Council Hears from Union Pacific; Gets Election Day Propositions

By Derrick Deane

At its Tuesday night meeting, the Hawthorne City Council heard presentations from Union Pacific Railroad as well as some upcoming propositions that will be on Election Day ballots in November.

Union Pacific Railroad Senior Director of Public Affairs Lupe Valdez spoke about noise and train schedule issues that had recently been voiced at the City Council meetings. One of the questions that has risen over the past few months is the use of the train's horn. Valdez said that it is required by state and federal law for any engineer to sound their horn. "It could be an Amtrak engineer, it could be Union Pacific or BSNF engineer, a Metrolink engineer...they have to sound their horn before they enter a crossing," Valdez said.

Valdez joked that when she worked at Metrolink, she would have people call her and say that they thought the engineer is upset because they were awake early and they wanted to wake everyone else up. "That is not the case," Valdez said. "He can get a very heavy fine by the Federal Railroad Administration if he does not sound the horn."

In 2015, the federal government passed a law that allowed local jurisdictions to pass so-called Quiet Zones. A Quiet Zone is a cooperation between a local jurisdiction and the railroad company and the California Public Utilities Commission. "We can't do anything with a [railroad] crossing without approval from the California Public Utilities Commission," Valdez said. "They have jurisdiction and a special arm on the railroad side."

A Quiet Zone also needs to be approved by the Federal Railroad Association and has specific safety rules that are pursued and promoted. Valdez said that the only other way for the horn not to sound is if a particular railroad crossing is closed to traffic or pedestrians. "The trains don't run on a schedule – they're pretty regular, but they're based on the customer demands," Valdez said. "After 9/11, the only people we share that information with are your first responders."

Valdez said that even if the City of Hawthorne is able to create a Quiet Zone, "that doesn't mean the horn will go away 100 percent." She explained that the horn would go away between 85 and 90 percent because the engineer is still required to sound it if a person or car is present near or on the tracks. "The horn is the only device the engineer has to stop a tragedy from happening," Valdez said, adding that a train – even a slow-moving one -- cannot stop immediately like a car. "When people either go around the gate arm or decide to [walk on the tracks], that creates a problem for the engineer and he will sound the horn."

Valdez added that the only time an engineer will sound the horn is if there is either someone on the tracks, the train is nearing a crossing, or there is construction or maintenance adjacent to the track. "Right now in L.A. County, we're having a lot of issues with homelessness and that has created a lot more horn sounding than I have ever had because we've just had an explosion of homeless people on the tracks," she said.

Homelessness is one of the issues that will be addressed in the list of propositions on November's ballot. League of California Cities Communication Director Jeff Kiernan spoke about four particular propositions at the meeting.

Proposition 1 is a $4 billion bond called the Veterans and Affordable Housing Bond Act of 2018 which, if approved, would allow the issuance of bonds to fix existing housing programs as well as establish new programs for affordable housing.

The purchase of homes and mobile homes for veterans would take up $1 billion of that bond, while the rest would go to fund grants around the state to be applied for by cities.

Proposition 2 is called the No Place Like Home Homeless Housing Ratification, which is a $2 billion bond measure that would allow for $140 million to be transferred annually from the Prop. 63 Mental Health Services Act that passed in 2004 to provide housing for mentally ill homeless people.

Prop. 63 taxed Californians with incomes over $1 million an additional 1 percent and dedicated that funding to mental health services. "Unfortunately, years later, much of this funding is unspent," Kiernan said. "There simply aren't enough avenues with which to spend that money because we have drawn down so many of the mental health services in the state."

In 2016, the State Legislature passed the original No Place Like Home Act intended to shift $2 billion to build housing for mentally ill persons. However, it has been tied up in the court system since then. As such, the State Legislature and Governor Jerry Brown have decided to put the issue on a ballot and hope to get voters to ratify the shift of some of the money.

Proposition 3 is the Supply and Water Quality Bond Act of 2018, which authorizes $8.8 billion in state general obligation funds for water-related infrastructure projects. Of that, $3.3 billion is set aside to for safe drinking water and water quality projects. Nearly $1 billion is earmarked for habitat protection, among other items that have been planned of the use of the bond.

