Flu Season Is Off to a Slow Start

By Rob McCarthy

Another flu season has arrived and health officials are counting on a new flu vaccine and greater public awareness to reduce the number of deaths and visits to local emergency rooms. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control reported this week that California was among 35 states experiencing low flu activity. Flu season begins in September and runs through March. Cases of influenza began increasing last year in November, according to health officials. Even in states where flu cases are showing up, health officials say the seasonal illness is well under control.

Despite the slow start to the flu season, residents who haven't been vaccinated yet are encouraged to have a flu shot before the illness starts making the rounds. Aware that last year's flu shot was ineffective against the spread of influenza A, CDC researchers have changed this year's vaccine.

The composition of U.S. flu vaccines is reviewed annually and updated as needed to match circulating flu viruses. This year's flu vaccine protects against four strains of the flu: The Michigan and Singapore viruses that are influenza A types and the Colorado and Phuket viruses that are classified as B types. Vaccinations can be administered as a shot or in a nasal spray.

There was a concern in past years that the nasal spray flu vaccine wasn't effective enough against certain types of flu. However, CDC doctors expect the nasal spray to be more effective in the current flu season. The spray vaccine is approved for people between 2 and 49 years old.

The South Bay had 53 flu-related deaths during last year's flu season, according to Los Angeles County health officials. Nationwide, the death toll topped 80,000 from flu, the CDC estimates. Young children, seniors and people undergoing chemotherapy or with weak immune systems are considered most at risk of catching the flu, according to federal officials.

Chronic conditions that put people at a higher risk from the flu are asthma, cancer, pulmonary disease, diabetes, HIV/AIDS and kidney or liver disease. Obesity is a risk factor for becoming seriously ill from seasonal flu viruses, according to CDC literature. It's not too late to get a flu shot, public health officials stressed. Free vaccinations are available this year at pharmacies and flu clinics or by visiting a doctor or pediatrician's office. The CDC recommends flu shots for everyone 6 months and older.

Recent studies done by the CDC show that flu vaccination reduces the risk of flu illness by between 40 and 60 percent among the U.S. population during seasons when the flu viruses are well-matched to the flu vaccine. There is a separate vaccine available for seniors and pregnant women.

It takes two weeks to build immunity after receiving a flu shot. It's usually best for people in the United States to get their flu vaccine by the end of October. However, you can still protect yourself against late flu outbreaks if you get the vaccine in February or later, the CDC doctors advise.

Influenza is a respiratory infection that "can cause serious complications, particularly to young children, older adults and people with certain medical conditions," according to doctors at The Mayo Clinic. "Influenza vaccines — though not 100 percent effective — are the best way to prevent the misery of the flu and its complications."

While health professionals dispute that a flu shot can give a person the flu, they admit it can trigger minor reactions that mimic flu symptoms. People have reported feeling ill with achy muscles and a fever that last a day or two. The discomfort can actually mean the flu shot is building up the body's immunity.

"So you may think you have the flu when you don't," says the Mayo Clinic website. Even when the vaccine doesn't completely prevent the flu, it may lessen the severity of the illness and the risk of serious complications.

A growing number of parents are choosing not to have their children vaccinated for the flu this season. One-third of parents who participated in an online poll said they are skipping the kids' vaccinations, it was reported this week.

Doubts about vaccine safety was a reason some parents gave for their decision. Some said they were too busy, while others worried the vaccination wasn't effective against the seasonal viruses. Their kids' doctors didn't strongly recommend the shot, a smaller group said.

For those people who don't get a flu shot, health officials advise washing their hands well with soap and water, and using a hand sanitizer if soap and water aren't available. Also, avoid touching the eyes, nose and mouth and avoid crowds during a flu outbreak.

Stay home until flu symptoms and fever are gone at least 24 hours, the CDC recommends. Travelers are cautioned not to fly if they have any flu-like symptoms. A fever, cough or sore throat are reasons to cancel a trip rather than risk catching pneumonia and being hospitalized.

