Inglewood City to Update Drug, Alcohol Policy for Transportation Employees

By Cristian Vasquez

A staff report presented by the Human Resource Department is recommending that the city council adopt a resolution that would approve updated drug and alcohol policy that would be in compliance with a federal drug and alcohol-testing program.

The federal drug and alcohol-testing program is the same being administered by the Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority [LACMTA]. This program dictates the rules that transportation employees must abide to with regards to alcohol and drug use in order to ensure safe and dependable transportation services. The staff report indicated that on an annual basis the City of Inglewood is audited by LACMTA. During the most recent preaudit, it was revealed that the city’s drug and alcohol policy is in need of an update in order to be compliant with the Department of Transportation [DOT] and the Federal Transportation Administration [FTA] and their rules and regulations.

The policy required, and set by the city, is an attempt to ensure that all employees are fit to perform their duties and that the safety of employees, passengers and the public from the harms of misusing drugs and alcohol is guaranteed. In order for local agencies to receive federal grant money that can be used for safety sensitive and transportation services, said policy must be in compliance. Furthermore, the report indicates: “As a condition of the City’s receipt of these federal funds, the City is required to implement a program that is in compliance with DOT Part 40 and FTA

This program dictates the rules that transportation employees must abide to with regards to alcohol and drug use in order to ensure safe and dependable transportation services.

Part 655.” The City of Inglewood is one of the sub grantees of the LACMTA Pass-Through Program and is under constant monitoring and periodic audits to ensure compliance, as are required by FTA.

With the city being audited yearly and with the rules and laws changing annually as well, staying current on compliance is an ongoing task for the city. Back in October 2013 the Mayor and City Council passed a resolution that updated the city’s drug and alcohol program policy. The staff report was during that year’s preaudit that the auditor “identified formatting and language changes required for the City’s policy to meet DOT and FTA mandates.”

Those recommended changes included being able to identify the city’s authority against that of DOT and FTA authority in the language of the policy, which in turn would meet FTA requirements. Such changes included including language that emphasized the city’s authority in bold fonts, meaning that all bold-face fonts is to be enforced by the city and not DOT or FTA.

As of the last policy update, all safety-sensitive prospective and current employees were required to submit drug and alcohol tests. A refusal by an employee to submit a test will be considered a positive test result, which will lead to a variety of consequences.

All safety-sensitive employees are: any who operate a revenue-service vehicle; employees who operating a non-revenue service vehicle when required to be operated by someone with a commercial driver’s license; employees who control dispatch or the movement of a revenue service vehicle; and those who maintain a revenue service vehicle or the equipment used in a revenue service vehicle. •

Employee Engagement Is The Secret For Small Businesses

(BPT) - One of the biggest worries for a small business owner is training and investing in quality employees and then losing them to a larger company - potentially a competitor - that might be able to offer larger salaries or better benefits.

It might look like a no-win scenario for a small business to entice quality employees to stay, except for one factor - engagement. When employees are engaged in the company business, they're less likely to jump ship, they'll be more productive and they'll make the company more money, according to a Hay Group Study.

"Why should anyone care if they have engaged employees?" asks David Fagiano, chief operating officer for Dale Carnegie Training. "Engaged employees create superior results. A Gallup study shows that companies with more engaged employees outperform others by up to 202 percent. That translates to a substantially better bottom line.

How can a small business owner encourage his employees to become more engaged in the company? Consider the following drivers of engagement:

- A sense of value: Employees who feel valued tend to be fully engaged in a company's goals and help achieve big milestones. Supervisors have the ability to create this sense of value, which can lead to confidence, empowerment, enthusiasm and inspiration. Review how your employees are supervised. Are they trusted to do their jobs without heavy review? Do they ask for help only when needed? When requested, do they receive assistance? Finally, do employees feel their supervisors are being honest when presenting information or answering questions? According to the Dale Carnegie Training "How to Drive Employee Engagement in Small and Mid-sized Businesses" whitepaper, 67 percent of employees deem that having help or support when needed is important, compared to 46 percent who report that compensation increases above the cost of living is important.

• Continued training: Investing in employee training develops a bond between the employee and the business. Additional training shows the employee there's room to grow in the company, and that the business values his or her expertise. Plus, the company benefits by having employees learning the latest information in the industry.

