Wiseburn School Board Looks Forward to Migration of Students to Douglas Street

By Duane Plank

Last Thursday evening's meeting of the Wiseburn School Board was bereft of special presentations, which is par for the course for this time of the school year, according to District Superintendent Tom Johnstone. Johnstone, who is entering his final year as Wiseburn Unified School District Superintendent and will be retiring in June 2018, said that "we let the dust settle" during these first few weeks. He noted that special Board presentations usually start taking place at the end of October, and ramp up as the schoolyear approaches the spring, because "people want to share everything that they have done over the year."

So the Board members, minus Vice President/Clerk JoAnne Kaneda who was out of town, dove right into their reports and lauded the presentation made by District keynote speaker Travis Allen during the kick-off presentation the first week of school. Johnstone also spoke about how the parameters of education have shifted, noting "how the world has changed so dramatically and how information doubles itself every couple of months, and you can't teach the way you did back in 1900 and expect our kids to stay competitive on a world stage."

Action items were next on the agenda, with a resolution honoring the retirement of Pam Conde, the office manager and head secretary at Peter Burnett Elementary, topping the list. Conde will be onsite at Burnett until September 30. She agreed to stay on for the first month of the new school year to help the new principal, Kim Jones.

In her first year at Burnett, Jones appreciates having an experienced hand to help her navigate through the first month. "Pam Conde is the heart of Peter Burnett Elementary School," she emailed. "In my short time as principal, I have seen the commitment and dedication she provides to the entire school community. She will be missed by all the teachers, students and parents she has served over the last 20 years at Burnett. We wish her well in her retirement."

Johnstone was grateful that Conde agreed to stay on until the end of September, noting that "to have a new principal and a new secretary would have been a disaster." Johnstone reported that the District is actively searching for Conde's replacement. He said that filling Conde's spot isn't easy, but that when they do find a suitable replacement he hopes that person will be working in the District for the next 20 years. "We don't like to play musical chairs" with District positions, he said, noting the lack of turnover of key personnel at Wiseburn.

Another new principal, Lisa Baggio, who is now in charge at Juan Cabrillo, is also settling into her new position. She emailed that "the first weeks of school have been busy. We have had our Kindergarten/TEDDE orientation, the start of rigorous academics such as CGI and our new English Language Arts Wonders curriculum. I even found the runaway gingerbread men from Ms. Schhumacher's TEDDE class! I look forward to more fun learning adventures!"

Other action items tackled by the Board included an agreement with S.T.A.R., Inc. involving the District's GATE program, agreements with P.S. Arts to provide visual and performing arts at Anza Elementary, and renewal for the ninth year of the agreement for P.S. to provide the District Arts coordinator.

A memorandum of understanding (MOU) was approved with El Camino College to bring students to Wiseburn and pick up their early childhood education units. Johnstone said that it was his hope that some of the El Camino students would eventually work in Wiseburn, and that the program helps establish a "bullpen, or junior circuit" of possible new teachers.

The second MOU involved sharing employees between Wiseburn and the Da Vinci schools.

There was only one minor item on Thursday evening's agenda concerning the construction projects at the new high school. Johnstone said construction is proceeding at a great pace, "really coming along nicely." Though no firm dates have been set for the administrators, support staff, teachers and students to move into the facility, it certainly appears that it will all occur within the next two months.

Vince Madsen, District Director of Facility Planning and the point man on the new high school construction project, emailed that "it looks like we have worked through most of challenges and things are coming together inside and outside of the high school building. There have been a lot of dramatic changes to the building in the last month. We are still working on finalizing some of the building systems with final testing starting up very soon and are still very hopeful we will be able move into this world-class facility this fall. It has been nice to finally see a lot of things accomplished and come together so quickly now."

Viewing District financials was also on the agenda. Said Johnstone, "We are still in good shape. We have healthy reserves, which are necessary" because of the burden California taxpayers and school districts have for their part in providing funding for state retirees. Dave Wilson, District Chief Business Official, sparred a little with some Board members about finances, but it appeared that all was well on the monetary side.

