El Segundo Attorney Provides Counsel on Workplace Issues

By Kiersten Vannest

Ms. Holguin can help. This mantra pervades Vida Holguin's business, conversation, and personality. A hard worker, a fierce advocate for workers' rights, and an independent businesswoman, Holguin practices law as an attorney here in El Segundo.

A ninth-generation Californian and a fourth-generation Santa Monican, Holguin grew up in a family of eight, with four brothers and three sisters and a stay-at-home mom near the Santa Monica airport. She has a story or two about sneaking into the airport after hours as a child. Her father was a construction worker and builder.

The structure of her family, according to her, was very much that of a traditional Mexican family. Men are the breadwinners. The wife "belongs in the kitchen," she says. That's the idea that her parents believed and that she was raised with. Religion held a significant place in their lives, and she attended Notre Dame Academy in Los Angeles, a Catholic school.

When it came time for college, she watched her brothers leave home for school and begin their academic careers and skill-building to lead them to complete and fulfilling careers. Not one to accept anything less than the best opportunity for herself, Holguin yearned to do the same. She mapped out her plan and presented it to her parents.

Her father was not so keen on her continuing her formal education. Standing her ground and believing in her convictions, Holguin informed him that she would be going to school. She would build a life and career for herself. She would rise to her full potential. "Fine, just get out of the house," her father finally relented. She applied and was accepted to the University of San Francisco, a Catholic school, which lessened the blow.

It's clear speaking to Holguin that she has a big brain and an even bigger heart. Majoring in sociology, she thought she would be a social worker or perhaps a probation officer. Law school wasn't on her mind—until she met Dinkenspiel. Dinkenspiel, a name she would never forget, encouraged her to go to law school. He later paid a $1000 scholarship to help her pay for school.

While in law school, Holguin got the call that no child wants to get. Her mother had passed away. She came home to care for

Lawndale Mayor Pullen-Miles Seeks 62nd District State Assembly Post

By Duane Plank

Local mayor, Robert Pullen-Miles of Lawndale, has done an impressive job running his city. And he is seeking higher office. Pullen-Miles is one of four candidates on the ballot for an April 5 special primary election called by the office of Governor Gavin Newsom. The election winner will become the Assemblymember for the 62nd district. This territory includes El Segundo, Lawndale, Gardena, Hawthorne, Inglewood, Westchester, Playa Vista, Hyde Park, Athens/Westmont, Marina del Rey and Venice.

Why does Pullen-Miles think he is the person to fill the vacant Assembly post?

"I want to use my state assembly experience, coupled with my local government experience," Pullen-Miles said, "which uniquely qualifies me to serve the community and differentiates me from my opponents. I am the only person on the ballot who has chief executive experience."

Pullen-Miles thinks that, through his experience in working in different governmental positions, he is best able to champion the causes of his constituents. "I want to take my vast experience to Sacramento."

"I can analyze legislation," he said, that is formulated in Sacramento and help carry that legislation out in the 62nd assembly district, "on the ground," he said, mentioning "unintended consequences" that may occur when well-meaning politicians in Sacramento develop a sound bureaucratic

Pork Pies and Pickled Onions

Article and photos by Ben & Glinda Shipley

You should never hold a country's institutional food against it, but after four years of boarding school, we can certify the English version as downright horrifying. We won't go into detail, but take the dismal British reputation, multiply it out several times, and you start to approach the twilight zone on the other side of a culinary wilderness. An allowance of £5 per trimester (in 1965) went almost exclusively to supplementing the school diet with penny-pinching forays into the pubs, chip shops, tea rooms, and cheaper immigrant restaurants of Canterbury.

So the shock on returning thirty years later wasn't the gourmet revolution that had transformed London and even the British hinterlands into a mecca for high-end culinary expertise—sooner or later, all those French, Italian, and Spanish immigrants were bound to take matters into their own hands. The bigger surprise was how so many of the basic British foods of yore had disappeared.

Take fish and chips, for example. The issue wasn't so much that the staple had gone missing, but that it had migrated upmarket. In the old days, an anonymous white fish and thick-cut potatoes were deep-fried in cheap beef fats and vegetable oil, then wrapped in yesterday's newspaper. No matter how ugly the weather, you consumed them on the street outside a take-out shop, with a dash of salt and a shower of pungent malt vinegar.

Today, and especially in London, true chip shops are few and far between (in the Isles as a whole, their numbers have dropped from 30,000 to a paltry 10,000, to serve 72 million hungry souls). It might be healthier that you no longer have to scrape off yesterday's want ads, and sit-down restaurants might fry everything in this-and-that-free, government-approved oils—but then they smother the dish with all manner of foreign flavored mayonnaises and tartare sauces. And ketchup! And worst of all, they even make you choose the fish.

We don't mind that the kidneys have disappeared from 90% of the steak and kidney pies. Or that the fast food chain Wimpy finally woke up and took the ham out of their once gruesome ham-burgers. We don't even mind that you can no longer break a tooth on a Yorkshire Pudding. But it took us days of searching London to find a genuine pork pie—in a humble corner of the entrance to Leadenhall Market—and even then, it was heated.