• Improved communication: There is a difference in opinion on how well employers communicate with employees. According to the whitepaper, employers think they do a better job of it than their workers report. Because of this discrepancy, employers need to make more effort in communicating business information. Consider holding a weekly progress report meeting or developing a newsletter. Involve employees in meetings discussing the future of the company, and give everyone tasks to help achieve the goals that are decided upon. This allows employees to feel they're taking an ownership in the company, which will lead to them becoming more engaged.

Making an employee feel like he or she is important can take the professional relationship far. "Engagement means winning the hearts as well as the minds of employees," Fagiano says. "It's the difference between someone in your company saying, 'I understand where this company is going,' versus, 'I believe in where this company is going.' If you can generate belief at that level, you can drive spectacular results." •

News for the ‘City of Good Neighbors’

From City Clerk Norb Huber

Labor Day

Wikipedia states the following about Labor Day: “It is a celebration of the American labor movement and is dedicated to the social and economic achievements of workers. It constitutes a yearly national tribute to the contributions workers have made to the strength, prosperity, and well-being of their country.” Yes, we do thank God for our labor. We are thankful that most of us are employed and able to work. The hard work and entrepreneurial spirit of America has made our nation what it is, the greatest country that has ever been formed in the history of the world.

With all of that being said, to the average American, Labor Day means a lot more exciting things. It means a day off from work. It means a three day weekend. It means BBQ’s or a day at the beach. To me it has always been bitter-sweet. It’s the unofficial end of summer. As a teacher, for the past 37 years Labor Day has signaled the end of my summer freedom and the start of reporting to my classroom when the bell rings.

Fall is Football Season

For some sports fans, baseball is something they “endure” between the Super Bowl in February, spring football practice in April and May and the opening of football training camp in July. There really is only one season for serious football fanatics. The NFL is the most popular professional sports league in the world. There are fantasy leagues, tailgate parties, corporate suites, gambling schemes, all-access television packages, 24 hours football sports bars and many wives who enjoy their free time while their husbands watch hundreds of games. I enjoy college football more so than the professional. Young men are competing for their school, hoping to be good enough to make it to the next level and play on Sundays. High school football gives so many guys an opportunity to take their aggressiveness out in a controlled environment. For all the football injuries that have been widely publicized recently, the “good” that comes from playing football can not be overlooked. Teamwork, dedication, overcoming adversity, physical challenge, and much more are all lessons that come when participating.

The question the parent must answer, “Do I want my son to risk being injured for all the good things that come from playing football?”.

Neon Sign

The Hawthorne Grill restaurant was located at the corner of 137th and Hawthorne Blvd for a few years in the late 1990’s taking over for Holly’s which was a popular “coffee shop and hang out” for many Hawthornites. When the building was being torn down to build the new AutoZone, a local resident purchased the “Hawthorne” neon sign and stored it along side of his driveway. He recently donated the sign to the Hawthorne Historical Society and last week the sign was installed on the side of the Hawthorne Museum. At night the pink neon lights shout out Hawthorne to all who drive into the library’s parking lot. Seeing the sign might bring back a few memories for those who frequented the Grill in years gone by.

Cameras for Cops

Mayor Chris Brown has proposed that every Hawthorne police officer wear a body camera while on duty. In light of the recent police shooting in Missouri, this may sound like a great idea. However, there are many things that have to be considered before this would take place. Among the concerns would be privacy concerns when the officers’ video reveals personal issues with suspects or victims, storage of video content, cost associated with purchasing and maintaining the cameras and monitoring system, and legal issues that may arise from citizens who object to being taped. They say a picture is worth a thousand words, in this case a picture or video may prevent thousands of dollars in legal fees or even prevent the death of a suspect or officer. We will be watching to see how this all plays out. Watch the City Council meeting for continuing discussion.

Installation of Officers and Civic Awards- Chamber

The Hawthorne Chamber of Commerce announces the 44th Annual Installation of Officers and Civic Awards dinner to be held on Friday, September 26 with registration to begin at 5:30 pm and the program at 6:30 pm. Politically Speaking

One Man’s Opinion

A Day Like Any Other

By Gerry Chong

Yawn. This is a day like any other. Woke up to a cup of coffee, the morning paper and the internet news. It’s all the same stuff. Even the President wasn’t all that excited. His speech from Martha’s Vineyard condemned the beheading of an American journalist before he retired to the golf course to join former NBA star Alonzo Mourning. Not much to get excited about. He said what was expected, that he would “relentlessly” pursue justice against the Islamic terror group ISIS. Blah, blah, blah. . . .