The next regularly scheduled Board meeting for the WUSD is slated for Thursday evening, September 28, at the building on Aviation Avenue. But Superintendent Johnstone pulled out his crystal ball. "The November Board meeting will be in the new [Douglas Street] building," he predicted. "And it's gorgeous." •

3 Pressing Reasons to Talk Hearing Health at your Next Physical Exam

(BPT) - When was the last time you and your doctor talked about your hearing?

The fact is, only about 3 in 10 adults who had a physical exam in the last year say it included a hearing screening, according to research conducted by the Better Hearing Institute (BHI). That's a shame, because research shows that hearing health is more closely tied to whole health and quality of life than previously understood - which means that diagnosing and treating hearing loss early may be beneficial on many fronts.

To help people take charge of their hearing health, BHI has created a free digital flipbook, "How to Talk to Your Doctor About Hearing Loss," which anyone can view and download at www.betterhearing.org/news/how-talk-your-doctor-about-hearing-loss.

The flipbook provides pertinent information to help consumers start the discussion, which is especially important because research shows that patients are more likely to initiate the conversation about hearing than their doctors are.

To go along with the free flipbook, BHI has put together this short list of reasons to speak up and start the conversation on your hearing:

1. Hearing loss has been linked to other significant health issues. In recent years, a flurry of studies has come out showing a link between hearing loss and other health issues, including depression, dementia, cardiovascular disease, diabetes, moderate chronic kidney disease, rheumatoid arthritis, sleep apnea, obesity, an increased risk of falls, hospitalization and mortality, and cognitive decline. With so much new and emerging research, it makes sense for people to talk with their doctors about their hearing as a routine part of their medical care.

2. Addressing hearing loss often has a positive impact on quality of life. Most people who currently wear hearing aids say it has helped their general ability to communicate, participate in group activities and their overall quality of life, according to BHI research. The research also shows that people with hearing loss who use hearing aids are more likely to be optimistic, feel engaged in life, get more pleasure in doing things, have a strong social network and are more likely to tackle problems actively. Many even say they feel more confident and better about themselves as a result of using hearing aids.

3. Leaving hearing loss untreated may come at a financial cost. Most hearing aid users in the workforce say it has helped their performance on the job. In fact, BHI research found that using hearing aids reduced the risk of income loss by 90 to 100 percent for those with milder hearing loss, and from 65 to 77 percent for those with severe to moderate hearing loss. People with untreated hearing loss can lose as much as $30,000 in income annually, the BHI research found. Health care spending may also be affected. For instance, middle-aged adults (55-64) with diagnosed hearing loss had substantially higher health care costs, according to a study published in JAMA Otolaryngology-Head & Neck Surgery, indicating that hearing loss may place patients at risk for increased health care use and costs. The study authors suggested that early, successful intervention may prevent future hearing-related disabilities and decreased quality of life. Tips to Prepare your Budget Before Buying a Home

(BPT) - It's virtually impossible to know what size home you can afford if you aren't fully aware of how much money you are earning and how much you are spending each month.

Start with your income: How much do you bring home after taxes and retirement plan contributions? Next, look at your expenses: What are your necessary expenses? How much are you paying each month toward your debt? What additional expenses do you have that wouldn't be deemed "necessary?" How much money do you have left (if any)?

While rent payments are generally straightforward and predictable, the same can't always be said for homeownership costs. Your situation can vary depending on a variety of factors, but here are a few things you might need to prepare your budget for.

Property taxes: The amount you pay will depend on the area in which you are purchasing a home. This amount can be subject to annual adjustment by the municipality or local taxing authority.

Homeowners insurance: Lenders will require you to provide proof of coverage before closing. The amount you pay will depend on your level of coverage, your property and the location. Insurance costs can increase from time to time.

