Local Artist Brings Harmony, Peace and Wellness to El Segundo

Rhonna del Rio combines her skill in architecture with her passion for painting to create works of healing. For Rhonna's story, see yellow box below.

Dale Snowberger is not Ready to Ride-Off into the Sunset

By Duane Plank

El Segundo resident Dale Snowberger is gearing up to celebrate his 70th birthday on August 16. So, is Snowberger going to sit back on a porch rocking chair, gaze out indolently at the comings and goings in his neighborhood, incessantly check his mailbox, and await the arrival of his next Social Security check?

Nope.

Because August 16 falls on a Monday this year and happens to coincide with one of Snowberger's off-work days, who knows how he will celebrate his first day as a septuagenarian? But you can bet he will not be lollygagging around.

During our phone interview, the owner of the El Segundo Tonsorial Parlor, located on the west side of Grand Avenue, under the Grand Hotel, said that his two daughters, Christin, and Meghan, had been planning a surprise birthday party to mark the occasion. But with the advent of stricter COVID-19 mandates and the uncertainty of holding celebratory gatherings, it looks like his upcoming birthday will be noted with the sitting for a family portrait and a catered dinner.

If his birthday had fallen on a Tuesday thru Saturday, there is a good possibility he would have spent the day cutting and styling hair. Even as he approaches seventy, Snowberger said that he has no intention of retiring.

Asked how long he might continue working, he said, "until they tell me to step away from the chair." He mentioned that at the advent of the COVID lockdown 17 months or so ago, and subsequent shuttering of his business, he looked at it as an opportunity to take a long-deserved vacation.

But as the lockdown stretched into a second and third month, Snowberger said that he realized how much he missed the daily interaction with his clients. He said that his first thought was that he missed the social aspect of hair-cutting and then concluded that "I also miss (the clients) money!"

So, what is a "Tonsorial Parlor?" One definition: "A tonsorial parlor is an inner sanctum where a man can receive the highest level of barbering services in a setting that compliments this ancient art. ... Barbers of former times were also surgeons and dentist, called barber/surgeons." And, yes, women too can have their styled inside the "sanctum" of the Tonsorial Parlor.

So, what is Snowberger's back-story? He grew up hunting and fishing and schooling in rural Ohio. His brother, Ronald, who was 17 years older than Dale, somehow ended

Healing Through Art in the City of El Segundo

By Kiersten Vannest

Adorning the walls of beloved local spots along Main Street and inside many residents' homes, you may notice a distinct art style, one with the exactness of a right angle mixed with emotional curves, usually depicting a woman. These pieces are the work of El Segundo resident Rhonna del Rio, and this is her journey from a highly successful architecture career into one of imperfection and self-expression.

From a young age, del Rio found herself drawn to architecture. Her dad was an architect, and she aspired to do what he did. As a petite woman with few female architects as role models, del Rio found it difficult to picture herself in her father's role. It took encouragement from her sister, who bought her a book on architecture, and belief in herself to kickstart her career.

"In the summer of eighth grade...I remember every Sunday, I would pick up the newspaper and go straight to the real estate pages and copy all the elevations and all the floor plans," says del Rio, explaining that she still has this personal project to this day. From there, her creativity blossomed. She began creating her own floor plans and designing her own rooms and buildings.

After graduating in the top four of her class in college, she jumped straight into

Matthew Paul Blackstock

Matthew Paul Blackstock of El Segundo, Phoenix AZ, Reno, NV, entered into eternal life on July 26, 2021 at the young age of 45. He was born April 4, 1976 at Little Company of Mary in Torrance. He was the first born child to Michael and Alice Blackstock but the 20th child to the two of them combined. Matthew is survived by 8 brothers and 12 sisters. He was preceded in death by his parents Michael and Alice and his brothers Bill Blackstock (ES) and Bob Blackstock (ES) both of Phoenix AZ.

Matt attended his early elementary years in Reno, then back to ES where he attended St. Anthony's and ES High School. He later moved to Phoenix AZ to work construction with his brothers Tim and Bob. Matthew never married so of course got to be everyone's favorite Uncle Matty Poo to over 75 nieces and nephews and COUNTLESS greats! Matthew had the heart of a lion or of Wolverine! He is going to be missed greatly and is now in perfection with his Lord and Savior! •

Richard Upton

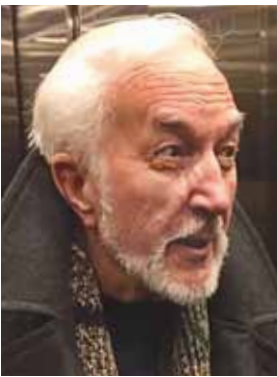

George Richard "Dick" Upton, age 87 passed away at his home on July 29, 2021. Richard was born in August 1933 in Flint Michigan to parents George and Hazel Upton. Married to wife Frankie for over 63 years, the love of his life. Richard attended Venice High School where he excelled at music, basketball and baseball. After a brief baseball scholarship to LMU, Richard joined the U.S. Army and was eventually stationed at Ladd AFB, Fairbanks Alaska, 9th Army band. After completing his military commitment he married Frances, and worked at the Bank of America in Culver City. Soon he went back to school and graduated with degrees in music and teaching. Richard worked as the music instructor in the Wiseburn School District for 29 years. Richard loved his wife Frankie, sons Kip and Jim, Daughter in law Lynn, grandsons

