City Council Gets Incomplete Update from Edison on Recent Power Outages

By Brian Simon

On Tuesday night, the El Segundo City Council heard from Southern California Edison representatives Paul Hennessy and Connie Turner regarding the recent spate of power outages impacting local residents and businesses. The electric utility provided a circuit reliability report outlining the average frequency of both brief and sustained interruptions over the past few years as well as the most common causes of outages—with equipment failure the primary culprit over 42% of the time.

But the Edison officials could not yet pinpoint the reasons for specific outages over the last few months since that will entail manually looking at the circuits for each city. Asked by Councilmember Carol Pirsztuk if the company has any insight on the recent increase in problems, Hennessy said no. He explained that it takes the outage team awhile to break down a specific incident and it will need to have a specific date and location in order to do so. Mayor Suzanne Fuentes added that anecdotally, residents report outages several days a week.

Hennessy explained that equipment failure happens due to age and infrastructure not being replaced. He admitted that in the past, Edison only replaced equipment that broke. But the company launched a more preventative infrastructure replacement program in 2010 that is still in the catch-up process. Among the El Segundo projects is a $1.2 million fix of underground cable causing issues east of Sepulveda.

Turner went on to confirm the likelihood of over a dozen rotating, planned outages this summer with predicted heatwaves the main reason as well as the closure of a major gas storage facility in Santa Clarita that will limit Edison's use of back-up generators. The rolling outages serve to protect the grid when demand exceeds supply, Turner said. She pointed out that Edison has 88 different circuit groups in its service area, so the rotation will serve to minimize impacts on a particular city. Turner went on to give citizens a number to call (1-800-655-4555) and indicated they can opt in to receive updates via text, email or phone to stay in the loop on their particular outages. She also gave the City Clerk a form to post online that citizens can use to make claims in the event of damages from outages. Fuentes said she herself filed a $5,000 claim, but did not receive a dime. Turner responded that while there are no guarantees, everyone has the right to file a claim.

Also on Tuesday, the Council (per Fuentes' initial request) directed staff to conduct a

You're Traveling Where This Summer? Oh, No!

By Rob McCarthy

It's looking like a bumper summer for overseas travelers because of renewed threats from terrorists, criminal gangs and a tiny flying insect in the Olympic host city of Rio de Janeiro.

The mosquito-borne zika virus in Brazil is scaring U.S. fans from making the 13-hour flight to the host city for the Summer Olympic Games. The world comes together every four years for the Games, however, turmoil within Brazil's government and an outbreak of zika have created doubts that the host can complete construction of the venues in time for the competition.

The opening ceremonies are scheduled for Aug. 5, with the games running through

Aug. 21. The U.S. Olympic Committee said two weeks ago it's ready for the Games to begin, while acknowledging Rio's "unique challenges" created by a zika epidemic and political scandal.

"The bottom line is that our athletes are ready to go and we are committed to supporting them 100 percent this summer," USOC chief executive Scott Blackmun wrote last month.

U.S. health officials are advising pregnant women not to visit Brazil this summer because of zika virus, which can be spread from mosquito to human, as well as from a pregnant woman to her unborn baby. There have been confirmed

El Segundo Horseshoers' Pitch for C.A.S.E.

Each year, a group of local horseshoe pitchers get together for a day of competition and a chance to give back to their community. The 19th Annual Clarabell Horseshoe Tournament benefitting C.A.S.E. in El Segundo took place on May 28. Long-time El Segundo residents Terry and Cheryl Landreth host the annual event.

For the past few years, the El Segundo Firefighters' Association has supported the Clarabell fundraiser. On the day of the event, El Segundo Firefighters Jeff Gurney, Curt Crowson, and Brian Santagata presented a check for $500.00 to C.A.S.E.

The money raised during the tournament through selling raffle tickets and individual contributions is given to C.A.S.E. to benefit local families in need. The generous donation of raffle items by many El Segundo businesses and individuals, as well as donations for the C.A.S.E. food pantry is greatly appreciated.

C.A.S.E. would like to extend a heartfelt thanks to the El Segundo Firefighters' Association, local businesses, and community members who pitched in to make this year's event such a success.

William 'Bill' Klug Family Fund

Bill Klug, a UCLA Engineering Professor and father, was killed on June 1 on campus. The El Segundo Community would like to ask for your support for the family during this difficult time. Klug was a loving father, great coach and a valued member of this close knit California town.