Private mortgage insurance (PMI) or mortgage insurance premiums (MIP): If your down payment is less than 20 percent on a conventional mortgage, your lender will require you to carry private mortgage insurance. If you have an FHA loan, you'll be required to pay mortgage insurance premiums throughout the life of the loan.

Home ownership assistance: A company like Unison Home Ownership Investors can strengthen your down payment overnight and eliminate the need for private mortgage insurance (see their Unison HomeBuyer program). Using this method will typically save you between 15 and 20 percent per month on your mortgage payment, but you could owe a portion of the appreciation on the home when you sell.

Homeowners association fees: Fortunately, not all homes have a homeowners association to pay into. Purchasing a home with HOA-covered amenities could cost, on average, an additional $200-$400 per month.

Maintenance fees: Ah, the pitfalls of being a homeowner. The costs that would normally fall to a landlord, like fixing broken plumbing or a heater on the fritz, will now fall on your shoulders. Some suggest saving one percent of your home's value annually for maintenance.

Utility costs: Unless your rent has included the cost of utilities, this is probably already an expense you're used to. However, if you're moving into a bigger home with less energy efficient appliances, you should be prepared to see an uptick.

If you want to avoid experiencing sticker shock after your home purchase is complete, start living like a homeowner now.

Consider your current rental or homeownership costs and compare them to the costs for a home in your target price point. Can your current budget handle the difference? Are you still able to pay for your necessities plus shore up your financial future through short- and long-term savings? Or do you find yourself feeling desperate by the end of the month?

Now that you know where your money is going, determine the unnecessary leaks. Maybe your monthly food bill is exorbitantly high. Or maybe your subscription services have gotten out of hand. If your priority is purchasing a home - and being financially comfortable in that home - work to cut expenses that are contradictory to that goal.

GOOD NEIGHBORS – GOOD DAY

It was a good day in Hawthorne last Saturday. The 7th Annual Good Neighbors Day was just a good event on a good day. The weather was good. The car show guys showed up early with their nice cars. The variety of music was a good mix. The grand opening of the new Hawthorne Museum was well received with a large crowd viewing the displays following the ribbon cutting. Thank you to the volunteers and city leaders who made it all possible. The City of Hawthorne is leasing the Jim Thorpe building to the Historical Society so that the museum can continue to provide a good place for the citizens of Hawthorne to gather and celebrate our rich history. The Museum's hours now will be from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Tuesdays and Saturdays. If you didn't make it over to see the new site last Saturday, you are encouraged to stop by any Tuesday or Saturday. The address is 14100 Prairie Avenue.

At a planning meeting one of the Historical Society members asked if we could conduct a 50-50 during Good Neighbors Day. To my surprise, there were quite a few members present who didn't know what a 50-50 drawing was. If you've been to a little league game, car show event, or a minor league baseball game, you might have heard that they were selling 50-50 tickets. It's a fundraiser. Simply put, tickets are sold, you get a raffle ticket and if your number is drawn then you get half of the "pot" and the sponsoring organization gets to keep half for their cause. It's not like you have a 50% chance of winning. Your odds are determined by the number of tickets sold. The more tickets sold, the bigger the pot.

CUBAN FESTIVAL

On Sunday, October 1st, from 12 noon to 6 p.m., we will have the opportunity to experience the flavor of our Cuban friends. Great music, food and fun are all on the agenda. The annual Cuban Festival will be held at the Sociedad Jose Marti which is located at 12141 Prairie Avenue. Parking is limited to street parking so plan to get over there early to avoid searching for a spot. Admission is $10 for adults.

HIGH END OR HIGH DENSITY?

Next Tuesday, the Hawthorne City Council will be voting upon a development project slated for Crenshaw Blvd across from SpaceX. It's going to be interesting to see how the Council votes. Like most controversial projects, there are two sides to the argument. The people in favor of the Green Line Mixed-Use Project, as it is being called, look at the development as a plus for the city. It's touted as "high end" luxury apartment living for the young professional who can hop on the Green Line and take it to most anywhere now in LA County. Those opposed to the project look at it as another "high density" apartment complex adding more cars to our already crowded streets and not really servicing the real needs of the city.