When British Prime Minister heard the news of the beheading, he cut his vacation short, but the Brit is not the picture of cool our President is. Our laid back man just went back to play. After all, it’s not like there’s a shortage of journalists, and they knew the dangers of their profession, so it’s on to the first tee.

Meanwhile, half way ’round the world, The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights revealed that ISIS had the best month in its history. It had expanded by 6,300 recruits, bringing its membership to as many as 50,000. Of those, 20,000 were foreigners from Chechnya, China, Europe, and Arab countries. A strong recruiting effort is being made to admit foreigners so Jihad can strike anywhere in the world.

ISIS encourages Western Muslims to abandon their families and move to Syria to fight. In Canada, for example, they utilize videos showing hockey and fishing scenes; in Indonesia, they hand out free fried chicken vouchers . . . any device to recruit warriors.

In the Middle East, they use preaching vans travelling from village to village encouraging children to “Kill all Infidels.” The vans urge religious minorities to convert to Islam or be killed. Even Muslims who are considered not extreme enough are slaughtered.

By the numbers, if our side in the war against terror is not killing more than 6,500 Jihadists each month, we’re losing the numbers in the war But not to worry, with fashionable shades and the most stylish shorts and shirts, Joe Cool’s showing his grit and dedication. Why, on the first tee, he smashed a drive 250 yards down the middle, pretending ISIS was the golf ball.

This morning’s Fox News anchor asked his audience to name one, just one, decision Obama has made in foreign affairs that has resulted in a positive conclusion. Libya? Egypt? Afghanistan? Iran? Iraq? North Korea? Ukraine? Syria? How about Hamas and Hezbollah against Israel? How are we doing in our battle with al Qaeda? Have we tamed Boko Haram? Have we stemmed Somalia’s pirate attacks?

Yes, this day is a day like any other. As the world spasms, our man is cool. In June he vacationed in Rancho Mirage. In July he attended 12 fundraisers charging $32,000 a plate, while condemning the role of Big Money in American politics. Since it’s August he’s kicking back in Martha’s Vineyard for 16 days. The word is that his hosts in the California desert are preparing for an encore in October, before his Christmas vacation in Hawaii. He’s cool, man, super cool. •

Another Man’s Opinion

Banning Plastic Bags Won’t Save the World

By Cristian Vasquez

Recycling has always been a big deal in our house. My grandmother and parents recycle, as does my roommate, so we have never been opposed to doing our part to minimize our negative impact on Mother Nature through our everyday actions. However; Senate Bill 270, which attempts to ban plastic bags everywhere in California, is an absurd solution to a legitimate problem. There is nothing ridiculous about trying to minimize the impact of our daily-use items on nature. Yet, banning plastic bags at a statewide level is a shortsighted solution that will have little influence in society’s attempts to save the environment.

Plastic bags have become Public Enemy No. 1 to the ocean. Dumping them hurts sea animals and bags become part of trash gyros in our vast oceans, which in turn affects ocean life even more. This is a legitimate concern, but plastic bags aren’t going to doom sea life into extinction; overfishing will take care of that better than a plastic bag from Vons. If the concern about using plastic bags is based on the detrimental effects that they have on the environment, then we should focus on the littering tendencies in our society more than one single item itself.

This leads me to another issue: SB270 does not include any elements of litter reduction. I’m not doubting the sincerity with which environmentalists are addressing this issue, but why are plastic bags being singled out with such tenacity? The problem to me would be the fact that there is trash making its way to the ocean. The focus should be on reducing waste on land and finding ways to prevent any type of trash and waste from entering our creeks, rivers and storm drains so that none of our trash ends up in the ocean. If banning plastic bags to protect the environment is a better solution than preventing trash from entering the ocean to begin with, then let’s just ban everything that turns into trash.

Let’s ban paper bags from all fast food restaurants; let’s ban the wrapping paper that restaurants use to wrap our food; we should also ban plastic utensils; maybe we can even ban pens since they too are made of plastic and if we are honest with ourselves, everyone loses pens. My point is that banning useful items in the name of environmental protection is a cop-out that will fail to fix the problem while inconveniencing the majority of the population.