His family was the most important thing to him and our goal is to make sure they are taken care of now and in the future.

The money will be used for supporting the family and college for his son and daughter.

Klug meant a lot to this town, and so much more to his beautiful family. To have his life taken in this senseless and violent way is incomprehensible. Please give whatever you can to support his family and the legacy he leaves both in his community and at UCLA. If you would like to donate go to: www.gofundme.com/billklug.

Trending Real Estate Investment: Land ownership

(BPT) - Smart investors know a diversified portfolio is the best way to weather any storm. Considering the volatility of the current stock market, the desire for better options has never been greater. Rather than gamble on the next buzzworthy stock or bond and hope it lives up to expectations, there's an alternative that's gaining traction: land ownership.

While stocks and funds depend highly on market swings, forestland requires only sun and rain to provide asset growth. However, the key to maximizing financial and recreational returns depends on proper management-and that requires more than just Mother Nature.

Knowing how to manage a large piece of land can be overwhelming to a new investor or a person who may have inherited land from family. It's important to consider the investment potential. Some common questions include:

- Should you harvest any timber? From what areas?
- When should you plant trees?
- How should you manage the vegetation and handle invasive species?
- How can you protect the wildlife?

Just as hiring a financial advisor is smart to manage an investment portfolio, hiring an expert to assist in answering questions and forester firm that utilizes both forestry and biology expertise, Bird & Crawford Forestry, there are three basic steps to proper forestland management. Following these steps will help ensure the landowner is maximizing his or her investment long-term.

1. The first step is to gain knowledge of the existing and/or potential natural resources on the property. This includes knowing what resources are on the land, how they are located in relation to land features and what resources are worth preserving. Bird & Crawford Forestry is one group that utilizes wildlife biologists along with professional foresters to survey the land in person to map the property and determine resource assets from a financial as well as a recreational standpoint.
2. Once what actually exists on a property is determined, the next step is to establish goals for the property. Because every landowner/investor is unique, goals can vary greatly. For instance, if the land is inherited, the goal may be focused upon protecting family assets to confidently keep a family legacy intact for generations to come. Upon identifying goals, an overall management strategy can be developed.
3. Finally, professional foresters will develop the plan of forest and wildlife management managing a land investment is also highly advisable. Independent consulting foresters are experts that offer scientific applications as well as business acumen to landowners. Foresters offer broad-based knowledge about the characteristics of forest land, relevant economics of private timberland management and sensitivity to the full scope of issues important to private forest landowners. In addition, an independent professional land management team comprised of not only consulting foresters, but also wildlife biologists is important. This expanded capacity of the consulting professional is essential for successful private forest management.

So how does the land management process work? According to one leading consulting activities required to achieve the owner's goals. This might include a planting and harvesting schedule, wildlife management and conservation efforts, and even hunting lease management.

Beyond the bottom line of profit potential, land ownership gives investors something that is tangible, a good alternative to traditional investments and another option to round out your portfolio. Owning land is also a wonderful way to conserve and enjoy nature while leaving a lasting legacy to family and future generations. Working with experts familiar with a breadth of land, from upland pine sites to bottomland ecosystems, provides peace of mind for maximizing the land's value. In the AA championship game the Royals got by the Pirates, 4-3. In the AAA game, the Athletics came from behind to defeat the Giants, 3-2. In the Major championship game the, Angels repeated by defeating the Athletics, 7-2. At the Closing Ceremonies league president Peter Gianusso gave an emotional heartfelt speech in front of a packed audience that included the El Segundo police and fire departments as well as a number of news channel trucks.

It was another successful season that seems to have flown by way too quickly. In years to come the memories of the past four months of scored on JR Francis’ RBI walk. They scored twice in the second inning when Nick Parisi walked and scored on Timmy Anderson’s RBI single. Anderson would later score when Brooks worked an RBI walk to make it 3-0.

In the bottom of the third inning the Pirates tied the game. Townes Potter was hit by a pitch, Jamie Owen ripped a single and Parker Levin was hit by a pitch to lad the bases. Calvin Meyer drew an RBI walk, Milo Watts drove in a run and Ethan Plouff had an RBI double to tie the game, 3-3. The Royals would go onto score the go-ahead run in the fifth inning and then hold off the Pirates.

