Project Lead the Way Presentation Made to ESUSD School Board

By Duane Plank

The Tuesday night meeting of the El Segundo Unified School District School Board featured a special presentation on the District's Project Lead the Way (PLTW) program that was spearheaded by Executive Director of Education Services Marisa Janicek, as well as a presentation from Preschool director Guadalupe Grijalva about the current state of the preschool.

Janicek introduced the PLTW teachers, who updated the Board on the progress of the program, which now encompasses students from K-12. Taking part in the presentation were PLTW teachers Danielle Flynn, Phuong Uzoff, Megan DeLong, Jenn Cho, and Steve Lubs.

A national program, Project Lead the Way allows students to take classes in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM). These courses are part of a pathway that will prepare the interested and qualified student for future STEM studies after leaving high school, and avail them of a path to post-graduation STEM career opportunities.

Chevron representative Lily Craig was on-hand, as the Board and Janicek thanked Chevron for their sponsorship of the program, which dates back to 2010 in the District. High school teacher Steve Eno, who has been instrumental in the success of PLTW, was also in attendance. Eno, who will be leaving the High School to take advantage of another opportunity "back East", was recognized by the Board and the presenters for his work with the program and the students.

In an email sent prior to the meeting, Superintendent Melissa Moore penned that "this is the first year the program is offered in K-12. It provides our students amazing (STEM) opportunities that are second to none. This program would not be available without the generous grants from Chevron. Our District is truly fortunate."

Grijalva's presentation touched on various bullet-points, including sessions and schedules for the District's youngest learners; licensing issues; creative curriculum, assessment data, and professional development; the District's inclusion program for students with special needs; support services, parent partnerships, including the PTO; and next steps as the planning is implemented for the 2016-17 school year.

Grijalva also noted the recent Eagles' Nest parental survey, which had the participation of 85 families, with "99 percent of the families feeling that their children are happy and safe in our preschool; 98 percent of families are satisfied or very satisfied with the programs hours of service after having received requests for additional time by 80 percent of the families last year."

In an email sent prior to the meeting, Grijalva wrote she was excited to share her experiences and celebrate her first full year on the job. "It means a lot to me to see how

Atkinson Reflects Back on City Council Term

By Brian Simon

Despite not being re-elected to the El Segundo City Council, Dave Atkinson was all smiles when stating that his main reason for running again was to make sure Measure B passed. "People in town obviously didn't like me as much this time around, but what's most important is that they did like Measure B," he said referring to the transient occupancy tax increase overwhelmingly passed on April 12. "When I went walking door-to-door, I told everyone, 'Even if you don't vote for me, vote for Measure B. Well, they listened. The revenues from this will be a huge boost for the City and help subsidize infrastructure projects that have been delayed for far too long.'"

With Measure B moving forward, Atkinson views his campaign as a success even though he no longer sits on the City Council. He noted that he personally put up 107 signs in favor of the initiative. That said, what went wrong when it came to his own fortunes in the Council race? "I think there were several reasons for it," he said. "El Segundo has a long memory and there were people unhappy about me being part of the vote that removed Carl Jacobson as Mayor and moved Bill Fisher into the spot. As I said at the Council meeting when the vote happened, it was one of the most difficult and agonizing decisions I ever had to make—and there was a lot to it that people don't know."

El Segundo Files Challenge to Regional Transportation Plan

City immediately south of LAX takes action to protect residents against projection of unmitigated growth at airport

Yesterday, the City of El Segundo filed a petition with the Superior Court challenging the approval of the 2016-2040 Regional Transportation Plan (RTP) by the Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG). El Segundo's petition attacks the RTP on a variety of issues, but the main reason for the challenge is that SCAG has not adequately justified or analyzed its plan for significant growth at Los Angeles International Airport (LAX), which is immediately north of the City. Further, the RTP includes no proposed mitigation for this extraordinary growth projection, which will have immediate and negative impacts on the quality of life for El Segundo's residents.

"We are taking this extraordinary step to protect our residents, who bear the brunt of the noise and pollution generated by LAX," said Suzanne Fuentes, the mayor of El Segundo. "SCAG cannot release a transportation plan that projects significant growth at LAX without detailing proposals on how to lessen the impacts of that growth on our residents. It's not only a violation of law; it's a violation of principles of fairness."

As the petition notes, the RTP provides a blueprint for the Southern California region's transportation network over the next 25 years. It also serves as the region's Sustainable Communities Strategy which, as required by law, is to coordinate regional transportation and land use plans in order to promote compact, transit-oriented communities that will help California achieve its greenhouse gas reduction targets by reducing vehicle miles traveled.

The petition, filed in Los Angeles County Superior Court, states that the RTP's Environmental Impact Report (EIR) is "legally inadequate." The RTP will provide significant funding to ease access to LAX, leading to increased noise, traffic, and air pollution impacts on El Segundo and its residents. All of LAX's current planning approvals are predicated on a maximum of 78.9 Million Annual Passengers (MAP), but the RTP assumes growth to a range of 82.9 to 96.6 MAP. The RTP fails to acknowledge this disparity and fails to evaluate or mitigate the impacts of such growth.

Further, the projected growth violates SCAG's own commitment to sustainability and to its policy of aviation regionalization, which encourages the distribution of aviation traffic around the region so the communities that surround LAX do not bear all the impact of aviation traffic growth. Finally, the Petition objects to the RTP's conclusion that its program for improvements in ground access at airports (including LAX) will not have significant impacts on El Segundo.