Tracy and Chris. Additionally, Richard was a noted scholar on the American West. Focused on Fort Custer and The Battle of the Little Big Horn, he wrote and published many books with his company, Upton and Son's. Richard was a professional musician (trumpet), Senior softball world series champion, and Detroit Tiger fan. Good natured, positive outlook, and a great sense of humor were some of Richards notable characteristics. Up to the end Richard would comment, "the death of an old man is not a tragedy." Richard is survived by his wife Frances, son Kip, and grandsons Tracy and Chris. Predeceased by son Jim and parents George and Hazel. A Promotion to Glory service will be held on Saturday, August 21, 2021 at 10:00 AM at the Long Beach Salvation Army. An Additional service to be held in Montana, date TBD. "What an adventure." •

James (Jim) Leo Norris

James (Jim) Leo Norris passed away in Jackson, California on June 3, 2021 at the age of 90. Jim was born on July 7, 1930 in Salt Lake City, Utah, to Leo and Erma (Davis) Norris. His family moved to El Segundo, California at the beginning of WWII and he attended El Segundo High School (ESHS) where he was 1948's Student Body President and a guard on the water polo team. In 1947, the ESHS team won the first CIF Championship and went on to the Pan American Games in Buenos Aires in 1948 and then the 1952 Helsinki Olympics, where Jim served as team captain. ESHS was also where he met his high school sweetheart, Lynne (Oldmen), whom he married on April 6, 1951. Jim was awarded a four-year Navy ROTC Scholarship to the University of Southern California, studying zoology. After graduating with his BS from USC, Jim spent three years as a gunnery officer and athletic director on the USS Los Angeles in the US Navy and served in the Korean War. Upon his retirement from service, Jim got his teaching credential at UCLA, taught at several South Bay high schools, and got his Master's in Counseling at CSU Los Angeles. He was a counselor at El Camino College in Torrance and a recurrent LA County Lifeguard; he resided in Manhattan Beach for 35 years. His sense of adventure and wanderlust then led him to move to the Santa Ynez Valley (Santa Barbara County), where he lived for 35 years, becoming a renowned local historian and Westerners member with a specific interest in California Missions and the fur trade. He was an avid reader and researcher and he and Lynne published over 60 books under the publishing company, The Olive Press. Jim moved in 2008 to the historic Gold Rush city of Jackson, CA, where he lived out his days reading, researching, teaching his family about local flora and fauna, and volunteering at the local archive and museum. He was a lifelong learner and devoted friend to many. He and Lynne celebrated their 70-year wedding anniversary earlier this year. Jim is survived by his four children, Michael (Kathy), John, Jeanie (John), and Jane Suzanne (Steve), his eight grandchildren, Alyssa, Aaron, Jason, Austin, Kenda, Paul, Andre, and Neal, and his siblings Richard, David, and Kitty. He was preceded in death by his parents and his sister, Mary. A celebration of life and final paddle toward the Green Flash will be held at a later date. Donations may be made to the Surfrider Foundation in James Norris' name. •

An Overview of Portal Schools

By Don Brann

Last September, in my fifth column, "Schools of El Segundo," I focused on the growing number of high schools in this City. I noted that in the last fifteen years, high school options had increased from two (both ESUSD) to seven. Four of the "new" high schools are charters (see the column in 9/17/2020 Herald) opened by the independent Da Vinci Schools Board and authorized by Wiseburn Unified School District (the majority of Wiseburn's territory is in the City of El Segundo, although there are no residents allowed east of Pacific Coast Highway). The seventh high school option in El Segundo is a private or independent high school named Vistamar. Beginning in the 2021-22 school year (this August), the eighth high school option is opening in El Segundo. Portal Schools, a new non-profit independent high school, will open its doors to a founding 9th-grade class. Portal's model presents a new opportunity for students and families, as it is quite different than the other high schools in the neighborhood. As a private school, Portal families will pay a modest tuition, which varies by scholarship and need.

Herald Made Error on Error

Please allow me — a proud grandparent of one of the El Segundo Little League all-stars who captured the Southern California championship Aug. 2 — to offer a small correction to the El Segundo Herald's otherwise much-appreciated coverage last week of their incredible achievement. The game-winning, title-winning, two-run rally in the Aug. 2 final versus Sherman Oaks was started by a lead-off single by my grandson, Logan Meyer. Your article incorrectly said he got on base because of a throwing error. This sounds

Portal Schools' first site will be embedded within Belkin International, the leading global technology company that recently announced its move to El Segundo. Portal plans to add additional sites around greater Los Angeles in the coming years, all situated on corporate partner sites across a range of sectors. Each individual site will be a micro-school comprised of 60 or fewer students. Through this model, Portal students will benefit from small campuses with a high degree of personalization and leverage the larger network of campuses and corporate partners. Portal's model offers several advantages to students, which include student voice and choice, intentionally diverse student community with small cohorts, early college model, completing high school and college coursework simultaneously, career-immersed learning, including mentorship and internships and flexible schedule designed to meet a family's need. With amazing high school options in El Segundo, Portal adds to family choice and offers an untraditional experience for those seeking a connection between high school, college, and career. trivial, I know, but please realize Logan, as one of two 9-year-olds on the team, was a reserve and limited to one precious at-bat per game. Coming through with a solid single in such a pressure-packed situation was, as they say, awesome. As Logan progresses through life, some day he may want to look back on that moment and see how it was recorded for posterity in the local newspaper. It is with that in mind that I offer this account and hope he finds it — either in your paper or in his scrapbook — when that time comes. Thanks. — Gary Meyer •

Last Day for Hyperion Reimbursement Program

LA Sanitation updated its webpage at laci-tysan.org to officially announce that it extended the deadline for the Hyperion reimbursement program to Thursday, August 12. The extension allows participants to make purchases and finalize hotel stays by August 12. For those who selected the hotel reimbursement option, the extension allows you to check out the morning of August 13, 2021. The updated webpage also clarifies that the $182 nightly limit for hotel stays is exclusive of tax per federal GSA per diem standards. For those who are unsure if they've received approval of their applications, LASAN encourages participants to look for an email with the subject line "Hyperion Reimbursement." This email should have a blue box with a link to the reimbursement form and the email serves as your approval letter. Please note when submitting receipts and documentation on LSAN's secure online form that all documents should be loaded at once to avoid reimbursement delays. Call the 24-hour Customer Care Center to answer any of your questions at 1-800-773-2489 or go to the City of El Segundo's website for more extensive information and links.