Flu vaccines expire in June each year, so anyone vaccinated since Jan. 1 will still need to receive an updated flu shot. Health officials expect it will be more effective than last year's. •

A Thanksgiving Message

Thanksgiving is coming! I am excited and feel grateful for being able to celebrate this special day with my family. I am an immigrant a woman of color and a Muslim. So I feel I have triple minorities. Often I feel I don't belong to anything, because of so many injustices happening. But as a Muslim, my religion Islam teaches me to always feel grateful for all good things I have. Realistically, we live in 'real' world not Disneyland so it is impossible if we all live 'perfect.' Conflict always exists and it is part of human being. Islam teaches me I do not have to select one day to be thankful because I can express my gratitude every moment in my life. So it is like having thanksgiving every day but minus the fancy home cooked meals. This year Thanksgiving, I want to remind myself and fellow readers that the real spirit of this celebration is to be thankful for all good things we have. Bad things make us stronger because we can choose the best solution on how to solve problems. Remember that everyday, we always have beautiful moment with beautiful people and it taste so sweet like that last piece of pumpkin pie! Happy Thanksgiving my beloved Americans!

Torrance Coyote Management Plan

My name is Cecilia Duarte-Ruiz and I am a Hawthorne, CA resident, as well as, an animal welfare advocate. It has come to my attention that on November 27th the Torrance City Council will be considering revising the Coyote Management Plan. I am writing to inform you on that I oppose the indiscriminate and lethal control of coyotes. Coyotes have an important role in our ecosystem. There is no evidence that shows that arbitrarily killing coyotes serves any effective wildlife management function. By contrast, there are years of studies that shows that they limit mesocarnivore populations, increase bird diversity and abundance. Residents have coyotes to thank for the benefits of a cleaner environment and disease transmission control. I support moving forward with a humane, nonlethal coyote management program. We need a proactive approach to coexisting with coyotes and other wild life. Our approach needs to emphasize public education, reducing attractants, and hazing when necessary for habituated coyotes. I encourage all readers, if available, to appear in person at the Torrance City Council meeting to voice your support for continuing with a humane, nonlethal coyote management plan. You can also contact the Torrance City council members to voice your support. I hope this information is helpful.

News for the City of Good Neighbors from an Old Guy Named Norb Huber

WILDFIRE UPDATE

As I mentioned last week, I was able to travel up to Chico and conduct a pancake breakfast fundraiser for the families affected by the Camp Fire that wiped the city of Paradise off the map. The event gave those people in Chico an opportunity to show their support for their neighbors and make a donation to the fire fund. Many people are hurting. They lost everything they owned. The recovery is going to take years. People are deciding on whether to return and rebuild or move on. There is a lack of housing in the whole region. Displaced people are looking for any housing to rent for the time being. They do not know when they will be allowed to return to even look at the ruins. Redeemer Lutheran Church in Chico has become one of several relief centers where people can come in for food, clothing, gift cards and some monetary support to get them through this. The outpouring of support from outside of the area has been tremendous. Our prayers continue to go to all of the families affected. Thanks for your support.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY TO HOLD ELECTIONS

The Hawthorne Historical Society will be conducting their final 2018 general meeting on Monday, December 3 starting at 6:30 p.m. Members of the community are invited to participate. This being the last meeting of the year, elections for members of the HHS Board will take place. The Historical Society is a great group of people who love Hawthorne. By participating in their activities you get to know your neighbors and other like-minded residents who share your same belief in making Hawthorne the best it can be. Make plans to attend on December 3.

NEW CITY COUNCIL MEMBERS AND CITY CLERK TO BE SWORN IN

Alex Monteiro and Olivia Valentine will be sworn in as City Council members on Tuesday, December 11 at 6 p.m. in the City Council chambers. Dr. Paul Jimenez and David Patterson will take their oaths to perform their duties as City Clerk and City Treasurer at that same meeting.

WINTER WONDERLAND

Make plans to attend one of the most fun events in Hawthorne all year. The Parks and Recreation and Community Services Department of the City of Hawthorne started something really good last year at Christmas time. The Winter Wonderland had snow, games, gifts, food, fun and a real Santa and Ms. Claus. The turnout for the event was more than expected. This year it most likely will be even bigger. The Winter carnival will be held over at the Memorial Center on December 19th. Mark your calendars now for this super event.

KIWANIS CLUB SENIORS LUNCHEON

The Kiwanis Club of Hawthorne will host their annual Seniors luncheon for all of us older folks on December 7th, Pearl Harbor Day.

SYNDICATED?