"The idea that spending billions of dollars to make it easier to get in and out of LAX will not increase activity there is illogical," noted Fuentes. "SCAG needs to do a better job in analyzing these very real impacts on our residents."

A copy of the Petition is available upon request. - Provided by the City of El Segundo.

Atkinson

But when it came down to it, I truly felt that it was the right move for the City and I stand behind that vote. However, I realize the way it went down did not sit well with people." Atkinson added, "I must also have frightened the Police and Firefighter associations—as they called voters, went door-to-door and spent $40,000 in their goal to remove me from the Council. It probably didn't help that a sitting Mayor also worked against my reelection. In my mind, I got what I wanted and the big winner is the City of El Segundo."

Atkinson also believes citizens did not take well to his support of various tax hikes and fee increases. "There are those who say we shouldn't ever raise any taxes or fees for services and that we should look at cutting employee salaries and pensions," he said. "Well, during the time I was on the Council, we have looked at salaries and pensions by reducing the City's share of future retirement costs and restructuring union contracts—and we held firm and made a number of moves that will absolutely help the City in the long term. On the other side of the coin, there's talk of low employee morale because we are addressing the same salaries and pensions people want us to cut. Well, you can't have it both ways and I deemed the City's financial stability as the most important issue. There has to be a balance."

Atkinson went on to say that El Segundo can no longer afford to maintain a status quo that may have worked decades ago but not anymore in today's economic climate. "I am a long-time resident in this town and yeah, it has been great not paying for certain things forever," he said. "I don't want to pay higher fees. But there comes a point where you have to realize that nothing comes free and maybe people ought to pay for what they use. If you want to continue to pay nothing for things like trash pick-up, using parks facilities, riding the shuttle—things that residents pay for virtually everywhere else—then who does pay for it? The City. And if we don't have the money, then all those good things we are used to having will just go away unless our citizens are willing to at least pick up some of the slack. Now these great benefits can continue, thanks to Measure B."

Looking back at his tenure on the Council, Atkinson admitted that he found it frustrating to navigate through red tape considering that he was used to implementing decisions quickly when he worked in the automotive industry. "With government agencies, things just take a long time to get done even when it's crystal clear a certain decision is what's best," he said. "I won't miss that part of the job."

Even with the sometimes lengthy delays, Atkinson still pointed to various accomplishments during his term. He expressed particular pride in being the key Council liaison in facilitating the deal for a new aquatics facility at the future Wiseburn High School site. "This will be a state-of-the-art complex the likes of which doesn't exist anywhere in the area and will be a huge draw for El Segundo," Atkinson said. "I am sorry I won't get to finish what was started, but have confidence that the new Council will see it through."

Other highlights mentioned over the past four years include the move to bring TopGolf to town, the opening of several major developments such as The Point and eleven, plans for the Raytheon South Campus and several hotels, the new LA Lakers complex, the rehabilitation project on Richmond Street, and the Chevron tax in-lieu agreement. On a more personal level, Atkinson noted that he played a major role in organizing El Segundo's Host City activities when a delegation from the Special Olympics came to town last summer. "Many volunteers contributed to making the visit a huge success and for me it was one of the most rewarding experiences I have had since joining the Council," he said.

Having already retired before joining the Council in 2012, Atkinson will use his new-found free time to travel with his wife Carol and enjoy being with family. "I will certainly keep an eye on what's happening with the City and root on the new Council to continue moving El Segundo forward," he said. "Although I won't be one of the people on the dais anymore, I wish everyone well. We had our disagreements and maybe some people in the community questioned some of the decisions, but I believe we all voted with our conscience and on what we felt was best for the City." •

we continue to work towards supporting the families who have chosen our preschool. We have wonderful teachers who care very much about their students and families, so that we will continue to be a program strength that we will keep building on."

Board President Jim Garza commented after the presentation concluded that the current program in-place at the Eagles' Nest is "everything that I want to see in an educational experience for the kids."

Grijalva's presentation followed comments made by student representative to the Board Lexi Griffin detailing campus events at the High School as the students and faculty point towards a June 9 graduation ceremony date.

Carol Pirsztuk, Ed! Foundation CEO made the evening's final special presentation. She reminded the Board of tomorrow night's Ed! Foundation gala that will again be taking place on the grounds at Chevron Park on Friday night, as well as the Ed!'s Summer Academy that will start on June 13. The Ed! Gala festivities will feature a silent auction that will give gala-goers the opportunity to win, among other prizes, a trip to the Masters golf tournament, dugout seats to a Dodger game, a trip to San Francisco, box seats to an LA Kings game, and a walk-on to watch the filming of the hit television show, Modern Family.

The only Discussion item on the agenda involved the options available to the District pertaining to the life-cycle of the High School artificial turf football field and replacement possibilities. Dylan Farris, Executive Director of Human Resources, and Director of Maintenance and Operations Alfredo Perez lead the discussion.

Options currently in play to replace the turf, which has shown signs of early "degradation" and was installed back in 2010 and is under warranty until 2018, include replacing the current comparable turf at no charge to the District, with no extension of the warranty; or "upgrading" the artificial grass to the current top-of-the line turf, with an eight year warranty at a cost of $150,000 to the District.

Farris said that he asked the turf representatives what a new field would cost at this time, and was told a new install, with warranty, would currently run about $500,000. He said that the recommendation, at this time, would be to take the upgraded turf package with a new eight-year warranty at a cost to the District of $150,000. Installation would take place after the 2017 graduation festivities.