A LOYAL READER

Well oh well oh well, would you believe that one of my readers admitted to reading my column each week? She came up to me last Saturday and told me that she not only reads them, she saves them and has a stack in her home that is getting higher by the week. Can you imagine what joy this brings me? They say that if you have one or two true friends in your life time then you are blessed. Well, if I have one or two readers who are just waiting to read the latest nonsense that I spit out each week, then I feel extremely fortunate, lucky, blessed and enthralled by the mere thought of a neighbor taking the time to read and digest my musings. Thankfulness and gratefulness are two wonderful ways to live life. If we look at our beer mug as half empty we get sad, but if we look at it and say it's half full then we see the positive side of life that we can still enjoy right until the very last drop. To tell you the truth, my mug has been full and overflowing all of my life. God has blessed me beyond my wildest sips or gulps. It's all about what direction we look. I know a lot of times I only look inwardly towards myself and my own worries and problems. If I look outward, I see others and their needs. I see how I can help by simply smiling and saying hi. The best direction is to look upward. By looking up to see God and his love for us. It's true, God loves us. He cares for us. He wants the best for us. Our beer may run out, but God's keg never runs dry. •

UCLA Bruins, Josh Rosen Wilt in the Memphis Sun

By Adam Serrao

All of the talk this year surrounding the UCLA football program has been centered on Bruins quarterback Josh Rosen. Rosen, the unquestioned leader of the Bruins, is touted to be a top pick in next year's NFL Draft, if not the number one player off the board. Last Saturday at Liberty Memorial Stadium in Memphis, Tennessee, Rosen wasn't the quarterback blooming on the national stage like all initially expected. Instead, Memphis Tigers quarterback Riley Ferguson managed to best Rosen in the game and in the stat line. In doing so, the Tigers not only won the game by a final of 48-45, but the unranked team also illustrated just how vulnerable the draft prospect and the Bruins can actually be.

The Bruins have looked rather flawed in multiple areas during this year's young college football season. That much has certainly been clear, beginning with UCLA's game two weeks ago against the Texas A&M Aggies in which Rosen had to orchestrate a comeback from 34 points down in order to pull out an extremely exciting, nail-biting, last-second victory. Last week's game against Memphis may have been equally as exciting...but despite the amount of big plays and the massive score total, Rosen and the Bruins not only had their luck run dry, but also may just have been completely exposed in the process.

Ferguson didn't just lead his team to victory. He threw for 398 yards and six touchdowns while matching, if not outplaying, Rosen every step of the way. For all intents and purposes, Rosen put up his share of decent numbers too, throwing for a massive amount of 463 yards and four touchdown passes on 56 attempts. Despite those gaudy numbers, however, this game was more about what Rosen didn't do as opposed to what he did do.

The game against Memphis marked the first time in the Bruins' initial three contests that a flaw in Rosen's game had sprung its nasty head. Rosen, in UCLA's pass-first offense, did not throw an interception in either of his team's first two games and two victories of the season. Last week, he managed to throw two interceptions, one of which was returned 60 yards for a touchdown by Memphis linebacker Tim Hart in the third quarter. Though Rosen's other interception wasn't returned for points, it came at an even worse time in the game. With under seven minutes remaining and UCLA looking for an edge that would give it the game, Rosen's second interception of the afternoon not only stalled a Bruins drive that was currently deep in Memphis territory, but also wound up losing his team the game.

"I had no doubt we were going to go down and score at the end," said a dejected Rosen after the game. "I just made some stupid mistakes. I made 10 points worth of really bad plays." For the junior Rosen, this game, as much as any that the starting quarterback has ever played in, can be chalked up to a becoming a great learning experience for a quarterback who will undoubtedly wind up playing on Sundays next year or the year after. In the meantime, however, those mistakes were perhaps the biggest reason that the Bruins lost their first game of the season and have taken a step back in this year's college football Top 25 rankings.