Free Memory Loss, Dementia and Alzheimer's Support Groups

Maybe you've noticed a decline in your memory that is concerning. Maybe an actual diagnosis for yourself or a loved one. Either way, this discovery can be daunting. As questions abound, one of the best first steps may be to engage with others with similar experiences. At Family Connect Memory Care we call this Memory, Coffee & Compassion, a free community gathering of support, tips, and authenticity — a place where everyone can feel at ease and welcomed. Our group includes those in mild stages, or those caring for a loved one with dementia, Alzheimer's, Parkinson's, or other forms of cognitive decline. Join us in-person on the 2nd & 4th Wednesday of each month, at 10:00am, at the Peninsula Library, or online on the 1st & 3rd Wednesdays, from 10:00-11:30am PST. Lars Nootbaar Flying High for St. Louis Cardinals

By Gregg McMullin

El Segundo has had its fair share of professional athletes attend El Segundo high school over the years. We’ve had an NHL player, a couple of NFL players and General Manager, and a couple of professional basketball players. But the sport El Segundo is most famous for is its contribution to baseball at the professional level. Whether playing in an Independent League or on a Major League affiliate roster, our town has sent over 50 players to the professional level.

Eight former Eagles have played or coached in the Major Leagues, including George Myatt (player 1938- 1947 and coach 1950-1974), Kemer Brett (1967-1981), Bobby Floyd (player 1968-1974 and coach 2001-2004), George Brett (1973-1993), Scott McGregor (1974-1986), Zak Shinall (1993) and Billy Traber (2003-2009).

You can add Lars Nootbaar to that list now. The 2015 graduate was selected in the eighth round of the MLB amateur draft by the St. Louis Cardinals. His meteoric rise through the minor league system made him St Louis’ first 2018 drafted player to make an appearance in a Major League game, and that took place on June 22.

Nootbaar has always been a gifted baseball player who has always played the game the same way. He led his Little League All-Star team to its best-ever finish and was within one game of leading that team to the Western Regional in San Bernardino. He led his Babe Ruth All-Star team to a third-place finish in the World Series and won the batting title as a 14-year-old. And, he was named to the All-State baseball team as a senior in high school. Then he played three years at USC, where he won more accolades.

Nootbaar’s name has been a topic of discussion from St. Louis fans wanting to get a glimpse of the young 23 years old and who Lars’ very first hit was this T-Ball single. turns 24 in September. He was promoted to the Cardinal’s Triple-A affiliate before the season after missing out on last season altogether because of the Covid shutdown. He was one of a select number of non-roster players who were invited to spring training with the parent team. He impressed with his work ethic, athletic ability, and performance in spring training games. He was added to the team’s Alternate Training Site or more commonly known as the taxi squad, to start the season.

For Lars, this is his third full year of pro ball, and he says the difference between A-ball and AA-Ball is the talent gets better. He says he learned a lot his first year when he was sent to State College, PA, to play in the New York-Pennsylvania League to play for the Spikes. His next season, in 2019, he was on the move playing for the Peoria Chiefs of the Midwest League, then on to the Palm Beach Cardinals of the Florida State League. Before the Palm Beach Cardinals’ season ended, Lars was promoted to the AA Springfield Cardinals, where he continued his success as an outfielder hitting .270.

“When you’re playing baseball or any sport for that matter, it’s all in how you handle adversity between the ears,” he says.

Being invited to the Major League spring training camp was something Lars says, it was a pleasant surprise after sitting out all of the 2020 season. “When Covid canceled our season last year, I got a job that humbled me and made me miss baseball even more. So, I worked out when I could so I would be ready when we’d start up.”

When Lars first walked into the locker room at the Spring Training facility at Roger Dean Chevrolet Stadium in Jupiter, Florida, he says he tried to play down his emotions. “On the outside, it was like business as usual. Inside I had some nervousness, but I kept telling myself I belonged here, and it’s the same game I’ve always played.” With the iconic Cardinals logo sprayed across the chest and the number 91 on the back, with his last name above the digits, the anxieties went away when he saw his uniform hanging in his locker.

When spring training camp broke, and the Cardinals were headed to St. Louis, it was then that Lars was notified he would be one of three outfielders on the Alternate Site roster. This roster included 13 pitchers, two catchers, three infielders, and the outfielders they would work out in the mornings at an alternate field site. Lars said that he was fortunate to attend Opening Day at Busch Stadium and admits to having some goosebumps. “I’d never been to an Opening Day, so it was pretty special.

Lars started the season at Memphis, the Cardinals Triple-A affiliate. Regarded as having one of the organization’s top outfield arms, Lars was off to a great start with his bat leading the team with a .329 batting average. He said he got a call from his manager Ben Johnson, informing him he was being promoted to the Major League team. Then he received a phone call from Mike Girsch, the General Manager of the Cardinals, giving Lars the news every ballplayer dreams of getting.