For the unfortunates who have never tasted the original, pork pies consist of unmentionable pork parts, cured and mashed together, baked in a thick, individual water crust, then

City Hosts 4th Annual Civic Day for ESHS

On Wednesday, March 23, 2022, El Segundo City Hall welcomed 40 ESHS Seniors to learn what it takes to run a city, and to launch the students’ group project about making Recreation Park the best space it can be for the community. “Civic Day represents an amazing opportunity to teach our youth about the importance of local government and just how much we can get done through civic engagement while learning about what’s important to the students,” said Mayor Drew Boyles.

ESHS history and government teacher Craig Gast once again spearheaded this special opportunity for the students, understanding the value of hands-on learning and first-person experience in the effort to create the empowered, engaged citizens that ESUSD champions in its Graduate Profile. “The city is meant to take a look at the city and see what roles the city plays, and how public service work contributes to function and making life better for the residents of El Segundo,” explained ESUSD Superintendent Dr. Melissa Moore.

Serving as both ESUSD Board President and Chair of the City’s Environmental Committee, Tracey Miller-Zarneke added, “This is an amazing partnership between ESUSD and the City of El Segundo in the creation of tomorrow’s leaders and doers.”

Feed the Body and the Brain

While the staff and students at Richmond Street School know the greatest prize of all is a well-fed brain, other incentives are also provided. Ara Kizirian, the owner of El Segundo’s Cold Stone Creamery, has been a longtime supporter of this event. He strongly believes in the importance of promoting literacy in our community and is a huge motivator for the students. Ara generously donates ice cream to the Top Classes that read the most minutes. This year, he dished up free treats to the following winning classes:

Mrs. Lister’s first grade class (pictured), Mrs. Domer’s third grade class, and Mrs. Croddey’s fifth grade class. Additionally, he provides free ice cream coupons distributed to every student in a class with 100% participation. This year 12 classes had every student turn in a reading log, totally 350 coupons! Richmond Street School is incredibly appreciative of Ara’s longtime generosity...most definitely making a lasting impact!

Eagles Look Good in Sweep of North Torrance

By Gregg McMullin

The El Segundo baseball team’s strength has been their pitching to start the season. But against North Torrance, they showed another side by sweeping the Saxons 16-7 and 7-1 to begin their Pioneer League schedule. The Eagles had something to prove against a team that swept them a season ago and have defeated the Saxons 23 out of the last 28 times the two teams have faced each other since 2005.

In the first game, the Eagles took an early first inning 1-0 lead when Evan Smith doubled and later scored on Lucas Bonham’s RBI single. But the Saxons countered with a two-run home run by Delshawn Lanier in the bottom of the inning and took a 5-1 lead after two innings. In the third inning, the Eagles took advantage of six walks to score six runs, highlighted by Bonham’s three-run double. In the fifth inning, leading 8-5, the Eagles put together a five-run inning bolstered by Bonham’s two-run home run to right-center field. In the sixth inning, El Segundo pounded out five more hits and scored three more runs in the rout.

The 16 runs were easily the best offensive output the Eagles have put together since defeating Peninsula 20-0 nearly a year ago to the day. Bonham was 4-for-4 and a triple shy of hitting for the cycle and had eight RBIs to lead the 15-hit attack.

In the second game, Brady Engelhardt started for the Eagles and ran into some early first-inning troubles. The Saxons had three consecutive singles to open the game and scored their only run on an error. A double-play ended the inning, and Engelhardt seemed to take control after the first inning. He limited the Saxons to just two walks until the seventh inning, when they had two but failed to score.

The bottom of the first took advantage of two errors and some timely hitting to take a 4-1 lead. In the third inning, Bonham doubled and later scored on a sacrifice fly by Anthony Temesvary. Cooper Gamble was hit by a pitch

Western States Champions

By Anthony Gomez

The season had started the first week of September, yet it was now just days before St. Patty’s Day. The El Segundo B12U League Champs found themselves taking their record of 20 Wins, two Ties, and no Losses to Morgan Hill, California, for the final stage – the AYSO Western States Championships. Four Section winners would be set to battle it out for the crown in the second largest AYSO tournament in the country, outside of only Nationals. These four Sections would cover California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, and Alaska – an area that represents over two-thirds of all the registered AYSO players in the nation! Just getting here was an accomplishment in itself – but just getting here was not the end game for these boys.

Gundo opened the semifinals against San Diego South Bay with a 6-1 victory. Kuno Inghram and Xavier Gomez would have two goals apiece, while Caz Inghram and Leo Toivanen added one each. Van Parker and Willem Siegloch played key roles in the attack, helping keep possession moving the ball around as the boys looked for openings. The defense, led once again by Louis Lappe and Lucien de Saint-Aignan, was stellar in limiting opportunities. Johnny Amaral, Ian Smigelski, and Marcus Dell, provided defensive support on the wings, solidifying the backline.

When the opposition had chances, Cooper Bartha was between the posts, stonewalling all comers. The boys were happy to pick up their 21st win on the season, but there was still one more to go.

The Finals would come against a very strong team from Cutler, California – a team with no weak spots and extremely good ball control. Cutler had good speed and were very active with keeping the pressure on, but more importantly, they were very disciplined and worked well together.

Cutler made it a point to attack the wings and then work the ball back into the center, looking to string out the Gundo backline of four defenders, creating passing lanes while searching for scoring opportunities.

