Hawthorne Police Department Hosts ‘Stop the Bleed’ Course

City Manager Updates Council on Local Airport Noise Complaints

By Derrick Deane

In its first meeting of the month, the Hawthorne City Council heard a detailed report on the numerous noise and pollution complaints that have stemmed over the years from the Hawthorne Municipal Airport. City Manager Arnie Shadbehr gave a comprehensive report on how the City of Hawthorne has logged and followed up on every complaint presented by residents and also discussed steps to address ongoing noise issues.

Shadbehr began by reading a passage of an agreement residents in the airport flight path were given upon purchasing their residences. “All residential sale contracts will include sufficient disclosure of buyers in the proximity of the dwellings to the Hawthorne Municipal Airport and the railroad right of way and the potential noise impact from aircrafts,” Shadbehr read of a conditional disclosure agreement approved by the City Council in 2007 for the Parkside Village area despite some resistance from the FAA, the Hawthorne Airport Office and other entities.

The other main condition warned potential residents that their dwellings would be located in a flight path designated for the Hawthorne Municipal Airport. “These [conditions] were already there for current residents when they were signing escrow agreements -- they were supposed to be notified of this,” Shadbehr said. “So when they call, I don’t want them to think that the City is willfully ignoring them. The issue is that they are right under the flight path and there is no other way for aircraft to land on the runway but to fly over their homes over the recorded flight path.”

Many of the complaints that had been logged addressed aircraft flying at a low altitude. Shadbehr addressed this issue as well. “Obviously they are descending, so they are going to be [flying] low,” he said. “Honestly, there is no solution to this. I cannot sugarcoat this -- we have to be truthful here. There is literally no solution. It’s like somebody lives next to the railroad track and complains why the train is coming. [It’s] because you live next to the railroad track. It’s as simple as that.”

Shadbehr added further that the City does not control something that is under FAA jurisdiction, but did state that it needs to update the noise exposure maps every five years. The main issue here is the amount of time it takes from beginning the noise study to actually getting it approved by the FAA.

One potential solution to the noise complaints has been attempting to get grants and funding for soundproofed windows for residents. “We completed our noise study last year and it got approved,” Shadbehr said of the process that began in 2011. “We’re dealing with federal government. Some people think that federal government is too big. It’s not. In fact, the FAA district office here on Aviation Boulevard is in charge of 70 airports, so it takes time. After they approve it, it goes to Washington, D.C. for the headquarter approval.”

Shadbehr reported that the City finally received approval in November 2017 and, aside from a pocket near SpaceX, the study found that high noise levels are not emitting out toward the Holly Park area or North Hawthorne – thus making them ineligible for window retrofitting.

“This is why we currently don’t have any noise mitigation or sound attenuation grants available,” Shadbehr said, adding that all of the studies were done strictly according to the FAA protocol. “It’s up to the federal government based on the noise exposure maps that can approve a grant for sound retrofit.”

A few residents have suggested a curfew for when planes can operate at the airport. Some believe that planes are not allowed to fly after 10 p.m. “I have to apologize for miscommunication or misunderstanding,” Shadbehr said. “We don’t have a curfew at Hawthorne Airport. We’ve never had one.”

Shadbehr stated further that the larger

Girls Who Code Coaxes Computer Cleverness from Young Craniums

Reviewed by Tommy Vinh Bui, MLIS, Associate Librarian, Inglewood Public Library

This is a stellar teen-themed book that inspires and cajoles young women to confound expectations and jump with both feet into the world of coding and computer science. Writer Reshma Saujani makes a compelling case to pursue a passion for computer coding and combine it with other interests to create a synergy of creative potential. It's all about empowerment and building confidence while unabashedly flying that nerd flag high.

The book is seemingly quixotic in ambition as it offers a succinct little primer and introduction to the world of coding. Saujani manages this Herculean task masterfully. She takes our hand and walks us a better understanding of the computational intricacies of the field. She manages to take a sometimes abstruse subject and make it relatable and palatable to digest. She uses an assortment of real-world scenarios and always endeavors to make the topic engaging and approachable. Though the work is largely skewed toward a female audience of a certain age, the information conveyed about rudimentary coding skills can be useful for a wide demographic of people just interested in the course of study.

The writer is an ardent advocate of eschewing stereotypes and impels young audiences to augment their thinking of what's expected and what's possible. She reminds us that encouraging STEM education and useful computer fundamentals will serve young girls for years to come and that the field is ready and receptive to a whole generation of groundbreaking tech pioneers. The possibilities are nigh boundless. Put the right string of code in the right girl's hands and she could make a sizeable impact from social justice champion to canny entrepreneur.