Lars said, “I was surprised at first, and when the shock wore off, I had to tell my mom and dad, but they were celebrating their Thirtieth Anniversary in Tahiti.” He continued, “The next person I thought of was my brother, and we Face-Time the call.” Lars says he had an emotional exchange with his brother, Nigel. He said, “Nigel led the way for me to be here. He was the person I always looked up to; he was my hero growing up.”

Walking into a Major League locker room can be a bit intimidating for a young rookie. Lars said he felt some anxieties but said he’d already made friends with most of the Major Leaguers during spring training. “They were all very nice and made me feel like I belonged,”Lars said any trepidation quickly went away when he got to his locker. “I thought that some of my teammates are future Hall of Famers, and we all have the same job to do.”

Lars says he’s been asked about the number 68 he was given and said he had nothing to do about getting that number. He says his friend, Mike Bundy, wore number 6, and he wore number 8 in high school, but that’s as close to any relevance to the number as he could come up with. “It’s my favorite number now, though.”

Lars has had plenty of support from the veterans on the team during Spring Training and during his call up. “Tommy Edmunds, Dylan Carlson, Yadi (Molina), Goldie (Paul Goldschmidt), and Nolan (Arenado) have all helped me.”

Lars got his first Major League start against the Detroit Tigers at Comerica Park in Detroit. Though his parents couldn’t get a flight to Detroit, his brother Nigel and his sister Nicole and friends, including Lars’ longtime girlfriend Susana Kalish, Max Mendoza, Jake Palmer, Toni (Jake’s girlfriend), Linnea Palmer and Ollie Linton (Lars’ agent) were there to see history.

Before his first at bat, he said he was getting advice from some of the veterans like future Hall of Famers Yadier Molina and Nolan Arenado. The home plate umpire for the game is another future Hall of Famer, Joe “Cowboy” West. He has been umpiring for

McCaverty Selected to Represent the Pacific Region for Second Time

Marilyn McCaverty, age 12, was selected to represent the Pacific Region once again at the annual 12u USA Softball All-American Games in Oklahoma City (where the NCAA Softball World Series is held). Designation to a USA Softball All-American team is the highest honor a player can receive and instantly brands the player as one of the top athletes in the United States. Over 200 girls from all over Southern California tried out for only 15 spots. This will be Marilyn’s second time participating having also made the team last year. The event will feature many of the best female softball athletes in the 12u division from across the United States. The tournament also includes a meet and great with members of Team USA coming off their silver medal performance at the 2021 Olympic Games in Tokyo. Marilyn is an alumnus of El Segundo Girls Softball and currently plays for a highly ranked travel ball team under the Firecrackers organization where her team finished in the top 16 at the Alliance National Fastpitch Championship Series. The event will be livestreamed at www.usasoftballallamericangames.com •

Twice as nice: Marilyn McCaverty last year and this year.

How Beautiful We Were by Imbolo Mbue

By Library Clerk Mary Martes

There are times as a reader you begin a book and it grabs you by the throat. It is a magical experience to be drawn in by those first flawless sentences. How Beautiful We Were by Imbolo Mbue is one of these. “We should have known the end was near. How could we not have known?” So commences a journey of heartbreak, joy, pain and suffering, courage, rebellion, triumph, resilience, acceptance, love and death.

How Beautiful We Were by Imbolo Mbue.

Set in the fictional village of Kosawa in Africa during the 1980's, the population is devastated by the environmental effects of oil drilling by a foreign corporation welcomed by the governing body in return for monetary riches. This small, remote community is kept alive through the faith and belief of its members. Ancestral legend describes them as the sons and daughters of the leopard, descendants of a fierce warrior tribe. But this is not a foe to be vanquished by physical battle. “The sky began to pour acid and rivers turned green. We began to wobble and stagger.” The death toll mounts while The Representatives from Pexton, the oil drilling company, keep assuring that all will be well. Of course, it will not.

Shockingly, it is the village madman Konga who confronts The Representatives – The Leader, The Round One and The Sick One -- and a rebellion is born. The events that follow tell the story of the community whose families have lived in Kosawa since ancient times and their struggle to remain. This is their home and they refuse to leave. Everyone is connected and despite disagreement, they will stand together and fall together.

At once heartbreaking, thrilling, and tense, the saga plays out over generations and decades but feels so immediate. In beautifully written prose, the narrative of various tribe members is woven together to form the whole. At the heart of the community is Thula, a young woman who is bright and determined to do whatever she can to save the village. She becomes the catalyst for the hopes and dreams of the Kosawa tribe in expelling Pexton, forcing them to clean up their mess and restoring the land and river to the people.

Although it is set in the 1980's, this is a lesson for today in the fight against corporate malfeasance and political corruption. Detailing the environmental effects and resulting health issues of drilling for oil, careless of the destruction wrought upon people and the earth, this novel enlightens the reader to the devastating personal consequences of greed.

Imolo Mbue is a native of Cameroon and has a PEN/Faulkner Award for Fiction for her New York Times bestseller Behold the Dreamers.

Homeroom: Capturing College and Covid-19 Anxiety

By Morgan Rojas for Cinemacy

2020 was a challenging year for all of us but it was especially hard for high school seniors as the expectations of lavish graduation parties, prom dresses, and college-bound dreams were dashed in a matter of days. From director Peter Nicks and produced by Ryan Coogler, Homeroom - premiering on Hulu on August 12th - follows the 2019-2020 class of Oakland High School seniors as they attempt to create systemic change and leave a lasting legacy in their hometown while adjusting to life in a pandemic.

Homeroom feels very much like A24's Boys State in the way it captures intimate and vulnerable moments from impressionable and impassioned teenagers. Sticking to his signature style of vérité filmmaking, Nicks observes a handful of students as they prepare to submit college applications, sit through mundane history lectures, attend various club meetings, and rehearse for the school play.