Gundo would weather the fast pace of Cutler out the gates, staying calm and composed. Then, three minutes in, Marcus made a defensive stop, passed to Xavier in the middle, who carried forward before finding Kuno on the right wing. Kuno would fly forward, blowing past two defenders and scoring on a hard high shot far post, putting Gundo up 1-0.

Cutler came right back less than two minutes later, attacking down the right side, then back into the middle, only to be stopped by Cooper with an outstanding block which

Your Neighborhood Therapist

Dear Neighborhood Therapist,

It's that time of year: I see lots of families struggling to figure out college. My daughter is a high school junior and I know that next year she will struggle with many of the same problems. It seems so overwhelming to think about how many different options there are. My daughter is a good student, but she may not get into every place she wants to go to. Do you have any suggestions about how to think about colleges?

– Not Stressed (Yet!), El Segundo

Dear Not Stressed,

What to do after high school can be stressful for students and their entire families even when they all know exactly which next steps to take. There is not one right or wrong way to think about college, but I have two ideas that might be helpful.

First, there is a benefit from doing a little bit of thinking before attending college, and approaching it with a little bit more intentionality than most of us do. Here are a few questions to get started.

We should start with the obvious: does she want to go to college? She does? What is it about college that makes her want to go? First, what do you want college to do for you? Are you more interested in how it can help your career, or the experience that you hope to have while you're there? Is college for your daughter more about forming a friend group, or gaining a specific skill-set? Somewhere in the middle?

Thinking about these questions and writing down the answers would be a good step to take sooner rather than later. I suspect that even going through the process of doing this - answers to the questions can change! - will lower the anxiety level somewhat.

Lowering the anxiety level brings us to the second idea: the same thing that keeps any university or college from being a perfect fit also keeps it from being a terrible fit. There are so many variables that you simply cannot account for them all. Students are going to change over the course of their time in college. Circumstances around them will change.

There will be excellent and lousy instructors, experiences and opportunities anywhere. Every university and every college will have unique traditions and details the others do not. Even if you do get into the college of your choice, you will definitely miss out on certain experiences available at other colleges. There is simply no way to do it all.

In other words, it's worth paying attention to how you approach the college experience, but it's probably not worth agonizing over the "perfect" school, because no such thing exists (easier said than done, I realize).

Finally, remember that part of the college experience is convincing you how great the college experience is. There is an element of branding and salesmanship that's designed to make you want to pay them now and become a donor later on. There is nothing inherently wrong with this, but it's good to account for it as you consider your options. Most people enjoy their college experience even if it's not their first choice, and - don't forget this! - they go on to have lives that do not revolve around their college experience.

Across the Desert by Dusti Bowling

By Cathie Hinkle-Library Assistant, El Segundo Public Library

Across The Desert, by Dusti Bowling, is a scorching portrayal of what life is like for a child who has a parent with an addiction. We find our main characters, Jolene and her mother, living in a dilapidated apartment where there is little food and less parental care. Jolene is living her life in clothes that are two sizes too small. Cloth markers that serve as symbols to mark the date, two years ago, when her mother could no longer care for her. This lack of care is due to her mother's opioid addiction, which started after suffering severe injuries in a car crash. Jolene has no friends and is feeling more and more isolated. She is terrified that if she speaks up about her home life she will return to foster care.

Her only escape is watching a livestream video at her local library of a young girl, Addie, who flies across the desert in her ultralight. Jolene dreams of one day doing the same thing; flying and exploring the world. On a hot summer afternoon while Jolene is watching Addie's livestream video, Jolene witnesses Addie's engine stall and watches as Addie crashes somewhere in the desert. This is the tipping point for Jolene. She turns to adults for help in rescuing Addie but is not successful. Jolene decides since she cannot get any help from the grownups that she has turned to, she will turn to herself. She sets out with a hand drawn map, a can of sardines and hope. Along the way she meets Marty, a savvy seventeen-year-old who instinctively knows Jolene's trip is an actual cry for help.

This book reveals so much about how children process trauma and how cries for help are not always articulated verbally. This fiction book covers hard themes but since it is written for middle grade readers, the book successfully relates the bleakness of the situation in a thoughtful and understandable way.

As an adult tie-in read alike, I highly recommend the non-fiction book Invisible Child: Poverty, Survival & Hope in an American City by Andrea Elliott. To check out these titles or other books, please visit El Segundo Public Library in person or visit our website: elsegundolibrary.org.

Film Review

'Alice' is Part-Slavery Film, Part-Blaxploitation Riff

By Ryan Rojas, Cinemacy.com

Where to watch: Now playing in theaters.

Alice opens with a shot of a woman running desperately through a field. More specifically, she's a Black woman in a plantation dress, so we have an idea as to why she's likely in fear. She runs until she stops. And then, she lets out a blood-curdling scream. A curiously anachronistic title card covers the screen: "Alice," in a very 70s style font.

This intro and title card reveal is stylistically cool, but also a bit clunky. So is most of first-time feature filmmaker Krystin Ver Linden's directorial debut, Alice, in which a ward, he decides to let her stay with him to look after her.

Now able to read books in Frank's apartment, she phonetically sounds out words like "slavery" and "Emancipation Proclamation"—which would have been more powerful if silently conveyed. It's this sort of deliberateness throughout Alice that makes the film a little too heavy-handed.

