Cyclists Meet Goal for Charity

By Derrick Deane

Usually when it comes to city council meetings, you think of the legislative process unfolding before your eyes as bills are introduced and voted on, debates are held and citizens voice their thoughts and concerns to council members.

Tuesday’s city council meeting certainly had that, but the early focus centered on Pedal for Polio, a project that three Hawthorne High School seniors participated in. The charity event involves cyclists who journey 500 miles over 8 days to San Francisco all in hopes of raising $5,000 to prevent polio by immunizing 8,000 children in Afghanistan, Pakistan and Nigeria.

Jose Diego, Sebastian Gonzalez and Chris Rendon were spotlighted for participating in the event.

“Senior year comes and I was thinking how can I give back to something that gave so much to me,” Diego said after a couple of years of being involved in various charity events through Hawthorne High School’s Interact Program.

The trio not only met their goal of raising $5,000, but money continues to come in. As a result, there is the possibility that even more children will be able to get immunized. Contributions may still be made at www.gofundme.com/pedalforpolio.

“Their fulfillment is going to be that they did this ride and they raised the money,” Pat Springer, president of the Hawthorne-LAX-Lennox Rotary Club said. “I feel like a proud mother because I’m around a group of people whose only mission in life is to help people.”

The trio’s teacher and advisor, Huy Hong declined to attend the presentation, instead wanting the spotlight to shine on Diego and Gonzalez. Rendon was unable to attend due to work.

“Mr. Hong is a teacher that opens up the walls of the classroom,” Springer said. “He is bringing life experiences to the children.”

In recognition for their charity, each of the seniors was given a $50,000 college scholarship from the Rotary Club as well as certificate of appreciation from the city of Hawthorne.

Diego will be attending UC Irvine to study biochemistry while Gonzalez will be heading to UC Berkeley to study physics.

The continued beautification and development of the city was the next topic of discussion, as Street Stories representatives Nina Choe and Ric Abramson addressed the city council.

“In general, what we’re interested in is the economic development side of making cities and how we start to match interest and beautification with the economics of small businesses,” Abramson said.

The company provides remodeling and beautification services to small businesses who want to upgrade their curb appeal and to cities that want to create open walking spaces that attract people.

“What we’re interested in is the story of Hawthorne,” Abramson said. “What is your vision? What do you want to see in your community and how urban design can complete the formula.”

There is no set time or price for beautification projects. Abramson estimated that projects range from 4 to 12 months to complete and can cost businesses and cities between $20,000 to $200,000.

“Hawthorne Boulevard is a great start,” councilmember Angie Reyes English said. “There’s a business component that I would ultimately like to see. There are businesses that want to thrive but they don’t how what to do or how to do it. They tap in to the Small Business Administration and that’s it. They don’t go any further.”

English added that sometimes small businesses are limited to the kind of loans they can pull to grow their business or they don’t necessarily have a vision of what they want their company to be. English said that what was being offered by Street Stories was great, but that the decision ultimately comes down to outreach from the businesses that want to improve the curb appeal of their building.

“Who is willing to think outside of the box to grow their business,” English said. “We need more of that, not just from the city, but through incentives that we pass in policy. I think at the end of the day, it’s a win-win.”

Mayor Chris Brown added that Abramson and Choe should continue to work with Chris Palmer in the Economic Development Department and locate the businesses that have been in the city for five years of longer and see if they might be interested in upgrading their curb appeal.

Brown added that the city would be bidding on adding Wi-Fi to businesses on Hawthorne Boulevard next month.

Councilmember Alex Vargas said that the city once had a Redevelopment Fund to help businesses, but the state government raided their fund to help balance the state budget.

“This all sounds nice,” Vargas said to Abramson, “but what we had to offer was taken away by the state.” Vargas then pressed for what kind of specific ideas and resources Street Stories was willing to provide Hawthorne.

Abramson replied that the resources depended on the relationships that were forged between the business and Street Stories.

“What we want to start with is identifying the landscape and seeing where the business community most needs the help,” Abramson said. “I don’t think there is one answer. Some businesses just need information while others need financial help. It is very much situational.”