The Royals pitching staff was impressive with Chase Mattoon, Mark Coakly, Logan Brooks and Ethan Kearney limiting the strong Pirates batting order. The Pirates staff was equally impressive with Ethan Plouff, Jamie Owen and Townes Potter combining on a two-hitter. Anderson and JR Francis led the Royals on offense. The Pirates were led by

And who will forget eating some of the best snack bar hamburgers being grilled by Stacy McEwan. There were no losers only winners with dirty uniforms, precious smiles and plenty of memories to last a lifetime.

AA Division

The day started with an incredible game that featured two teams with a lot of character and a boat load of potential for the future. Both teams played outstanding defense and had solid pitching. The Royals scored to open the game when Logan Brooks reached on an error and Ethan Plouff who was 3-for-3 with two singles and an RBI double.

AAA Division

Perhaps the best game of the day was between the Athletics and the Giants. These two teams finished at the top of the standings before their playoff run to the championship game. It was fitting that these two teams played for the championship since they were so evenly matched. The Giants got the upper hand early on and led 2-0. The game was quickly played with minimal mishaps on defense by both sides.

The Athletics scoreless innings drought against the Giants ended in the bottom of the fifth when they scored a run to cut the defi-

Ali boma ye. A familiar slogan shouted by thousands of Congolese audience members as Muhammad Ali prepared to face George Foreman in 1974 at the Rumble in the Jungle in what was at the time, Kinshasa, Zaire. The pro-Ali crowd from back then has grown by millions in the years since. Cassius Clay, later known as Muhammad Ali, chiseled out a place in the hearts of every American on his way to becoming known as “The Greatest”. Ali entered the hospital last week in the Phoenix area due to as well. He took down Sonny Liston twice. He brought the enormous George Foreman to his knees by inventing the rope-a-dope. Perhaps most famously, Ali nearly fought until life left his body when he took on Joe Frazier in the Philippines. The names mentioned above speak volumes about who Ali was as a person and a boxer. He never shied away from a battle and was never scared to take on the best that there was. Boxers nowadays fight battles that they know they can win. Ali, on the other hand, was always out to prove a point. He took on the best, beat the what was initially thought to be non-threatening respiratory issues. It later became one fight that the champion would ultimately not survive. Muhammad Ali died last Friday night at the age of 74. Though his spirit may now be gone, his legend will truly live on forever.

There have been books written, movies made, documentaries produced and articles constructed, all about the man whose name was Ali. The 860 words in this article will certainly neither do any of those, nor the man himself, justice. Perhaps the most important thing to remember about Ali, however, was that he was a man who made promises and truly lived up to them. He promised to be the greatest ever. He was. He promised to shock the world. He did. He floated like a butterfly, he stung like a bee, and even after a despicable disease rendered him much more useless than any other fighter ever could, Ali remained fearless. Though his voice was little more than simply a whisper, his spirit remained gigantic. An unshaken champion, Ali stood for freedom and love.

Muhammad Ali was bigger than boxing. He was one of the world’s most recognizable people, and not just because of what he did with his gloves inside of the ring. Ali famously took a stance on the military draft and refused to go across seas to fight in the Vietnam war. “I ain’t got no quarrel with them Viet Cong,” Ali explained. Likewise, Ali’s conversion to Islam even further polarized a nation that was already in awe of the man who stopped at nothing to stand up for what he believed in. “It’s a sad day for life, man,” promoter Don King said of Ali’s passing. “I loved Muhammad Ali. He was my friend. Ali will never die. Like Martin Luther King, his spirit will live on. He stood for the world.”

Though he stood for the world outside of the ring, Ali certainly stood tall inside of the ring, best, and became the best that there ever was.

“Muhammad Ali is a legend and one of the world’s most celebrated athletes, the fighter who ushered in the golden era of boxing and put the sport on the map,” Oscar De La Hoya explained. “He paved the way for professional fighters, including myself, elevating boxing to become a sport watched in millions of households around the world.” Muhammad Ali truly was a household name. Without him, the sport of boxing would be nothing.

Ali had a career after boxing, as well. He later became an evangelist and a missionary for Islam, naturally stating, “I will be the greatest evangelist ever,” in a way that only Muhammad Ali could. Soon thereafter, Parkinson’s entered into Ali’s life. His loud voice turned to a whisper, his shuffle in the ring turned into a slow stagger, and his muscular visage quickly turned into a frail countenance. Through it all, however, Ali remained strong-willed and kept the heart of a lion in his chest. “What I suffered physically was worth what I’ve accomplished in life,” he related. “A man who is not courageous enough to take risks will never accomplish anything in life” Words that we all could truly live by.

