Protesters Upset About District Cuts Clog the Grounds at School Board Meeting

By Haleemon Anderson

Inglewood Unified School District headquarters were roiled by protests once again, as union representatives commandeered the corner of Inglewood and Kelso, chanting and waving signs calling for an end to cuts and a fair settlement on employee benefits. Inside the meeting, Inglewood School Board members heard staff reports on voter redistricting, the Dashboard accountability systems, and a plan to lease excess real property owned by the District.

District Chief Business Officer Eugenio Villa detailed the parcels of land that include portions at Monroe Middle, Oak Street and Morningside schools. The old Warren Lane site is on the list, as well as a District-owned maintenance facility site at North Edgewood. A property at 107th and Yukon is proposed for lease or sale. The most sweeping recommendation involves leasing Woodworth School entirely and merging that campus's operations with Monroe.

Villa said the measures are being explored as a response to the District's fiscal challenges and declining enrollment. "We are maintaining very large facilities," said Villa. Though sized for 12,000 students, current enrollment is just 8,600.

Board President Carliss McGhee asked if the Old Warren Lane site was in current use. Villa said it houses the Southwest special education program -- a charter school. McGhee took exception to athletic fields being considered for disposal. Odest Riley, an Inglewood native and member of the advisory board, said the recommendations are just that and must go through due process before a final decision is made. The report was received and filed.

Dr. Carmen Beck, chief academic officer, reported on Dashboard and the state accountability system. The data-gathering platform aggregates information on academic achievement, absenteeism and suspension rates, as well as data on specific student populations. Homelessness, mental and physical disabilities and other behavioral traits are also tracked across schools and socioeconomic groups. Beck said two-thirds of the district is eligible to receive resources from the state for differentiated instruction, in the form of guidance and critical partnerships.

A representative from National Demographics Corporation reported on the timeline for resequencing elections. A fourth public hearing is set for March 7. The fifth and final public input will take place the same day, or on March 14 when the resolution is set for adoption. The change will transition elections from at-large to district-based, and bring Inglewood Unified in line with the California Voter Protection Act. The change is also intended to increase voter turnout.

Meanwhile, public comments reflected the unrest outside. Physical education teacher Y. Gurse railed that the proposed lease-off at Morningside would take away several fields and open areas used for P.E. classes.

Union representative Chris Graeber said the District's cost-saving measures will hurt families. A list of cuts, available with the meeting agenda, included decreasing department budgets by 20 percent; capping family medical benefits for management at $9,400; and slashing positions at all levels of operation. "This is not family-oriented," said Graeber. "People are leaving in droves to find health insurance. It's unacceptable that we are the lowest common denominator."

Graeber and other protesters responded to projected cuts for the next school year. A "fact sheet" noted "difficult but necessary concessions" proposed to the Inglewood Teachers Association for the 2018-19 budget. Savings from the concessions were listed at "approximately $4 million."

"We didn't do this," added Graeber, referring to the well-known $8 million shortfall projected by next year. "Your solution is cut and bleed. We are not in a better place."

The chair of the ITA-PAC also spoke to the effects of projected cuts. "Who is to bear the brunt?" he asked, before launching into an impromptu calendar of the District's financial decline that started back in 2008 with declining enrollment. "In 2010, we had the furloughs. In 2012," we took a 25 percent cut in pay. Now in 2018, you propose a 40 percent cut in benefits?"

Abu Ngissah, president of the ITA, said, "Tell the state no to cuts..." She noted that educators are rising up after years of neglect. "Administrators are getting raises year after year."

The Inglewood School Board meets once monthly. The next meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, March 7, at 5:30 p.m. at 401 S. Inglewood Ave., in the Dr. Ernest Shaw Board Room.

Protesters carry signs outside of Inglewood Unified headquarters.