Speaking of financial matters, this week the council voted to approve $65,360 for the purchase of new police vehicles from Manhattan Beach Toyota as well as a fifth payment to Martinez Landscape for $123,024 for landscaping, weed abatement and general maintenance of the city.

The meeting rounded out with Interim City Manager Arnold Shadbehr being formally appointed to the position.

The council debated on an action item from Vargas to give Shadbehr authority to hire an independent auditor to figure out the status of the city’s reserve funds, following a report in The Daily Breeze that suggested that there was money missing from the city’s reserve. Shadbehr was given the authority and added that he would present a plan and early findings to the council at a meeting on Thursday at 6 p.m. The meeting will be open to the public. •

Me and Earl and the Dying Girl Is a Sincere, Offbeat Dramedy.

By Jeffrey Rindskopf for CINEMACY

It's hard to deny the power of the two anchoring performances in Me and Earl and the Dying Girl—those of Thomas Mann, or Me, and Olivia Cooke, or the Dying Girl. Mann plays Greg, a reserved teenager whose high school life depends on a carefully cultivated neutrality and lack of involvement, soon threatened when his mother decides he should befriend an ailing classmate he barely knows. So we meet Olivia Cooke, Thomas Mann, and RJ Cyler in Me and Earl and the Dying Girl. Photo courtesy of Fox Searchlight.

Rachel (Cooke), a teenager recently diagnosed with cancer who rejects Greg's obligatory pity before she's eventually charmed by his awkward magnetism.

Me and Earl and the Dying Girl thrives on the strength of these two characters and the easychemistry of the perfectly cast young actors. Their first full scene together, wherein Greg breaks through Rachel's depressed façade with some off-the-cuff observations about the attractive pillows in her room—don't worry, it works better in context—is easily one of the film's best.

Though this relationship is surely the film's most important, it doesn't always get the focus it deserves, as the film spends much of its time rounding out the supporting players in Greg's life. Greg makes arthouse parody films with his best friend, or "coworker" as he insists on calling him, Earl (RJ Cyler), he endures the doting of Rachel's wino mother (Molly Shannon), he enjoys exotic foods courtesy of his anthropologist father (Nick Offerman), he watches movies during lunch in the office of a cool teacher (John Bernthal)—the list goes on.

There are certain clichés that almost inevitably come with any modern independent coming-of-age tale, and unfortunately, despite its strong lead performances, Me and Earl doesn't completely avoid those clichés. The movie hinges upon the arc of Greg, a mostly well-sketched character whose crippling self-esteem issues come to the film's forefront once he unwillingly embarks on a near-endless endeavor to create a movie for Rachel. There's real poignancy to the tale, as Greg is forced to confront his own feelings of self-hatred along with a newfound fear of death that comes from being in such close proximity to someone who is really, truly, slowly dying.

It's puzzling then, why director Alfonso Gomez-Rejon felt the need to dilute the poignant tale with so many extraneous stylistic choices, with so much quirk. The movie opens with an unrelated voiceover and a couple cutesy claymation interludes as Greg ponders the best way to begin a story—both the claymation interludes and the voiceover continue intermittently and unnecessarily throughout the film. In one scene, Earl and Greg get unexpectedly high, and even hallucinate giant costumed animals, after consuming some mysterious drugged comestibles. One puzzling subplot involves a pretty classmate who unknowingly leads Greg on, only for her to inevitably profess actual interest in him, though he's hardly said more than a dozen words in her presence.

It's not that these clichés are inherently bad, but it's hard to justify their existence within the context of Me and Earl, when the film's runtime would be better spent allowing the characters to develop naturally. While Greg may be well-drawn, many of the supporting players never get their fair share of screen time or development due to the film's preoccupation with such quirk. In spite of his title billing, Earl for one never really develops beyond a straight-shooting comic relief who occasionally doles out information on the source of Greg's insecurities, hinting at strained relationships with his parents—relationships that also get short shrift. The film is instead crowded with diversions that don't really do anything to propel the narrative or its characters forward. Plus, they're just not very funny or interesting.