“I would like to be remembered as a man who won the heavyweight title three times, who was humorous, and who treated everyone right. As a man who never looked down on those who looked up to him, and who helped as many people as he could. As a man who stood up for his beliefs no matter what. As a man who tried to unite all humankind through faith and love. And if all that’s too much, then I guess I’d settle for being remembered only as a great boxer who became a leader and a champion of his people. And I wouldn’t even mind if folks forgot how pretty I was.”

“Approaching the Unknown” Won’t Have the Search Team Called

By Ryan Rojas
for www.cinemacy.com

Apparently, movies have yet to learn by now the dangers of sending but a few scarce humans—in this case, just one—beyond Earth’s reaches and into the vastness of space to save humanity from some planet-threatening problem. Of course, this risk of the ‘what can go wrong does go wrong’ variety, drives a time-tested plot of which audiences are readily entertained; just look at recent cinema, “The Martian,” “Interstellar,” and “Gravity” for proof.

The real danger that movies should be wary enough to discover a process to create water from dirt and fearless enough to disobey orders to manually fix his ship in a bind from Earth-residing NASA engineer and old pal Louis ‘Skinny’ Skinner (Luke Wilson), his cold exterior doesn’t lend itself to drawing the audience in, and proves the whole thing could use a little more humor and heart.

You can tell before it’s over that “Approaching the Unknown” is a movie that didn’t spend its efforts trying to differentiate itself from other sci-fi movies as it does attempting to cash in on their successes. Sure, a few flashback of is building a story around this premise alone, and without adding anything new to the equation. The result, which the latest solo-in-space-survival flick “Approaching the Unknown” shows, is that audiences will fail to care if that character is fated to drift further and aimlessly out of orbit and into the forgotten beyond. While there might be enough familiar elements to satisfy those who are looking for something akin to background-watching, “Approaching the Unknown” doesn’t have enough original elements to generate the inertia of interest necessary to captivate viewers in its own right.

The astronaut whose fate we are tied to is William D. Stanaforth (Mark Strong), on a one-way, sacrificial trip to Mars to colonize the planet for the rest of humanity—if he doesn’t perish before arriving. A former military man with instinctual intelligence and steely conviction, Stanaforth is also loaded with lazily tacked-on self-affirmations (“I’m not going to Mars to die; I’m going there to live.”), making him a comparable but cliché fixture to spend a full ninety minutes with.

Strong, last seen in this year’s underperforming Sacha Baron Cohen spy-spoof “The Brothers Grimsby,” lends his action-hero looks and serious resolve to playing Stanaforth and it’s to the actor’s strengths that he brings the character to life. While he seems like the perfect person to have in a real-life situation—brilliant scenes of Stanaforth convey his detachment from non-existent family and friends back home, but there’s nothing beyond his person that amounts to be developed. You’re probably already braced for when the solitarily-confined character loses his grip on reality, talking to himself and hallucinating characters from his emotional past. But all of this within the first twenty minutes? It fast-tracks all of what the movie has to offer in the blast-off stage alone.

While “The Martian,” “Interstellar,” and “Gravity,” show that battling elements and confronting the certainty of death can do more than simply entertain audiences (each being commercially and critically received and Awards-positioned), Strong’s strengths aren’t in the department of amiability and warmth, unlike Matt Damon in “Martian,” or Matthew McConaughey in “Interstellar (or even Tom Hanks in “Apollo 13”), actors whose ingenuity comes second to their naturally likable selves. It seems the bigger irony that first-time writer/director Mark Elijah Rosenberg doesn’t get right in his directorial debut is that the greater the dazzling technology, the greater a natural human presence must be there for us to relate to. Unfortunately, it doesn’t look like the search team will be getting called for this failed mission.

“Approaching the Unknown” is rated R for language. Now playing in select theaters and On Demand. •

“Because infection in a pregnant woman is linked to a serious birth defect of the brain called microcephaly and other poor pregnancy outcomes, CDC recommends that women who are pregnant should not go to the Olympics,” the health agency said in a recent alert.

The zika virus is active throughout South America, according to the CDC. It issued an updated travel alert “2016 Summer Olympics” last week. The CDC recommends that travelers

The State Department warns Americans not to travel to North Korea under any circumstances, whether it be for a cultural mission or in a group tour.