Chances are I will be criticized for this stance, as I have been when I vocalized these same sentiments to people in the past. That’s okay. I have come to accept that this plastic bag ban trend is not my cup of tea. While I do agree with not harming our environment, I also believe that banning plastic bags, or charging an additional 10 cents for them, will not save our ocean. For us to save our environment, we need to be conscious of our actions and modify our behaviors. I for one will continue using plastic bags not as a sign of protest but simply because it is more convenient and because I do not throw my reusable plastic bags into the ocean. I keep these bags and use them at home in ways that make my life a lot easier and without hurting the environment. My efforts to save marine life will be a bit more practical . . . I will avoid eating seafood. That will save more fish than any plastic bag ban ever will. •

Hawthorne Seeks to Turn Things Around

By Joe Snyder

It has been 10 years since Hawthorne High’s football team made the CIF-Southern Section playoffs. From there, it has been nothing but misery for the Cougars: a 45-game losing streak that stretched from 2005 to 2010. Hawthorne has not experienced a winning season since winning the Ocean League and advancing to the Southern Section Western Division playoffs where it lost to a premiere Ventura St. Bonaventure team in 2004.

This year, Hawthorne looks improved and could surprise the Ocean, which, this season, consists of last season’s Southern Section Northwest Division finalist El Segundo (from the Pioneer League), Centinela High School District rival Lawndale (also from the Pioneer), defending league champion Culver City, Santa Monica and Beverly Hills.

The Cougars will be led by second team all-Ocean League tailback Paris McDaniel, who rushed for 1,350 yards and 11 touchdowns for their 2-8 overall squad (1-4 in league). Hawthorne has two other returning allleaguers in seniors offensive lineman Suluasi Vaca, offensive lineman Eric Mateols and defensive back Jafeleel Enriquez. Junior Benjamin Delgado is a returning linebacker. Sophomore wide receiver/safety Jamal Neal is a key newcomer, according to head coach Donald Paysinger, in his second season with the Cougars. “We’re stronger and in better condition this year,” Paysinger said. “I feel we can win the Ocean.”

It appears that El Segundo is the Ocean favorite, but according to Paysinger, Culver City and Santa Monica are always strong. The Centaurs, who could have been one of the top contenders for the league and Southern Section Western Division crown, are hampered with the loss of five players who transferred out of the school, including highly regarded running back Stanley Norman, who transferred to powerhouse Gardena Serra in February. According to sources, Santa Monica appears to be in a rebuilding season after losing a majority of its top players from last season. This could give Hawthorne some hope.

The Ocean remains in the Western Division, along with other South Bay leagues, the Bay and Pioneer. The Cougars begin play at home against Lynwood in a non-league game on Sept. 5 at 7 p.m.

INGLEWOOD HAS HIGH HOPES IN BRUTAL BAY

Under first year head coach Jason Miller, Inglewood High’s football team moves to the always rugged Bay League, but Miller and his coaching staff like their chances at not only competing in that league but winning it all.

The Sentinels, who narrowly missed the Western Division playoffs after losing their Ocean League finale to cross town rival Morningside, return 13 starters (seven on offense and six on defense), including some that are being highly recruited by Major Division I colleges.

Receiver-linebacker Mike Williams is one of several Major Division I college recruits on Inglewood High’s football team. The Sentinels begin their season on Sept. 5 at Laguna Hills at 7 p.m.

One of the top players for Inglewood, which went 5-5 overall and 2-3 in Ocean play, is returning first team all-Ocean League slot receiver-linebacker Michael Williams. Williams is being recruited by several PAC 12 schools, including Washington State and also received interest from San Diego State. Another outstanding returning starter is all-Ocean cornerback De Juan Tyson, who received interests from Washington State, Arizona and Oregon State. Returning linebacker Darius Wright was one of the Sents’ leading tacklers from last season and is expected to be highly touted.

Inglewood has good speed behind all-Ocean honorable mention wide receiver Quest Bennett, who has run as fast as 10.79 seconds in the 100-meter dash in track and field last season, and running back Dezhaun Rodriguez, a 10.8 100 sprinter.

Junior Jerome Roseboro is expected to start at quarterback. Two other top players will be 252-pound fullback Darryl Johnson, who has very good speed for his size with a time of 4.7 in the 40-yard dash, and cornerback Dominic Emerson, who has spurred interests from Ivy League school Harvard, University of San Diego, Washington State and Washington. Emerson displays a 4.25-weighted grade point average in the classroom.