UCLA head coach Jim Mora chimed in when asked about the poor decisions made by his star quarterback. "He made some really good plays and obviously, he would love to have the turnovers back," Mora explained. "He has to learn to be a little more careful with the ball." Even Rosen admitted that he was trying to do too much to lead his team back from behind and to a victory for the second week in a row. "It's trying to play hero ball," he explained. "You have to play within the system."

That system may be as much to blame for the loss as Rosen could be. Despite racking up 633 yards of total offense, the running game looked to be almost anemic for most of the day. In the box score, Jalen Starks came away with six carries for 20 yards and a touchdown, but he was the fifth running back on the roster to even touch the ball. In all, seven players on offense carried the football, including Rosen, for a total of 170 yards. That's not to mention the defense that allowed one 100-yard rusher and just less than 400 yards total receiving from Memphis wide receivers. Five different Tigers receivers caught touchdown passes, including Anthony Miller who caught two and hauled in 185 yards through the air.

The loss was a crushing blow for Rosen and the Bruins, who entered the Top 25 for the first time this year going into last week and held the last spot in the rankings available. Now UCLA will have a lot of work to do in order to erase the mistakes made. Rosen will likely continue to find success under center, but the Bruins will attempt to get back into the rankings when they take on the Stanford Cardinal in what should be a tough matchup this week. Looking ahead, UCLA's schedule seems to sport a relatively mild difficulty level, outside of matchups at Washington and at USC later in the season. If the Bruins want any shot at a possible Pac-12 championship or even a playoff appearance this year, they'll certainly have to limit their mistakes and shore up what has already shown itself to be a porous defense in order to do so. • — Aserrao6@yahoo.com

September's Disasters Hold Lessons for the South Bay

By Rob McCarthy

South Bay residents could be forgiven for thinking they've heard this all before. Disasters don't plan ahead, but you can. Yet, September's wildfires and Mexico's strong earthquake have injected an urgency in the local readiness campaign, which kicks off this month against a backdrop of natural disasters throughout the country.

"The timing is just right," said spokesman Ken Kondo with the county's emergency management team. "We have our Los Angeles County Prepareathon—a program that pairs with FEMA to prepare residents and businesses for emergencies and disasters [trying] to get them educated, prepared and trained before disaster hits."

The Prepareathon runs from September through November with public events nearby in Gardena, Torrance and Long Beach. The safety fairs and emergency-response training sessions represent the calm before the proverbial storm for South Bay communities that are accustomed to fires, earthquakes and refinery emergencies.

This year, while FEMA was mobilizing thousands of responders and relief employees to the hurricane disaster zones in Texas and Florida, Los Angeles County was confronting its own seasonal danger: a wildfire that started September 1 near Burbank. The La Tuna Fire burned 7,000 acres and forced evacuation of 1,400 people while fire crews fought the blaze.

It's being called the largest acreage fire in the history of Los Angeles, and the damage was limited to a few structures and no lives were lost. One firefighter was treated for minor burns, according to reports.

Residents were invited last Saturday to communitywide disaster-readiness expos in Long Beach and Gardena. They offered a glimpse of what local households and neighborhoods can expect, and what they should pack away in an emergency supply kit. A family of four needs at least 12 gallons of drinking water, attendees learned, along with how to purify containers using a solution of water, bleach and dish detergent.

The fourth annual event in Long Beach was a collaboration of Long Beach emergency agencies, nonprofits, businesses and area response agencies, including L.A. County's. The Gardena event was a second annual preparedness fair hosted by the Japanese Cultural Institute. Among the topics discussed Saturday was how to get neighbors involved and talking about disasters. One of the simplest and most direct ways is for individuals to get first aid-certified and take disaster response training, according to the L.A. County team. The first responders in any emergency are next-door neighbors and people living and working in a building together.

