Mayor Pro Tem Awad Addresses Measure HH, City's Dubious Financial Situation

By Derrick Deane

In their final meeting before Election Day, the Hawthorne City Council members voiced their unanimous support for Measure HH and addressed the City of Hawthorne's financial state in the next few years.

Measure HH would raise the total sales tax rate in Hawthorne from 9.5 to 10.25 percent. The tax increase would generate $8.5 million annually, which City officials have stated would go towards continued funding for the police and fire departments--as well as other services--and also help balance budgets in the near future.

The State of California-mandated tax rate is 7.25 percent while the County of Los Angeles levies a 2.25 percent sales tax. City officials said that under the current structure, Hawthorne sees very little in the form of tax revenue after State and County shares have been allocated. "A lot of the taxes you're paying don't go straight to the City of Hawthorne," Mayor Pro Tem Hadir Awad said. "The County takes a bit, the State takes their share...so a local sales tax increase would balance any impact more generally, but not solely impacting just one group be it residents, business owners, et cetera." Awad added that sales tax increases are one of the very limited options cities have for increasing revenues. On a $100 sale of taxable goods, the local sales tax would amount to an additional 75 cents on top of current State and County taxes.

Without finding new and alternative methods of income, the City is likely to end up in financial trouble again by 2021. "We have a lot of employees that are doing a lot of work with less staff," Awad said of how the City has managed to bounce back over the past two years from financial collapse. "It is an ongoing problem, though, and something that we have to look into with a deeper focus--because if we don't take any corrective measures, it's going to lead to some irreversible issues."

Awad said that when California abolished redevelopment agencies, Hawthorne lost $20 million in investments. Additionally, cutbacks in CBGB funds lead to a loss of $1.4 million per year in revenue.

Despite measures that the City Council has implemented, Awad said that revenue was still inadequate. He noted that one of the most frequent comments he gets is since Hawthorne has so many manufacturing companies and big corporations, that the City should be flooded with cash. "Yes, we do have some big-name corporations in the city, but they do not generate revenue to the general fund at a substantial level," Awad explained. "Even with these companies which include Tesla, SpaceX, and Costco, they don't even generate part of the revenue that El Segundo is receiving from Chevron."

On a graph that was shown during his presentation, Awad pointed out that the amount that Chevron contributes to El Segundo's general fund is almost double what the City of Hawthorne generates per capita. "The reason I point that out is because I want the residents to understand that yes, we do have big companies and yes, we're getting more retail shops in--but we have to look at other ways of enhancing our revenue stream because they're just not generating enough for us to keep a balanced budget," he said.

The sales tax increase would also be audited annually by the Citizens Oversight Committee, which includes Awad.

The Mayor Pro Tem also gave a presentation outlining the financial situation over the next few years. It summarized that despite a one-time funding spike from the sale of land across the street from City Hall, the City would eventually run out of funds by 2020-2021 if no corrective measures were taken.

"After that one-time sale in 2018-2019, you see us dip back down to what we normally have--which is an increase, but minimal to around $63 million," Awad said. "The issue that a lot of people don't understand is our expenditures will continue to increase, and that's something that we have to focus on. These expenditures are out of our control--insurance, L.A. County Fire Department... there's certain things that are not in our ability to control that as costs go up, we have to find ways to enhance our revenues."

Awad added that there are no other assets that the City is looking to sell nor is that a method the Council is considering to enhance income. He warned that at the current state if no corrective action is taken, the City will face a deficit of $8 million that will require a 30 percent cut in services. "The issue is that this 30 percent cut is going to be to departments that have already taken a substantial cut when we first tried to balance the budget a few years ago when we were facing that $7.2 million deficit," Awad said.

Awad also pointed out that at the current pace, the City will have to begin using operational funds to stabilize the budget in 2018-2019--and those would be depleted by 2020. "It's something that we have to take a look at quickly because we're almost nearing 2018, so there's two more years of a healthy operation fund--but by 2021-2022, it gets close to around negative $5 million," he said. "When a city starts getting that close, you're looking at bankruptcy."