There were nine consent agenda items tackled at the meeting. Among the items that were given approval: Wednesday night's Gifted and Talented Education (GATE) program at the Richmond Street cafeteria; and for the High School Cross Country team to travel to Mammoth this summer to participate in a training camp program, and to Clovis in October to compete in what was termed a "very elite race."

The GATE night was to include a special presentation made by Mr. David Ghoogasian, and was entitled "Motivate GATE students to their fullest potential." A topic that was highly requested by GATE parents who responded to a District survey, the evening was open to all GATE identified students in grades 4-8.

Mammoth will be the destination for the varsity high school's cross country team in early August. Team members will be attending a special "High-Altitude" training camp in preparation for competition during the 2016-17 school year. One of those competitions will take place in Clovis on October 8th.

Six action items were addressed by the Board, including a resolution deeming May 11 as National School Nurse Day; a second resolution branding the week of May 15-21 as Classified School Employee Week; and the approval of the District's Educator Effectiveness plan, which spells out the way the District will be earmarking, for professional development, a grant of $240,644 over the next three years.

The Board then heard information pending action items on myriad courses and programs that may take place at both the high school and the Middle School when the next school year kicks-off. Course descriptions were available to Board members via file attachments, with high school classes involving Algebra/Geometry, AP Art History, Symphony Orchestra, and AP Computer Science Principles to be considered.

On the Middle School front, pending action courses for the fall included Chamber Orchestra, Intermezzo Strings, and Middle Year Programme offerings in Accelerated Algebra, Math I & II, and Math II & III.

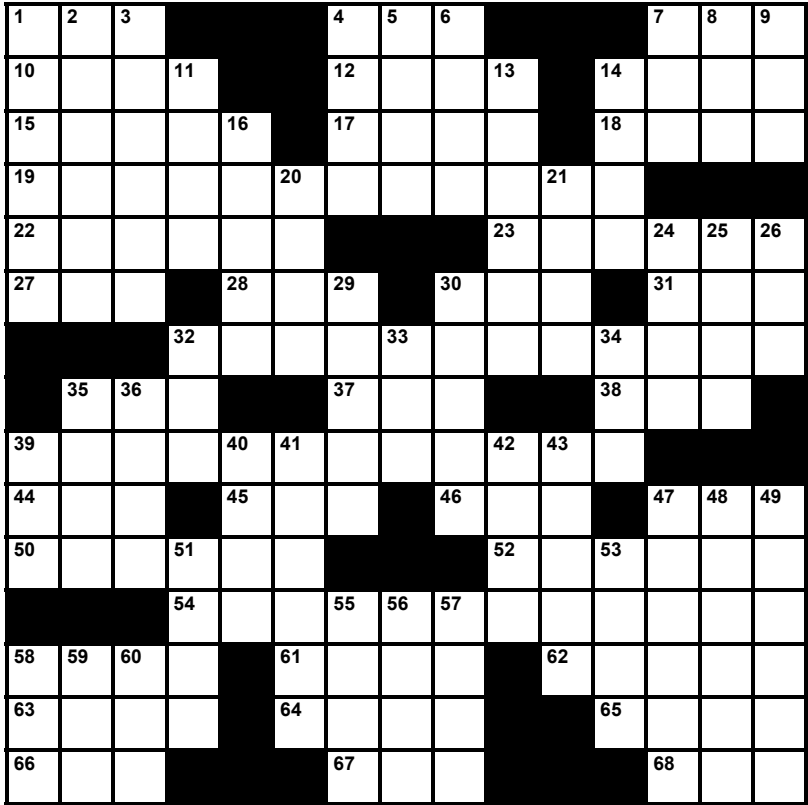

Superintendent Moore then addressed the Board about some of the upcoming events on the District's informational calendar, highlighting the May 12 facilities master plan town-hall meeting that will be taking place at the Richmond Street cafeteria, and the Friday night Ed! Foundation gala.

Board member reports followed, and Moore then gave her report. Garza then closed out the two-hour meeting. The next regularly scheduled meeting will take place on Tuesday evening, May 24. •

Eagles Playoff Bound

By Gregg McMullin

For the El Segundo high school athletic program it has been a given that you'll see plenty of its teams in the post season CIF Southern Section playoffs. Once again teams vied for league champions either outright or sharing a league title. Other than the boys' lacrosse team's second consecutive league title the baseball team is looking to finish second if it splits its games this week with Santa Monica. The boys' volleyball team tied for the league title but goes into the post season as the second place team and the girls' softball team is looking for the program's first Ocean League title if it can sweep its games this week.

Boys' Volleyball

The boys' volleyball program has come a long way from its roots. The program has been one of the top athletic programs in the school for the past ten years. In that time the Eagles have won two CIF-Southern Section titles and has won at least a share of a league title for five consecutive years.

Needing a win against Santa Monica on the last day of the regular season the Eagles came up with their biggest win of the season defeating the Vikings on the road in front of a raucous home crowd. The Eagles, behind the reigning CIF-Southern Section Division 3 Player of the Year, Stephen Moye, the Eagles dispatched the Vikings and dash their hopes of an outright title. Moye had 41 kills and eight blocks as the Eagles clinched a share of the Ocean League title with the 17-25, 25-23, 24-26, 26-24, 18-16 win. Joe Kelly had 63 assists and six blocks while Steve Brandlin had 22 digs for El Segundo (18-7, 9-1) and heads into the playoffs as the fourth seeded team.