It's a shame, as Me and Earl and the Dying Girl is often far smarter than its cookie-cutter coming-of-age plot might imply. There's a lot to enjoy when the film occasionally finds its groove, letting the characters develop and bounce off of each other naturally, but there's a lot to groan about too. The former slightly outweighs the latter, and the film is made worth seeing thanks to the occasional flashes of brilliant writing and the strong cast.

Me and Earl and the Dying Girl opens at ArcLight Beach Cities (and other major theaters) this Friday, June 12th. •

IUSD Implements School2Home Technology

The Inglewood Unified School District and the California Emerging Technology Fund (CETF) are announcing a pilot program to implement School2Home, a program that has been proven to improve student achievement by providing improved access to technology.

Under the program, starting next year, 300 Inglewood 7th graders at Crozier Middle School will have home access to Chrome book computers, while their parents and teachers will receive training about how best to use computers to learn and their school, Crozier will have a wireless connection to the Internet. Both CETF and the Inglewood Unified School District are contributing to the partnership.

School2Home, which is managed by CETF, tackles two of California's most critical and related challenges: Increasing student achievement at low-performing middle schools to help close the Achievement Gap and increasing the adoption of computing skills and broadband service by the families of underserved middle school students to help close the Digital Divide. ## News for the 'City of Good Neighbors'

From City Clerk Norb Huber

FLAG DAY

This Sunday, June 14th, is Flag Day in the USA. It's another opportunity to show we are Americans, united in our allegiance to one nation under God. I love to see our nation's flag flown out in front of homes in my neighborhood and around Hawthorne. We live in the greatest nation on earth, we should show our patriotism.

NBA FINALS

It seems weird not to have the Lakers or Celtics or Spurs or Heat in the NBA Finals this year. It IS nice to see some teams that have been down for a long time make it to the biggest show in the basketball world. I grew up rooting for the San Francisco Warriors who couldn't find a decent arena to play in so they moved across the Bay to Oakland to become the Golden State Warriors. Rick Berry was one of my idols "back in the day" when the Warriors won a world championship 40 years ago.

HOLLY PARK HOMEOWNERS ASSOCIATION TO HOLD PANCAKE BREAKFAST

The Holly Park HOA will hold their annual Pancake Breakfast on Saturday, June 13th at Olivet Lutheran Church located at 2506 West Imperial Hwy in Hawthorne from 8 a.m.-12 noon. The cost is only $5 for adults. All funds raised go to a scholarship given each year to a deserving high school graduate.

HOLLYWOOD FRINGE FESTIVAL'S "MIGHT AS WELL LIVE" COMES TO HAWTHORNE

Producer Jason Gromski and Writer/Director Adam Scott Weissman announce the

up-and-coming play Might as Well Live is adding a onetime only performance in Hawthorne, in addition to its run at the Hollywood Fringe Festival. Based on four hilarious and heartbreaking stories by famed author Dorothy Parker, the show will have a single performance on Sunday, June 14th at 3:00 PM at Gallery H at Phantom Galleries LA, 12619 Hawthorne Blvd. A minimum donation of $5 is recommended for entry.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY MEETING

The Hawthorne Historical Society's next meeting is this coming Monday, June 15 starting at 6:30 p.m. at the Hawthorne Museum. We will have a guest speaker, refreshments and plenty of good conversation about our fine city. Make plans to attend.

POLICE AND FIREMEN TO BE HONORED

The Hawthorne Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs jointly sponsor a luncheon each year to honor one police officer and one fireman from our Hawthorne stations. This year the luncheon will be held on Wednesday, June 17th at the Memorial Center. If you are interested in attending please contact the City Manager's office at City Hall.

HAWTHORNE EDUCATION FOUNDATION GOLF TOURNAMENT

Our Hawthorne kids benefit from this charity golf tournament which will be held on Monday, June 22 at Chester Washington Golf Course. If you are interested in playing, please contact Steve Tabor at the Hawthorne School District.