Kiernan said the League of California Cities is supporting all three propositions and all three are unopposed. The one initiative opposed by the League is Proposition 6.

Proposition 6 would eliminate the recently enacted road and transportation repair funding by repealing $5 billion in annual revenues dedicated for transportation projects. The proposition also requires any measure that would enact vehicle fuel taxes and vehicle fees be approved by the public by a two-thirds margin. "If approved, funding would be eliminated for 650 road and bridge projects currently underway all over the state," Kiernan said, including 143 bridges that have been deemed unsafe in L.A. County.

The Matchstick Castle Curbs No Ardor for the Unexplored

Reviewed by Tommy Vinh Bui, MLIS, Associate Librarian, Inglewood Public Library

School's in full swing and the semester is swiftly picking up steam. But before those assignments and ably-researched papers start to pile up precariously, here's a bookly suggestion to distract you from those studious school subjects and damnable due dates.

The Matchstick Castle by Keir Graff is a charming and oft times zany yarn that yanks at the heartstrings with alarming regularity. It's a story of young Brian stranded at his unforgivingly academic and overly pedantic uncle's house for the summer having to endure a mind-numbing mixture of boredom and summer school. But when he and his diametrically-opposed-in-demeanor cousin Nora discover a whimsical property in the nearby woods, their summer truly begins. It's a summer of shenanigans and high-adventuring with an eccentric family occupying a dilapidated mansion long-forgotten by society. They have to race against the clock to prevent the mansion from being demolished by the city whilst dodging wild boars, Amazonian bees and prickly civil servants. It's an excellent ensemble of memorable characters and age-appropriate hijinks.

The narrative employs a charismatic main character who is funny and with whom can easily be identified. And his odd couple chemistry with his uptight cousin Nora makes for good banter and character interaction. There's always conflict to keep the plot momentum galloping forward. And the action beats and reveals imbue the plot with aplenty of tension and intrigue. The story is well-structured and does well to sustain the readers' interest throughout. We're all pins and needles and left holding our collective breaths until the very last page.

There's also a strong emotional core to the book. It highlights positive themes such as friendship and perseverance and the merits of looking at things from angles slightly askew. The book has a good number of lessons to impart and it doesn't ever take a sledgehammer and bludgeon us to death with them. It's subtle and weaved craftily into the plot and pacing.

The nuance and strengths of the secondary characters are stellar. The writer fully fleshes out and develops these roles and vivifies a wide motley crew of supporting characters. Each voice is singular and unique and really brings the character to life with brilliant verve and idiosyncrasies. The writer thoughtfully bolsters these protagonists with gusto and I'm thoroughly convinced.

The book's themes and general tone can be likened to something like Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory with a dash of Swiss Family Robinson and some echoes of J.D. Salinger's Glass family. There's definitely a Royal Tenenbaums vibe emitted from this story too. Fans of eclectic family histories and Indiana Jones-type derring-do will definitely gravitate toward The Matchstick Castle.

All in all, fine fall required reading...

Searching Is a Thriller from the P.O.V. of Your Computer Screen

By Morgan Rojas for www.cinemacy.com

If you're looking for one of the most original films to hit the big screen this year, search no further. The fittingly-titled Searching is a "screen movie," -- meaning the entire movie even familiar with the latest social media apps to enjoy the thrills in this movie. We can all sympathize with the thought of a parent's worst nightmare -- that of waking up to discover a child is missing, gone without a

is told from the point of view of a variety of screen-based media, cutting between laptops, smartphones, webcams and more to tell the story of a father's desperate search to find his missing daughter. Much like how The Blair Witch Project revolutionized the "found footage" genre, Searching elevates the technology-based storytelling genre to match how we as a culture have come to communicate with each other across formats in these times. Searching is both a visually captivating feature film and an emotionally riveting rollercoaster that will stay with you long after watching.