The Eagles faced Schurr from the Almonte League on Tuesday. A win would send the Eagles into the second round tonight against the winner of the Vista Murieta/ Westminster match. Should the Eagle win they would be on the road if Westminster wins while a coin flip would determine the game against Vista Murieta. The quarter-finals are set for Saturday while a potential matchup against Quartz Hills looms in the semi-finals next Wednesday. Quartz Hills nearly knocked off the Eagles in the CIF finals holding a two games to none advantage before the Eagles made their historic comeback victory.

Baseball

The baseball program continues to be a model for success. No the Eagles won't win the Ocean League title but they are in position to finish second and advance to the CIF Southern Section playoffs for the eighth consecutive season and the thirteenth time since 2002. They defeated Lawndale 6-0 in the first game behind the pitching of Spencer Long. The junior right-hander was masterful through six innings scattering three hits while striking out five and walking none. Justin Ostler tossed a perfect seventh inning. Jake Palmer, CJ Shevlin and Brenden Casillas each had two hits to lead the Eagles. Both Palmer and Shevlin had two RBIs apiece.

In the second game the Eagles sent eleven hitters to the plate in the second inning and scored seven runs on their way to a 14-1 victory on Senior Day. Wyatt Boyce had a big day at the plate going three-for four with homerun, a double and five RBIs. Nico Celestial has settled nicely into the lineup hitting fourth now that Sean Emery's injury has sidelined him. Celestial had perhaps his best day as an Eagle hammering out a double, a scorching single and three RBIs and scoring twice.

The feel good story of the Eagle's season has been Bradley Heckman. The senior, who was sidelined with arm issues as a junior has put together quite a season. His pinch hit single raised his batting average to .556, tops on the team. Though he didn't pitch his eye-popping 0.79 ERA is also the best on the staff.

Senior catcher Jason Kehl, who has been sidelined all season long because of a foot-ball injury, made an appearance as a pinch runner who ended up scoring. Kehl, who started behind the plate as a junior, who was one of the Eagle captains, was to share time behind the plate while also playing first base.

The Eagles played Santa Monica on Tuesday at home and on the road today. With a win in either game the Eagles would advance to the playoffs as the second place team and a potential first round home game next week.

Kemer Brett Memorial Golf Tournament Baseball Fundraiser

The annual Kemer Brett Memorial Golf Tournament is set for tomorrow at Chester Washington Golf Course with a 12:30 shotgun start with check-in starting at 11:30am. This is one of the only fundraisers for the American Legion baseball program that also supports the high school program. The tournament was named after one of El Segundo's most prolific athletes who spent 14 years as a pitcher in the Major Leagues. After his playing days he went into broadcasting and succumbed to cancer in 2003.

After the tournament there is an after-hacking party to be held at The Old Town Patio located at 115 Richmond Street. This is where the fun of the day and stories get bantered around. Former Eagle baseball players and others will fill the night with stories, some even true, while tournament director Craig Cousins passes out awards. A silent auction of a 65" television as well as a number of other raffle prizes are up for grabs at the party.

The annual Alumni Baseball game is set for Saturday. All former players are encouraged to dust off their gloves and come out and participate. A BP session is set for 10am at the high school while game time is at noon at Stevenson Field.

Softball

The Lady Eagles head into this week needing a win against either Lawndale on Monday or Santa Monica on Wednesday to clinch a share of the Ocean League title. Of course if they sweep they'll be Ocean League champions. They put themselves into position with wins over Culver City 2-1 and Hawthorne 6-1. Against Culver City, the Eagles were trailing 1-0 in the fifth

Luke Walton Set to Turn Things Around

By Adam Serrao

The Los Angeles Lakers have finally found something to celebrate about. After the firing of Byron Scott on April 24, the Lakers wasted little time in finding their next head coach. The hiring of Luke Walton was announced almost two weeks ago now, and with it came an overabundance of joy from both the Lakers fan base and their players. Despite a long list of potential head coaching candidates that included experienced NBA and college coaches, the Lakers made their choice. Last Thursday night, Walton officially signed his five-year contract with the Lakers to become a first year head coach in his own right and the 26th coach in franchise history.

If the name Luke Walton may sound familiar and you don't follow basketball much, you might recognize him from the Lakers' 2009-2010 championship teams. Walton played as a steady contributor for the Lakers for nine years and has since moved on to become an assistant coach of the Golden State Warriors, where he is currently attempting to capture his second championship ring in as many years with that team. Once Walton's run with the Warriors runs out in this postseason, he will assume full duties as head coach of the Lakers. Walton does have some head coaching experience, too, though, filling in for Warriors head coach Steve Kerr while he was forced from the sidelines to start the year with complications from two offseason back surgeries. In his stead, Walton started the year with a 24-0 record and went a combined 39-4. "I'm incredibly happy for Luke," Kerr explained. "As we witnessed earlier this season, he has all of the intangibles necessary to be an outstanding head coach in this league, including a terrific understanding of the game [and] the ability to communicate with a wide range of people."