“North Korea has detained those who traveled independently and those who were part of organized tours. Being a member of a group tour or using a tour guide will not prevent North Korean authorities from detaining or arresting you,” said a May 16 alert.

“Possession of any media, either physical or electronic, criticizing the DPRK government or its leaders is considered a criminal act punishable by long-term detention in hard labor take simple precautions, including wearing long-sleeved shirts, using insect repellent and sleeping under a mosquito bed net. The greatest threat is to pregnant women, while some adults who contract zika won’t show any symptoms, the CDC reports.

The alert is posted at <http://wwwnc.cdc.gov/travel/notices/alert/2016-summer-olympics-rio>.

The U.S. State Department’s warning about terrorist threat levels in Europe was a buzz-kill for Americans who decided to skip the Olympics and head for the continent instead. A “Europe Travel Alert” issued May 31 said law-enforcement officials believe terrorists may be planning to stage attacks on visitors between now and the end of August.

“The large number of tourists visiting Europe in the summer months will present greater targets for terrorists planning attacks in public locations, especially at large events,” the State Department said.

France is hosting the Euro Soccer Championships from June 10 through July 10, and the Tour de France cycling race from July 2- 24. France has extended a state of emergency to cover the soccer and cycling events, according to the State Department.

The United States has no diplomatic ties with North Korea, and cannot assist Americans who are detained by the authorities who’ve held at least 14 U.S. visitors over a 10-year period.

Most of the countries and regions with high travel-risk levels are off the beaten track for most Americans, including Somalia, Pakistan, Central Africa, Columbia, Syria and Iran.

Travel to Mexico merited this warning from the State Department, with a reminder that criminal gangs and drug wars make some states more dangerous than others to visit.

The risks run from being caught in a street fight between rival gangs to abduction for ransom, it said. Carjacking and highway robbery is a serious problem in border towns.

“U.S. citizens are encouraged to lower their personal profiles and to avoid displaying indicators of wealth such as expensive-looking jewelry, watches, or cameras,” the State Department says. Tourists should avoid isolated areas or situations where they appear easy targets for robbers or kidnappers who demand

Poland is hosting the Catholic Church’s World Youth Day event, which is expected to draw up to 2.5 million visitors between July 26 and July 31. Local infrastructure, including security, may be strained due to the large number of visitors to Krakow, officials say.

U.S. citizens traveling on Mexican roads and highways by car or bus may encounter government checkpoints, staffed by military or law enforcement personnel. American travelers are advised to cooperate with the federal police and military personnel, who’ve been deployed by the Mexican government to combat organized criminal groups.

After a strikeout, the Athletics were down to their last out with runners on second and third base. James Baldino then lifted a long fly ball that Giants outfielder James Anderson tried to track down. Anderson made a valiant dive in an attempt to catch the fly ball but it dropped for a walk-off two run single scoring both Fisher and Nieves.

Major Division

Angels head coach Lance Ralls must be doing something right. For the third consecutive season he has guided a team to the championship. For the third season in a row it was the Angels, this time downing the Athletics, 7-2, to capture the league’s Major Division championship. In a game that featured two of the top pitchers in the league the Athletics’ Owen Kirsten and the Angels’ Connor Smith, something had to give. Kirsten’s off speed pitches befuddled the Angels while Smith’s eye-popping fastball was at times too much for the Athletics.

The Angels came up with three runs in the second inning to take an early lead. Landon Davis slapped a single up the middle and Duke Sanders reached base on a dropped third strike with two outs. Both scored on a two-run double by Lucas Bonham and Cooper Stolnack had a single and played flawlessly at shortstop in the championship game.

Duke Sanders connects for an RBI single in the sixth inning of the championship game.

Smith’s RBI single made it 3-0. The Athletics countered in their half of the second inning when Nolan Kelly singled and scored on Ryan Smetana double to make it 3-1. Both pitchers settled in and the game went scoreless till the bottom of the fifth. The Athletics Jason McGowan led off the inning with a walk and scored on Kirsten’s triple to right-centerfield to make it 3-2.

In the top of the sixth, the Angels scored four runs to essentially put the game away. Davis singled and later scored on Sander’s

Expert Tips for Creating a Safe Outdoor Space

(BPT) - When dreaming of your at-home outdoor oasis, safety may not be top-of-mind. But when making decking decisions, a key element to enjoying your retreat for years to come is ensuring it is safe and structurally sound.