If you're able to get past the awkward writing, then you'll likely appreciate all of the fun that is to (eventually) come. Alice's education and consumption of Black culture are captured through different pop culture runaway slave escapes her plantation, only to find herself in the 1970s Civil Rights-Era South.

It's a hell of a premise (actually, I learned that it's also very similar to the 2020 horror film Antebellum, which I've yet to see). Alice is one of those films with a really interesting concept but not great execution. For this reason, I think some people will really dig it for its inventive and fresh storytelling but if you're like me, you won't be able to escape the problems with its awkwardly mashed-up tone and narrative incomprehension.

It's almost halfway into the film when Alice finally asserts herself (running away from that intro's plantation) and the movie makes its reveal. It's not exactly a spoiler to give away what happens next (think M. Night Shyamalan's The Village). In fact, I think people's interest in this movie will be roused by knowing that once Alice runs away and gets to the side of the road, she's almost hit by a car zooming down the highway. It's not the Antebellum south, but somehow, 1973.

She's picked up by truck-driving Frank (Common), who gives her a ride into town. He apparently doesn't find it odd that not only is she struggling to comprehend everything around her in wide-eyed panic, but she's also covered in blood (there's a struggle she's involved with before she gets here). Frank takes Alice to the hospital, but when he sees that she might be admitted to the psychiatric media: in magazines like Ebony and Rolling Stone, Stevie Wonder and Nina Simone, and on TV like Sanford & Son and Black Panther news. And then, all roads lead to Alice's most transformative moment: going to the movies to see Pam Grier's iconic classic "Coffy," the singular moment that then shifts the movie from slavery film, to time travel movie, to wild Blaxploitation ending (think Django Unchained meets Back to the Future).

While there are some problems with the story, it's undeniable that Alice is still a fresh new story and interesting vision from a first-time filmmaker, whose idea and concepts should be celebrated.

Johnny took and cleared out of bounds. Cutler kept pressing, as just one minute later, again out to the right, then into the middle, and quickly back out right, setting up a one-on-one with Coop, which this time they converted to tie the game.

The second quarter started as a tie, but Cutler would waste no time changing that. Three minutes in, they pushed the ball into the right flank again only to be stopped, but they intercepted the clearance, playing the ball back into the middle. Their attacker sliced through the defense, beating three defenders before scoring. Gundo would, once again, have to come from behind in a championship game.

Cutler remained relentless, minutes later putting a thru ball down the middle for another one-on-one with Cooper, but Coop would make the stop, keeping it a one-goal game. Again, Louis Lappe brings down a 50/50 ball to regain possession, while Ian Smigelski, Caz Inghram, and Johnny Amaral, are ready in support.

Cutler kept the pressure on attacking the right flank sending a deep ball that looked like another possible one-on-one for Cooper, but this time Ian stepped up, making the stop and clearing it to keep Gundo in striking distance.

Then, in the last minute of the half, Van had possession on the left wing and played it back to Johnny, who played the ball into the left flank for Xavier. Xavier beat two defenders as he pushed back into the middle before sending a pass to the back post, splitting the center back and goalie, finding Kuno with acres of space as he easily punched it in. Gundo would head into the half, tied 2-2.

As the third quarter started, Gundo was looking to ride their momentum. Five minutes in Louis took a throw deep in Cutler territory, launching it into traffic, looking for Xavier. Xavier let the ball bounce once, then popped it up to himself, touching it three times while never letting it hit the ground and surrounded by three defenders in the box. As he moved towards the net, he finally let the ball bounce once before beating the goalie with a hard shot over his head to give Gundo the lead at 3-2!

But just minutes later, Cooper was called on once again, and he made yet another amazing save on a hard high shot to preserve the lead. Then halfway through the third, Louis stepped up for another throw-in, but Louis would catch the defense playing the line, leaving the middle open. Louis threw it over everyone's head into the box, where Kuno used his body to fend off two defenders as the ball came in over his shoulder. Kuno then delivered an amazing strike on the half volley to score near post beating the keeper for his hat trick, increasing Gundo's lead to 2!

Still, Cutler came charging right back less than two minutes later, pushing the ball into the right flank again, working it to the edge of the box, then beating a defender and scoring on a ball Cooper was in perfect position for, but as he dove it took an awkward bounce and went in. Cutler was back to within one.

Enter the fourth quarter. Gundo continued to turn the pressure up while Cutler kept pressing, refusing to give up. As time went on, you could feel Gundo gain more confidence as Cutler seemed to become more and more frantic, knowing the clock was against them. Gundo began to control the middle of the field while Caz and Leo stayed active on the wings and slowed Cutler down, limiting their play into the flanks. Lucien, Louis, Marcus, and Johnny all made big stops, clearing balls when attacked and working like a well-oiled machine staying disciplined, always in the

Time for the dagger with just minutes left. Louis took a corner kick for Gundo, sending it towards the top of the box. Caz hit the ball on the volley, but a defender was able to get in the way and knock it down. With bodies all around, it was a mad scramble for the ball in the box, but it would be Xavier who was able to corral it and quickly sneak a low shot past the goalie. Gundo was up two goals now! All they had to do was hold on... or add on?