David Kim (John Cho) is a father trying to put the pieces of his life back together after the unexpected death of his wife Pam (Sara Sohn). Now a single father to their 16-year-old daughter Margot (Michelle La), he struggles to connect with the quiet and reserved high school junior. Aside from their weekly TV nights watching The Voice, David assumes Margot is acclimating to this "new normal" on her own terms and at her own pace. That is, until Margot fails to return home from a study group one night, prompting David to look for clues as to her whereabouts through Margot's past and online history. This brings to light shocking information that forces David to wonder whether he ever really knew his daughter at all.

One woman attempting to help bring Margot home is Detective Rosemary Vick (Debra Messing), whose no-nonsense attitude clicks with David's unwavering parental protection and determination. Together, they weed out potential suspects, assemble search parties and develop a platonic connection that is based on their both being parents. David also leans on his brother Peter (Joseph Lee) during this difficult time... but as days pass without any information, David becomes ever-more suspicious that things are not what they appear to be.

The merging of technology and filmmaking by first-time feature director Aneesh Chaganty makes for a pure adrenaline rush. One doesn't have to be a millennial or trace. The format in which Searching is shot and assembled only heightens the suspense and, surprisingly, is never a distraction to the story unfolding.

In another respect, it's perhaps the perfect time for the release of a movie like Searching. Fresh off the heels of the box office hit Crazy Rich Asians, Searching has its own statistics that are quite impressive in assisting the rise of Asian actors headlining Hollywood projects. As the first mainstream, contemporary thriller headlined by an Asian-American actor, Cho balances humor, grief and optimism in his layered performance as a father looking for answers (fulfilling the wishes of the people behind the fan-led social movement, #StarringJohnCho).

Premiering at the 2018 Sundance Film Festival, Searching is a small and contained movie that would best be experienced on the big screen. Hopefully, the success that comes from this independent thriller won't leave audiences "searching" for Asian-American representation in mainstream movies any longer.

Searching is rated PG-13 for thematic content, some drug, and sexual references, and for language. 102 minutes. Now playing at ArcLight Hollywood and Sherman Oaks, and AMC Century City, in theaters everywhere Friday, August 31. •

Wiseburn Board Hears District Demographic Presentation

By Duane Plank

Last Thursday evening, the assembled members of the Wiseburn School Board were privy to a 20-minute presentation touting the analytic tools and experience of DecisionInsite, a company that works with school districts to “provide a unique fusion of technology, analytics and expertise.” The goal is to help Wiseburn Unified School District decision-makers effectively make informed, data-driven recommendations when dealing with enrollment issues – which in turn greatly impact California school district funding.

DecisionInsite Business Development Representative Kelly Stevens made the presentation. The Irvine-based company has been working with school districts since its inception in 2004, utilizing cloud-based platform and pinpointed analytics to aid districts as they master-plan for their future wants and needs.

Stevens demonstrated the system software capabilities for the Board members, using the compiled data of one of the DecisionInsite clients -- the La Habra Unified School District. Stevens compared La Habra to Wiseburn. She talked about the detailed reports and data that her company, if selected by the Board, can supply to help drill-down future decisions and challenges that will face the current as well as future members. In wrapping up her presentation, Stevens noted that if DecisionInsite is selected as Wiseburn’s “demographer,” it would train District IT professionals on implementing the new system.

Board member questions included those involving safety and security of the supplied information. Stevens said that her company’s site had never been hacked. “It’s our business,” she said, “to make sure that we are safe.”

Prior to the meeting, new Wiseburn Superintendent Dr. Blake Silvers said that the District is looking to upgrade and repair current facilities and bolster ongoing programs at school sites. He spoke of the desire to “involve the community” in creating the District’s master plan, and that, hopefully, a demographer will be involved in that plan’s development.

The demographer, Silvers said, would help forecast enrollment numbers in the upcoming years, utilizing advanced metrics and analytics. These forecasts would be very useful to the District as decisions are made to evaluate school sites, possibly change boundaries and grade configurations, plan for staffing needs, prepare budgets, and maximize facility utilization. “We want the [master] plan,” Silvers said, “to be a multi-year plan.