One of the biggest criticism's of the Walton hiring is his lack of any type of long-term head coaching experience. Sure, he went 24-0 and 39-4 with the Golden State roster, but my grandpa could have stepped in as head coach and would have taken that team of players to a similar record, right? The Lakers clearly don't have the same team of players as the Warriors, therefore the head coaching job is going to be a much more challenging one. "Believe it or not, the fact that he really doesn't have a lot of head-coaching experience is a positive" Lakers General Manager Mitch Kupchak explained. "We get to work with somebody who's working on the fly. We've had experience with coaches like that in our past. In fact, I think Pat Riley was our last 36-year-old coach. [Riley] did pretty good. But we're happy to have Luke for a lot of different reasons." While Luke may not turn out to be the next Pat Riley (who would?), the hottest coaching commodity in the league has also turned out to be the youngest active head coach in the league and should gel nicely with a roster full of young players who are already excited about his arrival.

"I'm excited about it," said Julius Randle when asked about Walton's new hiring. "It's a fresh start for us all. I think Luke is going to be great for us." Jordan Clarkson echoed those sentiments. "I'm really excited about him being the new head coach and really seeing how things are put together," Clarkson said. "I want to be in L.A. and be a part of this whole process. I think it's an exciting time for Laker Nation." Walton may not have a ton of real head coaching experience, but what he lacks there, he makes up for with the ability to relate to youngsters. "Obviously him being so young, he's going to be easy to relate to," Randle continued. "He's going to demand a lot of us and it's not going to be an easy process, but we're all looking forward to the challenge." There's no questioning Walton's decision to join the Lakers as a head coach. Sure, he's leaving the Warriors, which might be one of the greatest teams this league has ever seen. But who wouldn't jump at the chance to live in Los Angeles, get paid tons of money, and rejoin (and possibly resurrect) a team that you are already familiar with and have won multiple championships with. While his decision seems sound, the decision of the Lakers to tab him as a head coach so hastily is what remains to be seen.

One of the Lakers main challenges before the season starts is going to be in upgrading the roster. Something that Walton should certainly set his sights on should he wish to have any success in L.A. A roster of a year ago that included Roy Hibbert and Nick "Swaggy P" Young, should certainly look to rid itself of useless veterans like the such and further a nucleus of young, energized players that will have the ability to reinvent themselves on and off the court. While Walton attained his nearly spotless 39-4 record with a roster that was a given to him and a roster that might be one of the best this league has ever seen, his challenge will now be compiling one of his own. The problem last year was as much a roster problem as it also was a philosophical problem with Byron Scott and a "get Kobe Bryant the ball, problem". With all of that

Film Review

‘Sing Street’ is another musical delight from the director of ‘Once’

By Jared Anderson
for www.cinemacy.com

Sing Street, from the Irish filmmaker John Carney (known for grabbing the attention of the film world in 2007 with the movie-musical smash, Once), takes place during the homestretch of the Cold War, where a group of adolescents come together in the name of fellowship, bonding over the pop culture of the time and a desire to break away from the confines of the tangible.

Carney’s previous film, 2014’s Begin Again, was his first film made across the Atlantic, and his new movie sees him return to the streets of Dublin. Sing Street tells the story of our protagonist Cosmo (Ferdia Walsh-Peelo, something of a ringer for Freddie Highmore), who, at the whim of his father (Aidan Gillen, Game of Thrones), enrolls at the local Christian Brothers school, whereupon both his passion for music is awakened by the help of his older brother (Jack Reynor), as well as a desire to start a band to win the heart of the mysterious Ralphine (Lucy Boynton). There is an element of autobiography in Carney’s Sing Street, not unlike the writing efforts from Greg Mottola in Adventureland or Steven Chbosky in Perks of Being a Wallflower. The writer/director Carney’s own musical background does have a notable stint as bassist for the 90’s Irish band The Frames, fronted by his Once star Glen Hansard. Details in this movie, such as his school’s insistence on black shoes, are pages taken directly from his own life, much like how Almost Famous reflects the start of a young Cameron Crowe’s own career in music journalism through the shy, blossoming music aficionado.

To that end, Sing Street’s story and character beats are conventional, but organized delicately. This film is a little more innocent than the previously aforementioned, closer to something like the amiable nostalgia of this year’s Everybody Wants Some!!. The catholic schoolboys of Sing Street are right at the onset of puberty, not yet so acquainted with the confusing realities of drugs, sex, mental illness, etc. Not to say that they aren’t troublemakers, but there’s a bright-eyed charm to everything they do.

Like in Begin Again, the musical landscape that Sing Street’s characters inherit has quite a verisimilitude. Carney loves to relate the characters’ musical lives to the way they live with everything else. The fertile era of 80’s post-punk and new wave is almost the ideal context in which to do this, with the multiple subcultures inspired by those sounds – punks, goths, mods, and futurists, among others. The result is an ode to how music shapes identity, especially how it gives glory to being a misfit, an underdog, or a despairing romantic that otherwise might not exist. People tend to look at a person’s musical taste as part of a bigger picture, for instance – in a hilarious and poignant moment in the film, Cosmo’s brother warns him that a woman can never truly love a man that listens to Phil Collins. With uplifting heart and real musical energy, Sing Street is a film about discovering the honest music you want the world to judge you by. ‘Sing Street’ is rated PG-13 for thematic elements including strong language and some bullying behavior, a suggestive image, drug material and teen smoking. Now playing in select theaters. • said he would reserve judgment on the latter and is not in favor of it until it is costed out. He noted that “no one can raise a family on minimum wage,” but also explained that with the raise also comes increased costs for goods in the County—and that as an example, the arts internship program is now at a deficit as a result. Pacheco proclaimed support for the wage increase—calling it an alternative to being on welfare—and reported that 26% of Torrance residents are at or below the poverty line. He also called for retraining programs. Hahn said she heard from businesses voicing concerns about the minimum wage increase—with worries that if one city (or county) adopts it and another doesn’t, companies could choose to leave for a neighboring area. Otherwise, she said she supports the increase, especially since two-thirds of those at that salary level are women. On paid sick leave, she asked to study it first—but spelled out the hardships for those who have to choose between staying home with a sick child or going to work when they themselves are sick and putting co-workers at risk.

