors is a heartwarming story that proves old dogs can learn new tricks, and then brag about it on Facebook.

Cyber-Seniors is available for streaming on Netflix now. •

What Happens if I Put my Data on the Cloud and it Gets Corrupted?

By Sid Kato, Array Systems, Inc.

When you use a cloud provider for data storage you should change your disaster recovery plan to incorporate your Cloud vendor. Previously, when our data was stored on a server in our office our disaster recovery plan included backup and restore capability within one physical location. With Cloud vendors we are storing our data in their data centers. In these situations you no longer have complete control of data backup and recovery. Therefore, you should modify you Disaster Recovery Plan to account for these changes. These procedures will be unique to the Cloud vendor so you will need to engage them to understand how you can maintain control in case of a disaster.

In the case of a Cloud Provider going out of business you will need additional steps in place to account for this worst-case scenario. Since each Vendor is unique and they have their own proprietary approach to manage and storing your data you’ll need extra protection to protect yourself. In order to restore your data using their proprietary software you’ll need access to their software. This is done through an escrow account, which is an additional expense for you. Once you have the software in an escrow account then you’ll need to understand how to access the backup of your data, which is an additional process you will need to account for. When you have the proprietary software and the latest backup in a secured location then you will be protected from a Cloud Vendor going out of business.

Good luck and it’s better to plan for the worst-case scenario because if and when it occurs you will be able to mitigate your down time. •

Hoping To Retire In 10, 20 Or 40 Years?

(BPT) - American workers, ages 32 to 64, are $6.6 trillion short of the amount they need in order to retire comfortably, according to Retirement USA. When it comes to planning ahead and saving money early, time is of the essence. However, 63 percent of American workers have less than $1,000 saved for retirement, and only 44 percent of workers have even tried to calculate a retirement plan, according to the Employee Benefit Research Institute. This means that fewer than half of working Americans have a set plan for how they’ll get by financially after leaving the workplace.

Judging by these numbers, you’re not alone if you feel overwhelmed with the retirement planning process. You might not even think you need to start yet. But by educating yourself now and creating a plan years in advance, you can ensure a smooth transition from your workplace to your happy place.

Build your Budget

Saving for retirement can be tricky but starting early will enable you to save substantially more long-term thanks to compounding interest. It’s important to keep in mind both your pre-and post-retirement salaries when you begin to develop a budget. The U.S. Department of Labor suggests starting by determining your net worth - the total value of your assets minus the amount of your debt. You want this number to be positive so that your assets are worth more than your debt. But even a negative number can be a good starting point to help you begin the process of paying down debt.

Next, you’ll need to figure out how much of your salary to contribute to reach your personal retirement goal. There are many online tools to help you determine what you need to save now and it’s important to also create a monthly expense budget that shows where your funds are going. This way, you don’t have to live frugally with the money you’ve saved - just wisely.

The more money you make, the more you’re able to save for retirement. Most employers will match your contributions in a 401k plan up to a certain percentage, so be sure to take advantage of this - it’s essentially free money you don’t want to miss out on. Also, try saving an additional one-to-two percent of your salary as bonuses, raises and promotions come along. Avoid borrowing money out of your retirement plan. Even though surprise events may occur, resist the temptation and avoid the tax implications and other potential costs that can pile up when you take out money prematurely.

Get Covered

An estimated 58 million Americans are uninsured or underinsured when it comes to life insurance, according to LIMRA.

“Many people view life insurance only as a way to take care of final expenses, but it offers so much more than that in terms of building financial security for your Golden Years because it can help supplement your retirement income,” says Erie Insurance senior vice president Mike Plazony.

For example, while many workplaces offer savings plans such as 401(k)s and IRAs, withdrawals from pretax retirement savings plans are taxable - even after death. On the flip side, life insurance death benefits may be tax-free and interest and cash generated from a permanent life insurance policy are typically tax-deferred, meaning you can wait to pay taxes on the interest until you actually use the funds. Plazony recommends consulting with a professional financial planner who can provide you with information on the tax advantages of life insurance policies, including tax-free life insurance death benefits. While benefits through your company may have income restrictions, permanent life policies and annuities are not subject to income restrictions, allowing you to select an amount of premium of your choosing regardless of your income.

It’s important to take control of your life insurance and continually adjust it, as your plan won’t stay consistent throughout your entire life. You’ll need to modify it based on certain life experiences, such as having children. Talk to your insurance agent to regularly review your life insurance to make sure you have the coverage you need based on your circumstances at the time, and that you aren’t overpaying or underpaying.