There is still time to find a seminar or a responder training session through Los Angeles County's campaign. The next nearby Prepareathon event takes place from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. October 27 at the Sunnyside Nursing Center in Torrance. Evacuation and safety of older residents in an emergency will be discussed. This event at 22617 S. Vermont Avenue is open to the public.

All county-sponsored events this month and next are built around four themes to guide proactive South Bay residents, property owners and caregivers to the homebound or disabled. An emergency kit with food, water and medicine is a must-have before and after a disaster strikes, the federal and local campaigns stress. When it will happen, no one can say, according to L.A. County's spokesman Kondo. But when the ground starts shaking, or an evacuation order follows a sonic boom explosion in El Segundo, Torrance or San Pedro, it'll be too late to start thinking about who and what to grab while rushing out the door or window.

Though it's too late to register for today's American Red Cross Disaster Preparedness Academy in Anaheim, surrounding communities will benefit from this 33rd annual event. Experts led daylong seminars on active shooters, earthquakes, evacuation planning, school and university preparedness, business preparedness and resiliency planning, drills and exercises, according to the Red Cross organizers. Contact the academy about upcoming trainings in the area by calling 714-481-5341 or emailing RedCrossDPA@redcross.org.

The American Red Cross also offers certified training to individuals and employers in first aid, CPR, disaster response and other lifesaving measures. Course information and the advantages of being a trained first responder in the home, office or neighborhood are explained in detail at www.redcross.org/ux/take-a-class.

Readiness is about knowing beforehand how to escape a building and account for everyone in the family or office once outside, according to Kondo. The Torrance refinery explosion in 2015 is a recent reminder of how an emergency can happen without warning and upend a seemingly normal day in the South Bay. Four people were injured by the blast, which catapulted 80,000 pieces of debris that landed a few feet from a tank holding a highly toxic chemical. The U.S. Chemical Safety Board investigated the explosion and said the acid could have formed a vapor cloud that traveled for miles across Torrance. Even small amounts of the acid can be lethal, the investigators said, and Torrance was spared a life-threatening event.

Torrance was the site of another refinery-related emergency last October when a flare-off knocked out power to surrounding cities and nearby residents were ordered to stay indoors. A flare-off occurs when a refinery relieves pressure to "ensure gases are safely combusted" instead of being released into the air, the Torrance Police and Fire departments explained during the Torrance Refinery Company incident on October 11, 2016.

Power outages from the flare-off were reported in Hawthorne, Gardena, Manhattan and Redondo Beach. Torrance schools were closed for the day, and the refinery was shut down for the public's safety. Southern California calamities aren't like the hurricanes in the Gulf and Atlantic, which follow a season and come with a warning to flee or ride out the storm. Local disasters come on suddenly, with a sonic boom or a shaking of the ground. Clear thinking isn't always possible when the building is rumbling and sirens start wailing, the experts say.

That day will come as it has before, Kondo says. The best defense is knowing beforehand how to react during the initial disaster and then how to survive the next 24 to 48 hours if an evacuation order is declared. Instinct is not a substitute for having an emergency kit packed and ready to grab, including prescription medications and comfort foods and extra socks and a fresh change of clothes, according to Kondo. That represents a bare-minimum level of preparedness that can soothe jangled nerves and put the ordeal into better perspective. "The time is now to prepare and be ready for these types of natural and/or manmade disasters," he says.

Local disaster experts encourage South Bay residents and community and church groups to learn about the four levels of readiness, which are covered in this month's county-led Preparedness campaign:

Week 1: Take the initiative to make a plan for yourself, family and friends.

Week 2: Decide how to help your neighbor and the community to handle a crisis.

Week 3: Practice in advance and try out your plan.

Week 4: Get involved with the community wide effort, be "part of something bigger."