Eight Scholarship Recipients Recognized During Board Meeting

By Cristian Vasquez

Hawthorne School Board members, along with Terry Hays-Horner and Ann Paour from American Association of University Women Beach Cities Branch, recognized eight of the district's seventh grade students for earning the AAUW Beach Cities Branch Tech Trek Science Camp Scholarships.

The Hawthorne School District students, all girls, Jacqueline May, Shelbie Nguyen and Shannon Sukantri from Bud Carson Middle School; Isabella Cruz, Valeria Iniguez and Amy Johnson from Hawthorne Middle School; Shemiah Nesbeth and Yamileth Sanchez from Prairie Vista Middle School were present at the meeting, with the exception of Johnson.

"We are honored and privileged that the American Association of University Women are here to present some scholarships to our middle school students," Hawthorne Superintendent Dr. Helen Morgan said. "We have eight recipients this year which is more than we have had in a long time."

All nine of the scholarship recipients will have the opportunity to attend Tech Trek, a science and math summer camp designed specifically for girls with the goal of sparking an interest in the seventh-grade students to pursue science, technology, engineering and math [STEM] careers.

"The best thing about it [Tech Trek] is that it gives the girls the opportunity to stay on a college campus. They stay at the dorms, the go to classes throughout the day and take field trips to different areas," Paour said. "All of the activities are tied to science, technology, math and engineering. The camp takes place Monday through Friday and it is a good opportunity for the girls to experience college life, away from their families."

At present AAUW represents more than 100,000 college graduates across the United States and membership is open to anyone who has an AA degree.

"It [AAUW] is the oldest and largest national organization working for equality and the advancement of women through education," Paour said. "It works in coalition with a number of other organizations supporting legislation involving child care, educational equity, pay equity, parental leave, school based public centers, gender balance and responsible funding for education."

During the late 1990s, an AAUW member near Stanford expressed their concern regarding the fact that there weren't enough women in the math and science careers, also referred to as STEM careers. As a result, in 1998 the AAUW started this program on the Stanford campus and named it Tech Trek. There are now eight campuses in the state, four in Northern California and four in Southern California [UC San Diego, UC Irvine, UC Santa Barbara and Whittier College], that are dedicated to operating these summer camps.

"Since I have been a member of AAUW in 2006, we started giving scholarships to girls in the Hawthorne School District," Hays-Horner said. "What was very cool, because I worked here, is that I was able to speak to the principals to start this with the seventh-grade girls. Why seventh grade girls? That is when girls might start having interests develop in different areas, so we introduce them to this."

The AAUW Beach Cities branch was named the Manhattan Beach branch but with members from Redondo Beach, Hermosa Beach, El Segundo, Santa Monica and Pacific Palisades, the name was changed to reflect its more inclusive efforts.

In order to select the scholarship winners each year, science teachers at the middle schools are asked to nominate girls who demonstrate an interest in the sciences. Once the science teacher nominates the student, the student is responsible for filling out and submitting an application, which includes writing an essay that is read by AAUW branch members. The girls are then interviewed by a couple of the branch members and a decision is made based in all three requirements.

"One of the reasons our beach cities branch has moved toward looking into Hawthorne, Lawndale and Wiseburn is because there are some families in this area where the girls might not be as encouraged to go on to college," Paour said. "This gives them a exposure to college and gives them that opportunity to say 'This is something I can do and that I want to do.'"

The scholarship recipients are asked to pay $50 but the cost of the scholarship itself is $900 per student, which covers the week's activities at Tech Trek.

"These girls are amazing," Hays-Horner said. "First they have to be nominated by a teacher and then they have to go through a vigorous selection process. No parent can pay for their child to go to Tech Trek; it has to be a nomination." •