Focus on the Future

Don’t wait until it’s too late to start planning for your retirement. Have a clear idea about what you wish to accomplish and start working toward those goals now. The ultimate goal is to reward yourself for working hard over the years, so you can enjoy the ride in retirement. •

News for the ‘City of Good Neighbors’

From City Clerk Norb Huber

SUNSHINE SUPERMAN

Carl Boenish grew up in Hawthorne and graduated from Hawthorne High School in 1959. He got a job as an electrical engineer with Hughes Aircraft and it looked like he would settle into a comfortable life in sunny So Cal. His ensuing life was anything but ordinary and comfortable. He took a liking to filming using his large 16 mm movie camera. He also took a liking to skydiving. He combined both of these into filming his jumps. His cinematography work included the 1969 John Frankenheimer parachuting film classic The Gypsy Moths, starring Burt Lancaster and Gene Hackman, and a National Geographic Explorer segment on jumps from El Capitan. From about 1978 on, Carl became the father of the BASE jumping movement. BASE stood for the four different types of high objects that jumpers had to jump off of to be part of the club. B was for Building, A for Antenna, S for Suspension, and E for Earth (such as a cliff). Carl always looked for more spectacular –more dangerous- feats of human flight. Him and his wife Jean broke the BASE jumping Guinness World Record in 1984 on the Norwegian ‘Troll Wall’ mountain range. Tragically, Carl fell to his death trying a more dangerous jump just a day after their record setting jump. Until recently, Jean lived in Hawthorne and participated in jumping activities. Last Friday, a documentary entitled, Sunshine Superman made its premiere showing at the Landmark Theater in West LA. I had the opportunity to attend one of the showings over the weekend. Carl’s original footage of his jumps off of El Capitan in Yosemite and many other places captivated the audience.

I don’t like looking over the side of a cliff or building. I can’t imagine jumping off of one. I would rather just watch people jump. These jumpers deserve to have a “cold one” after jumping from more than 1,000 feet.

NATIONAL NIGHT OUT

MEMORIAL DAY

This past Monday, I was able to attend the Memorial Day services at the Los Angeles Cemetery located across the 405 freeway from the VA Hospital in Westwood. 58,000 service men and women are buried there. The Boy Scouts annually place 58,000 American flags one foot in front of each of the grave markers. It’s a very inspiring site to see that number of flags and be reminded of the large number of loyal soldiers who have given their lives to preserve our freedoms. God bless the families of those who have lost loved ones in service to our country. •

St. Mary’s Finishes Second in Division IV Finals

St. Mary’s Academy Aliyah Hale completes final hurdle in winning the 300-meter hurdles clocking 42.91 seconds in last Saturday’s CIF-Southern Section Division IV Track and Field Championships. Hale advanced to the Southern Section Masters Championships which begin at 4 p.m. Friday at Cerritos College.

St. Mary’s Academy’s girls’ track and field team from Inglewood, like others, was unable to keep up with powerful Oaks Christian High from Westlake Village but the Belles turned in several fine performances to earn them a second place finish in the CIF-Southern Section Division IV Championships last Saturday at Cerritos College.

The Lions ran away with the title with 131 points to 44 for runner-up St. Mary’s. Los Angeles Marlborough was third with 39 and Serra of Gardena took fourth at 37. The Belles were led by Alliyah Hale, who won the 300-meter hurdles at 42.91 seconds.

The hurdles, in fact, were a big strength for St. Mary’s. Kyra Anderson finished second in the 100 hurdles clocking 14.22, with Jaela Williams of Serra, the Belles’ big Del Rey League track and field rival, in 13.96. Both times were wind aided since the meet was held on a cool and windy day.

St. Mary’s had a pair of second place finishes in both the 4x100 and 4x400-meter relays. The Belles’ 400 relay squad of Anaiah Brown, Aliyah Hale, Briana Shufford and Keshawna Myles placed second behind Oaks Christian, which had the meet’s fastest overall time of 45.75, timing 46.69.

In the 1,600 relay, St. Mary’s, that included Hale, Kyra Anderson, Mia Williams and Briana Shufford, also finished second in 3:54.67. The Lions won the race clocking 3:49.4 and the Cavaliers were (3:57.1) were third.

Shufford advanced to Friday’s Southern Section Masters (All four divisions combined) Championships at Cerritos College in both relays.