The Board members and administrators then made their informational reports with all embracing the new school year. Vice President/Clerk Roger Banuelos spoke of positive developments with the new Da Vinci High meal program -- implemented by Chartwells -- for the first-time at the campuses, and thanked all who have supported the program.” President JoAnne Kaneda added that she was “glad to be working with Blake,” and that she was looking forward to the opening of the aquatics center. Deputy Superintendent Dr. Chris Jones mentioned attending a recent active shooter training event involving Palos Verdes’ school district, reiterated the support and success of the new Da Vinci High meal program, and gave an update on sports at the Da Vinci schools, which held their first day of classes on Aug. 12.

Of the partnership with food provider Chartwells, which began in Wiseburn lower-level schools three years ago, Jones emailed that when the District first contracted with the company, “there was a significant improvement in food quality, and participation nearly doubled. The students seem very happy!”

During his report, Director of Facilities Planning Vince Madsen noted that remaining Wiseburn High site “construction is moving along, [though] we are still having some challenges.” One challenge is figuring out whether the new soccer field surface will consist of synthetic turf or grass. Madsen and his team are facing challenges with the dirt base of the field.

Madsen added that Sept. 29 will be the aquatics center ribbon-cutting, with the official grand opening still to be decided. He spoke about Phase II change orders that were brought to the Board for approval and mentioned long-term facility planning. He said work is ongoing on the gymnasium construction, with a firm opening date not specified at this time. He also talked about the progress being made on clearing the staging area that is the soon-to-be soccer field.

Silvers then made his report, talking about a District “fire issue” that had taken place earlier in the day and was successfully dealt with in a timely manner. He talked of attending a recent Wiseburn Educational Foundation (WEF) meeting, and how that group’s support was much appreciated. New teachers started work on Aug. 15, he noted. Silvers also spoke of the new teachers’ enthusiasm and “engagement.” He lauded the administrators and teachers who worked hard over the summer, utilizing professional opportunities made available since the final school bell chimed back in June.

Monday, Aug. 27 was a professional development day for District teachers, with 12 new instructors and elementary and middle school students returning to the classroom the following day. “We are excited,” Silvers said,

“about the new additions to our team.” On Wednesday, Silvers and his team put together a barbecue for the staff, and he gave his initial “State of the District” address at Dana Middle School -- where he announced the selections of teacher and classified employee of the last school year.

Silvers called this “a real optimistic time” for Wiseburn. “It has been amazing to watch the teachers work in their professional development sessions,” he said. He labeled it “a blessing” to work with “teachers so committed to their craft.”

Next on the Thursday evening agenda were the action items, which included facilities updates as the work continues on Phase II of the new Wiseburn High project. Silvers said things continue to move along as construction continues on the aquatics center, gymnasium and soccer field. “We are still looking good,” Silvers said, alluding to the work on the northwest quadrant of the Douglas Street facility. “It’s looking nice over there...very clean.”

One of the fiscal action items passed by the Board included funding and a continuing partnership with WEF, which, Silvers noted, provided the District with more than $170,000 during the past school year. The STEM and Arts programs especially benefited. “It’s a wonderful partnership,” Silvers said.

Silvers added that the WEF, currently helmed by Executive Director Carolyn Niman and President Debbie Felt, has a “very savvy and committed board,” calling the members “really good people who engage in our community in a positive way. Just a blessing.”

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the Wiseburn School Board is slated to commence at 7 p.m. on Thursday evening, Sept. 13, and will take place on the first floor of the new Wiseburn High School. •

Five-Minute Life Hack: Tips To Boost Your Career

(BPT) - The rapid pace of change in jobs means the era of one-and-done learning is over. It no longer matters what you learned in the past - to stay relevant you need to upskill. So if you want to improve your marketability and get ahead in your career, it’s time to think about the valuable skills that could open the door to new opportunities. The good news is with tools and online courses on platforms like LinkedIn Learning, you can explore and develop critical skills and interests - right at your fingertips anytime, anywhere.

“Experience never gets old, but your skills can,” says Marci Alboher, author of The Encore Career Handbook and upcoming LinkedIn Learning instructor. “Re-skilling throughout your career will position you to ensure you’re finding meaning in your work, growing in your profession and making an impact along the way.”

Here are three tips for kick-starting your learning efforts.

