El Camino Debaters Were Talk of National Collegiate Tournament

By Rob McCarthy

El Camino College rules after being crowned national champions of college forensic debate in Salt Lake City. The South Bay's representatives swept three titles, including best forensic team at any U.S. college – Ivy League schools included.

The March competition drew teams from 153 schools, including community colleges and four-year universities that went head to head in the parliamentary style of debate. Two-member teams take turns arguing the pros and cons of an issue before a judge. Despite going up against four-year schools from Arizona, Texas and Oregon, the El Camino debaters beat all comers and never lost a match.

El Camino traveled to Utah State University for the grueling three days of argument about public policy issues, which the National Parliamentary Debate Association sanctioned. The debates are extemporaneous and hands-free: participants don't have speeches prepared and don't carry notes. This freestyle can prepare college students to enter careers in government, law or business, according to parliamentary debate organizers.

It was only the second time in the tournament's history that a community college earned the top spot. The tournament drew 153 teams from two- and four-year universities. Pac-12 schools, including the universities of Arizona and Oregon, took part in the finals. El Camino defeated every team in the debate competition to capture the coveted national title.

It was a record-setting season for the South Bay team. El Camino won seven tournaments in a row, taking home the sweepstakes trophy for every competition. "This may be the best team we've ever had," said Professor Francesca Bishop, director of forensics. El Camino planned to enter two more competitions after Salt Lake City.

Bishop coaches the national championship program along with debate professors Mark Crossman and Joseph Evans, and Assistant Coach Brittany Hubble. Damon Lawson is a student coach for the competitors from the El Camino College communication studies program. The National Parliamentary Debate Association says that up to 250 schools attend at least one tournament each season. The debate format is two-on-two, and the association says the format of the competition encourages quick thinking and public speaking.

The college students at the Salt Lake City debates sparred over public policy issues -- the

Herald Gets Small Business Honor

Herald Publications, Inc. has been selected as Assemblymember Autumn Burke's Small Business of the Year honoree for CA Small Business Day™ 2019. We are one of approximately 75 small business owners recognized out of 3.3 million in all of California. I will travel to Sacramento to accept this honor in June. The event is sponsored by 25 small business organizations/chambers, with over 75 legislators attending. At the start of the event, we will meet with Senate leadership, government agency leaders, and small business advocates and champions. Lunch and photo opportunities will follow. I'll be sure to take a copy of the Herald along!

This is quite an honor for all of us who work week after week to serve our communities and put out quality newspapers. My greatest honor is working side-by-side with the kindest, smartest and most professional people in the industry. I know how lucky I am. We all earned this equally. We all have a job and we all do it well. A giant thank you and kudos to Haleemon Anderson, Linda Cohen, Derrick Deane, Mike Gonzales, Rob McCarthy, Gregg McMullin, Clara Nilles, Duane Plank, Brian Simon and Debbie Waite. I could not be prouder of each and every one of you.

Also a special thanks for Mayor Robert Pullen-Miles, who threw our hat into the ring; and to our advertisers, who make what we do possible.

K9 COMMUNITY DINNER

The Spring Community Dinner has always been put in support of the K-9 squad of the Hawthorne Police Department. The Hawthorne Presidents' Council has been sponsoring this event for over 30 years. This year the dinner will be held on Thursday,

May 23rd from 5 – 6:45 p.m. at the Hawthorne Memorial Center. Tickets are only $5 for a great chicken dinner, with a presentation put on by the K-9's themselves, and followed by an auction of some really nice prizes. GOOD LINE:

“Beer is good, Beers are better!” Need I say anything else? Have a cold one! Keep it short and sweet this week. No need to go on and on about how having a cold one solves all your problems. A loyal reader said that she enjoys reading my column even if I’m a little corny. I take that as a compliment. I’ve heard a lot of names thrown at me over the years, but I have not been called “corny” in quite awhile, even though I was born a “Cornhusker” from the great state of Nebraska. You won’t have me to kick around next week. Me and my ol’ lady have been invited to spend some quality time together with friends who have a timeshare in Cabo, Mexico. So, you can relax, you can miss me, you can find your way on your own to the refrigerator and you can have several cold ones. I’ll be back in two weeks. Remember, God loves you and there is absolutely nothing you can do about it.