“We’re hoping we will do well enough to make state,” Shufford said of the Belles’ hopes for the California State Championships on June 5 and 6 at Buchanan High’s Memorial Stadium in Clovis.

St. Mary’s Anaiah Brown took sixth in the 100-meter dash (12.01) and Shufford (12.15) was eighth. Hale also advanced in the 300 hurdles as did Anderson in the 100 hurdles.

“What we had did real well,” St. Mary’s head coach Rene Anderson said. “I am satisfied with the way we finished.”

For the boys, Lawndale and Inglewood Morningside each had one qualifier. The Cardinals’ junior Bryant Perkinson, who won Pioneer League championships in the long jump and triple jump on May 6, qualified for the Division II finals at the triple jump. He finished eighth in the triple jump with a leap of 42 feet, six inches.

The Monarchs’ 4x400 team with Darrus Wilson, Jaylin Wright, Aaron Berry and Torry Allen placed ninth in 3:36.34. Neither qualified for the Masters Meet, which begins at 4 p.m. Friday at Cerritos College.

ST. MARY’S GETS ELIMINATED

St. Mary’s Academy’s softball team from Inglewood was eliminated in the first round of the CIF-Southern Section Division VI playoffs by host Chadwick 16-6 last Thursday in Rolling Hills Estates. The Belles made the playoffs after finishing third, behind champion Long Beach St. Anthony and runner-up Serra, in the Santa Fe League.

HAWTHORNE SOFTBALLERS FALL IN FIRST ROUND

Hawthorne High’s softball team began the CIF-Southern Section Division IV playoffs with a 6-0 win at Gabrielino High on May 19 in San Gabriel that gave the Cougars a ticket to the first round at second seed Dos Pueblos in Goleta (north of Santa Barbara) last Thursday.

That’s where Hawthorne ran in premiere pitcher Veronika Galoin who threw a six-inning no-hitter with 12 strikeouts and only two walks. The loss ended the Cougars’ season at 16-8-1. Hawthorne finished third, behind champion Santa Monica and second place El Segundo, in the Ocean League.

Against Gabrielino, winning pitcher Alyssa Casillas hurled a complete game five-hitter. She struck out five batters. Keying Hawthorne’s offense was Fa Leilua who went four-for-four with a home run and two runs batted in.

ANIMO OPENS WITH EASY WIN

The Animo-Leadership High baseball team from Inglewood began the CIF-Southern Section Division VII playoffs with a 10-0 win over Einstein Academy from Santa Clarita last Thursday at the Urban Youth Baseball Academy in Compton.

The Aztec-Eagles, who are seeded fourth in the playoffs, scored four runs in the bottom of the third inning, then blew the game open with six more in the sixth. Pitcher Emilian Gutierrez proved dominant with a one-hitter. He struck out 13 batters and walked only one.

Angel Barron started Animo’s scoring with a two-run double. Cesar Rocha went three-for-four including a triple in the sixth. Dante Siordia had a key single on a squeeze bunt to drive in a run in the sixth.

The win sent the Aztec-Eagles into the second round at the Urban Youth Baseball Academy against Emmanuel Christian last Tuesday. Emmanuel Christian crushed Bethel Christian 21-2 in the first round last Thursday. If Animo wins, it will play in the quarterfinals at a site to be determined today at 3:15 p.m. •

Animo Leadership pitcher Emiliano Gutierrez throws to an Einstein Academy batter during last Thursday’s CIF-Southern Section Division VII playoff opener. The Aztec-Eagles shut out the Rockets 10-0.