I've been asked to share my ramblings with the local newspaper up here in Orangevale, CA. The OV Times is published twice a month but is sent out to every residential mailing address in the community. Wow! That is scary. Going from 18 or 19 loyal readers of the Hawthorne Happenings to 15,000 potential readers. I'm not sure if I'm ready for that. Like anyone you meet for the first time or two, you just never know how they are perceiving you. It took eight, long years for 18 of you to warm up to my writing style. I better cool my comments to start with during the early stages of my relationship building. It's like dating, never play all of your cards on the first date. I better clean up my act. I will stop referring to my writings as crap and to my dear wife as the ol' lady. I may have to go into a long detailed explanation of what I mean when I tell them to relax, have a cold one, and let God love them. They may really think I'm stupid. I will let you know how it goes. Sometimes blind dates turn out to be dudes. It is a different world up here, different scenery, different stores and restaurants, different problems to solve. But, the one thing that doesn't change is God's love. No matter where I am and what circumstances I find myself in, I know that God is there to love and care for me. What do you think I should call my NorCal column? Orangevale Happenings just doesn't have that same ring to it like Hawthorne Happenings. It will be difficult to replicate the same vibe. Maybe Hawthorne Happenings – NorCal edition. Let me have a cold one and think about it. Relax, I'm not leaving you, I'm just going to be a two-timer, play the field, sow some wild oats elsewhere. Are you okay with sharing me with others?

Wiseburn School Board Views Reading Intervention Presentation

By Duane Plank

With Thanksgiving break currently in progress, the Wiseburn School Board members met twice in the past two weeks to discuss key issues as they focus on the final month of instruction for 2018. On Nov. 8, in closed session, the Board and administration met for nearly four hours. Wiseburn Unified School District Superintendent Dr. Blake Silvers said that the meeting was productive. "This was a really good opportunity for the Board to talk about evaluations, our goals, and share visions moving forward," he said. "It is all interrelated because I get evaluated on my goals. Great chance for folks to see the areas that are targets for us. We have heard a lot from the greater community, in areas that they want us to 'touch,' in areas such as communication, curriculum evaluation and learning.

Regarding the aquatics center, Silvers said, "[It] looks beautiful. We are continuing to solidify our joint-use-agreement with the City of El Segundo." Said agreement was initially listed for approval on the Thursday agenda, but got pulled by the Board as the document continues to be fine-tuned. "I welcome the partnership with El Segundo," Silvers said." He called the partnership arrangement with the City of El Segundo and El Segundo Unified School District unprecedented, saying that "it is only going to make the relationships stronger, setting the foundation for what is to come. This is a great opportunity to expand our sports programs."

The only special presentation on Thursday evening was made by Wiseburn Intervention Coordinator Sarah Nitsos. Entitled "Reading is the Gateway to Success," Nitsos pulled together research-based data that the District is utilizing to support students in the classroom at all levels.

Nitsos' presentation noted, "As a district, we have prided ourselves on helping all our students succeed. However, despite the best instruction, some students continue to struggle in specific academic areas. The WUSD reading intervention program is based on three guiding practices: Use of research-based resources and teaching practices; alignment of intervention practices to student skill gaps as identified in both the classroom and via intervention screening skills; and the engaging of qualified staff in teaching intervention lessons using research-based practices."

Nitsos pointed out that the components of the Strategic Intervention Program include use of universal screening tools to help identify at-risk students in conjunction with teacher input; and use of a secondary screening tool to determine student skill gaps and match services

Mayors Mixer at Mattel

Mattel hosted the El Segundo Chamber of Commerce's yearly Salute to El Segundo recognizing El Segundo's mayors on Nov. 14. As usual, it was a major success with a huge turnout. A giant white holiday tent has been erected on Mattel's grounds that houses flats stacked up with toys, dolls and games. Everything in the tent is for sale to the public at up to 70 percent off through the holidays. Bulk buying is also available for many charities. This year, Mattel will send a trailer full of goodies to Thousand Oaks for the children displaced by the fires. •

– like our dueling cousins – pulls out all the stops to make The Favourite hilariously unforgettable.

Anne (Olivia Colman) is many things: an emotionally unstable matriarch, a “crazy bunny lady,” and the Queen of England (and tantrums). Her flighty nature is only kept in check by her best friend and confidante, Lady Sarah (Rachel Weisz). Their dynamic is tested when Lady Sarah’s cousin Abigail (Emma Stone) arrives at the palace in search for employment. A hesitant Sarah eventually recruits Abigail to join her as her chambermaid in what might be a deadly mistake, as a slow test to win the Queen’s affection begins to simmer. Behind Abigail’s doe eyes and vulnerable demeanor is a devious and emotionally savvy woman who is willing to do whatever it takes to replace Sarah as the Queen’s right-hand woman.