Pluto's Moons Seen in Highest Detail Yet

Based on press release from University of Maryland, provided by Bob Eklund

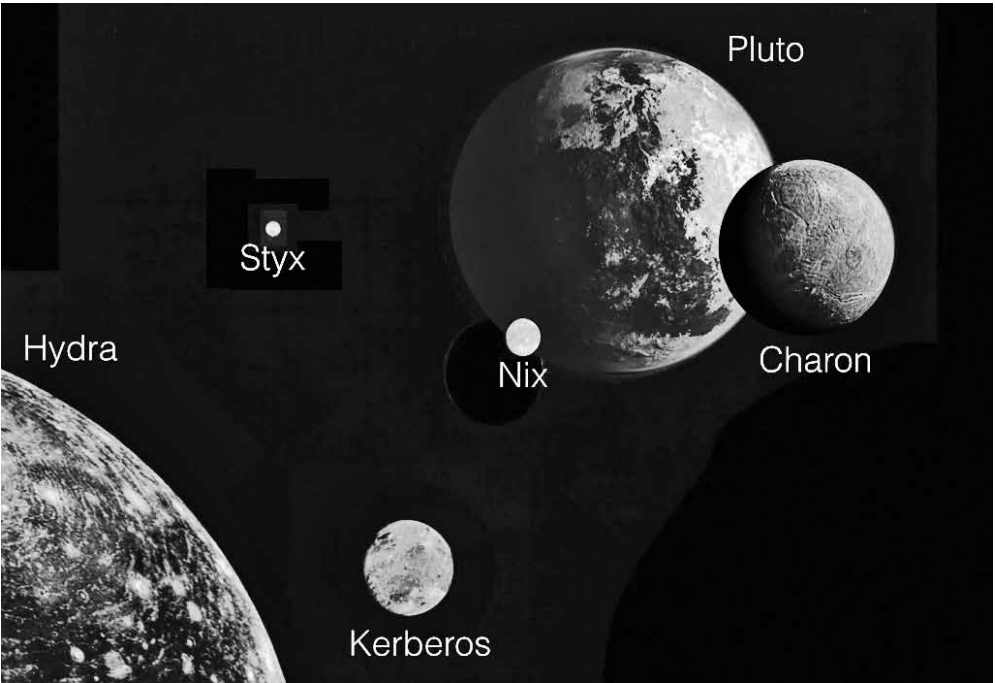

Much ink has been spilled over Pluto's reclassification as a dwarf planet. And yet, such discussions have not diminished scientific interest in Earth's most distant cousin. A new study is the first to reveal fascinating details about the orbital and rotational patterns of Pluto and its five known moons.

The study, published in the June 4, 2015, issue of the journal Nature, describes a system dominated by Pluto and its largest moon, Charon, which together form a "binary planet." Four smaller moons orbit this pair. The paper reports the techniques used to discover the two smallest moons, Kerberos and Styx, and also provides a detailed description of the strange and unpredictable rotational states of the two slightly larger moons, Nix and Hydra.

Later this summer, NASA's New Horizons spacecraft will pass by Pluto and its five known moons, providing the most detailed look at this planetary system to date. Kerberos and Styx were discovered in 2011 and 2012, respectively, while Nix and Hydra were first discovered in 2005.

"Like good children, our moon and most others keep one face focused attentively on their parent planet," said Douglas Hamilton, professor of astronomy at the University of Maryland and a co-author of the Nature study. "What we've learned is that Pluto's moons are more like ornery teenagers who refuse to follow the rules."

The imbalanced and dynamically shifting

This illustration depicts Pluto and its five known moons -- Charon, Styx, Nix, Kerberos, and Hydra -- from a perspective looking away from the sun. It is adapted from a classic Voyager 1 montage of Jupiter's Galilean moons, and is intended to highlight similarities between the Pluto and Jupiter systems when adjusted for size. Approaching the system, the outermost moon is Hydra, seen in the bottom left corner. The other moons are roughly scaled to the sizes they would appear from this perspective, although they are all enlarged relative to the planet. Credit: NASA/JPL/M. Showalter, SETI Institute gravitational field created by Pluto and Charon sends the smaller moons tumbling in unpredictable ways. The effect is amplified by the fact that the moons are roughly football shaped, rather than rounded spheres. The findings are the result of a comprehensive analysis of Hubble Space Telescope data regarding the orbits and properties of the four smaller moons.

In contrast to these seemingly random rotational motions, the moons follow a surprisingly predictable pattern as they orbit the binary planet formed by Pluto and Charon. Three of them—Nix, Styx and Hydra—are locked together in resonance, meaning that their orbits follow a clockwork pattern of regularity. The same effect can be seen in three of Jupiter's large moons.