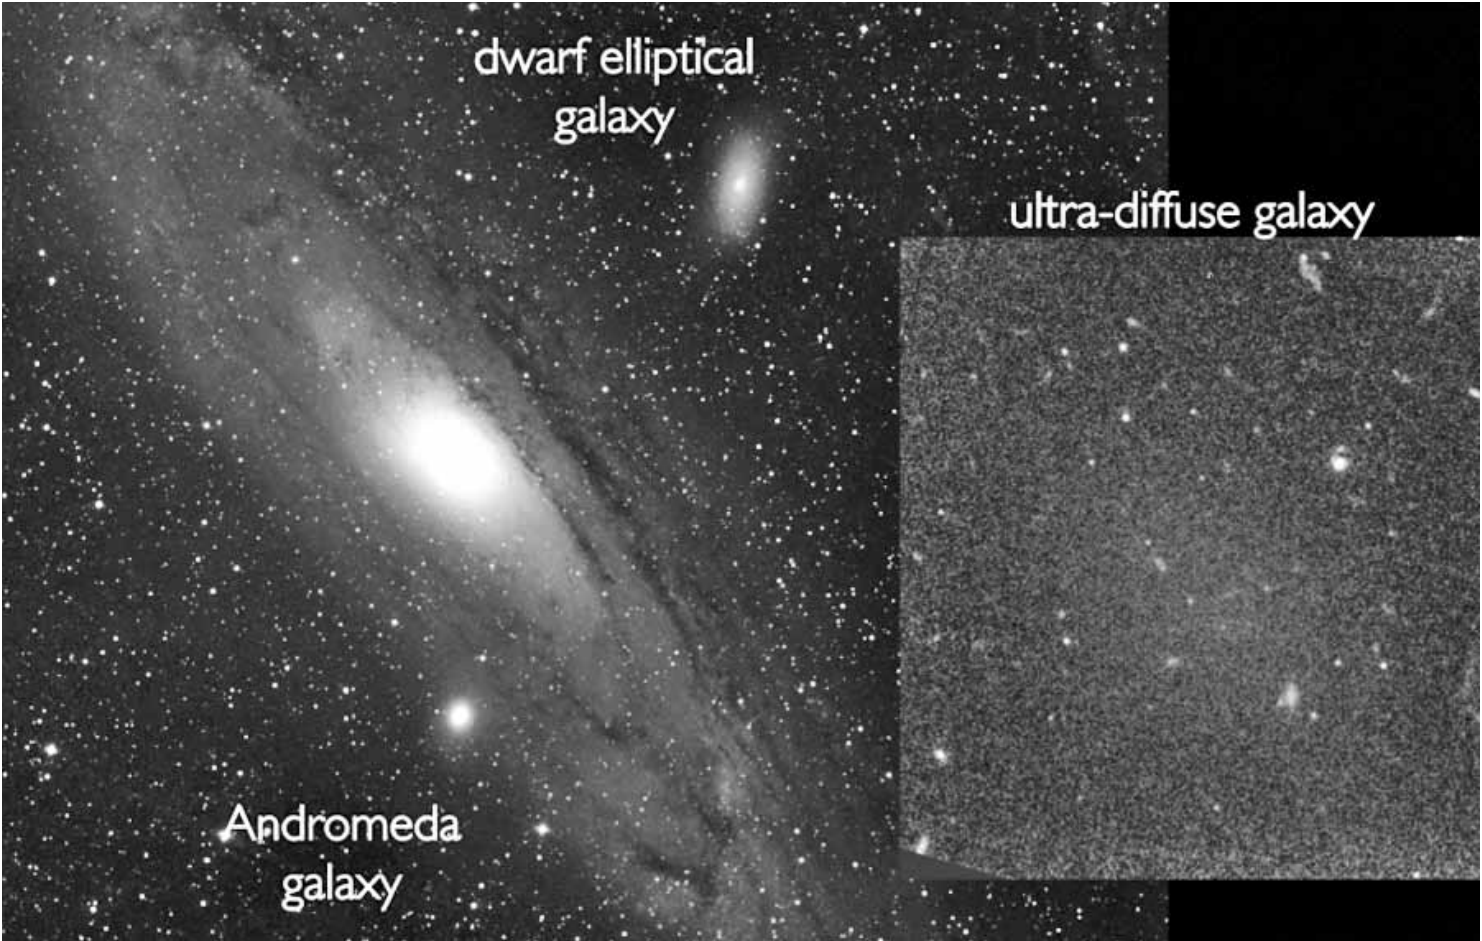

Lawndale High’s Bryant Perkins makes final leap in the triple jump in the CIF-Southern Section Division II Track and Field Championships at Cerritos College. Perkins finished eighth in the event at 42-6.

St. Mary’s Academy’s Briana Shufford completes the 100-meter dash in eighth place at 12.15 seconds in last Saturday’s CIF-Southern Section Division IV Track and Field Championships. Shufford also keyed the Belles’ 4x100 and 4x400-meter relay teams to the Southern Section Masters Championships, which will be Friday at 4 p.m. at Cerritos College.

Scientists at Keck Observatory Discover the Fluffiest Galaxies

Dragonfly 17, which is an “ultra-diffuse” galaxy, is shown next to other types of galaxies (to scale). Andromeda, a giant spiral galaxy resembling the Milky Way, is shown next to a dwarf elliptical galaxy known as NGC 205. Ultra-diffuse galaxies have the same number of stars as dwarf ellipticals, but spread out over a much larger region. Credit: B. Schoening, V. Harvey/REU program/NOAO/AURA/NSF, P. van Dokkum/Hubble Space Telescope.