1. Find the time!

The #1 career goal for professionals in 2018 is to learn a new skill - but not everyone knows where to fit learning into their daily lives. Here’s a tip: In today’s ever-connected digital world, we’re living in the era of bite-sized learning, where new skills can be honed in minutes on the subway, or while you’re eating breakfast.

Start by picking 5- to 10-minute windows in your daily routine - you don’t need to find hours, minutes are fine. For example, try skim-ming through courses on a Sunday night, and make a wish list of courses to view throughout the week, whenever it’s convenient for your busy life.

2. Make it a habit

They say a habit is formed in 21 days. Whenever you slot learning into your daily schedule, try to pick a time when you can make it routine - whether it’s on the bus during your morning commute, or in the 10 minutes after you brush your teeth at night. You’ll be growing in your skills before you know it. Fun fact: LinkedIn Learning also sets a reminder for you, so it’s one less thing you have to remember in your day.

3. Pick your skills

Today’s skills landscape is changing faster than ever - with new technologies and digital techniques emerging at every turn. Whether you want to advance your existing career or begin a new one, start by identifying a few key skills you’d like to hone. For example, people in every job can benefit from learning soft skills that teach you how to get things done or achieve your goals. Soft skills, such as communication and critical thinking, will give you a competitive advantage in the workplace, and you never know when you’ll uncover a new passion or side project along the way.

LinkedIn makes it easy to identify the skills you need by alerting you to the most in-demand skills for your job and industry, based on your LinkedIn profile, from project management to leadership.

One of the most important skills for keeping your passions alive is to learn how to be a lifelong learner. In any industry, in any phase of life, there are always new skills to be gained, and new knowledge to explore. Committing yourself to being someone with a constant appetite for learning will enrich you not only today, but throughout the course of your career.

PETSPETS Pets PETSPETS

Precious Pooches

We are looking for volunteers to help with our pet adoption fairs which are held every Saturday at the Petco located at 537 N. Pacific Coast Hwy., Redondo Beach 90277, from noon to 3:30 p.m. If you are interested in volunteering and can commit to at least one Saturday a month, please contact us at info@msfr.org. You can also visit all of our Miniature Schnauzers & Friends rescues at the adoption fair or check out our website, www.msfr.org. If you have any questions about a particular dog's availability, you can email us at info@msfr.org. Schnauzers! But you can't adopt just one.

"Hi there. They call me Sloan and right now I'm pretty confused. First of all, my previous owner surrendered the gal I've known my whole life and me to an LA City shelter. I have no idea why we were suddenly unwanted, but it's the second time in my short, 3-year life that I ended up at the shelter. We've been together for as long as I can remember, but not sure if we're related. My friend and I could be brother and sister because neither of us are purebreds. However, we're really cute Miniature Schnauzer mixes and look a lot alike. I'm a bit overweight at 25 pounds, but I'm still easily transportable. I believe with a bit of exercise, I could shed those extra pounds pretty quickly and become a slim, trim, handsome guy. I've been told that I'm well-behaved and mellow for such a youngster, so I don't imagine I was ever a wild child. I am also very devoted to my gal pal so I am really hoping that when I find my forever home, they'll want to take her in too."

If you're interested in Sloan, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

"Hello, I'm Sylvia. I'm a 3-year-old Miniature Schnauzer mix, just like my best friend Sloan. He could be my littermate because we've been together for as long as I can remember and we are very devoted to each other. We're even the same age and look alike, so anything is possible. I sure am hoping that someone will have a huge heart and adopt both of us so we can always be together. One minute we were happy and loved and then next minute...dumped at a shelter. I have no idea why our previous owner surrendered us to an LA City shelter, but it's the second time I've been there in my short life and I'm hoping it's the last. It's a scary place for a young gal, so I'm glad I have my BFF with me. I know that at 15 pounds, I'm a tad over my ideal weight -- but there's a 13-pound girl inside just screaming to get out and my first goal is to be her. People say that I am very well-behaved and calm for such a young girl, but I learned the importance of manners and do my best to use them. I'm sure you would be impressed with my behavior too."

