Food From The Bar Raises Half A Million Dollars For LA Food Bank

Lawyers and legal organizations banded together for the Food from the Bar campaign, which raised $521,274 for the Los Angeles Food Bank. During the campaign, more than 11,000 pounds of food was collected and 819 hours of volunteer shifts were completed: the food will provide approximately 2,085,096 meals to those in need. ## City Preps for Hall of Fame, Good Neighbors Day

By Derrick Deane

Nothing says “summertime” quite like The Beach Boys; and this year, the iconic surf rock band will be inducted into the Hawthorne Hall of Fame. It is just one of many events the Hawthorne Historical Society has planned for the community this summer.

In addition to the Beach Boys, daredevil BASE jumper Carl Beonish, community servant Reese Walton, and “The World’s Greatest Athlete” Jim Thorpe will also be honored at a banquet held at the Memorial Center on July 17. Tickets for the event are $30 per person and are available via the Hawthorne Museum.

“We have a list of roughly 90 people and we pick about five a year,” Hawthorne Historical Society president Thierry Lubenec said of the banquet which began last year. “We chose the people that we felt had the most impact to the city of Hawthorne. We have so many people to choose from that have done something for the city to help benefit it.”

The Beach Boys have long held a place of reverence in the city, with the former location of Brian Wilson’s childhood home on 119th Street designated as a state landmark. The actual home was demolished in 2003 in order to make way for construction of the 105 Freeway.

Meanwhile, Thorpe’s legacy with the South Bay and Hawthorne in particular are deeply rooted. The two-time gold medal winning Olympic decathlon athlete and football great lived in Hawthorne from 1946-1949 while working with a paint crew for Standard Oil. As Thorpe put it then, “Can’t keep the wife and kids in food on ancient glory.”

Thorpe, a member of the Sac and Fox Native American tribe, also played professional baseball and basketball and remained active in the Native American community by playing a lead role in a 1935 celebration and parade in Hawthorne that attracted members from more than 100 different tribes.

“I think Jim Thorpe is just more a celebration of the fact that he lived and let everybody know that he hung out here for a few years,” city clerk and Historical Society member Norb Huber said.

In 1974, two decades after his death, the city of Hawthorne named a park on Prairie Avenue just north of Rosecrans in his honor. At the time of the park naming, Thorpe’s wife was working at City Hall.

Among the other two inductees, Boenish is considered by many as the father of modern BASE jumping and was also a freefall cinematographer.

“I don’t know if too many people know that he was pretty famous,” Huber said. “We had a friend who alerted us that Carl was a pretty well-known guy. We hadn’t selected him at first.”

Boenish was killed in a BASE jump off the Troll Wall in Norway in 1984 and is the subject of the critically acclaimed 2014 documentary movie Sunshine Superman.

“Carl was unique in what he did and he comes from Hawthorne,” Lubenec said as he explained why the society ended up adding him to the list of this year’s inductees.

The fourth member of the Hall of Fame induction, Reese Walton, was designated by the Hawthorne City Council in 1983 to be their ambassador to the 1984 Summer Olympic Games in Los Angeles. An estimated 50,000 people cheered Walton on as he carried the Olympic Torch down Hawthorne Boulevard just hours before the opening ceremony for the games in the L.A. Coliseum.

“Reese fit the role model we look for probably more than the other inductees,” Huber said. “He may not be world famous, like the Beach Boys, but he was a true part of the community.”

In addition to the human inductees, the Historical Society also includes one business each year. This year’s inductee will be Seers Lumber, which began in Hawthorne in the 1930s and has been family owned and operated ever since.

Located on El Segundo Boulevard and Cordary Avenue, the business has been operating in the same location for three generations and, as the Historical Society puts it, “have kept the same customer friendly and community oriented spirit going for close to 80 years.”

The day after the Hall of Fame induction will be the annual Good Neighbors Day street fair. Now in its fifth year, the community event held at the civic center will take place on July 18 and feature three bands performing as well as the annual car show early in the morning.

“About the same time I came on as city clerk, this idea generated a bit from the annual parade that the city had,” Huber said. “When Walt Dixon passed away, this Historical Society formed and we were looking for an event that we could put on and do it totally away from the city funds.”

The event began when one of the original Beach Boys, David Marks, reached out to say that he wanted to do a guitar seminar over at Hawthorne High School.