Hawthorne Happenings

News for the City of Good Neighbors from an Old Guy named Norb Huber

THE PLAZA MALL

Okay, so the proposed redevelopment of the very heart of downtown Hawthorne has fallen through. Our crown jewel, the Hawthorne Plaza Mall, has lost its luster and then some. (Kind of like me, but you have heard that one already.) So, where do we go from here? For the good of Hawthorne, the longtime owner needs to sell it off. If he doesn't sell the property outright, the City needs to use whatever means possible to force him to relinquish ownership. But, then what? Do we have any creative ideas for the final solution to this eye-sore of a problem sitting right smack dab in the middle of our city? More housing? That doesn't seem like the answer. Mr. Gabay was approved to build 600 housing units a year ago and that didn't pan out. How about asking Elon what he thinks? He is good at solving the world's problems. Why not ask him to help us solve Hawthorne's problem. I like the idea of a terminal for the Boring Company's traffic solving tunnel system that would whisk commuters to their jobs underground. I like the idea of building a practice facility for both the Rams and the Chargers to use really close to their future home stadium. I'm not so keen on building thousands of small cottages for the LA County homeless population to call home even if we are the city of good neighbors. That would displace all of the feral cats that have called the site home for close to 20 years. Is the site large enough for SpaceX to recover their spent rockets? Then they wouldn't have to transport them very far to recycle them. Maybe a tourist attraction will work. Maybe we should talk to Disney about a park and fly to Disneyland to shuttle tourists there from LAX since parking seems like a problem out in the happiest and most expensive place on earth. Every major city has an extra tall tower or building that people pay $30 a pop to go to the top of to get a 360 degree view of the city. Let's build a tower on the boulevard, at the very least it would keep the LAX jets from flying over our houses in the middle of the night. How about a national aerospace museum on the west coast since the roots of aerospace run deep here? Okay, I will stop. We have to think outside of the box. We should call a meeting over at the LA Ale Works brewery and have some cold ones. There is absolutely nothing that cannot be solved over a cold one or two. Now there is an idea, let's open up the world's largest craft brewery in the world at the mall site. It's wouldn't be Miller

LIFE AND DEATH

Time it could be Hawthorne Time.

We received word this week that two longtime residents of Hawthorne have passed away recently. Eleanor Escalante and Bill Shultz both were very involved in the Hawthorne community. Eleanor was a teacher, principal many friends who will sorely miss him. Both of these fine people were neighbors of mine in the Ramona Tract, the best part of Hawthorne.

HAWTHORNE KIWANIS CLUB SPECIAL GUEST DAY

Want to get involved with your community and help make Hawthorne a better place to live and work? The Kiwanis Club of Hawthorne is having a Special Guest Day luncheon on Friday, March 2nd starting at 12 noon at the Hawthorne Memorial Center. I am an honorary member of this club and I can say that membership is full of fun, service and great comradery with others who share my passion for making Hawthorne better. Interested in attending? Contact Don Harris at 310-293-6580 or hollyglendon@sbcglobal.net. The special luncheon is an invitation to potential members who may wish to join the club.

HAWTHORNE'S "HOMETOWN PANCAKE BREAKFAST"

Mark your calendars. Tell your cell phone to send you a reminder. Make a point to get out of bed early and come on over to the Hawthorne Museum on St. Patrick's Day morning, Saturday, March 17 between the hours of 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. The Hawthorne Historical Society will be holding our 4th Annual Hawthorne Hometown Pancake Breakfast. How much better can it get than hot cakes, bacon, sausage, orange juice and coffee? Bring your friends and family. The price is right, $5 is all that you pay. After having a great breakfast you can enjoy all of those green cold ones in celebration of our Irish heritage. I was wondering the other day why Germans don't have a holiday designated in America to celebrate their lineage. Cinco de Mayo is for Mexican culture, African-Americans have MLKJ Day, there is a Chinese New Year, but I guess the closest thing we have for Germans is the entire month of October being a "fest". I have to admit that cold ones for a month is pretty good. So there, I don't feel so left out. My name, Norbert Huber is pretty Germanic. The German pronunciation of Huber is "Uber". Just don't call me if you need a ride, I'm sure you can understand why, especially if it's October.

"STATE OF THE CITY"LUNCHEON

Mayor Alex Vargas promises to keep his speech shorter than President Trump when he delivers his annual "State of the City" address on Wednesday, March 21st over at the Memorial Center. Tickets to the luncheon are $50 per person and can be obtained by calling the Chamber of Commerce office. — I love to hear from my readers. — email me — norbhuber@gmail.com •

Wiseburn School Board Narrows Search for Superintendent, Contemplates Bond

Bv Duane Plank

Last Thursday evening's 90-minute open meeting of the Wiseburn School Board revolved around the only special presentation on the truncated agenda – discussion of a possible bond measure that could face voters on the June 5 ballot. The presentation came courtesy of representatives of the research firm EMC Research, based in Oakland; and East Shore Consulting, also based in Oakland, which specializes in polling, focus groups and public opinion research consulting.

Prior to the bond presentation, the assembled board members met in closed session to winnow down the number of applicants to take over the Wiseburn Unified School District superintendent reins from Tom Johnstone, who announced his plans to retire at the end of the school year.