This Young Adult genre book earns a wholehearted recommendation. The content is delivered in an enthused and infectiously effusive manner. The range of topics covered is impressive from beginning to end and the overall message of empowerment gets delivered with precision. The Inglewood Public Library also has an audiobook version of this tome that includes a bonus disc with PDFs of images, computer history timelines, flowcharts, lines of code, and a handy-dandy glossary. All fine fodder for any coding connoisseur.

So get coding, kids. Plain and simple. And find yourself being programmed to dare to dream prodigiously posthaste. • through the history of the field and the innovations and advancements that women have contributed over the years to the study of computer science. The book is equal parts Hidden Figures and Lean In. The writer provides us with several historical figures and a multitude of case studies of the unsung female heroes blazing a trail in the world of tech. She also sows the notion that inspiring young girls to explore the world of coding is the future and how imperative it is today to close the gender gap in the tech industries.

Saujani additionally gives us a pretty comprehensive play by play into the basics of coding. She goes over the terminology and cobbles a sturdy scaffolding in which to frame

Infamous Ted Kennedy Scandal Is Explored in Film Chappaquiddick

By Ashley DeFrancesco for www.cinemacy.com

Friday, July 18, 1969. Not a date that many young movie viewers may find significant, but director John Curran's Chappaquiddick teaches us about that deadly night that included a tragic cover-up and criminal negligence.

Chappaquiddick is the story of how high political power makes a man indestructible. Massachusetts Senator Ted Kennedy (Jason Clarke) and aspiring political strategist Mary Jo Kopechne (Kate Mara) get into a vehicular accident when Kennedy steers off Dike Bridge in Chappaquiddick, Massachusetts around 12:30 a.m. While Ted survives the crash, Mary Jo does not. She is found 10 hours later inside the flipped car at the bottom of Poucha Pond. Ten hours... so what was Kennedy doing all that time? Why didn't he call the police right away? What kind of legal troubles did he get into? Most importantly, why I haven't heard of this? All these questions swirled in my head as I watched this heartbreaking docudrama and with the constant pressure of living in his brother's shadow while wanting to create a name and legacy for himself. Helms masters the complicated and conflicted relationship that Gargan had with Kennedy during this time. Kate Mara's Mary Jo perfectly paints the struggle between moving forward after the devastation of Robert Kennedy's assassination, and remaining part of the family because of the connection she had during Bobby's election campaign. Although not given much screen time, she illustrates how history chooses who is remembered, whose story will be told, and who becomes an afterthought.

In today's world, we continue to see this struggle between political power and justice. Like the men portrayed in Chappaquiddick, we see so many lie, deny and create the narrative given to the public to survive and gain -- or maintain -- the ultimate power that politics can represent. This movie serves as a reminder that we cannot let those who are given this power run wildly with it. It asks us to take a hard look at those who we have

was reminded that the trend of protecting our political heads of state over serving justice has long plagued our nation.

Taylor Allen and Andrew Logan wrote a screenplay showing the ugly underbelly of politics and power in America. Due to a majority of the nation's unrest with our current administration, I was deeply distressed to see that almost everyone in Ted's life was spinning the tragedy so that he could still run for president in the future.

The singular voice of reason during the days after the accident is Ted's cousin Joe Gargan (Ed Helms), who continues to urge the senator to follow his compass and stay with the truth rather than fabricate a story. He tries to be the Jiminy Cricket to Ted's lost and broken Pinocchio, but has little success as the manipulative and tightly gripped hand of Joe Kennedy continues to pull the strings. Back at the Kennedy compound, while the team is working to change the negative headlines, Gargan bitinglly says, "A girl dies and Ted is a martyr?" His frustration and disgust at the easily crafted deception of Ted Kennedy as the victim highlights the theme of justice coming second to maintaining political power. Nothing will stop the Kennedy machine from destroying everything in its path in the name of that power.

The cast is exceptional in their portrayals of these real and flawed people. Clarke's Ted Kennedy shows us a man who is struggling elected and evaluate if they are working for opportunity or with integrity, as Gargan says to Kennedy. Lawyer Ted Sorensen perfectly sums it up when he says, "History usually has the final word on those things." Chappaquiddick gives us the opportunity to look at this historically tragic event once again and decide how we want to remember it, giving us permission to use this refined critical lens as we write the history that future generations will learn.