“It went well enough the first time that we been able to continue to do it,” Huber said. “Now, instead of having it at Hawthorne High, we’ve moved it over to here.”

While the event is free for the community to attend, the Historical Society raises funds through vendor booths and a car show entry fee. Owners of cars from 1975 or older are invited to participate in the show which includes trophies and a goodie bag for the first 50 entrants.

Interested car owners may pick up an entry form from the Historical Society (located across the parking lot from the Hawthorne Library). The building is open Tuesdays and Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

“We have a celebration, people show up, we have good entertainment, a car show, a decent dinner, and time to enjoy the community,” Huber said. •

Cartel Land is a Chilling, Visceral Look At Seeking Justice in the Face of Evil

By H. Nelson Tracey for CINEMACY

A great argument in favor of nonfiction storytelling is that often times the truth is even stranger than anything conjured in

Autodefensas start out as a small uprising of citizens who know that they can't rely on the police to stop the cartels, so they take matters into their own hands. As we watch the fiction. Sundance alum Cartel Land, executive produced by Kathryn Bigelow (The Hurt Locker, Zero Dark Thirty), is one such documentary as it follows two different sides of the undeniably crooked war on drugs in Mexico.

The film's first few minutes show images and situations that seem unbelievable; a mass funeral for an entire group of innocent people who were murdered by the elusive cartels is a harsh reality check of the casualties of this endless war. This also serves as a signal to the audience that we are in for an education unlike anything we knew before.

The cartels are introduced as powerful outsiders and are seldom shown onscreen. Instead, the focus of the film will be on groups of people who are taking matters into their own hands: when the government can't protect the people, who will?

We get two different answers from both sides of the US-Mexico border. The first is an American vigilante border patrol organization called Arizona Border Recon, who is full of bigotry and misguided law. Their leader Tim Foley, known as "Nailer," is hardly a representation of good morals, yet is the tamest in this terrifyingly bloodthirsty group of American self-proclaimed soldiers.

On the Mexican side (though over 1,000 miles from the border, deep into its own country of Michoacán) is an anti-cartel volunteer group known as the Autodefensas, led by a charismatic, spirited leader named Jose Manuel Mireles, or "El Doctor." The organization expand and gain power, inevitably it becomes more difficult to maintain and corruption naturally cracks into all levels.

The reason these stories are so compelling is because of the level of access that director Matthew Heineman has gained. Many documentaries lose attention when the most dramatic moments are happening off-screen. Heineman has miraculously managed to be right alongside numerous firefights, protests, and intimate conversations that immerse the viewer into the tense situation at hand.

The primary characters are shown onscreen without us being told who is trustworthy and who isn't, and as we see more information, it becomes even clearer how impossible it is to trust anyone involved in this situation.

By the time the film is over, you will have a new understanding of just how deep-seated the corruption in these wars has become. What is more baffling, and another reason why this is essential viewing, is that these stories (like many of global importance) are being ignored by mainstream media in all likelihood because of how unbelievable they are.

Cartel Land is a movie that inspires the viewer to think a little more carefully about what types of leaders are trustworthy, and exposes a horrific truth with humane precision that would otherwise be brushed over by mainstream media.

Cartel Land opens this Friday, July 10th at The ArcLight Hollywood. For our interview with director Matthew Heineman, visit www.CINEMACY.com.

News for the 'City of Good Neighbors'

From City Clerk Norb Huber

FIREWORKS, FIREWORKS AND MORE FIREWORKS

How many M80's and skyrockets have to be shot off to really celebrate our nation's birthday? Or is it a competition to see who can shoot off the most?

I'm sure if you were in town last weekend, you know exactly what I'm talking about.

When a great number of residents are breaking the law and firing illegal fireworks up into the air, it is impossible for law enforcement to do much about it. It's similar to illegal drugs, unless the supply of black market fireworks is cut off, the "war zone atmosphere" surrounding Hawthorne's 4th of July will continue annually. My mother-in-law who lived through the beginnings of World War II in Germany commented that the bombs exploding over her house last Saturday night reminded her of her horrors seventy years ago. I have a feeling that some people had a few too many "cold ones" during their day of barbeques and block parties which led to them to feeling no pain when lighting up blaster after big boomer.