Thirty seconds after the Cutler kick-off, they pressed forward only to be stonewalled by Caz and Xavier. Lucien applied pressure, forcing Cutler to play the ball back to mid-field quickly, but their defender took a poor first touch. Kuno wasted no time, pouncing on the bad touch knocking the ball towards the goal as he flew past the defenders down the left. As the goalie came out to defend right spot, doing an outstanding job covering for one another. Kuno and Xavier kept the pressure on, taking shots from all over, making the goalie work, and keeping the defense on their toes.

Cutler, realizing their strategy of playing it into the wings wasn't working, began shooting more from outside the box – but Cooper's positioning was always on point, and he was always in the right spot.

the attack, Kuno calmly struck a low shot towards the far post. The keeper never had a chance, 6-3 Gundo. And finally, less than three minutes later, the final whistle would blow. The El Segundo B12U boys had done it, Western States Champions!

It was an amazing ride for an amazing group of boys. They really did represent Gundo with pride and class. Hats off to these young lads! •

game-plan, but end-up being miles away from the actual implementation of their policies.

The special election ends on April 5, with most, if not all, registered voters having received a mail-in ballot. If none of the four candidates receive 50%, plus one vote when the tabulations are made, there will be a June 7 run-off that would involve the top-two April 5 vote-getters. Assemblymembers’ terms are for two years, with a maximum of six two-year terms. The candidates are battling to complete a term that expires on December 5, 2022.

During our recent 25-minute phone conversation, Pullen-Miles touched on various subjects, including the rampant polarization plaguing the body politic. “We have to recognize that we need members in the state Legislature who are consensus builders,” he said, “who can see other points of view. We must have people willing to work out compromises when we have to compromise. That does not mean negating your integrity, but everyone has the right to be represented. I have always been a consensus builder; I have never been one to engage in divisive politics.”

During his tenure as Lawndale mayor, which began in 2014, Pullen-Miles said that he cites achieving a balanced budget and bringing new business entities to Lawndale, which was incorporated in 1959, as major accomplishments.

“We are one of the healthiest cities, financially, in L.A. County,” he said, while also citing accomplishments such as the christening of a new library, a new community center, and city green space, with the opening of three recreational parks.

Not surprisingly, Ari Ruiz, currently working as Pullen-Miles campaign manager, thinks his boss has the right stuff to move up the political ladder. “I think he has the vision and the experience to hit the ground running on day one,” Ruiz emailed.

Pullen-Miles has been endorsed by many prominent politicians, including Supervisor

Lawndale Mayor Robert Pullen-Miles. Provided by Robert Pullen-Miles.

Janice Hahn and California Superintendent of Public Instruction Tony Thurmond. Another definite positive for the Pullen-Miles campaign: He has won the endorsement of the California Democratic Party.

So why is there a stand-alone election on April 5? The special election was necessitated when Assemblymember Autumn Burke resigned her post on Feb.1 to take a job with a renowned Sacramento firm specializing in governmental affairs. Pullen-Miles had worked for Burke as a district director. So, the job has been open for two months. The three other candidates listed on the ballot are Tina Simone McKinnor, Hawthorne City Council member Angie Reyes English, and Nico Ruderman.

Why does mayor Pullen-Miles want to become an Assemblymember?

The Pullen-Miles backstory. He moved from Oklahoma to California with $25 in his pocket in search of better opportunities. For a while, it was challenging. He was unemployed and did not have a permanent place to live. He spent months “couch surfing” while temporarily staying at friends’ homes.

Pullen-Miles moved to California to pursue a career in the entertainment industry. But he soon felt the financial sticker shock that we California natives, unfortunately, have known for years. It is not cheap to live in the Golden State. He was homeless for a stretch, spending the night, at one point, behind a Wendy’s in Compton.

He looked for work and lived in Long Beach “for a very brief time” before settling in South Bay. Attempting to continue his educational studies, he seized a couple of collegiate degrees while still trying to find his way in California.

He worked for a few years as an Emergency Medical Technician in the Long Beach area, then landed a support position for an Assemblyperson in the California state assembly. He continued to work in government, including working for Ted Lieu, a United States congressman. He later worked for seven years for Assemblyperson Burke.

Pullen-Miles said that his interest in working on the governmental side was piqued when he was playing in a band and he discovered that one of his bandmate’s fathers participated in local government. “Public service and politics,” Pullen-Miles said, “was always something that I was interested in.”

In 2004, Pullen-Miles became the first African American elected to serve in the Lawndale City Council. He dug into issues involving Lawndale youths and, in 2014, was elected as the first African American mayor of Lawndale.

Mayor Pullen-Miles and his wife Léna are the parents of three daughters. They live in Lawndale, and when Pullen-Miles is not thinking about governmental activities, he loves spending time with his “three beautiful daughters” and wife...riding his bike, and walking around town. “There is not a block that I haven’t walked,” he said.

So, what is Pullen-Miles vision for the 62nd Assembly District? “More affordable housing for low-income families,” he said, as well as tackling the homeless crisis, which, he said, cannot be separated from [affordable housing], “part-and-parcel.” He would also like to start a mortgage and rent trust fund, which would benefit lower-income families and ramp up local job opportunities while leveraging multiple growth options at community colleges. “Someone, somewhere,” he said, “took the “community” out of community colleges. “Our community is not receiving our fair share of funding sources for training programs.”