101 minutes. Chappaquiddick is rated PG-13. Now playing at Arclight Hollywood, The Landmark, AMC Marina, and AMC Century City. •

THE END IS IN SIGHT

I've always tried my best to be transparent in my writing of this column and in my city clerk's duties. I like to "tell it like it is" and be "real" and be straight forward and not beat around the bush and not be a "typical politician" that tells you half truths or fake news to get you to think that I'm the one to vote for in the next election. So, here we go. Rather than conduct a news conference at City Hall, I will break the news to my loyal readers first through this outlet: I will not be seeking re-election this coming fall. In fact I won't be living in Hawthorne this fall.

As you know, I'm concluding my teaching career in June and will be retiring. Our love for our family has led me and my ol' lady to decide to purchase a "retirement home" in Orangevale, CA, which is located 20 miles Northeast of Sacramento.

Our daughter, son-in-law, and our two grandchildren moved to that area last summer. So, it is the love of being there for the grand kiddos and watching them grow up that has trumped my love for you my dear reader/friends and my love for Hawthorne. I have enjoyed writing this column and sharing my wit and nonwisdom with you the past eight years. All good or bad or stupid things have to come to an end sometime. Maybe the newspaper will let me continue to ramble on even in my physical absence from this local. It will be hard to replace me since I have no idea what I'm trying to say the majority of the time. No, I'm not leaving or stopping to write immediately. I just wanted to give you a heads up, all eight or ten or twelve of you. Do me a favor, don't let your tears of joy or sadness spill into your cold one and ruin a good brew, just enjoy life. I've heard it said that I should get out while the going is good, retire at my peak. When I started out low and sunk even lower, I can see the writing on the wall, it's time. Thank you for allowing me to be part of your life.

GRAFFITI REMOVAL

If you see graffiti in Hawthorne, call our hotline: 310-349-1632. Our goal is to remove any graffiti on public property or assist private property owners and have it removed with 48 hours of notification. If you see it, report it and discourage more graffiti from taking over our city. Let's keep Hawthorne clean.

ENVIRONMENTAL REVIEW: Pursuant to State California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) Guidelines Sections 15321, (Enforcement Actions by Regulatory Agencies) and 15305 (Minor Alterations in Land Use Limitations) These provisions, respectively, exempt projects by regulatory agencies to enforce a rule, standard, or objective, administered or adopted by the regulatory agency and minor alterations in land use limitations in areas with an average slope of less than 20%, which do not result in any changes in land use or density. The Project would implement the adopted NCP, which was prepared to comply with Part 150 of Title 14, Code of Federal Regulations and the Airport Master Plan. The Project would incorporate the 65 CNEL noise contours and an airport overlay on properties near the Airport with slopes that are less than 20% and will not change the underlying land use or density. The Project will describe the non-compatible land uses around the Airport based upon Federal regulations, address measures to reduce the impact of noise, ensure proper disclosure, and prevent the introduction of new noise-sensitive uses within the 65 CNEL noise contour of the Airport.

PLEASE NOTE that pursuant to Government Code Section 65009: In an action or proceeding to attack, review, set aside, void, or annul a finding, determination or decision of the Planning Commission or City Council, the issues raised shall be limited to those raised at the public hearing in this notice or in written correspondence delivered to the Planning Commission or City Council at or prior to the public hearing.

aircraft at the airport normally don't operate at night but, "things can change. We have no control if one aircraft wants to change their operation hours to later at night and that could have been the case." He also noted that the City is a recipient of federal grants that help keep the airport in operation. "We have to abide by grant assurances," Shadbehr explained. "This is another obstacle we deal with because when you do grant assurances, they basically force us to keep the airport open and accessible at all times. Basically 24 hours a day, seven days a week."

While Torrance, Long Beach and Burbank have curfews at their municipal airports, Shadbehr explained that it is because they had adopted ordinances prior to 1990 that established those facilities as limited hours of operation. After the passage of the Airport Noise and Capacity Act in 1990 by the federal government, those were grandfathered in with their limited hours of operation. However, the FAA never allowed any other airport to establish a curfew.

Shadbehr suggested one option that Hawthorne could pursue is installing noise monitors, but warned that doing so would be very costly. "Aside from the fact that we can't afford to pay for them, we can't even afford to hire a separate airport manager," he said. "It also doesn't do any good for Hawthorne because we can't establish curfew. It only helps the airports that had their curfews grandfathered in." Shadbehr added that residents will continue to be notified to attend any upcoming noise meetings that the City hosts.

The Council unanimously approved a motion to allow Shadbehr to move forward with applying for another noise study grant. •