"The resonant relationship between Nix, Styx and Hydra makes their orbits more regular and predictable, which prevents them from crashing into one another," Hamilton said. "This is one reason why tiny Pluto is able to have so many moons."

The study also revealed that Kerberos is as dark as charcoal, while the other moons are as bright as white sand. "This is a very provocative result," said lead author Mark Showalter, a senior research scientist at the SETI Institute. Astronomers had predicted that dust created by meteorite impacts should coat all the moons evenly, giving their surfaces a uniform look.

"Prior to the Hubble observations, nobody appreciated the intricate dynamics of the Pluto system," Showalter said. The New Horizons flyby in July may help solve the mystery of Kerberos' dark surface, and will refine scientists' understanding of the odd rotational and orbital patterns uncovered by Hubble. The New Horizons team is using Showalter and Hamilton's discoveries to help guide science planning efforts.

Among other expected insights, a more detailed study of the chaotic Pluto-Charon system could reveal how planets orbiting a distant binary star might behave. Although many exoplanets have been found to orbit binary stars, these star systems are too far away to figure out their rotational patterns using existing technology.

"We are learning that chaos may be a common trait of binary systems," Hamilton said. "It might even have consequences for life on planets orbiting binary stars." •

The Carl Magee Jr. District 37 Tournament of Champions began on May 30 which the beginning of a road of Little League Baseball and Softball Playoff Tournaments that will last throughout the summer. The All-Stars are expected to begin with the District 37 Tournaments on June 20 at various sites.

In Major Baseball, the Holly Park Angels from Hawthorne played the Westchester Cardinals last Sunday with the winner continuing to play in the winner's bracket today at 6 p.m. at Carl Nielsen Youth Sports

Park in Westchester and the loser having on Saturday at the same time at Holly Park.

The Angels began the tournament with a 10-5 win over the Tri Park Braves on May 30 and the Lennox Dodgers 6-1 a day later. The Angels, then, defeated the Compton 10-5 on June 2.

As of June 3, the Holly Park Yankees are unbeaten in two games with wins over the Hawthorne Wiseburn Dodgers 14-2 and the Del Rey Mariners 13-5 a day later. The Holly Park Dodgers opened with a 2-1 win over Del Rey on May 30, then defeated another Del Rey team 5-1 on May 31.

In the 50-70 (ages 11-13) Division, Wiseburn and Lawndale played in the first game of the championship series last Sunday but results were unavailable. Wiseburn already downed Lawndale 5-2 on May 31. Lawndale opened the tournament by shutting out Tri Park 7-0 on May 30. The games are at Jim Thorpe Park in Hawthorne. Also at Thorpe Park, the Lennox Phillies were to face the Inglewood Sportsman Angels in a winner's bracket game of the Junior (ages 13-14) baseball game last Monday.

The Phillies have wins over Compton (4-2 on May 31) and the Holly Park Red Sox (9-1 on June 2). Sportsman topped Lennox 4 (7-4 on May 31) and the Lennox Diablos (score unavailable) on June 2. The Diablos and the Red Sox are still in the loser's bracket.

In Senior Baseball, Lennox swept both openers on May 30. Lennox 2 defeated Aviation 7-3 and the Titans rolled over the Lawndale Pirates 17-3.

In Minor (ages 9-10) Baseball, the Westchester Rockies and the Holly Park Reds are both unbeaten. Holly Park began with a 16-4 rout of Compton on May 30, then topped the Westchester Yankees 15-11 a day later. The Reds, then, outlasted the Westchester Braves 7-6 on June 2 and the rival Bluejays on June 3. Holly Park hosted last Sunday's showdown.

Last Friday in Minor Baseball loser's bracket games, the Tri Park Red Sox and Westchester Yankees rolled to easy four-inning mercy rule victories. Tri Park blanked the Sportsman Angels 15-0 and the Yankees routed the Lennox Tigers 18-0.