If you're interested in Sylvia, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

"Let me introduce myself. My name is Toohy, which in its original Gaelic form means ruler. So far, I think I've done a pretty good job of managing my life. I'm an 8-year old, male Australian Shepherd mix who is still very lively and physically fit. I'm definitely no couch potato! That said I can no longer be in a home with small children, but would be the ideal companion for a single person or a couple that likes to stay active and spend their time walking and hiking with me. I've been told that I'm super smart and I've learned how to communicate my needs quite well. For example, I will let you know when I need to go out and when I'm ready to turn in for the night, I'll just go into my bed/room and retire. I've passed my obedience training with flying colors and I love to play fetch, go on walks/hikes or run at the beach. My favorite pastime is playing ball, but fetch and hiking are also right up there. As you can see, I'm still quite the athlete even at my age and I'm planning on staying that way. I'm a very fit 35 pounds of love and energy who would make an awesome companion for someone who enjoys being on the go."

Purrrfect Companions

Honey Bear

Give one of these kitties a second chance for a lifetime of love when you adopt a pet without a partner.

Coral is the perfect combination of cuddly and independent. She is very sweet and has a fun and quirky personality. She is not a constant talker, but will let you know when she would like your attention with her unique meow or a gentle paw on your cheek. Coral is part of a bonded pair and must be adopted with her best friend, Nala. They are adorable together. When Nala had health complications, Coral took it upon herself to be the big sister and protector. Nala fought a severe case of pneumonia and won with Coral by her side to support her. Please consider adopting these two girls. They will bring a ton of love and fun to your home.

Nala is an adorable, spunky and tiny bundle of fun. She is small for her age at 6 pounds and most likely will stay that way. You can just look at Nala and she will start purring. She also has an awesomely cute meow that sounds a little like a goat. Nala and Coral are adorable together, are definitely bonded and their personalities balance each other nicely...the perfect pair!

Honey Bear and her siblings were rescued from an alley at just three weeks old. Sick and very malnourished, they had to be hand-fed until they could eat on their own. Because she was handled so much at such a young age, Honey Bear loves people and has no fear. She follows you from room to room for attention and insists on snuggling at bedtime. Honey Bear is a very energetic and playful kitten. She loves to play wrestle and chase for hours with her siblings Sugar Bear, Cocoa Bear, Mr. Bear, Baby Bear and Lucky Girl. Honey Bear would love to be adopted with any of her siblings...but if you already have a playful kitty at home, she can bond with them. She cannot be an only kitty.

Madam Leota has the most beautiful coat and the most adorable personality. She loves to cuddle and give you kisses even though at first she is very shy in a new environment. However, once Leota feels safe, she will run around and play like nothing is stopping her. This sweet girl also enjoys taking naps near her human and will rest her head right on your arm or leg. In a very adorable way, she likes to lick chins. This little cutie loves all types of cat toys and any type of string. Leota also enjoys any type of climbing post or cat tower. Madam Leota would be a great kitten for any family-- preferably one that can spend time playing with her as she has a lot of energy.

Heeere's Truffle! This super fluffy little lady is as sweet as pie. Truffle is a quiet, calm kitten who enjoys being held and petted. She also loves having fun with her mom and litter mates. So she would be great as a playmate with your current kitty or would be thrilled to be adopted with one of the members of her family.

Wow! If you are looking for a fun, social kitty, then Tallulah is the one for you. She is a beautiful, petite, stunning kitty with gorgeous, amber-colored eyes. She is very photogenic.

Tallulah

Truffle

If you enjoy taking photos of your kitty, then you will not be disappointed. This little girl enjoys making friends at the sanctuary. So if you have another kitty, Tallulah would be a good fit. At the same time, we think she would be equally happy to be an only child.

These kitties are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org or email us at mail@kittenrescue.org.

Your tax-deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 914 Westwood Blvd. #583, Los Angeles, CA 90024.

On Saturdays, we have adoptions from noon to 3:30 p.m. in Westchester at 8655 Lincoln Blvd. just south of Manchester Avenue, and also in Mar Vista at 3860 Centinela Ave, just south of Venice Boulevard. Our website lists additional adoption sites and directions to each location.

Saving one animal won't change the world, but the world will surely change for that animal. •