Over 40 candidates expressed interest in the position, with 28 applications received. Although the board members Thursday evening did not divulge how many of the applicants made the final cut, the winners will take part in face-to face interviews on the Feb. 23-24 weekend.

EMC Vice President Jessica Polsky and East Shore's Michael Riemenschneider made the 45-minute presentation (and answer session) on the results of a survey they recently completed of likely voters in the district and the feasibility of getting a $39 million school bond passed when the voters go to the polls on June 5.

The telephone/Web hybrid survey conducted Jan. 18-30 included 220 interviews. Among the key findings, respondents have positive opinions of Wiseburn Unified and Da Vinci schools and give the District high ratings. A majority of the respondents trust the District to properly manage tax dollars. Initial support for a bond measure is at 59 percent, which is four points above the 55 percent threshold for passage. High priorities include maintaining STEM classrooms/labs and updating technology, keeping property values strong, and continuing citizen oversight of bond spending.

The survey showed Wiseburn's ratings as very positive, especially regarding the quality of buildings and grounds as well as the quality of education. Seventy-six percent of those polled feel that overall the District is doing an "excellent or good" job.

Riemenschneider, noting the positive responses, posited that now is the time to take advantage of public relations opportunities in spreading the word to voters. Nearly two-thirds of the respondents trust the District to properly manage tax dollars and are willing to tax themselves to maintain top-notch schools, but there is a substantial anti-tax sentiment. Fifty-three percent of those polled strongly or somewhat agree that they are generally opposed to property tax increases, regardless of the reason for the increase.

The proposed measure to provide innovative K-12 classrooms; 21st century technology, upgraded facilities to prepare students for college/careers; new athletic facilities; solar panels to reduce costs; and the ability to continue improving school facilities is on the table. Despite the early 59 percent approval rate for the potential bond, it also has the caveat of lower-propensity voters included in the polling. This means that those respondents answered the poll questions, but might not actually vote.

While younger voters are "highly supportive," less than half of those who are Republicans and voters between 50 and 64 would vote yes on the measure. More than seven in 10 renters said they would support the bond, while parents polled a 71 percent approval rate.

Among the bond components included in the outreach to June 5 voters were to maintain K-12 STEAM classrooms and labs, and to keep schools well-maintained. Those items were deemed top priorities. Providing new athletic fields and solar panels, not so much.

Support for four previous bond measures in Wiseburn was higher than the numbers shown in the current polling. The consultants concluded that while passage of another bond measure appears feasible, it may be more difficult than it has been in the past given the concern that there are already too many taxes. They noted that turnout in a June election may have a significant impact since lower-propensity voters are substantially more supportive of the possible bond measure. An independently funded campaign is recommended to ensure voters understand the benefits of strengthening local schools.

Not much occurred with the rest of the meeting agenda, though the new timeline for Phase 2 of the Wiseburn construction project has been moved down the road to Sept. 12, according to Johnstone. Director of Facilities Planning Vince Madsen emailed, "We are starting to get good traction on the work at the aquatics center now that we have resolved most of the soil challenges on site, which is our Phase 2 project. With all of the challenges we have had in both phases of the project, we are still working within the original budget funds and are working very hard with the design and construction teams to keep us on budget. Even though we have had change orders going to the board monthly, we have not gone over budget yet. The approvals the board have taken action on recently are simply reallocating our already approved contingency funds to our individual trade contractors as needed. I am very proud at where we are with this very unique and challenging high school project and how we have managed the problems as a collaborative team and managed the originally allocated funds. We are not out of the woods on budget yet, but I am still very hopeful that at the end of the day we can keep the overall $160 million cost for this state-of-the-art high school under control and have less than a 1 percent budget increase when we are completed." •

Lakers Muster Magic at Trade Deadline

By Adam Serrao

Just when it looked as if the NBA would have another somewhat quiet day at the trade deadline, an overflow of news poured out across the wire last Thursday. That morning, the Los Angeles Lakers and the Cleveland Cavaliers wasted no time in making improvements to their respective rosters. At approximately 9 a.m., the basketball world was bludgeoned with a series of trades -one of which involved L.A. A blockbuster deal sent reverberating ripples across the league when Isaiah Thomas was traded to the Lakers and Jordan Clarkson along with Larry Nance, Jr. were both whisked away to the Cavs. With that trade alone, Magic Johnson and Los Angeles hit a grand slam home run and accomplished exactly what they needed to get done in order to begin to piece the Lakers back together once again.