The documentary begins in the fall of 2019, pre-pandemic, when the biggest topic of conversation is the ethics of policing in schools. Students want to defund the police, citing that implicit bias sparks unnecessary fear, especially in predominately black and brown schools like theirs. Their arguments are articulate and strong, appealing to city council members and school board members alike.

The film takes a turn with the introduction of COVID-19 in early March 2020, picking up a sense of urgency that differs from the more structured first Act. As Homeroom shows, the seniors of today are highly adaptable, goal-oriented, and inspired teenagers. They use their iPhones not just to create TikTok videos, but also to catch up on the latest from ex-President Trump's first impeachment trial. They're paying attention. They don't fear speaking up to authority figures; instead, they see teachers and faculty as their allies who share a common goal of unifying the school district in harmony.

From the everyday pressures of high school life to the unexpected introduction of COVID-19, Nicks lets the action and drama unfold onscreen without provocation, capturing a year's worth of trauma that is uncomfortable to relive. The murders of George Floyd and Breonna Taylor, “murder hornets,” and the racially-charged murder of Bay area teenager Nia Wilson are just some of the devastating events that this class has had to navigate through.

Homeroom proves that the youth have the power, and fostering safe environments for them to grow and learn will be key in creating tomorrow's leaders. On a personal yet somber note, the film is dedicated to Karina Nicks, Peter's 16-year-old daughter who died suddenly in September 2019. As the final installment to Nicks' three-part trilogy of character-driven social issue films, Homeroom is a gratifying and inspiring ending to this chapter on Oakland, CA. •

Tips For Coping With Heartburn

(BPT) - If you’ve ever experienced heartburn, you know why it’s called that - you feel a burning sensation in your throat and upper chest, and even a bad taste in your mouth. While heartburn can have many triggers and causes, it is essentially due to the backward flow of acid, called acid reflux, when the muscles controlling the flow between the esophagus and stomach don’t close completely.

Heartburn can be very unpleasant, but fortunately there are simple things you can do to help prevent heartburn symptoms - and relieve them when they arise.

“Start by just taking note of when you experience your heartburn symptoms,” said board-certified gastroenterologist, internist and wellness expert Dr. Roshini Raj. “That can help you figure out the best ways to prevent it from recurring.”

Raj recommends keeping a simple diary or keeping track (in your phone or calendar) of when and what you eat for a few weeks, and what times of day you have heartburn symptoms. This can help you figure out which of the following strategies will be the most effective.

Notice Post-Meal or After-Snack Heartburn?

Some foods and drinks have been known to trigger episodes of heartburn, such as:

- Spicy, fried or fatty foods
- Garlic and onions
- Acidic foods such as citrus fruit/juice or tomatoes/tomato products
- Chocolate
- Coffee, tea, alcohol, carbonated beverages

If you notice that you often have heartburn after eating or drinking one of these common triggers, try eliminating it from your diet for a while to see if you notice a difference, then re-introduce it and observe if your symptoms return. Then you’ll know what your personal heartburn trigger is.

In other cases, how you eat can be just as much the culprit as what you eat.

“Slowing down while you eat, and eating smaller meals more frequently, can help prevent symptoms from flaring up,” said Raj. “Avoid getting overfull to help reduce heartburn.”

Feeling the Burn After Intense Exercise?

“Exercise and keeping your weight at healthy levels are actually great lifestyle practices overall for heartburn prevention,” said Raj. “But if you exercise too soon after a large meal, you could be experiencing acid reflux due to that timing.”

Eat lightly before any vigorous exercise session, or wait longer after a meal before exerting yourself more than going for a walk. Exercises involving bending over or lying down, in particular, can provoke heartburn symptoms if you do them too soon after eating.

Heartburn at Bedtime?

Close to bedtime, your body slows down its processes in preparation for sleep, including digestion processes.

“Eating too close to bedtime can produce heartburn,” said Raj. “Try not eating - not even snacks - for a few hours before bedtime and see if that alleviates your symptoms.”

Another cause for heartburn at bedtime is simple gravity: When you’re standing or sitting, acid from foods you’ve eaten tends to stay down in your stomach. But when

The Right Advisor Can Boost Your Financial Health

(BPT) - Many people have reexamined their finances since the pandemic. While some are itching to dine out and travel again, others are looking to invest in their future. According to a recent survey, Americans’ top financial goals include boosting their savings, planning for retirement and paying off debt.

To reach these and other goals, people often look for an advisor to help manage their money. However, there are many different types of financial professionals to choose from, so it’s important to know what makes the right financial professional stand out.

“Americans often share more with their financial advisors than they do their doctors,” says Geoffrey Brown, CEO of the National Association of Personal Financial Advisors (NAPFA). “So, it’s important they have someone they can trust and who will always put their best interests first.”

Qualities to look for in a financial advisor

Selecting an advisor is one of the most important life decisions you’ll make. When looking for the right qualities, you want your advisor to be:

1. A Fee-Only Financial Advisor

When selecting a financial advisor, it’s important to understand how they are compensated. Fee-Only, fiduciary financial advisors are paid directly by their clients for advice. The advisor does not receive commissions or remuneration from third parties, meaning they’re not going to sell you financial products that can rack up expensive fees and make you lose money. Instead, their compensation is based on an hourly rate, a percent of assets under management, a flat fee or a retainer.

Commission-based financial professionals, on the other hand, may recommend investments with higher fees, riskier features and lower returns because they earn more money for the advisor, even if those investments are not the best choice for their clients. Because of the conflicts of interest inherent in these transactions, these advisors may have difficulty putting their client’s interest above their own.