Does Pullen-Miles look at an Assembly position as a stepping-stone for higher office?

“You do the best to serve the people you serve when you have the opportunity, and if you are so blessed to take other opportunities,” he said. “My immediate future is working in the Legislature, but who knows after that?” •

and scored Zack Ekstrom’s double off the centerfield embankment to make it 6-1. Jack Aguilera’s RBI single in the fifth provided the margin of victory. It is the first time the Brady Engelhardt had a rough first inning before settling down and throwing a complete game against North Torrance.

Eagles have started their league schedule with two wins in three seasons.

The Eagles faced Eastside (Lancaster) at home in the El Camino Real Tournament and easily handled the Lions 10-0. Owen Kirsten, Trevor Steele, Brian Pham and Colby Sutherland combined to one-hit the Lions. Offensively El Segundo scored two runs in each inning except in the third inning. Aguilera walked to start the first inning and scored on Jack Stoker’s RBI single. Stoker would eventually come around to score on a wild pitch. In the second inning, Tucker Stevens singled and scored on a fielder’s choice by Evan Smith. Dylan Immel’s RBI single scored Aguilera, who had walked. Immel’s two-run double in the fourth inning made it 6-0, and Temesvary’s hit a two-run double in the fifth inning made it 8-0. In the sixth inning, Aiden Zimmerman had a two-run single that completed the scoring avalanche.

The Eagles improved to 9-5 overall, heading into this week’s games against Torrance last night at home and at Torrance on Friday at 6 p.m. Next week the Eagles play in an Orange County tournament.

Softball Team Splits

The Pioneer League schedule the teams play could be the most arduous one in the South Bay, if not the entire CIF Southern Section. When you consider that each of the Torrance teams and El Segundo are all ranked in the top ten in their respective division, winning the Pioneer League title could have its challenges. Each of the teams has a season record of 14-2 or better, so you can see how tight a race this expects to be. In El Segundo’s opening week of play, they split with North Torrance losing 2-1 and defeating Torrance 5-0.

Against North Torrance, the Eagles had several innings; they had runners on base, but their lone run came in the first inning. Sammie Kleiger, who led the Eagles with three hits, singled and later scored on Bella Gridley’s RBI double. Bailey Douglas-Gertsch took the loss giving up an earned run in the fourth and fifth inning. She struck out seven and dropped to 8-1 on the season.

The 5-0 win against Torrance was an epic win against the fifth-ranked Tartars. El Segundo’s offense was limited to four hits and three walks off but took advantage of passed balls to move up or score. The Eagles scored three first-inning runs, highlighted by an RBI double by Norah Green, to take a 3-0 lead.

In the fourth inning, Sienna Mayer reached base on a dropped third strike and scored on a wild pitch for a 4-0 lead. In the sixth inning, Allie Stevenson singled and advanced on some additional wildness, and stole third base. She scored on a passed ball for a 5-0 lead.

Head coach Megan McCann says her team’s offensive struggles lately can be attributed to some outstanding pitching they have been facing. “Torrance’s pitcher is good and deceptive with her delivery. So, we have to take advantage of the little things to extend innings and score.”

El Segundo (15-3) faced South Torrance

Norah Green’s RBI double in the first inning ignited a three-run first inning in the Eagles 5-0 win over Torrance.

(14-2) on Tuesday, West Torrance (14-3) yesterday in key Pioneer League matchups. Today they host Bishop Gorman (Nevada) at 1 p.m. The Gaels are the top-ranked team in Nevada’s 4A Division.

Eagles Drop Fifth Controversial Set and fall to Torrance

The El Segundo boys’ volleyball team has played a demanding schedule and has lost to such CIF powers as Palos Verdes, Newport Harbor, Mira Costa and Redondo. However, they did start their Pioneer League schedule with victories over Lawndale and West Torrance after an opening loss to South Torrance. So, when they faced Torrance Tartar’s momentum was on their side. After a lackluster first game, the Eagles took games two and three and ended up controversially losing the fifth set. The Eagles fell 20-25, 25-16, 25-22, 19-25, 12-15.

In the first game, El Segundo spotted Torrance an 18-10 lead before making it a game. Kai Johnson scored back-to-back points, and Kailesh McCarthy’s ace cut the deficit to 20-16. Dylan Pilkvist’s hit cut the Tartar’s lead to 23-20, but Torrance’s Mateo Dimaya blocked a shot attempt to end the game.

In the second game, the Eagles controlled the game from the beginning and jumped out to an 8-1 lead thanks to Pilkvist’s power hitting. Kai Johnson’s hit gave the Eagles a 21-13 lead, and later Ryan Pilkvist ended the game on a powerful kill. The Eagles didn’t quite control game three but managed to hold off the Tartars, thanks in part to the play of Lukas Lubs’ serving and play at the net.

El Segundo wasn’t as sharp in game four and was on the deficit end by five points most of the game. Nolan Kelly’s ace late kept his team close and cut the lead to 22-19. The Tartars would regain the serve and score the next three points to secure the win. In the deciding fifth game, it was tight. Ryan Pilkvist gave the Eagles an 11-9 lead. But the Tartars would score six of the next seven points, including three controversial points awarded. According to assistant coach Tim Hovland, it was a frustrating way to lose. •

Texas-Style Chili

Provided by Campbells Soup Corp.