Film Review

Highlights from the Tribeca Film Festival

By Morgan and Ryan Rojas
for www.cinemacy.com
Gully

Although this is his first feature, you may already be familiar with this director's work. Nabil Elderkin – or just Nabil, as he is more widely known – is the man responsible for the aesthetically brilliant music videos for the likes of Kanye West, Bon Iver and countless others cultural icons of the moment. Nabil takes the same cinematically-styled approach as he does in his music videos to bring screenwriter Marcus J. Guillory's emotionally-drenched drama, Gully, to life.

Gully is billed as a "slightly dystopian version of LA." While there is truth in that observation, the dystopia isn't a farfetched depiction of chaos. It's all rooted in reality, which makes for an even more affecting watch. Best friends Jesse (Kelvin Harrison, Jr.), Calvin (Jacob Latimore) and Nicky (Charlie Plummer) live within blocks of each other on the streets of South Central LA and all come from troubled backgrounds. They may have been forced to grow up prematurely, but these are still young boys in need of a childhood, trying to figure out who they are and where they're going amidst the chaos and unfair dealings that life has in store for them.

Standing Up, Falling Down

If Ben Braddock of The Graduate had a wise-cracking older mentor in his life to help guide him through the anxiety of post-graduate adulthood – and if that mentor was the inimitable Billy Crystal – you might get something similar to Standing Up, Falling Down, a feel-good buddy comedy about the unlikely friendship between an unsuccessful young comedian and his life-affirming dermatologist.

With his career going nowhere fast, stand-up comedian Scott (Ben Schwartz) leaves L.A. to move back in with his parents in Eastern Long Island. At 34, it hits on a certain anxiety of this millennial generation that feels honest. Now home, Scott is forced to confront the life he left behind for the dreams of L.A. – and the people he left, including sister (Grace Gummer) and ex-girlfriend (Eloise Mumford). In his grief state which warrants a medical check-up, he meets the karaoke-loving dermatologist, Marty (Billy Crystal). It's not long before Marty's natural cheer mixes with Scott's cynical self, and the two find themselves getting along – having drinks, smoking pot, hanging out and without knowing it helping each other move on from a rut.

Come to Daddy

The funniest and wildest movie we saw at

Come to Daddy, Courtesy of Tribeca Institute

the Tribeca Film Festival this year was the suggestively-titled Come to Daddy, a film whose dark comedy made for a perfect inclusion in the midnight section of films. What starts out as a slowly built, dry comedy of the uncomfortable reunion between a son (Elijah Wood) and his estranged father (Stephen McHattie) ends up being a wonderfully insane and absurd film that is sure to make audiences laugh. •

Check It Out

The Eulogist by Terry Gamble

By Roz Templin, Library Assistant,
El Segundo Public Library

Irish immigrant Olivia Givens tells an expansive story of her life after landing in Cincinnati, Ohio in 1819. She and her parents, with her brothers James and Erasmus, sailed to America "to pray and prosper." Almost immediately Olivia loses her possessions, her mother and soon her father. The Givens boys and she were left by themselves to scrape up a living between them.

The siblings live in a boarding house, and James begins a slow climb to self-reliance through candle-making. Younger brother Erasmus helps out and Olivia begins to tutor some of the local children. Erasmus experi-

The "peculiar institution" of slavery becomes the backdrop for the Givens' family story. Each character has a particular viewpoint and through reversals of all kinds, experiences heartache and frustration due to the relationships they have with slaves and slave-holders. Criminal activity as well as many forms of intrigue give flavor to this saga of black and white and the many shades of grey that color perspective and belief. Olivia holds fast to her own values and risks mortal danger many times to do what she thinks is right. Her courage endures and makes the following generations wiser and stronger.