If passed on November 7, the collection of Measure HH tax would begin on April 1, 2018 and continue until the tax is repealed by the City Council or by voters. Measure HH was placed on the ballot with a unanimous vote by the City Council on June 11, 2017. •

3 Activities To Help You Move Safely After Knee Surgery

(BPT) - Most patients undergoing knee surgery want to know when they'll be able to return to a pain-free, active lifestyle and do the things they once enjoyed before knee pain took over. For 58-year-old Kathleen Cohan, this meant a desire to return to mountain biking, hiking and skiing - activities she had always loved to do as a youth and continued to enjoy with her husband in their hometown of Golden, Colorado.

Cohan recently participated in a clinical trial to treat persistent knee pain caused by a meniscus tear. After receiving the NUsurface Meniscus Implant - the first "artificial meniscus" - she completed a six-week rehabilitation program and was ready to return to doing the things she loved.

"The NUsurface Meniscus Implant changed my life. It feels great to not have to worry before I choose an activity about how much pain I'll be in afterward," Cohan says. "My husband and I recently went on a 100-mile mountain bike trip, and I climbed a 14,000-foot peak last month and my knee didn't bother me at all. The implant gave me a chance to extend my activity level as long as I possibly can."

Three months after surgery, most patients have completely recovered and are able to return to many activities that were too painful or difficult previously. Once you've been cleared by your doctor, the safest way to restart activity after meniscus surgery is to find activities that avoid placing unnecessary stress on your knee joint. Here are three activities to help you move safely after knee surgery:

1. Walk (don't run!). Experts say walking outside your home three to five times each day is one of the best ways to regain your knee strength. While you may need to adjust the length of your step and speed, you will be able to spend more time walking for exercise once your muscle strength improves.

2. Dance. While you should avoid high-impact moves like jumping or lifts, ballroom dancing and gentle modern dancing are great ways to use leg muscles, engage in aerobic activity and have fun! Just be sure to avoid abrupt movements or twists that could potentially put your knee out of alignment.

3. Swim. Once the wound has healed, many people choose swimming as their exercise of choice as it's not a weight-bearing activity and therefore reduces stress to the joints. If your knee is still a bit tender, opt for water aerobics or pool walking.

Want to mix it up? You can feel safe doing many other recommended activities such as yoga, golf, boating, aerobics or rowing. If you have experience prior to your surgery doing more intense activities, like Cohan, your doctor may give you the go-ahead to resume cycling, hiking, cross-country skiing and doubles tennis. Whichever activity you choose, remember that rushing into activities before you've recovered sufficiently may put you at risk for complications, so be sure to check with your doctor first before resuming any activity after meniscus surgery.

To be eligible for the NUsurface Meniscus Implant clinical studies, you must be between the ages of 30 and 75, and have pain after medial (the inside of the knee) meniscus surgery at least six months ago. To find a study site near you, visit www.activeimplants.com/kneepaintrial. •

New Ways To Comparison Shop For Health Care

(BPT) - As our nation seeks solutions to help improve the health care system, there is at least one goal we can all agree on: the importance of making health care quality and cost information more accessible to all Americans.

This is an important effort that has the potential to help improve health outcomes and make care more affordable - laudable goals considering the nation's health care system ranks among the least efficient in the world, according to a recent Bloomberg analysis.

More widespread use of health quality and cost resources may be part of the solution. Providing health care prices to consumers, health care professionals and other stakeholders could reduce U.S. health care spending by more than $100 billion during the next decade, according to a 2014 and in some cases provide people with estimates based on actual contracted rates with physicians and hospitals, including likely out-of-pocket costs based on their current health plan benefits. Some resources also include quality information about specific physicians, as determined by independent standards.

There are many resources people can consider when shopping for health care. In addition to online and mobile resources, people can call their health plan to discuss quality and cost transparency information, as well as talk with their health care professional about alternative treatment settings, including urgent care and telehealth options. Public websites, such as www.uhc.com/transparency and www.guroo.com, also can help enable report by the Gary and Mary West Health Policy Center.

That is in part because there are significant price variations for health care services and procedures at hospitals and doctors' offices nationwide, yet a study by Families U.S.A. concluded that higher-priced care providers do not necessarily deliver higher-quality care or better health outcomes.

Fortunately, there are many new online and mobile resources that help enable people to access health care quality and cost information, helping them to comparison shop for health care as they would with other consumer products and services. And people are starting to take action: nearly one third of Americans have used the internet or mobile apps during the last year to comparison shop for health care, up from 14 percent in 2012, according to a recent UnitedHealthcare survey.