Our version of this no-bean chili boasts deep, smoky flavor from a trio of peppers and the perfect spice combination. Slow simmering marries these flavors, and also ensures fork-tender beef. Customize it with your favorite chili toppings and dig in.

Ingredients

- 3 dried ancho chile pepper
- 2 dried New Mexico chile pepper
- 1 drained canned chipotle pepper in adobo sauce
- 4 cups Swanson® Beef Stock
- 3 pounds boneless beef chuck roast, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 1 large onion, chopped (about 1 cup)
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 tablespoon ground cumin
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano leaves, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon ground allspice
- 2 tablespoons tomato paste

Directions

- Step 1: Heat the ancho and New Mexico chile peppers in a 4-quart saucepan over high heat for 2 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove the chile peppers to a work surface and remove and discard the stems and seeds. Place the ancho and New Mexico chiles into a blender. Add the chipotle chile pepper and half the stock. Cover and blend until the mixture is smooth.
- Step 2: Season the beef as desired. Heat 1 tablespoon oil in the saucepan over medium-high heat. Add the beef in 2 batches and cook until well browned, stirring occasionally. Pour off any fat. Remove the beef from the saucepan, cover and keep warm.
- Step 3: Heat the remaining oil in the saucepan over medium-high heat. Add the onion and cook for 3 minutes or until softened, stirring occasionally. Stir in the garlic, cumin, cinnamon, oregano, allspice, tomato paste, blended chile mixture and the remaining stock.
- Step 4: Return the beef to the saucepan and heat over medium-high heat to a boil. Reduce the heat to medium-low. Partially cover the saucepan and cook for 1 1/2 hours or until the beef is fork-tender, stirring occasionally. Season to taste.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF HANS LENNART OSVALD OLSSON

Case No. 22STPB02677

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of HANS LENNART OSVALD OLSSON

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Mikael Koltai in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Mikael Koltai be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on April 22, 2022 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 9 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90012.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

five of her siblings, with extra care for her sister, born with Down Syndrome. Even with the tremendous loss of her mother, and the newly added responsibilities she undertook, Holguin went on the graduate with a law degree from Berkeley Law school.

Her career was kickstarted, and she went to work with Hughes Aircraft Company, which was the largest employer in California at over 80,000 employees, as their in-house employment counsel. This work saw her on tiny Cessna planes in choppy weather and traveling to rural and agricultural areas. When Hughes underwent a major layoff, Holguin fielded emotional calls from middle-aged employees begging to stay. Her heart ached for them, and she strengthened her resolve to help employees and employers find the best working solutions.

She went on to work for the State Bar of California as a Senior Trial Counsel, navigating complex and often tricky litigation. Her cases informed the opinions of the California Supreme Court. She’s worked with unions on contract negotiations, grievance and arbitration, and federal court work.

In her personal life, Holguin met and married the love of her life. With the addition of four kids, Holguin took a small break from work for the minor task of having two of her children only fifteen months apart. Needless to say, Holguin knows the meaning of a hard day’s work and a busy schedule.

For the last couple of decades, Holguin has owned her practice and operated out of El Segundo, offering legal counsel and help with all matters regarding employment law. When she says employment law, she refers to workplace discrimination, whistleblower issues, wage and time claims, sick pay, and unionization. Sexual or racial harassment claims, wrongful termination cases, and labor issues come to her for her expertise in the complex state and federal laws surrounding employment and workers’ rights.

Being in the world of law, Holguin has had a front-row seat to the best and worst of the justice system. After spending some time as a prosecutor for the state bar, she shares that she has been privy to instances of lawyers doing, or trying to do, some less than ethical business. Early on in her career, she was advised: There will be a time in your career when you are asked to do something unethical. Don’t do it. It is your license, not theirs.

Holguin has held fast to this advice and is motivated by nothing other than changing the lives of those she helps. For example, Holguin had a client who had a stutter, and she was able to help him sort through a legal maze. Long after their work together, she bumped into him in a market. A clear “thank you” rang out as he recognized her and shared with her how her service had impacted him in the workplace and his personal life.

At 72 years old with four grown children and six grandchildren these days, Holguin no longer works in litigation, though she continues her practice, always striving to help those in need. Ms. Holguin can help. • drenched with a pork broth that jellifies and protects the cold dish from spoiling. In olden days, every pub sported a jar of pickled white onions on the bar. These could be ordered with the cold pie or a hunk of aged cheddar cheese and Branston Pickle (nowadays gussied up as a “Ploughman’s Lunch”). But as far as we can tell, no longer.

We have no objection to the disappearance of Chop Suey from the Chinese restaurants. And we hardly mind that canned tomato sauces have vanished from even the most Anglicized Italian restaurants. But watercress and butter sandwiches? Potted shrimp paste and Marmite sandwiches? Beans on toast? Where did they go? Ben once lived on buttered toast with tomatoey, canned beans (Heinz, no substitute, of course). Nowadays, even when you do find this onetime ubiquitous offering, you can hardly taste the tin.