Inglewood moves to the Bay League and most observers feel that it will contend with league powers Palos Verdes (defending three-time Bay champion and 2012 Southern Section Northern Division champion) and Manhattan Beach Mira Costa. The Sentinels’ top rival, Morningside, also has very good talent and is expected to contend. Rolling Hills Estates Peninsula and Redondo are other league opponents. The Sentinels open at Laguna Hills on Sept. 5 at 7 p.m.

HAWKEYES LEAD DIVISION III

The Hawkeyes took the Hawthorne Parks and Recreation Youth Basketball Division III lead by defeating the Generals 29-23 in a showdown Saturday at the Betty Ainsworth Gymnasium. The Moseleys keyed the Hawkeyes as Imari led with 10 points and Mahlik added nine. Darrius Fantroy chipped in five points. Tyler Murray led the Generals with 10 points, followed by Vincent Okafor with six.

In other Division III contests, Game Tyme slipped past Prime Time 31-29 and the Lakers rolled over Ball Out 25-11.

In Division IV action, Been Winning remained unbeaten by breaking open a close game for a 62-48 win over Hard Work on Saturday. Marquese Cook led all scorers with 29 points for Been Winning. Joshua Love sparked Hard Work, which led 41-39 after three quarters, with 15 points. •

The Whirlpool Galaxy Messier 51 (M51) is seen from a distance of approximately 30 million light-years. This galaxy appears almost face-on and displays a beautiful system of spiral arms.

A European team of astronomers was able to observe M51 with the International LOFAR Telescope in the frequency range 115-175 MHz, just above the normal commercial FM radio frequency band of 88-108 MHz. The team obtained the most sensitive image of any galaxy at frequencies below 1 GHz so far.

With LOFAR's high sensitivity, the disk of M51 in the radio regime could be traced much further out than before. The astronomers detected cosmic electrons and magnetic fields 40,000 light-years away from the center of M51. With LOFAR's high angular resolution, the spiral arms are clearly visible. Magnetic fields and cosmic rays are densest in spiral arms. Compared to higher radio frequencies, spiral arms appear broader at low frequencies due to the diffusion of cosmic electrons away from the spiral arms where they have been formed.

The view of galaxies in the radio regime is different to their optical appearance. Whereas optical images show predominantly the visible light from stars, the radio waves unravel two constituents of galaxies that are invisible to optical telescopes: electrons and magnetic fields. Their role for the stability and evolution of galaxies is increasingly under discussion. The electrons are “cosmic ray” particles produced in the shock fronts of giant supernova explosions. Magnetic fields are generated by dynamo processes driven by gas motions. When the electrons spiral around the magnetic field lines, radio waves are emitted, a process called synchrotron emission. Its intensity increases with the number and energy of the electrons and with magnetic field strength.

The LOFAR telescope, headquartered in the Netherlands, can observe galaxies at a lower frequency band than had previously been allowed. The image shows Galaxy M51, observed at a rate of 151 MHz. Image courtesy of David Mulcahy.

For many decades, radio astronomy has been unable to explore frequencies below 300 MHz, because the ionosphere acts as a barrier of low-frequency radio waves (which are completely blocked below about 10 MHz). Sophisticated methods of data processing and superfast computers are needed to recover the emission. Due to these technical challenges, spiral galaxies have hardly been studied before at these very low radio frequencies. The only observations were of poor resolution and no details could be made out.

The target of investigation in David Mulcahy's PhD project was the beautiful spiral galaxy Messier 51, which is visible with small telescopes in the constellation Canes Venatici (not far from the Big Dipper).

“Low-frequency radio waves are important as they carry information about electrons of relatively low energies that are able to propagate further away from their places of origin in the star-forming spiral arms and are able to illuminate the magnetic fields in the outer parts of galaxies,” says Mulcahy. “We need to know whether magnetic fields are expelled from galaxies and what their strength is out there.”

The Low Frequency Array (LOFAR), designed and constructed by ASTRON in the Netherlands, is a brand new radio telescope giving access to very low radio frequencies. LOFAR explores the relatively unexplored frequency range below 240 MHz and consists of a multitude of small and simple antennas without moving parts. LOFAR consists of 38 stations in the Netherlands, 6 stations in Germany and one station each in the UK, France and Sweden. Signals from all of LOFAR's stations are combined online in a powerful computing cluster located at the University of Groningen (Netherlands). •