These resources are far more accurate and useful than those of past generations, access to market-average prices for hundreds of medical services in cities nationwide.

These resources can help people save money and select health care professionals based on objective information. A UnitedHealthcare analysis showed that people who use online or mobile transparency resources are more likely to select health care providers rated on quality and cost-efficiency across all specialties, including for primary care (7 percent more likely) and orthopedics (9 percent more likely). In addition, the analysis found that people who use the transparency resources before receiving health care services pay 36 percent less than non-users.

As people take greater responsibility for their health care decisions and the cost of medical treatments, transparency resources are becoming important tools to help consumers access quality care and avoid surprise medical bills. •

is one working? Good Luck! I will share the answers with all five of you next week.

HALLOWEEN CHAMBER MIXER

The Hawthorne Chamber of Commerce will host a mixer on Halloween night over at Chester Washington Golf Course, located at 120th and Western Avenue. The mixer is from 5 to 7 p.m.

and will include great food, games and costume contests.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY TO MEET

The Hawthorne Historical Society will conduct an open meeting on Monday, November 6 beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the new Hawthorne Museum. Dr. Tom Johnstone, superintendent of Wiseburn School District will be our guest speaker. He will share stories of his life in Hawthorne and give a brief history of the Wiseburn School District that has been over on the westside of town forever.

VETERANS DAY AFTERPARTY

November 11th is Veterans Day and the Veteran's Commission for the City of Hawthorne is hosting a Veterans Day "AfterParty" at Dana Middle School located on 135th Street in Holly Glen. There will be a brief program and then the party will begin with a great rock band and dancing. Come celebrate our veterans on their day. The program will begin at 7 p.m. on Saturday, November 11.

PARKING

When I speak with neighbors and friends their number one complaint is parking or the lack there of on residential streets. I have spoken out several times at city council meetings. I have written a couple of articles on this problem. There really doesn't seem to be any real good solutions. Neighboring cities have similar parking problems. Some of these cities have permit parking or restricted zone parking. We have several residents come to the city council to speak about their individual parking problems. It gets to be a safety issue when people have to walk several blocks at night just to get home. If I had the answer I would certainly share it with you and the council. I feel your pain. I understand your frustration. It has become a "parking war" on many of our streets. Having a cold one will not solve this problem but it make you feel a little better about life in our city. •

VOTE YES ON HH

It's a no brainer. The City of Hawthorne is not bringing in enough revenue to meet the demands for city services. We are running a deficit. It is not due to mismanagement or corruption. It's due to the lack of tax revenue generated within our city. We do not have big corporations that sell products that generates tax revenue. So, what is Measure HH? It is simply a very small sales tax increase on non-food items. If you buy a big screen television at Costco-Hawthorne and pay $400 retail price, then the increase in sales tax would be simply $3. For every $100 you will pay 75 cents more. Most of our customers at Costco and Home Depot don't live in the City. So we, the residents, will only be paying for only 40% of the tax increase. There is no question that the added income will help our city. Use your brain, vote YES. Help Hawthorne move forward.

HAWTHORNE TRIVIA

While you watch the Dodgers win the world championship and as you sip on your cold ones to stay cool, here is some Hawthorne trivia to digest. (Email me your answers. The first person to get them all correct will have the opportunity to enjoy a cold one with the City Clerk. Special note: Family members are not eligible to win since I really don't care to share a cold one with my biggest critics.) What was the name of the street that Marilyn Monroe lived on when she lived in Hawthorne? What street did Jim Thorpe live on in Hawthorne? What family lived on 119th Street? What single family housing tract was built first Holly Glen or Holly Park? At what location in Hawthorne did Jack Northrop start his company? What year was the first graduating class from Hawthorne High School? Who came up with the name Hawthorne? When you drop the e from Hawthorne what do you spell and what does it refer to? What year was the current city hall built? What organization had a contest to come up with the city motto, City of Good Neighbors? What is a wig-wag and where in Hawthorne

Film Review

A Twisted Journey of Revenge from Visionary Yorgos Lanthimos

By Morgan Rojas for cinemacy.com

Yorgos Lanthimos set the bar high after the 2015 release of his dystopian romance/drama The Lobster that landed on multiple "Best Of" lists and was considered a worldwide phenomenon for its originality and satirical tones. The Greek-born director takes the audience down a darker path in The Killing of a Sacred Deer. Rejoining forces with Colin Farrell, Sacred Deer is a destructive psychological thriller born out of revenge. It shows just how easily one's life can turn upside down when put in a desperate situation.