Cassini Spacecraft Makes Its Final Approach to Saturn

Based on a Press Release from NASA, Provided by Bob Eklund

NASA's Cassini spacecraft is on final approach to Saturn, following confirmation by mission navigators that it is on course to dive into the planet's atmosphere on Friday, September 15.

Cassini is ending its 13-year tour of the Saturn system with an intentional plunge into the planet to ensure Saturn's moons—in particular Enceladus, with its subsurface ocean and signs of hydrothermal activity—remain pristine for future exploration. The spacecraft's fateful dive is the final beat in the mission's Grand Finale, 22 weekly dives, which began in late April, through the gap between Saturn and its rings. No spacecraft has ever ventured so close to the planet before.

The mission's final calculations predict loss of contact with the Cassini spacecraft will take place on September 15 at 4:55 a.m. PDT. Cassini will enter Saturn's atmosphere approximately one minute earlier, at an altitude of about 1,190 miles above the planet's estimated cloud tops (the altitude where the air pressure is 1-bar, equivalent to sea level on Earth). During its dive into the atmosphere, the spacecraft's speed will be approximately 70,000 miles per hour. The final plunge will take place on the day side of Saturn, near local noon, with the spacecraft entering the atmosphere around 10 degrees north latitude.

When Cassini first begins to encounter Saturn's atmosphere, the spacecraft's attitude control thrusters will begin firing in short bursts to work against the thin gas and keep Cassini's saucer-shaped high-gain antenna pointed at Earth to relay the mission's precious final data. As the atmosphere thickens, the thrusters will be forced to ramp up their activity, going from 10 percent of their capacity to 100 percent in the span of about a minute. Once they are firing at full capacity, the thrusters can do no more to keep Cassini stably pointed, and the spacecraft will begin to tumble.

When the antenna points just a few fractions of a degree away from Earth, communications will be severed permanently. The predicted altitude for loss of signal is approximately 930 miles above Saturn's cloud tops. From that point, the spacecraft will begin to burn up like a meteor. Within about 30 seconds following loss of signal, the spacecraft will begin to come apart. Within a couple of minutes, all remnants of the spacecraft are expected to be completely consumed in the atmosphere of Saturn.

Chief among the observations being made as Cassini dives into Saturn are those of the Ion and Neutral Mass Spectrometer (INMS). The instrument will directly sample the composition and structure of the atmosphere, which cannot be done from orbit. The spacecraft will be oriented so that INMS is pointed in the direction of motion, to allow it the best possible access to oncoming atmospheric gases.

For the next couple of days, as Saturn looms ever larger, Cassini expects to take a last look around the Saturn system, snapping a few final images of the planet, features in its rings, and the moons Enceladus and Titan. The final set of views from Cassini's imaging cameras is scheduled to be taken and transmitted to Earth on Thursday, September 14. If all goes as planned, images will be posted to the Cassini mission website beginning around 11 p.m. EDT (8 p.m. PDT). The unprocessed images will be available at: <https://saturn.jpl.nasa.gov/galleries/raw-images>. •

We are looking for volunteers to help with our pet adoption fairs that are held every Saturday at the Petco located at 537 N. Pacific Coast Highway in Redondo Beach, from noon-3:30 p.m. If you are interested in volunteering and can commit to at least one Saturday a month, please contact us at info@msfr.org. You can also visit all of our Miniature Schnauzers & Friends rescues at the adoption fair or check out our website, www.msfr.org. If you have any questions about a particular dog's availability you can email us at info@msfr.org. Schnauzers! But you can't adopt just one!