“Before you select a financial advisor, always ask them how they’re compensated to help you understand the nature of the relationship. If they give you anything other than a straight answer, you should continue your search,” says Brown.

2. A Fiduciary

“Fiduciary” is one of the key attributes you should look for when searching for an advisor. Financial advisors held to a fiduciary standard are required to act within your best interest, meaning they must:

- Disclose any conflict, or potential conflict, to their clients before and during the advisory engagement
- Adopt a code of ethics
- Explain their fee structure

While finding an advisor that adheres to a fiduciary standard is important, some use the term loosely, which can make it hard to decipher who is a legitimate fiduciary. NAPFA has a tool that can help you research and find Fee-Only, fiduciary advisors that are a good fit for you. “As consumers of financial services, we all owe it to ourselves to remain

Southwestern Chicken Salad

Provided by Campbell Soup Company

This refreshing salad is especially quick and easy because the chicken is cooked in the microwave. Use the photo as a guide to arranging the ingredients, and you’ll have a dish that tastes and looks as good as what you get in a restaurant.

Ingredients

- 1 pound skinless, boneless chicken breast halves, cut into 1-inch cubes
- 3 teaspoons taco seasoning mix
- 3 tablespoons lime juice
- 1 head romaine lettuce, cut into strips
- 1 large green or red bell pepper, chopped (about 1 cup)
- 1 large ripe avocado, pitted, peeled and sliced (about 1 cup)
- 1 large tomato, cut into wedges
- 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese (about 4 ounces)
- 1/2 cup light sour cream
- 1/2 cup Pace® Chunky Salsa

Directions

- Step 1: Place chicken into an 8 x 8 x 2-inch microwave-safe baking dish. Sprinkle the chicken with the taco seasoning and toss to coat. Drizzle the chicken with 1 tablespoon lime juice. Cover the dish with microwavable plastic wrap, turning back one corner to vent.
- Step 2: Microwave on HIGH for 4 minutes or until the chicken is cooked through, stirring once halfway through cooking.
- Step 3: Arrange the lettuce on a platter. Top with the chicken, pepper, avocado, tomatoes and cheese. Drizzle the avocado with the remaining lime juice.
- Step 4: Stir the sour cream and salsa in a small bowl. Garnish with additional pepper, if desired. Cover the platter and the sour cream mixture with the plastic wrap and refrigerate for 3 hours. Drizzle the salad with the sour cream mixture before serving.

the field with a large and reputable firm, working for Richard Meier (Meier’s career was catapulted into the mainstream after he designed the Getty Center complex here in Los Angeles).

Del Rio flourished, with credits working on the Eli and Edythe Broad Art Center at UCLA and the Crystal Cathedral in Anaheim. With such early success in the first few years of her career, del Rio began to wonder what would come next.

“The ego gets in the way, but I promised myself that in five years, I’m going to resign,” she says, describing a promise with herself that she wouldn’t get too caught up in the fast-paced industry that could consume her identity if she let it. She kept her promise, and after five years, she resigned and started her own company with an old colleague, designing custom homes. That is, until the 2008 housing crash. Her company came to a halt as the real estate industry slowed. Del

Rio, not one to give up, turned to teaching, sharing her skills with budding designers.

One marriage and a child later, del Rio decided to take off a few years to be a new mom. As the time came for her to jump back into work, she realized her heart was not in the work like it used to be.

“I was so passionate about architecture, and I would live it 24/7, and now, it doesn’t make me come alive,” she realizes. Going through a divorce, raising her daughter, and trying to rediscover herself called for a change to be made.

About six months later, she signed up for a yoga challenge that required all of her attention and focus to meditate, release, and look inward.

“I took the yoga challenge, and then all this different imagery, a different language, very curvy...things came out of me that I was not familiar with, that I avoided because I avoided curves for plans all my life,” she says. She put pencil to paper and began to express these new shapes and feelings. She began by designing on coffee filters, working with the stains to create images.

One day, restless and needing to express herself, she grabbed a drop cloth, some paint, and a roller meant from her interior design work and painted what she was feeling. This was her first piece that was given a bigger stage, using paint. This piece is called Community of the Breath, and it depicts three women, each with three hearts, with a community of other women behind them on the verge of exploding, ready to be empowered. Del Rio says this is how she felt.

“My college friends would come up to me and see [my art] and say, ‘What is going on with you? Where is your architecture? What is this?’ They still struggle, but it’s hard to explain; it feels so good,” she says.

Del Rio considers this process healing. It helped her heal many unaddressed past traumas within herself, helped her heal from her divorce, and helped her to find her passion again. Today, she still practices architecture. However, she also works in a studio here in El Segundo that provides different modalities of healing, from acupuncture to her paintings, called MindSet Collective.

“I feel called, that anybody who sees the art needs to have it somehow... tell me your story, there’s something you’re feeling in the art, you have to have it,” she says, saying she’d rather hear a client’s story before discussing price or size or pickup.

Del Rio has heard many personal stories and connections through her art, including a woman who shared that she used her painting to get through chemo therapy, a woman who felt comforted by the art after a miscarriage, and a man who commissioned a map of El Segundo in the background of his painting for his wife as they moved out of the city so they could always remember it.

“My story,” shares del Rio, “is just about creating harmony, peace, and wellness. My paintings are just switches and triggers for them.” •

A painting commissioned to have ties to El Segundo as a moving away present.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: JOHN GARVAN CAVANAGH CASE NO. 21STPB07409

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of JOHN GARVAN CAVANAGH. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by SUSAN MICHELLE CAVANAGH in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES. THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that SUSAN MICHELLE CAVANAGH be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 09/03/21 at 8:30AM in Dept. 79 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012 IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk. Attorney for Petitioner TODD J. Dale Snowberger up in Manhattan Beach, plying his trade at his hair salon, Manhattan Fashions, down by the beach.