The film opens on an extreme close-up of an open heart surgery and a slow zoom out reveals Dr. Steven Murphy (Farrell) dressed in full-body scrubs. The renowned cardiovascular surgeon is meticulous about his work, both professionally and in his suburban home life. He criticizes his son Bob (Sunny Suljic) about the length of his hair and sets social restrictions for his daughter Kim (Raffey Cassidy) while admiring the perfection of his ophthalmologist wife, Anna (Nicole Kidman). All in all, life is good for the Murphys.

It's no surprise then that with his clout and status, Steven is happy to mentor and befriend Martin (Barry Keoghan)--a teenager being raised by a single mother (Alicia Silverstone) who has shown interest in becoming a doctor. Martin's oddness comes across through awkward social skills, but his intentions seem pure. Martin soon begins to infiltrate Dr. Murphy's life--after showing up at his work unannounced, displaying interest in his daughter, and a string of questionable acts, Steven begins to have reservations about his relationship with Martin. Only by that point, it's too late.

Lanthimos has an artful way of examining complicated relationships in his films, and The Killing of a Sacred Deer pulls no punches when it comes to unnerving visuals. He subtly pushes the boundaries of reality until you realize the absurdity of the situation in which we find the characters. Adding to the eerie surrealism are sweeping one-takes and an observational style of filmmaking that his longtime collaborator, cinematographer Timios Bakatakis, has perfected.

Colin Farrell makes an exciting return to the big screen in Sacred Deer as Dr. Murphy. His levelheadedness as the protagonist living the picturesque American Dream does a complete 180 at the end of the film, and that transformation is mesmerizing. Acting opposite Farrell is Barry Keoghan, whose slow-boil performance as the brooding Martin is one of the most unsettling and villainous performances of the year. In true Lanthimos fashion, however, mystery provides a thick veil and situations are downplayed on the surface--resulting in a pulsating fear at the film's climax.

Winner of the Best Screenplay Award at this year's Cannes Film Festival, The Killing of a Sacred Deer is another twisted journey through the mind of modern-day visionary Yorgos Lanthimos. It is fantastical and darkly absurd--an uncomfortably hilarious and thoughtful look at relationships and the sacrifice one makes under impossible circumstances. While it may be difficult to overshadow the success of The Lobster, Sacred Deer will have no trouble solidifying itself as a successful entry in Lanthimos' expanding canon.

The Killing of a Sacred Deer is rated R for disturbing violent and sexual content, some graphic nudity and language. 116 minutes. Now playing at the ArcLight Hollywood and The Landmark. •

LA Dodgers Wave Pennant for the First Time Since 1988 Title Year

By Adam Serrao

The Los Angeles Dodgers are this year's National League champions. A team that has been knocking on the World Series door for quite some time now has finally broken that door down and made their grand appearance on the world championship stage. That's not to say that the Dodgers have necessarily won anything yet. They'll still need a World Series banner to make their magical season turn complete—and by the time this article appears, two games will have already been played and we will have an early idea of how things are progressing towards that goal.

A three-game sweep over their hated rivals from Arizona followed by a 4-1 series victory over a Cubs team that kicked the Dodgers out of the playoffs last season finally gave all Los Angeles players and fans the opportunity that they have been craving for so long now. In just three games, the Dodgers scored 20 runs and showed a very loquacious Arizona team that the latter is nowhere near the level of L.A. Chicago quickly learned that fact as well. Last year's "team of destiny" was quickly removed, as Clayton Kershaw and company made quick work of the Cubs—all while looking extremely powerful in the process.

"Up there with getting married and having kids," Kershaw explained of his team's NLCS victory, as he held back tears. "It's right up there with one of the best days of my life.

Winning the World Series is really all that we play this game for. All the individual stuff is great, but at the end of the day, I just want to win a World Series. If we win, I might retire, so I might just call it a career. It's a special thing, and I know that I'm not taking that for granted."