And we’re still not sure about modern bangers. We understand that they should contain some meat to go with the cereal filler, but 42% minimum? Sounds a bit extreme. Sounds like the pre-Brexit European Union might have stuck its snooty, regulatory fingers into our favorite British pies, fish, sandwiches, and sausages.

And this brings us to the main issue. In London at least, foreigners have always served up some of the best food on the planet, but their expertise was reserved for the nouveau riche and upper classes. It’s a little known fact that the British aristocracy put the Bordeaux wine region on the map and for centuries bought up bringing him here (in 1963), the menu had dropped its Anglo tendencies in favor of classic Indian cuisine from the east coast of the subcontinent. Try the tasting menu with a bottle

Mayfair. The Northern Italian half isn’t bad, but the Pan-Asian kitchen and dining room are spectacular. They require a minimum of three visits and a prodigious appetite on each outing to work your way through the menu. You could pick your dishes blindfolded and come away thrilled.

You’ll notice that we haven’t mentioned afternoon tea at the Ritz, even though it’s an iconic experience that requires a reservation weeks in advance. We didn’t mind our last visit to the haughty, overcrowded venue, where the highlight was the aristocratic wife at the next table studiously ignoring the snores of her husband, while saving him from repeated near-falls. But tea as a drink is a hard sell in our family. And as an experience, Afternoon Tea has nothing to do with the food or the tepid liquid. It should be taken outdoors on a lawn terrace, dressed in tie, jacket, pretty hat, and flowered dress, with oodles of croquet, badminton, and polite, inane conversation.

But those days, like most such days, are long gone.

Purrrfect Companions

Magda

“There are two means of refuge from the miseries of life: music and cats.” — Albert Schweitzer. Black cats are wonderful at being both friendly and dedicated to their people. They are capable of quickly adapting to a change in circumstances. When black cats are rescued from the streets, they often warm quickly, to not only their rescuers, but people in general. When you adopt, you save a life... and in turn enrich your own.

Magda was on her own at the feral colony feeding area from a very young age. Later she followed the feeder home and lived in the front yard. Now with a Kitten Rescue foster, Magda learning how to live in a house with lots of other cats and two small dogs. She is friendly and affectionate, purrs when petted, plays with toys and the other cats, and is ready for her forever family. This sleek black beauty would do best with another cat, with a friendly one in your home or you can adopt one she already knows!

Hula has been searching all over for her forever home. She was rescued from the streets when she was six months old. Hula is the perfect companion and looking for an awesome family who will make her part of their lives. This little black kitty is adventurous and loves to play with toys. Her nickname Hula-ween came from that witchy cat look she has. She comes to you with wonderful house manners and a good appetite.

Mashumaru means Marshmallow in Japanese and perfectly describes this big squishy, cuddly, chunk of a man cat! Mashumaru loves affection, cuddly attention, treats, brushing, scratches, and grooming. He has big fat cheeks and a fat tail that makes him looks vaguely part raccoon. Once he settles in, Mashumaru is a big lover boy. He would love a quiet home with lots of love, because that is what he has to offer you....lots and lots of love! He would be happy to just tuck into the crook of your arm or snooze up against you on the couch while you relax with him. This cuddly, mellow boy is good with other cats, especially older ones.

Mr. Dexter is a sweet affectionate guy. Dexter has extremely soft black fur and bright green eyes. He may be a little slow to warm up, but with patience Dexter is a talkative lover who loves catnip treats and chin scratches. Quirky and curious, he will startle himself while exploring while enjoying dark, safe places. He needs someone to trust and to show him he is safe. Dexter often needs emotional support from his trusted human when being introduced to new people and things. He would do best in a calm, consistent, and predictable environment. Dexter loves his scratching post and sleeps with his human.

Hula-Ween

You will love this unique boy with his many cute and funny cat instincts.

Rugsy is a friendly and funny cat. She will quietly look at you until you notice her. Then her friendly and affectionate charm turns on. Rugsy can be a little sheepish, yet she likes to be involved and always welcomes some company. Rugsy has no tail and is incontinent, so urinates spontaneously out of the litter box. However, she is an extremely sweet cat with gorgeous green eyes and a sweet round body. These cats and kittens are available for our website www.kittenrescue.org. Our Adoption Center is temporarily closed. In the meantime, we are still conducting contactless adoptions using all the online tools at our disposal. To virtually browse our adoptable cats, please visit our Adoption Gallery where you can find photos and profiles of all the cats and kittens we have up for adoption from our network of foster homes and from the Sanctuary. At the end of each cat's profile is a link to the email address of the foster parent or adoption counselor, and you may reach out directly with questions or to arrange a virtual meeting. The cats who live in the Stevenson Ranch and Canoga Park Petsmarts and the Pasadena Petco may still be seen by appointment as may the cats available for adoption at the Kitten Rescue Adoption Center and Kitten Rescue Sanctuary.

The donations and support we receive from individuals like you, who share our love and commitment to helping cats and kittens in Los Angeles, are the sole reason we are able to do what we do. We are grateful for your financial help. By making even a small donation today, you can touch the lives of the many deserving, wonderful animals in our care. There are many ways you can donate and help, and every dollar means so much. Kitten Rescue is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit. Your tax-deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 3519 Casitas Ave., Los Angeles, CA 90039.