WORLD SPECIAL OLYMPICS

Thanks to the generosity of Hawthorne businesses, the cost of being a host city for the upcoming World Special Olympics has been mostly covered. We will host 100 special athletes from two different countries. They will be staying in our local hotels, being treated to special dinners, working out at local venues and participating in some events while they are here the last week of July. These athletes are serious about the competition and winning is everything to them. It's great the city of Hawthorne has stepped forward to help out a worthy cause.

MOVIES IN THE PARK SATURDAY, JULY 11TH

The Holly Park Homeowners Association once again invites you to their annual "Movies in the Park" event to be held this Saturday, July 11 at Holly Park, which is located at 120th Street and Van Ness Blvd. on the east side of town. Go for the food and games prior to the feature movie that is shown on a big screen out on the baseball field. Bring a chair and/or blanket. Every year there is a large crowd of young and old folk like me.

HALL OF FAME BANQUET FRIDAY, JULY 17TH

The second annual Hawthorne Historical Hall of Fame Banquet will be held on Friday, July 17 starting with a social hour at 6 p.m. This year the banquet will be over at the Memorial Center's Venus Room. Tickets are $30 per person and can be obtained by emailing hawthornehistorical@gmail.com or in person at the Hawthorne Museum. The 2015 Hall of Fame inductees include: The Hawthorne Beach Boys, Reese Walton, Jim Thorpe, Carl Boenish, and Seers Lumber.

GOOD NEIGHBORS DAY SATURDAY, JULY 18TH

It's hard to believe that this will be our 5th Annual Good Neighbors Day. It will be held on Saturday, July 18th in front of City Hall on 126th Street. The activities include a car show, three great bands performing on stage, vendors from a variety of organizations, and some food and games. If you would like to be a vendor, please email me and we will include you. The cost of being a vendor is $25.

POLITICALLY CORRECT?

Interesting times we are living through these days. Just in the past few weeks, we have seen an Olympic champion male be praised for his courage after changing his gender. We have heard Donald Trump insult pretty much the entire population of Southern California. The highest court in the land has overruled the majority vote of the populace by legalizing the marriage of any two human beings regardless of gender. Finally, the Confederate flag has become the symbol of racism.

How do we handle all of this? How do I handle these changing times? I turn to my spiritual faith. Sin has been part of all of us since Adam and Eve. We all do wrong. I'm just as bad as the next guy. We know that there will always be conflict and hatred and pride and arrogance. Because I live in America, I can believe the way I want. I may lack "politically correctness", but I place my trust in an even higher being than the supreme court. Just as God loves us all, I try to love and respect all, but I just can't go see myself becoming Norma instead of Norbert. I think it's time for a "cold one"!

New Horizons Spacecraft Prepares for Encounter

The Solar Wind Around Pluto (SWAP) instrument on NASA's New Horizons spacecraft. Credit: NASA

Based on article from Astronomy Now magazine and release from Griffith Observatory, provided by Bob Eklund

In a long series of images obtained by New Horizons' telescopic Long Range Reconnaissance Imager (LORRI) between May 29 and June 19, Pluto and its largest moon, Charon, appear to more than double in size. From this rapidly improving imagery, scientists on the New Horizons team have found that the "close approach hemisphere" on Pluto that New Horizons will fly over has the greatest variety of terrain types seen on the planet so far. They have also discovered that Charon has a "dark pole"—a mysterious dark region that forms a kind of anti-polar cap.

"This system is just amazing," said Alan Stern, New Horizons Principal Investigator, from the Southwest Research Institute, Boulder, Colorado. "The science team is just ecstatic with what we see on Pluto's close approach hemisphere: Every terrain type we see on the planet—including both the brightest and darkest surface areas—are represented there, it's a wonderland!"

"And about Charon—wow—I don't think anyone expected Charon to reveal a mystery like dark terrains at its pole," he continued. "Who ordered that?"

"The unambiguous detection of bright and dark terrain units on both Pluto and Charon indicates a wide range of diverse landscapes across the pair," said science team co-investigator and imaging lead Jeff Moore, of NASA Ames Research Center, Mountain View, California. "For example, the bright fringe we see on Pluto may represent frost deposited from an evaporating polar cap, which is now in summer sun."

Griffith Observatory to Celebrate First Encounter With Pluto

On July 14, after a journey of 10 years and three billion miles, NASA's New Horizons spacecraft will make the first-ever close encounter with Pluto. What can we expect from New Horizons as it ventures past the mysterious dwarf planet? A good way to find out is to come to Los Angeles' Griffith Observatory, which will host several activities to celebrate the New Horizons encounter with Pluto. All events are free and open to the public.