The experts at Trex, the world's No. 1 decking and railing brand and leader in high-performance, low-maintenance outdoor living products, offer the following tips for building a safe and worry-free deck:

KNOW YOUR CODES

Codes for building materials were established to help ensure quality and safety. The primary reference for deck requirements is the International Residential Code (IRC). Use this resource to confirm all your deck materials are code-compliant and deliver the highest levels of quality and peace of mind. For an easy guide, check out this Professional Deck Builder article written by a code official.

BUILD A SOLID FOUNDATION

The substructure is the foundation that supports your deck, not to mention your family and friends. Here, again, pressure-treated lumber can warp, rot, twist, split and decay over time. From 2003-2007, more than 20,000 injuries resulted from a structural failure or collapse of decks with a wooden substructure.* For maximum stability and longevity, opt for a steel substructure such as Trex Elevations Steel Deck Framing System. Designed specifically for the outdoors, Elevations is the only steel framing product in the U.S. to be deemed IRC compliant for exterior use. In addition to unmatched structural integrity, steel improves the overall aesthetics of a deck both above and below.

CHOOSE DURABLE DECKING

Decks are exposed to the elements 365 days a year, seven days a week, 24 hours a day. Over time, wood can begin to rot, crack and splinter, increasing the risks of injury and structural failure. To avoid these issues, consider a wood-alternative decking material, such as composite, which offers superior stability that won't weaken under harsh weather or heavy foot traffic. Composite boards also deliver a smooth deck surface, require very little upkeep (no sanding, staining or painting) and are guaranteed to last twice as long as the average wood deck.

REINFORCE WITH RAILING

In addition to style, railing adds security and support to a deck. In fact, railing is a building code requirement if your finished study on the impacts of oversized vehicles and trailers parked on city streets in the wake of complaints community-wide including in the Smoky Hollow area. City Manager Greg Carpenter said residents and businesses will be surveyed for input on the matter and the results will come back to the Council to discuss possible regulation to limit or prohibit such parking.

Speaking of parking, Fuentes pulled a consent agenda item regarding renewal of the City’s lease with Edison to continue maintaining and operating property along Washington between Walnut and Maple and along Illinois between Mariposa and Holly as park space. Though the Council ultimately approved the item, the City may in the near future renegotiate the deal in order to provide new parking spots for nearby employees who currently still leave their cars on residential streets. The Council on several occasions instituted permit parking restrictions for various blocks in the area, but problems continue as employees simply move to the next available street. With help from the Economic Development Advisory Council, the City approached Edison about the concept of leasing some of the land to a major property owner. Edison was open to the idea. The City is now waiting to hear back from Kilroy (the largest adjacent commercial property owner) to see if the latter wishes to enter into a deal that could provide about 70 new spaces. Residents will also weigh in on whether they prefer to keep the green space or ease parking concerns.

City Treasurer Crista Binder and Deputy Treasurer II Dino Marsocci presented their quarterly investment portfolio report. Total portfolio value currently stands at $64.5 million (with $37 million in short term and the rest in long term). Short-term yield is at 0.55%, with long-term yield at 1.31%. The City is also in compliance with its investment policy, recently updated to provide constraints so the portfolio is not overly heavy in a particular security or asset class.

Thanks to a slight rate uptick, the City purchased almost $1 million in CDs and nearly $5 million in bonds the first quarter of the year. Since March 31, it picked up another CD for $245,000 and a bond for $500,000. However, bond rates remain sluggish with minimal movement limiting opportunities to obtain additional yield. Treasury rates are still 30 basis points under December 2015 numbers for the five-year bond. Economic indicators show unemployment down despite weak job numbers just announced, but gross domestic product and inflation running below Federal Reserve ideal projections. The Fed meets next week, but the reported likelihood of another increase right now is low.

Presentations included the introduction of new Chevron Plant Manager Henry Kusch, who recently returned to the refinery (where he had worked from 1990 to the mid-2000s) after a stint on the Nigerian Delta. He just bought a house in town and said he is “happy to be back in El Segundo.” Also, Senior Librarian Julie Todd provided details on this Sunday’s Author Fair (covered in the May 26 Herald) as well as the new Adult Summer Reading Program which will have a kick-off tea event on June 25 from 11 to 1 featuring Penguin Random House. Meanwhile, registration for the youth Summer Reading Program (with the theme “Read for the Win”) begins today, June 9, at 9 a.m. with a kick-off party June 14 at Library Park at 11 a.m. The free program usually draws over 800 kids.