The sentiments that Kershaw echoed bring to light just how difficult getting to the World Series can be. The Dodgers themselves had been trying for years now, only to walk away at the end of their e postseason runs feeling disappointed and dejected. A loss to the Cubs last year in the NLCS. A loss to the New York Mets in the 2015 NLDS. A loss to the St. Louis Cardinals in the 2014 NLDS and again in the 2013 NLCS. All just mere steps away, knocking on the door. This year, the Boys in Blue finally put it all together and used their experience to knock the door down and become the 2017 World Series favorites going into the matchup with the Astros that kicked off this past Tuesday.

The most interesting part about the Dodgers making it to the World Series is the players on the roster that have helped get the team to this point. Every night, someone different has stepped up to the plate—literally and figuratively—to get the job done. Chris Taylor wasn't on the team's roster to begin the 2017 baseball season. He was a castoff from the Seattle Mariners and didn't play in the outfield until the Dodgers moved him there. Next thing you know, he was the NLCS co-MVP and a super-utility man who can easily be called the team's engine. The other co-MVP, Justin Turner, was a castoff in his own right. Delegated to the bench in New York with the Mets, ex-Dodgers GM Ned Colletti saw something in Turner. Colletti brought him to the Dodgers, and like many other players on this team's roster have done, Turner honed his craft and has now become one of the best players in all of Major League baseball.

Many of the moves that this Dodgers front office—and ex-front office mates like Colletti—have made were at first unpopular, but have built a foundation for a winning ball club that exhibits all of the qualities of the word "team" to a tee. Dee Gordon, the former beloved Dodger second baseman, was traded for a group of players that included now starting catcher Austin Barnes and the NLCS Game 5 hero, Kike Hernandez. The team traded away much coveted pitching prospect Zach Lee, which at the time was a controversial decision. Who did the Dodgers get back in that trade? Chris Taylor. Moves like those, among others, that may have been unpopular at the time are paying dividends now and have proved to put the puzzle pieces together that have been necessary in forming this year's World Series team.

"We're right where we wanted to be since the start of the year," Taylor said of the team that finished the season with the best record in the MLB. The Dodgers, who had previously lost 16 of 17 games in September, never doubted themselves. Their losing was more of a factor of getting roles set for the postseason than it was of being a bad baseball team. In the same amount of time that everyone began to write the Dodgers off and wonder if they had what it took to be competitive in the playoffs, Roberts and the team learned that they could not trust Pedro Baez and Ross Stripling in high-leverage situations. They learned that they could rely on Brandon Morrow in the eighth inning and bring in Kenta Maeda in the middle innings to get out powerful right-handed bats. Adam Liberatore, Grant Dayton and, to an extent, Luis Avilan all fell off the board while Tony Cingrani and Tony Watson stepped up to form one of the best postseason bullpens baseball has ever seen through the first two rounds.

Every move by this Dodgers team has been calculated from the start with the intent to form one of the best ball clubs in team history that has begun its first World Series since 1988. While Dodger teams of the past may not have had what it took to get the job done, this team can never be counted out. The Boys in Blue may not have won anything yet, but this 2017 Los Angeles Dodgers baseball team could go down as perhaps the best that any of their fans has ever seen.

Ingredients

- 2 slices of Arnold, Brownberry or Oroweat Whole Grains Oatnut Bread, toasted
- 2 teaspoons extra virgin olive oil
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon harissa
- 1 tablespoon orange marmalade
- 1/4 teaspoon each of ground coriander and ground cumin
- 1/8 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 pinch each of salt and black pepper
- 3 medium assorted rainbow carrots, shaved into long ribbons with a vegetable peeler
- 1/2 cup loosely packed arugula
- 2 teaspoons fresh mint, chiffonade
- 2 tablespoons golden raisins
- 2 tablespoons chopped roasted pistachios
- 3 tablespoons crumbled feta
- 1/4 cup roasted garlic hummus