Tuesday, July 14, 2015 – Live Pluto Flyby. Includes twenty-minute talks on Pluto and New Horizons, presented hourly (1:00 - 5:00 p.m. PDT); NASA-TV coverage of the New Horizons flyby with commentary by Griffith Observatory staff (5:00 - 7:00 p.m. PDT); signal from New Horizons confirms the spacecraft's safe passage through the Pluto system (6:02 p.m. PDT); a presentation by Griffith Observatory staff about the New Horizons mission and recap of the evening's events (7:30 - 8:30 p.m. PDT, streamed live on GriffithTV); and the Observatory and Griffith Park close as usual (10:00 p.m. PDT).

Friday, July 17, 2015 – All Pluto Considered. Griffith Observatory Curator Dr. Laura Danly and Griffith Observatory Director Dr. E. C. Krupp show the latest images of Pluto from New Horizons and illustrate Pluto's impact on culture from its discovery until now. (7:30 - 8:45 p.m. PDT ; streamed live on GriffithTV)

The Griffith Observatory, Leonard Nimoy Event Horizon Theater, is located at 2800 East Observatory Road, Los Angeles, California 90027. Seating is first-come, first-served, up to the capacity of the theater. For more information visit <http://www.griffithobservatory.org> or call (213) 473-0800. ### SOUTH BAY WORKFORCE INVESTMENT BOARD ASSISTS JOB SEEKERS, EMPLOYERS AND YOUTH THROUGH GOVERNMENT-FUNDED PROGRAMS

For more than 30 years, the South Bay Workforce Investment Board (SBWIB) has administered employment and training programs for LA County's South Bay Area.

Within the 11 cities serviced (Carson, El Segundo, Gardena, Hawthorne, Hermosa Beach, Inglewood, Lawndale, Manhattan Beach, Redondo Beach, Lomita and Torrance), the SBWIB accomplishes its goals through partnerships with local committees handling business and economic development, One-Stop locations, performance and evaluation, as well as a Youth Development Council.

Through workforce investment funds, the SBWIB offers dislocated workers with free training programs and job-searching resources. Job-searching equipment, as well as seminars, workshops and job placement assistance are available at the four One-Stop Business & Career Centers (Gardena, Inglewood, Carson and Torrance – effective 7/14/15).

The SBWIB assists businesses through an innovative Rapid Response Program geared towards layoff aversion. Parker Hannifin Corporation's Carson facility is a recent success story. An initial meeting revealed that nearly 60 employees lacked sufficient English skills and were facing potential layoff. A layoff aversion plan was formulated that resulted in the SBWIB approaching a local adult school partner to assess the employees'

English skill levels and set up on-site training. Since September, the affected employees have been attending Business English classes three days a week with several of those individuals now being considered for promotions.

Recruitment assistance, pre-screening of applicants, On-The-Job training and Transitional Subsidized Employment (TSE) are other programs available to local companies and small businesses.

The SBWIB also prepares youth for entry into the workforce by emphasizing education and services that promote relevant workplace skills and experiences leading to industry-recognized credentials and career pathway employment, including apprenticeships. Special emphasis is aimed at the reengagement of disconnected youth through intervention and prevention services.

The SBWIB is one of the highest performing Workforce Investment Boards (WIB) in the state and is often recognized by the California Workforce Investment Board (CWIB) for its achievements.

Continuous collaborations with business, economic development, education, government, labor and community organizations, helps the SBWIB provide a dynamic, efficient and effective workforce development system, ensuring a skilled workforce and vibrant economy in the South Bay Area.

Fueling the Next Generation Through Education

PREPARING TODAY’S STUDENTS FOR TOMORROW’S WORKFORCE

At Chevron, we believe few things are more inspiring than education. That’s why we support science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) programs from K to 12 and beyond, because tomorrow’s workforce demands it. In fact, STEM related jobs are growing at nearly twice the pace of all other career fields combined.

Over the last six years, the Chevron El Segundo Refinery has invested more than $8 million in STEM programs at local schools as we take pride in helping students access the resources necessary for a successful future. We join South Bay parents, teachers and schools in their amazing efforts to advance our students as the next generation of leaders.

At Chevron, we know that today’s education partnerships will lead to a more promising and competitive future for all of us.