When Snowberger was twelve, he and his mother took a trip West to visit Ronald. and spent the summer in the South Bay. His brother had secured an apartment in El Segundo for Dale and their mother. Snowberger said that he was quickly hooked on the charms of the beach lifestyle. When he returned to the Buckeye State, Snowberger told all interested that he was moving to California after his high school graduation. And so, he did, landing here on July 12, 1971.

“I remember the first day at the beach in Manhattan,” Snowberger said. “Ike and Tina Turner were listed on the marquee at (the long-gone) Cisco’s Bar, across the street from Panchos. How cool, I thought.”

Snowberger initially planned to attend college in pursuit of an art degree but was sidetracked when he decided to first attend cosmetology school to work in his brother’s salon and earn some Benjamin’s to pay his way through school. He cottoned to the hair salon business, but did end up attending some classes at UCLA, which led him to take on freelance graphics work. That work led to drawing a monthly column for a national magazine, teaching an art class at a middle school, and attempting to syndicate a couple of comic strips.

All these endeavors took place while Snowberger was simultaneously perfecting his hair-styling skills.

In 1974, Snowberger had an opportunity to work at the Tonsorial Parlor, which, at the time, was in Manhattan Beach on Highland Avenue near 33rd Street. “Eventually, I bought the business,” he said, “which was started in 1968, and moved it to El Segundo six-and-half years ago.” Snowberger said it took a couple of years to convert the space under the Grand Avenue Hotel to the hair-cutting salon he had envisioned.

Snowberger calls his shop “a combination hair salon and museum. If you saw my shops Old West décor, you would realize I love the history of the Old West,” he said. “From the tin ceiling to brick and barn wood walls, and photos of the good and bad guys from the Old West, along with all the memorabilia. I am quite proud of it.”

He said that even people who do not need their locks shorn would quickly visit just to “take a look” at the impressive retro décor. This scribe fits into this category, having recently received my every-three-week buzz cut courtesy of my brother. But I did drop into the shop on a Saturday morning to view the impressive array of Old West photos, brickbats, and memorabilia that adorn the walls and shelves.

Snowberger said that, over the years, he had pursued other entrepreneurial business opportunities, including participating in the venture of a coin-op laundry that he owned for 12 years with his brother, teaching martial arts, and acting professionally. He plays the guitar and bluegrass banjo and has participated in numerous road races, from 10K’s to marathons to 50-mile Ultra competitions. He also likes to get out on the road and ride his Harley.

Of his acting career: He is listed by the IMDb film website as receiving credits for acting in three films, including the 2001 Johnny Depp film “Blow,” which been acquainted with Janet for more than 60 years. “She has been my supporter through all my wacky and not wacky adventures,” Snowberger said. Over the years, Snowberger has crossed paths with more than a few locals. One of those would be Fred McCown, who, according to Snowberger, has been a friend funniest guys I ever knew. In speech class, he would sit in the back making stupid faces while I would try to give a speech.

“I would beg the teacher to make him stop,” continued McCown. “He never passes up a chance to make you laugh. His driving skills in high school were a bit suspect,” McCown related. “I have been in many small accidents with him. He liked to get in punching fights while driving. For the last 25 years, we have both spent many hours on the back of a horse. The two of us have been on cattle drives in Colorado and horse drives in the High Sierras. We still ride once a week together. Dale is loyal; He will drop everything to come running when needed. I always considered myself as his frontman. I know his humor so well he would use me to set his jokes up. Most of all, Dale is about the best friend a man could ever have. He will stand by you at all costs.”

Snowberger friend Phil O’Connor was there when Dale and he started the Lawndale Ensemble Theatre. Emailed O’Connor: “In the late 1980s, the city of Lawndale asked if I could look into setting up a community theater group, and Dale was one of the first residents to step forward. He was a major figure in our group effort to stage six productions before we were left without a performance space.

“Along the way, Dale became my barber, and as the years progressed, the barber of my now grown three sons.

“Over the thirty-plus years of our friendship, Dale has revealed himself to be a wonderful actor, musician, and artist. Honest and true with a great sense of humor, Dale has shared tales of his love of the Old West, cattle drives, the banjo, and his treasured family.

“The oft used moniker of ‘Renaissance Man’ seems to fit in Dale’s case: a Renaissance Man with a Big Sky Country twist.”

Said Snowberger: “I’ve been blessed and honored to have friends over the years come by and spend 30 minutes with me every month or so while I cut their hair and catch up on their lives and families, and then they give me money! It’s a good life!”

The local “Renaissance Man” will be celebrating the big 7-0 in the next few days. And that day will mark a 50-year career barbering. Of his career path, Snowberger said that “my summer job became a career. Guess that I should have taken it more seriously - LOL.” • didn’t have anything to do with blow-drying a clients hair and featured the at-the-time located in Manhattan Beach Tonsorial Parlor and its owner, Paul Barile, who was portrayed in the movie, under a different name, by none other than Paul Reubens, aka Pee-Wee Herman.

Back to reality. When not looking for adventure on the pavement atop his Harley, Snowberger has “ridden in a couple of week-long cattle drives,” as well as several other “historical horse rides.” He plans to ride in the Eastern Sierra Rock Creek Pack station horse and mule drive in September, a four-day drive bringing the animals down to Bishop or Lone Pine from the higher elevations in the Mammoth Lakes area for the winter.