Returning to the topic of homelessness and what the County should be doing, Pacheco called the problem a “pandemic situation” and advised to utilize community-and faith-based organizations that can provide housing and revitalization, as well as personal management and life skills. He added that mental health issues are not being addressed, but need to be. Hahn said she has never seen 44,000 homeless in LA County (of which 4,000 are veterans) before, but that a Congressional bill would raise $13 billion in hopes of reducing the problem. She called on the County and City of Los Angeles to work together to coordinate efforts. “I believe in housing first,” Hahn said, explaining that conventional wisdom has been for the homeless to first get their lives together (e.g. get off drugs, find a job) and then get shelter. “I think that’s impossible. How can anyone living in a tent get their life together?” Hahn suggested providing rental subsidies and vouchers and to work with landlords/property owners. Napolitano said the number of homeless in the US is higher than in any other nation and “we need to fix it.” He mentioned work to help secure funding toward PATH (People Assisting the Homeless) and collaborating with faith-based organizations, but indicated those groups are overworked and can’t do it on their own. Napolitano noted that there is a spectrum of homelessness where those who are considered “chronic” need housing first. He touched upon the County’s approval to allocate $150 million to reduce homelessness and emphasized the need to find the most cost-effective ways to provide treatment and housing.

Considering when to use the County’s rainy day fund, Hahn spoke of the importance of having reserves in the event of an emergency such as an earthquake or fire. She also thought the monies could be appropriate to address homelessness, which she characterized as a “crisis” that may need special resources. Emphasizing that homelessness is a long-term problem that won’t be solved tomorrow, Napolitano cautioned against ever using one-time money for ongoing funding. He said reserves in the past went towards “unfunded mandates” such as when the State or Federal governments required the County to provide services regardless of whether those dollars were in the budget or not. Pacheco talked of a 47-point plan to address the homeless problem and offering up a quarter-cent sales tax (with a sunset clause) to raise $1 billion. He asked the audience if that is worth our while, or should we consider a $26 million parks needs assessment.

On how to educate a skilled workforce, Napolitano zeroed in on vocational education, career pathways and the need to train for skills such as plumbing and auto mechanics. He warned that the Southern California Regional Occupational Center lost State funding and has been surviving on a patchwork aid bill to keep it going for three years. He said we must find a way to keep it open to provide key training for high school and at-risk kids. Pacheco called for “innovative and creative ideas” on how to address the economic situation in our communities and spoke of serving on the ROP (Regional Occupational Program) Board in Whittier to retrain 20,000 adults in marketable skills. Hahn singled out the role of community colleges in providing an educated and trained workforce, but has heard business owners say they can’t find people to fill available jobs. She acknowledged that many kids will never go to college and that it is imperative to make sure they have “the skills to pay their bills.” She explained that even a slight change in State curriculum can be a one-and-a-half to two-year process—and suggested establishing a separate track for community colleges to approve changes more quickly to keep up with evolving technologies.

Asked about economic development and to provide ideas to foster it, Pacheco called it one of his top priorities with a specific goal to expand international trade and to look at the issue systemically. He mentioned meetings with the Harbor and Arts groups. He thought dialogue with various labor markets would be a perfect start in looking to increase job opportunities and build the economic base. Pacheco also spoke of leveraging State and Federal resources to help promote education. Hahn said that economic development can’t thrive without safe communities, She identified strengthening the ports and the international airport as two major components, with a need to address traffic congestion and to use transportation dollars to ensure cargo moves in and out of the ports efficiently and quickly. Hahn called small businesses “the backbone of economic development,” stating that “when they thrive and grow, they hire.” She thought it important to give them access to investment capital and to ensure the County is business-friendly. Napolitano agreed that public safety and transportation (especially 710 Freeway improvements) are vital factors, but added that he wants to hear directly from businesses as a way of governing from the “bottom up” as opposed to the “top down” so issues may be addressed on the County level. Noting that two-thirds of businesses are small, he said the County must offer better informational resources for them such as an improved website portal (which he said is currently difficult to find and went to a dead page when he searched for it) and an easier way to renew business licenses online. Other ideas mentioned included expanding the business concierge program, providing educational pathways, and pushing the State model film ordinance.

Recognizing Supervisor Knabe’s role in championing the Safe Surrender Program and Successful Anti-Sex Trafficking Operation, Schmidt asked the candidates what their own legacy program might be. Hahn praised Knabe’s “brilliant effort” in saving unwanted babies so that they can be dropped off at fire stations. She reported that the Supervisor had saved 144 lives so far and thought her legacy would be to ensure that “after saving their life, we gave them a life worth saving” by providing good schools, affordable housing and a measure of dignity. Or, she offered, since her father (Kenneth Hahn) brought the Dodgers to LA, she would make sure everyone with cable TV can watch the team’s games. Napolitano said he wished to continue Knabe’s Safe Surrender and Anti-Sex Trafficking work, feeling he is part of that legacy. Also, he hoped that in 12 years we will no longer be talking about the issues of today—that problems such as homelessness and transportation congestion will be resolved before then. Pacheco remarked that “the best legacy is our children” and that the County must provide more creative and innovative ways to provide services. “The best legacy is there are still honest politicians serving the public office,” he added.