Based on a press release from W.M. Keck Observatory, provided by Bob Eklund

An international team of researchers led by Pieter van Dokkum of Yale University has used the W. M. Keck Observatory to confirm the existence of the most diffuse class of galaxies known in the universe. These “fluffiest galaxies” are nearly as wide as our own Milky Way galaxy—about 60,000 light-years—yet harbor only one percent as many stars. The findings were recently published in the Astrophysical Journal Letters.

“If the Milky Way is a sea of stars, then these newly discovered galaxies are like wisps of clouds,” said van Dokkum. “We are beginning to form some ideas about how they were born and it’s remarkable they have survived at all. They are found in a dense, violent region of space filled with dark matter and galaxies whizzing around, so we think they must be cloaked in their own invisible dark matter ‘shields’ that are protecting them from this intergalactic assault.”

The team made the latest discovery by combining results from one of the world’s smallest telescopes as well as the largest telescope on Earth. The Dragonfly Telephoto Array used 14-centimeter state of the art telephoto lens cameras to produce digital images of the very faint, diffuse objects. Keck Observatory’s 10-meter Keck I telescope, with its Low Resolution Imaging Spectrograph, then separated the light of one of the objects into colors that diagnose its composition and distance.

Finding the distance was the clinching evidence. The data from Keck Observatory showed the diffuse “blobs” are very large and very far away, about 300 million light-years, rather than small and close by. The blobs can now safely be called Ultra Diffuse Galaxies

(UDGs).

“If there are any aliens living on a planet in an ultra-diffuse galaxy, they would have no band of light across the sky, like our own Milky Way, to tell them they were living in a galaxy. The night sky would be much emptier of stars,” said team member Aaron Romanowsky, of San Jose State University.

The UDGs were found in an area of the sky called the Coma cluster, where thousands of galaxies have been drawn together in a mutual gravitational dance. “Our fluffy objects add to the great diversity of galaxies that were previously known, from giant ellipticals that outshine the Milky Way, to ultra compact dwarfs,” said University of California, Santa Cruz Professor Jean Brodie.

“The big challenge now is to figure out where these mysterious objects came from,” said Roberto Abraham, of the University of Toronto. “Are they ‘failed galaxies’ that started off well and then ran out of gas? Were they once normal galaxies that got knocked around so much inside the Coma cluster that they puffed up? Or are they bits of galaxies that were pulled off and then got lost in space?”

The key next step in understanding UDGs is to pin down exactly how much dark matter they have. Making this measurement will be even more challenging than the latest work.

The W. M. Keck Observatory is located near the summit of Maunakea on the island of Hawaii. Its two, 10-meter optical/infrared telescopes feature a suite of advanced instruments including imagers, multi-object spectrographs, high-resolution spectrographs, integral-field spectrographs and world-leading laser guide star adaptive optics systems.

Keck Observatory is a private 501(c) 3 non-profit organization and a scientific partnership of the California Institute of Technology, the University of California, and NASA. •

Looking for your purr-fect match? Take your pick from this group of sweet kitties or one of their many friends.

Too Much Sugar Ray is a big puddle of love. He is the most affectionate cat we have ever met and adores being picked up as he purrs in your arms and hugs you. Ray was doing great until his owner found out that Ray is diabetic. The needles are super small and Ray is the best patient ever. But his owner didn't want to give shots, so he told the vet to euthanize sweet Ray instead. Can you imagine your family wanting to have you killed just because you became diabetic? Ray gets along wonderfully with other cats and kittens, and just wants a place he can live out the rest of his years and share his love. His insulin runs

Fleas transmit Murine Typhus to people. This disease is seen frequently in Southern California. Murine Typhus is a rickettsial disease caused by a type of bacteria called Rickettsia Typhi that is transmitted via fleabites. Fleas carry the bacteria in their feces, and often defecate while biting and feeding on blood. When a person is bitten by a flea and then scratches the bite, the bacteria from the feces can enter the wound and enter the blood stream. People become infected from fleas brought into the home by their pets, or by rats, mice and opossums carrying fleas around the home. Transference of the bacteria

Once the flea reaches the cocoon stage it's almost impossible to kill. In fact, a flea in its cocoon can remain alive for over a year and withstand heat, cold and drought. The covering of the cocoon is sticky and picks up all kinds of dust and dirt making them difficult