When he is not riding the Harley or driving the horses and mules, Snowberger, who moved to El Segundo in 1997 with his wife Janet, helped parent his two daughters through the El Segundo school system. He said that his two daughters, as well as their husbands, still “live and work here.”

Regarding his wife of nearly 40 years, Snowberger called her “my childhood sweetheart and soul mate. Snowberger said he had of his for more than 55 years. The friends still get together whenever possible, and do some horseback riding, typically on Sundays.

Here is what McCown wrote about Snowberger: “Dale was a very good wrestler throughout our school years. Very popular with boys and girls alike. His talents (painting, writing, music, acting) always amazed me. He can sing and play many instruments. We both loved the outdoors (fishing, camping, hiking).

“He is very witty, and he is one of the

you lie down too soon after eating, this can cause a flare up of heartburn. Some people find it helpful to use a wedge-shaped cushion to raise their upper body.

Need Relief at Any Time?

The other good news about heartburn is that you can find quick relief through an effective, over-the-counter medication. New Zantac 360° is an all-in-one heartburn medicine that can help you prevent or relieve heartburn fast. Zantac 360° contains the active ingredient famotidine, and is a clinically proven, safe and effective medicine that’s FDA approved. Famotidine is the number one doctor-recommended over-the-counter H2 blocker - which helps reduce the amount of acid your stomach produces.

“Zantac 360° is approved to both prevent and relieve heartburn,” said Raj. “It can be taken in as little as fifteen minutes before eating or drinking to prevent heartburn, or after your symptoms develop to relieve them.”

Purrrfect Companions

Bill and Ted

Cats can live up to 20 years or more...and very actively at that. So even a cat who is five years old or older still has many years ahead of them. Are you ready to take on a 20-year responsibility? If so, a kitten might be great choice for you. If you aren't, then an adult cat who might be five or 10 may be a better choice. Waiting for adoption are cats and kittens of every age, color and personality. When you adopt, you save a life... and in turn enrich your own.

Bill and Ted are ready to have their "Excellent Adventure" with You. These beautifully coated Abyssinian mixes are as sweet as they are cute! Bill has the most soulful eyes and Ted's big ears will melt your heart. These brothers are always together and playing or looking for someone to cuddle on. Both boys were raised from just weened babies to be comfortable and loving around humans. They also have been around a playful puppy and will probably do well with a calm cat friendly dog. Bill and Ted must stay together.

This wild child was found with her four siblings and mom at a campsite in Ventura. Daisy is the runt of the litter. Previously very feral, she now loves to be picked up and placed somewhere she can be pet. She and her siblings adore each other, so she would love to get a home with one of them. While she is ready for her forever home, Daisy would do best in a quiet setting with someone who will give her some time to adjust to her new home.

Squiggy, Daisy's sister, is a very gentle soul. This little girl is a kitty who kisses your hand and loves to be pet. She is a bit shy, so someone who has experience and patience with shy kitties will be surprised at how fast she will come to be a cuddle bug. It is best if she is placed with one of her siblings.

Jasmin is a special girl who has had a difficult life. She was found in a feral cat colony with an injured leg that the vet believes was a gunshot wound. The nerve damage was so bad that her leg had to be amputated. Luckily, Jasmin had a speedy recovery and is learning to love her tripod life! She certainly has not lost her curiosity and loves spending time birdwatching by the window. She also loves to explore the house and play with toy mice. Unfortunately, due to Jasmin's difficult past, she is very shy and nervous around people.

Daisy

She needs a family who is patient with her struggles and understands that she may never be okay with being pet, held, or cuddled with. She has made progress and grown more comfortable with her foster family but is still afraid of people getting too close to her. She will hang out and play in your vicinity, but will run away or hide if you get too close. On the other hand, Jasmin is a huge fan of cat friends. She feels very comfortable and confident around her foster brother and needs to go to a home with at least one other cat that will be her playmate.

Ambrosia is a beautiful kitten with a heart of gold. She is quietly loving and demure. She is also outgoing and playful. A loving little girl, she is a big fan of sitting on laps and being held. Ambrosia does need to have another kitten or cat in her new home. She can easily get along with your existing cat or she can be paired with her brother or another of her friends at the Adoption Center where she lives. She cannot be an only kitty and is not a fan of dogs. Ambrosia and her brother Dream Bar make an awesome pair and will easily adapt to their new home with you!

Dream Bar is an amazingly loving and playful guy. He must be paired with another kitten or have a cat that will play with him in his new home. Dream Bar is super dreamy and will melt your socks off with his sweetness! He is a fan of belly rubs and cheek scratches as well as flying to catch a wand toy that you are playing with him. Dream Bar's beautiful sister Ambrosia would make a great pair with him. But he can also be the friend your kitty has been waiting for.

These cats and kittens are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org.

Our Adoption Center is temporarily closed. In the meantime, we are still conducting contactless adoptions using all the online tools at our disposal. To virtually browse our adoptable cats, please visit our Adoption Gallery where you can find photos and profiles of all the cats and kittens we have up for adoption from our network of foster homes and from the Sanctuary. At the end of each cat's profile is a link to the email address of the foster parent or adoption counselor, and you may reach out directly with questions or to arrange a virtual meeting.

The donations and support we receive from individuals like you, who share our love and commitment to helping cats and kittens in Los Angeles, are the sole reason we are able to do what we do. We are grateful for your financial help. By making even a small donation today, you can touch the lives of the many deserving, wonderful animals in our care. There are many ways you can donate and help, and every dollar means so much. Kitten Rescue is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit. Your tax-deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 3519 Casitas Ave., Los Angeles, CA 90039.

Saving one animal won't change the world, but the world will surely change for that animal. •