The victor on June 7 will replace Supervisor Knabe, who first took the helm of the 4th District in 1996 and garnered reelection four times before terming out this year. •

Money-Saving Moving Tips for Newlyweds

(BPT) - First comes love, then comes marriage, then comes moving into a new house. The big move often comes after the big day. Whether you're moving in together for the first time or you're saying goodbye to your tiny apartment and moving into a starter home, it's an exciting - and often expensive - time.

Consider these tips to help streamline your move and save you money so you can fully enjoy the honeymoon phase in your new home sweet home:

PURGE, SELL AND SAVE

Did you receive new dishes or cookware as a wedding gift? You can probably ditch your old set. Host a garage sale or sell items you don't need online to make some cash while reducing goods you have to move. Alternatively, donate to a local nonprofit and take the tax write off at the end of the year.

DETERMINE WHAT SIZE MOVING TRUCK YOU'LL NEED

A good rule is to plan for 150 cubic feet of space for every fully furnished room. Many young couples moving from a small apartment or condo into a larger first home will find a 12- or 16-foot Penske rental truck adequate. Plan to reserve your truck at least two weeks in advance. Ask about discounts when reserving; Penske Truck Rental offers rental discounts for AAA members.

BE THOUGHTFUL OF WEDDING GIFTS

Did you receive gift cards for your wedding? Wait until after you move to spend them so you don't have to haul extras. For the wedding gifts you received, try to keep them in the original boxes for extra protection.

START EARLY AND PACK SMART

Get sturdy boxes of various sizes and fill inning when Allison Tatnal doubled. Alyssa Pelegrin had an RBI double and then scored on Megan Truesdale’s sacrifice fly ball for the winning 2-1 margin. Truesdale threw a complete game four hitter and struck out six. Elena Wagner-Bagues had perhaps her best of the season. She had five put outs including a pop fly she needed to toss the home plate umpire out of the way and making a diving catch on the play.

The game at Hawthorne saw the Eagles come out flat but still managed to pull out a win. With the Eagles once again down 1-0 in the fifth inning Gianna Taormina singled, Kaili Reitano had a bunt single with no outs. Tatnal slammed a two run double to right center to give the Eagles the 2-1 lead. Cierra Kessler doubled in Tatnal to make it 3-1. Pelegrin and Julie Roach singled and Truesdale had two RBIs to make it 5-1. El Segundo would add a run in the seventh to close out the scoring.

The Eagles will enter the CIF playoffs next week at a site to be determined. A sweep this week would give the team a home game in the first round. •

now behind the team, Walton and a young core of Lakers (Randle, Clarkson, D’Angelo Russell) will inherit $60 million in cap space and a possible Top 3 pick in the upcoming NBA draft that should be enough to finally lure in free agents who want to play for the Purple and Gold.

At this point, there’s no telling what kind of job Luke Walton will do. People thought Mike D’Antoni would be a good hire. Others thought that Mike Brown would be a good fit. Even still, everyone was excited when Byron Scott was hired. All he turned out to be was the worst coach in Lakers history, leading the team to a 38-164 record in two years as coach, including a franchise worst 17-win season one year ago. Three years from now, we’ll be able to look back on Luke Walton as head coach and decide if what he has done with the team has been good or bad. Right now, however, there is optimism in Laker Land once again. A new, young head coach should breathe new life into a young and energetic team. For now, Luke Walton is a great hire for the Los Angeles Lakers. After all, how does it possibly get worse than 17 wins? • to their deceased customers, according to the California insurance commissioner. This pattern of selective use of the death list indicated to investigators the companies knew policyholders had died, Jones’ office said.

State investigators from Florida, North Dakota, New Hampshire and Pennsylvania also discovered that life insurers weren’t using the national Social Security database, called the Death Master List, as the government intended. “Until recently, many life insurers only used the Death Master File for their own economic benefit to identify deceased annuity holders in order to stop making annuity payments, but the life insurers failed to use the Death Master File to identify deceased policyholders in order to pay life insurance benefits,” Insurance Commissioner Jones said.

The companies would wait for a claim to be filed for the death benefits, and in some cases when the policyholder who had died stopped paying the premiums, the insurers cancelled the policy and kept the death benefit, Florida Insurance Commissioner Kevin McCarty said in a “60 Minutes” interview.

McCarty, who co-led the investigation, dismissed the insurance industry’s argument that the policies state that insurers don’t have an obligation to pay the benefit unless a claim is filed.

“And I’m here to say that you have a responsibility to investigate a claim if you know someone has died. And if you have a letter that says you’re deceased, you have actual knowledge the person has died,” he said.

The California Controller’s Office also launched its own investigation after it determined that life insurance companies had violated state laws that require unclaimed property held by corporations to be turned over to the State Controller so that the Controller can search for the property owners. Unpaid life insurance benefits qualify as unclaimed property.

The life insurers also reached five settlements with states for unlawfully holding unclaimed property, which prevented state controllers from carrying out their legal duties, according to authorities. The five settlements added $2.5 billion to the payouts.

California’s Unclaimed Property Law requires corporations, business associations, financial institutions, and insurance companies to annually report and deliver property to the Controller’s Office after three years have passed without any contact with the customer.

Investigators continue to watch the insurance companies that weren’t the focus of the probe, and are pushing for full compliance by the industry to use the Death Master List.