The book on CD format provides a richer interpretation thanks to the narration and vocal characterizations of actress Cassandra Campbell. Ms. Campbell invents a slight brogue for Olivia and manages to convey the difference in gender and age of the other people in her story.

The author, Terry Gamble, reveals that her own ancestors emigrated first from Scotland, then to Northern Ireland, and finally to Cincinnati in 1819. She became interested in her family history while she was sorting through items such as correspondence and photos belonging to her parents. While researching the history behind this tale, she found herself lurking in historical societies and museums, speaking with historians, reenactors and librarians. She attended Civil War meetings and toured the Underground Railroad Freedom Center. Her account of her research on her website fills in some blanks about the characters in her book, who are vividly real. Many of them, it seems, are based on actual people whose stories she unearthed. If you are interested in historical fiction, I suggest you seek out this book. • ences a spiritual awakening and tries his hand at being a traveling preacher. He departs from his siblings to the wilds of Kentucky, across the river.

James marries a local businessman's daughter, Hatsepha. Erasmus finds himself married, then a father, then widowed. Olivia, James and Hatsepha take in William, Erasmus's motherless son, when it becomes plain that Erasmus feels the pull of the river back to his itinerant preaching.

Olivia is a woman who chafes at the conventions of the times and feels out of place. She meets a physician and man of science, Silas Orpheus, never guessing how their lives will soon be entwined.

same way that lawmakers in a Parliament setting do. The political topics serve to make the competitors more knowledgeable and engaged citizens, the tournament sponsor says.

El Camino took home the two-year college tournament sweepstake trophy from Salt Lake City, along with the two-year college season champions award. Winning the overall Season Sweepstakes Title for two- and four-year schools established El Camino as a powerhouse going into next season.

Team members are heavily recruited by four-year institutions and receive scholarships to attend those universities after leaving the Torrance campus, the school says. The Forensics Program is open to students of all majors. The competitions give South Bay students training toward careers in media, management, sales and education too.

A background in communications studies at El Camino is a solid beginning to a rewarding career, according to the department. "Students who learn to communicate ideas in a way that promotes understanding with precision, logic and professionalism will have an advantage in today's fast-paced competitive world." Advertising agencies, law firms, schools, political candidates and officeholders, and social services look for talented people with skills in public speaking and research to work with clients and run campaigns.

Parliamentary debate at colleges began in the 1990s and high schools are embracing the competitions in which one team represents the government and the other is the opposition, says the American Association of Parliamentary Debate. It also involves role-playing for the government team, which is composed of a prime minister and a political ally. They argue the pro-government position, while their two opponents must demonstrate that the government's case is incorrect. The judge, called The Speaker, decides at the end of the round which team met its burden more convincingly -- either for or against the issue.

Debaters weren't the only award winners this semester at the Torrance campus.

Journalism students who produce a weekly newspaper, The Union, won several awards at an annual statewide competition of the Journalism Association of Community Colleges held in March. The Union newspaper print and online editions both received praise for general excellence. Staff writer Omar Rashad was honored with the top award in feature writing for his story on Assembly Bill 705, which uses multiple measures when placing students into English and math courses. Staff writer Jose Tobar won second place awards for an editorial cartoon and an illustration, and an honorable mention or a story about homeless students. Staffer Zach Hatakeyama won second place for a feature story about NASA Community College Aerospace Scholars.

Miyung Kim took home a third place in the news photo category. Sarah Desmond placed fourth for a magazine profile, as did Alexa Mancilla for a magazine news feature she wrote. •

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee's sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 916-939-0772 or visit this Internet Web site www.nationwideposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case 76661. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not be immediately reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. Dated: 04/25/2019 RESS Financial Corporation, a California corporation, as Trustee By: BRUCE R.