Perhaps the biggest thing to understand about the trade that the Lakers made with the Cavaliers last week is that for L.A., it has absolutely nothing to do with this season. Both Thomas and Channing Frye – whom the Lakers also received in the trade – will come off of the books next year. Since Los Angeles is heavily rumored to be in the LeBron James sweepstakes, you can almost certainly bank on the fact that Thomas won't be back in the purple and gold next season after quickly failing to synchronize with James before he was swiftly shown the door.

For Magic and the Lakers, the key heading into next year's offseason and free agency period was to cling to the team's young talent all while avoiding financial hardship in the pursuit of LeBron and other top-ranked free agents like Paul George, for instance. While Clarkson and Nance could be classified as young talent, the core group of Brandon Ingram, Julius Randle, Kyle Kuzma and Josh Hart were all kept in place. Clarkson may have provided instant offense for the team, but his contract (two years, $26.9 million) was one of the biggest on the roster, aside from the atrocity that is Luol Deng's multiyear deal. Magic and General Manager Rob Pelinka didn't just move Clarkson and his contract, but they also surprisingly received a first round pick from Cleveland as well -- which was huge for a Lakers team that was devoid of a pick in this year's first round because of a previously made trade for Steve Nash.

Now the Lakers won't only be out from under the Clarkson contract, but they will clear as much as $70 million in cap space once the contracts of Thomas, Frye, Brook Lopez and Kentavious Cladwell-Pope expire at year's end. That's enough money to make Magic smile and also enough for two max contracts. "I wouldn't have made the move if I wasn't confident," Magic explained at the team's press conference following the trade. "We have got to take the next step. I like our core. I want to have us be in the playoffs, and the only path to that is to add to the roster that we already have."

Acquiring either James and/or George isn't necessarily a lock. The Lakers have shown the tendency to strike out in free agency in recent years and could indeed do so again. LeBron James isn't necessarily what's important about having all of that cap space, either. As Pelinka puts it, the flexibility that $70 million brings the team is what really matters the most. "There's so many different ways you can use that [cap space]," Pelinka explained. "And then, of course, the obvious way is we now have in July of 2018 and July of 2019, we now have real 100 percent space to do two max players if that's what we decide to do, or one in 2018 and then following it up with another one in 2019. So the flexibility is really amazing."

While Isaiah Thomas may be a big name in the league today, he was perhaps the least important piece that the Lakers acquired in their trade with the Cavaliers. What's more important for Thomas, at least, is that he now has less than 30 games to prove that he is still a difference-maker in this league before free agency rolls around for him once again next year. That may be easier said than done after his debilitating hip injury and swift departure from Cleveland. Unfortunately for Thomas, the Lakers already have a point guard in Lonzo Ball and don't necessarily need a ball-dominant style of player to go alongside him who will also undoubtedly require a huge payday on the free agent market. Thomas may bring a bit of excitement to the Staples Center floor down the stretch run of this season, but all that he really represents to the Lakers and their front office is opportunity in the future.

"Let's face it: in this league, you can't have an elite team if you don't have elite players," Pelinka went on to accurately explain. "So that has to be the strategy if you want to be elite." As Pelinka knows, the NBA is a superstar-driven league -- and although last week's trade didn't necessarily bring the Lakers any real, tangible superstars, it brought the team the flexibility to go out and get those players. While the Lakers' young core continues to excel, they and their fans everywhere can rest easily knowing that help will be on the way sooner, rather than later. Once again under Earvin Johnson, the Lakers pulled off their own little piece of magic at the trade deadline and are now well on their way towards rebuilding a team that has been stuck in the mud for years now. - Aserrao6@yahoo.com | @ UpandAdam6 •

VP Mike Pence an Embarrassment to Our Nation and Hypocrite of the Worst Kind

By Cristian Vasquez

Last week the Pyeongchang 2018 Winter Olympics Games brought together people from around the world to celebrate the performances of the best athletes on ice and snow. While delegates from all of the nations invited displayed good manners and stood for the host nation's anthem, Vice President Michael Pence decided he would remain seated. Usually, the vice president flies under the radar and seems to avoid public spectacles, but this incident really shows a lack of character in a man who claims to be a good Christian. It seems that VP Pence not only lacks character, but is absent of decent manners to the degree that he decided to act like a pouting child at a time when he should have behaved like a

Let's not forget how vocal this administration has been against the Black Lives Matter movement. Don't ignore the fact that Pence's boss called NFL players kneeling during our national anthem "sons of bitches" who should be fired. Yet here we have a member of that same administration, representing our great country, doing the same thing. Does Pence not understand the disparity between his actions and his words? Of course he does, but he just doesn't care because at his core he is just a hypocrite and an extension of the man-child in the Oval Office.