“We urge the remaining life insurers to follow the lead of the 22 companies that are now using the Death Master File database to search their records for deceased life insurance policyholders and to pay their beneficiaries benefits owed,” Commissioner Jones said in his announcement.

“Until they do so, our investigation and enforcement actions will continue.”

Missouri Insurance Director John Huff, who is president of the national association of state commissioners, said in an email for this story that his group is working to create a national system for consumers to check on lost life-insurance policies. •

SEGUNDO, CA 90245 The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be made without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the Note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust, with interest thereon, as provided in said Note(s), advances if any, under the terms of the Deed of Trust, estimated fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust. The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligations secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of this Notice of Trustee's Sale is estimated to be $1,608,207.49 (Estimated). However, prepayment premiums, accrued interest and advances will increase this figure prior to sale. Beneficiary's bid at said sale may include all or part of said amount. In addition to cash, the Trustee will accept a cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank, a check drawn by a state or federal credit union or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, savings association or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the California Financial Code and authorized to do business in California, or other such funds as may be acceptable to the Trustee. In the event tender other than cash is accepted, the Trustee may withhold the issuance of the Trustee's Deed Upon Sale until funds become available to the payee or endorsee as a matter of right. The property offered for sale excludes all funds held on account by the property receiver, if applicable. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. Notice to Potential Bidders If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a Trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a Trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same Lender may hold more than one mortgage or Deed of Trust on the property. Notice to Property Owner The sale date shown on this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the Mortgagee, Beneficiary, Trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about Trustee Sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call In Source Logic at 702-659-7766 for information regarding the Trustee's Sale or visit the Internet Web site address listed below for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case, CA08002999-15-1S. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. Purrfect Companions

Scout

Share springtime with a wonderful feline friend and adopt your purr-fect match.

Scout is a classic Tortie - confident, affectionate, devoted, somewhat silly, and vocal. She loves being cuddled and doing things with you such as sitting on your lap while you are working or napping next to you or watching television. Still a kitten, Scout is a super-duper purrer. She loves her sisters, Marvel and Linden, and could sleep with them in your sock drawer for hours. She loves socks and will gladly take them all over your house for you. This curious kitten would be a great sister to another kitten or young adult cat. Of course, her preference would be to be adopted with one of her own sisters, Marvel or Linden, as they look to each other for most things

Marvel is a goofy, fun girl who loves cuddles! Her favorite game is to pounce on your feet under a blanket. Her second favorite thing to do is to lick your hands and fingers and toes. She gets along with everyone: her sisters Linden and Scout, the resident adult cats, and her foster humans. Happy to run and play and cuddle like most kittens do, Marvel does them more! Black cats are harder to find homes for, so please consider adopting little Marvel.

Linden is polite, affectionate, charming, and sometimes a bit shy. She likes to be up high in her cat tree looking out at the world. Like her sisters Scout and Marvel, she is a champion purrer. They are her best friends and if the house is quiet that means they are sleeping together in your sock drawer. Linden would be a great sister cat to a social, easy-going kitten or young adult who could be my mentor. Her preference, of course, would be to go with her siblings, but she is realistic about someone adopting three kittens at once!

Anabel was living on the street, thin and scared. But after a few weeks in a loving foster care, she regained her weight, the glossiness of her beautiful coat, and her trust in people. Anabel is very affectionate and friendly, enjoys playing with people or by herself, wants to play with other cats, and loves to cuddle and sleep with her person. The markings of her fur, her length, and her intelligence suggest she is a Bengal mix. She will stand up, wrap her front paws around a door knob, and open an interior door! Anabel is a friend to everyone... other cats, people and even small dogs if they are a friend to her.

Anita is a very sweet little girl who loves to play and run. Her favorite toys are laser lights and tiny crumpled balls of paper or tinfoil; she'll chase them around the house and even carry them in her mouth. Anita is a very curious little kitty, but knows not to jump up on most tables or the kitchen counters. With a gentle spray from a squirt gun, she'll learn where she is not wanted. She can be a little shy with new people, and a bit skittish if she feels she's being chased or yelled at, but with a bit of gentle lovingness, she'll warm right up and really does love attention and affection. Anita would love another female kitty friend to play with, and she does get along with most dogs (provided they won't chase her!). She would fit right into a home with another cat or dog friend, but no young children please. (She was severely traumatized by young children at her first forever-home.)

Goldie was an abandoned kitten, just appearing one day in her foster's garden. She is very cute and quite affectionate. As a kitten teenager, Anabel is very playful. Her ideal new home for her would be with a kitty playmate, preferably not with small children or a dog.

These kitties are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All of our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org or email us at mail@kittenrescue.org. Your tax deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 914 Westwood Blvd. #583, Los Angeles, CA 90024.

On Saturdays, we have adoptions from noon to 3:30 p.m. in Westchester at 8655 Lincoln Blvd. just south of Manchester Ave. and also in Mar Vista at 3860 Centinela Ave, just south of Venice Boulevard. Our website lists additional adoption sites and directions to each location. Be kind. Save a life. Support animal rescue. •

There are some remarkable people in the Beach Cities, people who care about helping others and volunteer their time. We're happy to know them as neighbors and proud to have them participate as part of the Chevron El Segundo Refinery's Community Advisory Panel (CAP). These volunteers help represent the "voice of the community" and meet throughout the year at Chevron to share their thoughts, raise concerns and advise us on our relationship with our neighbors. CAP members work to ensure they are a reflection of the community and when they speak Chevron listens.