Lanthimos relies on two of his previous leading ladies to take the helm here: Olivia Colman, who played The Lobster’s hotel manager; and Rachel Weisz, who played opposite Colin Farrell in the same film, have an incredible back and forth that is as quick-witted and sharp as a ping-pong match. Emma Stone, the only non-British actor, puts her impeccable comedic sensibilities on display in both her physical performance and over-exaggerated line delivery. It’s a trio of brilliant performances from Colman, Weisz and Stone only made stronger by the supporting cast that includes Nicholas Hoult as the aristocrat Harley and Joe Alwyn as Abigail’s royal suitor, Masham.

Behind the lens, cinematographer Robbie Ryan uses unconventional camera techniques that at times reminded me of a music video. Most of the film is shot up from below -- a low angle that frames us looking up at the characters and suggests an imbalance in the hierarchy of this royalty compared to the non-elite class – the audience.

Whip pans, dolly shots and a liberal use of the super wide-angle lens make the world of The Favourite feel like a fairytale, a world unique only to Yorgos Lanthimos (who also edited the film).

Lanthimos has such a gifted way of creating fantastically surreal moments set in everyday life, whether it’s present day or 18th century England. Unlike his previous films, The Favourite is loosely based on historical fact, but maintains a modern tone and self-aware storytelling, like calling out Hoult’s over-the-top hair and makeup in a hilariously demeaning fashion. Although it doesn’t quite surpass my all-time favorite – The Lobster – there is so much to love in this macabre dark comedy and it is, without a doubt, another shining addition to Lanthimos’s film output. As Lady Sarah tells Queen Anne over and over again, “Love knows no limits” -- and true as those words are, there is no limit to my love for this film, making The Favourite one of my favorite movies of the year.

The Favourite is rated R for strong sexual content, nudity and language. 119 minutes. Opening this Friday at ArcLight Hollywood and The Landmark. • forced to live together? Would they be able to overcome hundreds of years of prejudice and learn to trust each other, work together and possibly even fall in love in order to stop the terrible fate awaiting both of their population?

Talk about an action-packed book! From cover to cover, there is never a dull moment. I could not put this book down! I had to keep reading and find out more about this world and what fate awaited all of the characters. The story is classified as a fantasy, but there are also elements of mystery, adventure and romance that can be felt pretty strongly throughout the narrative. I thoroughly enjoyed this book and I am looking forward to reading the next edition in the trilogy! I would highly recommend this series to teens and young adults alike.

accordingly. It also provides classroom teachers access to screening data related to their students outcomes; works with grade-level teacher teams to review student data and leverage District-adopted language arts materials; provides an intervention cycle to coincide with the learning circles at each site; and increases Wiseburn’s strategic intervention personnel to work with students within the school day, equitably supporting those in need of intervention. In 2017/18, the Cabrillo and Anza elementary schools saw the number of students rise.

Since implementation of the secondary screeners, the District is now able to group students according to their needs and thoughtfully target specific reading foundational skills, Nitsos reported. “We can now identify student growth and ongoing challenges with precision and ensure that every child succeeds,” she emailed.

The last day on the job for Director of Facilities Planning Vince Madsen was on Nov. 15. Silvers called losing Madsen, who had been with the District since 2013 and spearheaded the construction of the new Wiseburn High School, “such a huge loss.” In his final thoughts to the community, Madsen emailed, “I am extremely proud of the accomplishments in the development of the Wiseburn High School: Home of the Da Vinci Schools, as it is. The 13-acre site was really the only property available after more than a two-year search for a high school in the South Bay. The site came with a lot of unique challenges that we needed to work through and mitigate (with different regulatory entities), as well as local considerations with the City of El Segundo. I am very proud of my almost 18-year career working in the South Bay.”

Meanwhile, the pool and gymnasium opening ceremony is now slated for Dec. 20, with the pool hopefully becoming operational in January.

In Board member reports, President JoAnne Kaneda spoke of the “productive session” on Nov. 8, as well as the need to ensure and control traffic safety around area schools. “We will continue to monitor that,” she said.

Action items included the approval of the “Apparent Best Value” for architectural consulting services with LPA Architects for the continued planning and preparation of the District’s long-range facilities master plan; and approval of new school construction projects, including additional hardwood gym flooring.

During his comments Thursday evening, Silvers highlighted the work accomplished by Kevin Corrinet, ex-US Army Ranger, who has developed the very popular CrossFit program at Dana Middle School. He also mentioned that the new District websites debuted online on Thursday. “We have had a phenomenal start to the school year...Everyone deserves a little rest,” Silvers said.

After the Board passed multiple action items, mainly regarding construction and personnel, Kaneda closed the one-hour meeting around 8 p.m. •