Preparation

1. Preheat oven to 425 degrees Fahrenheit.
2. On a large baking sheet, place potatoes, peppers and onions in a single layer. Drizzle with olive oil and sprinkle with seasoned salt and ground black pepper. Toss until evenly coated.
3. Roast for about 30-40 minutes or until potatoes are golden brown and tender, stirring and rotating pan halfway through cooking.
4. Meanwhile, crack Eggland's Best eggs into a large bowl, then season with salt and pepper and whisk until smooth.
5. Heat a large skillet over medium heat then spray with nonstick spray and add eggs.
6. Scramble until the eggs are just barely cooked through and still slightly glossy, then scoop onto a plate and set aside.
7. Divide the potatoes and scrambled eggs evenly between the containers then set aside to cool.
8. Once cool, sprinkle with cheese and green onions, then cover and refrigerate. Freeze any portions that aren't eaten within three days.
9. To reheat from frozen: microwave for 1 1/2 minutes then stir and continue microwaving until food is reheated, stirring between intervals. Top with optional toppings, then serve.
10. Tip: Store in individualized microwave-safe containers with lids to make these bowls ready to reheat and go. •

A New Era of Astronomy Begins with First Observation of Neutron Star Merger

Based on Press Release from The Carnegie Institution for Science, Provided by Bob Eklund

On August 17, a team of four Carnegie Institution for Science astronomers provided the first-ever glimpse of two neutron stars colliding, opening the door to a new era of astronomy.

Along with colleagues from UC Santa Cruz, the team used the Swope telescope at Las Campanas Observatory in Chile to discover the light produced by the merger, pinpointing the origin of a gravitational wave signal less than 11 hours after it was detected. They also obtained the earliest spectra of the collision, which may allow them to explain how many of the universe's heavy elements were created—a decades-old question for astrophysicists.

Their discovery, named Swope Supernova Survey 2017a (or SSS17a), is published in a quartet of Science papers [http://science.sciencemag.org].

Neutron stars are the incredibly dense remnants left behind after supernova explosions. Theoretical astrophysicists have speculated for years about what happens when two of them merge, but until now the phenomenon had never been witnessed. "They are as close as you can get to a black hole without actually being a black hole," explained Carnegie's Tony Piro, the Carnegie team's leader. "Just one teaspoon of a neutron star weighs as much as all the people on Earth combined," he added.

Carnegie's scientists were alerted to the event by the Laser Interferometer Gravitational-Wave Observatory (LIGO), which detects gravitational waves, ripples in space-time, caused by distant cosmic events. In February of last year, the LIGO project announced the first detection of gravitational waves caused by two black holes merging—a discovery that was awarded the Nobel Prize in Physics earlier this month.

While the LIGO black hole discovery marked an important milestone, black hole mergers do not emit light and are therefore invisible to telescopes. Neutron star mergers, however, have long been expected to produce both light and gravitational waves, so the detection of these events was eagerly anticipated.

"The ability to study the same event with both gravitational waves and light is a real revolution in astronomy," Piro said. "We can now study the universe with two completely different probes, which teach us things we could never know with only one or the other."

On August 17, LIGO sent alerts for a gravitational wave detection from colliding neutron stars to observatories around the world, firing a "starter's pistol" in the race to spot the source of the space-time ripples.

Working with David Coulter, Charles Kilpatrick, and Ryan Foley of UC Santa Cruz, the team began combing the sky at nightfall for evidence of a never-before-seen collision of neutron stars. "We knew we only had about an hour at the beginning of the night to find the source before it set," explained Carnegie-Dunlap Fellow Maria Drout, who helped guide the discovery, "So we had to act fast."

Despite many large teams across the world working feverishly to find the event, it was the Carnegie and UC Santa Cruz astronomers—a small, young group of researchers—who made the first discovery of SSS17a. "We saw a bright blue source of light in a nearby galaxy—the first time the glowing debris from a neutron star merger had ever been observed," recalled Josh Simon, another of the Carnegie team's leaders on this discovery. "It was definitely a thrilling moment."

Because they were the first to find the event, Simon and Carnegie-Hubble Fellow Ben Shappee had time for additional observations. They quickly set up spectrographs at the observatory's two Magellan telescopes to obtain several spectra of the merger. No other observatories in the world made comparable observations during that first night. •

PETSPETS Pets PETSPETS

Purrrfect Companions

Adopt a cat 'cause cats are cool. A cat (or two) makes every house more fun! Here are just a few of our cool cats (and kittens).

Leonard is a super chill, friendly, social guy who is okay with other mellow, beta cats.

Leonard.