During reports, Carpenter introduced the City’s new Revenue Manager Juliana Demers. Her role includes projecting and tracking revenues, overseeing the business license process and finding creative ways to generate monies. He also reported that four members of the El Segundo Fire Department worked a 12-hour shift to help contain a major fire in Calabasas last weekend. Carpenter went on to recognize El Segundo Police Officers Tom Jones, Luke Muir and Eric Atkinson who freed an elderly woman pinned underneath a car that struck her early last month at the 99 Cents Store. The trio earned Distinguished Service Awards from the South Bay Police and Fire Memorial Association for their actions.

City Attorney Mark Hensley said an independent hearing officer quickly resolved the dispute between the Richmond Street project contractor and the electrical subcontractor that had held up construction. He added that a Supreme Court ruling on sign ordinances may affect how the City can regulate signage in the future.

Mayor Pro Tem Drew Boyles reported that he met with Steve Napolitano (Senior Deputy for County Supervisor Don Knabe) about potential grant monies to cover the hefty costs (in the ballpark of $750,000) of new plumbing for the bathrooms at El Segundo Beach. Though nothing is officially in the works, Boyles was hopeful because the City “didn’t get a no.” •

RBI single. Bonham had another two-run double and Smith hit a long fly ball for a sacrifice fly scoring Bonham to make it 7-2. Conrad Bernstein took over for Smith on the mound and with the help of a double play that helped end the Athletics threat.

Smith picked up the win throwing five innings, giving up two runs, four hits and struck out six. Lucas Bonham was 3-for-4 with two doubles and four RBIs. Conrad Bernstein had three hits while Landon Davis had two hits and scored twice to pace the Cardinals.

12-year-old Connor Smith was this year’s Home Run Derby champion. There were twenty different players with home runs this season and each participated in the derby. Smith outhit all of them including second place finisher 11-year old Xavier Rice, of the Orioles, to claim this year’s trophy.

League president Peter Gianusso, stood in front of a packed crowd and helped the community understand just how precious life can be. He told the large crowd of parents, players and friends how our small tight-knit community had embraced and supported the families of Ike Mahoney and Bill Klug in the aftermath of both men tragically taken from their families. Gianusso said, “We are family. Part of what makes El Segundo Little League great is that we are an extended family. Now, more than ever, is the time to show what that means. Tonight hug your children before you put them down for bed and tell them you love them.” He said that in an instant life changing events could happen take anyone of us.

During a moment of silence for both Ike and Bill the flags were raised by the El Segundo fire department while members of the El Segundo police department stood at attention. The flags were lowered to half-staff in a memorial tribute to Ike Mahoney, who volunteered his time to his son’s single-A division Cubs, and to Bill Klug who assisted with his son’s AAA Padres team.

Gianusso, who said this would be his final season as league president (he is moving to New Jersey), thanked the crowd for their support and then introduced the 23 12 year olds graduating from the El Segundo Little League.

South Bay All Star Games

The South Bay All-Star games featuring some of the top senior baseball players and senior softball players in the South Bay will once again convene here at the El Segundo Rec Park softball field and Stevenson Field. The 24th annual South Bay Athletic Club Softball All-Star Classic was played last night and the Eagles were well represented with Alyssa Pelegrin and Julie Roach playing for the Red Team and Nayeli Diaz, Allison Tatnal and Megan Truesdale playing for the Blue squad. El Segundo head coach Keith Cameron was selected to coach one of the teams.

The 47th annual South Bay Athletic Club Baseball All-Star Classic is Friday night at 7 p.m. It will bring together some of the South Bay’s top players who have signed a letter of intent to play at the collegiate level, selected in the Major League amateur draft or are still weighing their options. This is an opportunity to see some of the South Bay’s best play against each other; El Segundo’s Albert Galicia has been named to the Blue Team.

Tickets are $10, $5 with ASB and children 7 and under are free. 100 percent of the proceeds benefit the South Bay Athletic Club sponsoring the games which also provides a banquet luncheon honoring the South Bay’s best in both sports. Come out and watch some great baseball at an affordable price rather than fighting the Harbor Freeway getting to Chavez Ravine. •

Closing Ceremonies

League president Peter Gianusso, stood in front of a packed crowd and helped the community understand just how precious life can be.