In Tri Park's win, Alex Rodriguez went two-for-two with three runs scored. Jacob Cordona had two doubles and drove in four runs. Adam Godinez added a two-run single and Adrian Santeccan was two-for-two with two runs batted in. The Tournament of Champions will last into next week.

St. Mary's Relay Places Fifth

St. Mary's Academy's girls' track and field team from Inglewood had some athletes, including its 4x100-meter relay team, involved in last Friday and Saturday's California State Championships at Buchanan High School's Memorial Stadium in Clovis.

Its 400 relay squad of Anaiah Brown, Aluijah Hale, Briana Shufford and Keshawna Myles finished fifth at 46.66 seconds in the finals on Saturday. Winning the race was Westlake Village Oaks Christian, clocking 45.66. Placing second through fourth, in order, were Gardena Serra (45.82), Upland (46.07) and host Buchanan (46.5).

The Belles had two athletes who were eliminated in Friday's Prelims. Hale took 13th overall in the 300 hurdles in 43.66 and Kyra Anderson was 14th overall in the 100 hurdles timing 14.54. The top nine overall finishers advanced to the finals. Senior Jasmyne Graham from Eastvale Roosevelt won both hurdles. She captured the 100 in 13.17 and the 300 clocking 40.73. Both of those times were among the tops in the United States this year.

Oaks Christian, which won the 4x100 relay, also won the girls' state team championship with 34 points. Winning the state boys' crown was Vista Murrieta, behind premiere sprinter Michael Norman, with 48 points. Norman, ranked among the top junior (ages 19 and under) sprinters in the world and one of the best prepsters of all time, recorded the top junior time in the world at 20.3 seconds in the 200 and is ranked third in the world in the 400 after a time of 45.19. Just a junior, Norman will be looking at being the first prep sprinter to break 20 seconds in the 200 and 45 in the 400 for next season and could, right out of high school, have a shot at a spot in the 2016 Summer Olympics in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. He is already being compared and, possibly, ahead of the efforts of 1980's Hawthorne High stars Henry Thomas and eventual Olympic gold medalist (200 meters and 4x100 relay in 1992 in Barcelona, Spain) Michael Marsh. •

See Solar Power In A New Light This Summer

(BPT) - With sunny summer months right around the corner and energy bills continuing to rise, more and more Americans are making the switch to solar powering their homes. In 2014, the U.S. added more than 186,000 individual residential solar installations, according to GTM Research. As a result, more homeowners are enjoying the cost savings and benefits of the sun year-round. With this rising home trend, make sure you know fact from fiction by rethinking these common myths about what it means to "go solar":

• Myth No. 1: Solar systems must receive constant sunshine to power a home. Many people mistakenly assume that solar systems only operate when the sky is clear and the sun is out. However, ultraviolet (UV) rays that power solar systems can peak through even on the cloudiest days. Whether you live in a cool, cloudy or foggy climate, you can power your home with clean energy while saving money by going solar.

• Myth No. 2: Solar panels take away from the "curb appeal" of the home. With more of today's homeowners choosing to go solar, there are more options than ever to make the panels blend seamlessly with the aesthetics of your home and roofing. Today's solar power systems can be combined with slate, metal, fiber-cement and asphalt roofing, to ensure a smooth transition to your home. However, with the solar trend on the rise - why hide the fact that you're saving money through clean energy?

• Myth No. 3: Solar systems require constant upkeep from the homeowner. Contrary to popular belief, many of today's solar systems require little maintenance and cleaning from the homeowner. People who choose providers like Sunrun, the largest dedicated residential solar company in the U.S., get to reap the benefits without having to lift a finger. The company customizes solar systems to each customers' specific lifestyle needs, and provides the monitoring and maintenance of the panels so you have peace of mind knowing your panels are being taken care of.

• Myth No. 4: Installing and financing a solar system is too expensive. Installing a solar system on your home is more affordable than ever. Through residential solar leasing models offered today, the barriers of going solar are broken down through solar system installations with no upfront costs and as little as $0 down. Homeowners that have gone this route with Sunrun, end up saving 20 percent on their energy bills. Spend those savings on other things you love this summer - or take a road trip to a new destination on your list. •

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale.