He is a precious, gentle, sweet, loving guy. His last family abandoned him after declawing him, which is unconscionable. Luckily, he was taken in by a rescue volunteer and has since been in a safe, loving foster home. Leonard looks forward to his human pals coming home after work, and loves getting petted and having dinner before bedtime. Playful and adventurous, he is an explorer at heart. Leonard is also expressive and loves attention. Getting petted and brushed is his number one favorite activity. You will love this cat. He is truly amazing.

Higgins was a kitten just last year and hasn't quite accepted the fact that he's now a 12-pound adult. He still overflows with energy and absolutely loves playtime. His favorite thing is a fishing pole toy that his person can operate while he chases, leaps and pounces. Since he is such a little "helper," you have to be sure you check before closing that drawer, or the closet...or the refrigerator. Higgins is generally a confident guy and would be a great family cat. He doesn't live with children, but has had no problem letting them pet him at adoption events. Higgins is an alpha. He shares his foster home with several other cats and gets along fine with most, but will bully a couple that don't stand up to him. Higgins really seems to prefer his people, so he wouldn't be the best choice if you specifically want a playmate for your resident cat. He has done well when briefly introduced to a dog.

Higgins.

Ivy is the adorable runt of her litter. She has consistently been the smallest, but that doesn't stop her from playing just as tough with her siblings. This tiny girl is such a sweetheart and absolutely melts anyone who sees her. Ivy loves to curl up for naps on the couch with her humans and knows she has us wrapped around her little paw. Ivy has typical kitten energy and needs to be in a home where she will have another cat for playtime. Ivy would love to be adopted with one of her siblings: Selina Kyle, Harley Quinn, or Bruce Wayne. However, she would be able to adjust to other cats as well.

Bruce is a very friendly, cheerful little guy who's eager to be friends with everyone he meets. Bruce chirps rather than meows and he has a very robust purr. He will walk right up to you to ask for pets by rubbing against your legs. Bruce has typical kitten energy and needs to be in a home where he can play with another cat. One of his sisters, Selina Kyle, Harley Quinn, or Poison Ivy, would be a great playmate for Bruce if you don't already have another feline friend for him.

Lucky has the sweetest face, with stunning light green eyes and a black smudge on his nose. He has an amazing personality and loves to play with tons of toys--especially wand and feather toys. A very curious and adventurous kitten, Lucky also loves to sit by a window and sightsee for a while. When he's not exploring and playing, you may catch him relaxing with his back legs all stretched out. He is a purr machine who loves to snuggle, since he was rescued at only a couple of days old and was bottle-fed his entire life. Since Lucky is so young and playful, he would do best in a home with another kitten or young cat.

Sam has the cutest face, with little tufts of white in his ears. His favorite time of day is feeding time, and boy does he let his foster mom know it! He herds her towards the food in the morning and again at night. When the treat bag comes out, he's beside himself with joy. He takes a minute to warm up to you... but when he does, he wants nothing more than to play. Feather toys are his favorite, followed by hugs and grooming from him. Because he's young and likes to play, he would love a friend. Maybe check out one of his siblings: Arya, Aemon, Theon or Yara.

Yara is a dilute Tortie with the cutest pink nose, which is why her foster mom also calls her Pinky. She is Miss Tortie-tude upon meeting her. Don't let her grumpy face fool you. Once she warms up to you, Yara loves to box with her paws, play with her mouse toy, and curl up on your lap for pets and a nap. At her young age, Yara likes to play. She would love a friend and any of her siblings, Arya, Aemon, Theon or Sam, would make the perfect duo.

As a young kitten, Ellaria was pulled from the car engine by a receptionist at a Kitten Rescue partner veterinarian. This little gem is very soft and incredibly affectionate with people. Her coat is unique and gorgeous and is pale and fluffy with adorable markings. Ellaria can't wait to find a loving home where she can be someone's spoiled little princess. She would be fine as a solo cat or with another kitty who lets her be the boss and gives her space as desired. Although Ellaria gets along with the other cats in her foster home, she prefers to play on her own time and often independently.

These kitties are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org or email us at mail@kittenrescue.org.

Your tax-deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 914 Westwood Boulevard, #583, Los Angeles, CA 90024.

On Saturdays, we have adoptions from noon to 3:30 p.m. in Westchester at 8655 Lincoln Boulevard, just south of Manchester Avenue, and also in Mar Vista at 3860 Centinela Avenue just south of Venice Boulevard. Our website lists additional adoption sites and directions to each location.