"They call me Glory and I certainly am in mine now that I've been rescued. I kept hearing about the impending Fourth of July fireworks, so I thought I'd best find a place to hide before they started. Little did I know that so many houses looked like mine and therein lies the reason for my getting lost. I wandered around and eventually ended up at an LA county shelter. They called me a stray, but I'm really a three-year old female Schnoodle—a Schnauzer/Poodle mix who is just a tiny, 14-pound cutie. When I arrived, I must admit I was a real mess—filthy, dark gray, matted dreadlocks is the only way to describe my coat. After a bath and something called a grooming, even I didn't recognize me. Who was this beautiful gal with the glistening white coat and huge, dark eyes? I even had someone who was going to adopt me, but then sadly they didn't show up to take me home and I still can't figure that out because everyone says I'm cute as a button. However it was really fortuitous because the folks that rescued me are helping me find my forever home. They tell me that I am wonderful with other dogs, I'm high-energy and very playful...so I could be just the perfect addition to your family!"

If you're interested in Glory, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

"My name is Faye and I'm a 10-year old female Chihuahua that was rescued from an LA county shelter after my owner surrendered me. Honestly, I have no idea why they just left me and went away, but it broke my heart. We had a wonderful, happy life together and then they no longer wanted me even though I loved them with all my being. It couldn't be I was cranky because even though I may be a bit older, I still get along well with other dogs and am a very sweet and easygoing lady. I'm at my ideal weight of eight pounds, so I'm easily transportable and don't take up much room. Basically all it takes is a little walk around the block, a soft bed and a human to love me to make me happy. If you're looking for a mature, petite little gal that is serene, excels in good manners and will be able to provide years of companionship, please won't you open your heart and home to me? I'm a dignified gal with a tad of mischief in my eyes and lots of love to give. I can be seen by appointment at Yellow Brick Road Doggie Playcare in El Segundo. Call 310-606-5507, or email southbaydoggie@hotmail.com for an appointment or more information."

Faye

"Let me introduce myself. My name is Rachel. I'm a stunning three-year-old, female purebred Miniature Schnauzer that was rescued from an LA county shelter. I was feeling a bit frumpy and decided I needed a new look—so while I was out looking for a groomer, animal control found me and delivered me to the shelter calling me a stray. Seriously? I'm very sociable and get along great with other dogs, but that did zero to get me adopted. I had several folks lined up to adopt me, but no one even showed up for an introduction and I'm sure it was my looks. After MSFR rescued me, I had my makeover and what a difference! The groomer did such an awesome job that now all of the gals are asking for the 'Rachel Cut.' I'm still a bit shy at initial meetings, but with my newfound confidence I warm up very quickly. Since I'm only 15 pounds, I'm a great lap dog and will spend time being super affectionate and giving lots of kisses. If you would love to have the gal who started the Rachel Cut and are looking for a real great companion, please come visit our adoption fair and ask for me—everyone knows me."

If you're interested in Rachel, please email info@msfr.org for more information. •

Happy Tails

Congratulations to Jack and his new life!

Another experience where a lot of love, patience and perseverance paid off. Jack was one of our older, special needs dogs that was difficult to place. He had to have an eye removed after being hit by a car and his remaining eye required drops twice a day. At one time we thought we had found him a home, but he was returned because he took his job as protector of his family a little too seriously. His defensive nature when meeting strangers could be a bit off-putting, so we had a trainer work with him to improve his introduction manners. While adoptions didn't reveal his finer attributes, he was loving and patient with his caretakers and that is who opened their heart to Jack. Despite his issues, Jack's caregiver, who works at Yellow Brick Road, fell in love with Jack. She continued working with him and started taking Jack home at night to acquaint him with her two dogs, one of which is an MSFR alumni.

They like Jack and Jack likes them and they are all now one happy family. Congratulations to Jack and his new life. We wish you all happy times and great memories. •

THE YELLOW DOG PROJECT.com

If you see a dog with a YELLOW RIBBON or something yellow on the leash, this is a dog who needs some space. Please do not approach this dog with your dog. Please maintain distance or give this dog and his/her person time to move out of your way.

There are many reasons why a dog may need space:

- HEALTH ISSUES
- IN TRAINING
- BEING REHABILITATED
- SCARED OR REACTIVE AROUND OTHER DOGS

THANK YOU!
Those of us who own these dogs appreciate your help and respect!