The vice president demonstrated less maturity than North Korean leader Kim Jong-Un, who agreed for his few athletes to walk under a unified delegation with South Korean athletes. Some of the Trump apologists in the "liberal media" have tried to justify this clown show, but there is no way they can. Remember that Colts vs. 49ers game back in October? The day that the vice president decided it would be a great idea to go to a football game, stand for the "Star Spangled Banner" and then leave? If you're a fiscal conservative, you should remember because that was an expensive PR stunt. Pence dragged Secret Service and local police agencies through the whole process of getting to the game only to make a point. "I left today's Colt game because President Trump and I will not dignify any event that disrespects our soldiers, our flag, or our national anthem..." was his justification. To be honest, I'm happy he said that because it showcases his selfish, hypocritical nature, which was spotlighted in South Korea when he decided to disrespect the host nation.

Vice President Pence is an embarrassment to our country. He demands respect, but lacks the ability to be respectful. Pence's kicking and screaming about NFL players kneeling is no more than a political talking point. It's a trigger issue that will unify his apologists. Pence doesn't care about respect and much like his overlord in the White House, he's just enjoying his position of power to attack those who disagree with him. The self-proclaimed good Christian isn't even a decent human being. •

Budget Deal Done, the Olympics Kick Off in Korea and the Stock Market Tanks

By Duane Plank

So a couple of times in defense of the duly elected President Donald J. Trump, who has served as a human piñata for the crybabies on the left ever since his unfathomable-to-most victory over the soon-to-be indicted Hillary Clinton, I have asked, "How is your 401k doing?"

I will not be asking that question this time around. At least not right now. Also, would like to thank the numbers of Plank supporters who have tary bigwig, who was very pleased with the taken the time to contact me in the last week. espousing their support for this column which is, at the end of day, an opinion piece, right?

I am clueless on how the stock and bond market works. Clueless on a lot of financial things. Do put the Fox Business Channel (FBC) on when I rouse myself in the morning during the week, usually around 4:30 a.m., in preparation to heading to the gym for a 5 a.m. workout prior to heading to my day job.

Love that Maria Bartiromo on Fox Business Channel. She is a darn hard-working lady, and very astute about the financial side of things, I believe. She not only hosts a three-hour gab-fest on FBC that hits the air at 3 a.m., PST, M-F, but also hosts Wall Street Week that invades your TV screen on Friday nights (never seen it), and hosts Sunday Morning Futures - which, now that I have figured out how to use my DVR, is a must-watch for me sometime on Sunday.

Bartiromo was, maybe somewhat derisively, dubbed the "Money-Honey" years ago, and instead of whining about the possibly offensive moniker, was smart enough to apply for a trademark on the label a decade or so ago.

She knows her stuff and brings on fair-andbalanced guests to talk about the financial ups-and-downs of the day.

On Sunday she interviewed the great California congressman, Devin Nunes, who is spearheading the charge to gather all the facts regarding the all-too-obvious collusion between the Dems, Hill Clinton and the dreaded Ruskies. She also interviewed a retired miliextra shekels in the just-passed budget for the military -- which will provide the brave men and women protecting our country with "more people, more planes and more ships."

As of this penning, the market had tanked. The experts spoke of a "correction," and said to hang-tight -- 1,000 down here, 1,000 down there. I had entrusted my nest-egg nickels with a Wells Fargo advisor, right about the time Wells was scamming most of us trying to hit their accounts quota. I was browbeaten into signing up for another checking account, which I didn't need then and don't need now.

Congress finally got together last week and passed a budget. Of course, that didn't happen without the petulant grandstanding of our very own Congress lady Nancy "Fancy Pants" Pelosi, who wasted more than eight hours of Congress's time with a filibuster-ish eight-plus-hour rant last week. I will give the old lady kudos for her stamina! Eight hours preening to the cameras, fidgeting on four-inch heels with no...bathroom breaks.

Bravo to you, Ms. Pelosi! See, I can give kudos to the other team. •

Women In Agriculture Are Challenging Stereotypes

(BPT) - About a third of the nation's farmers are women, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. And most of these women are working family farms, since 99 percent of all American farms are familyowned and operated. Just under 1 million women farmers contribute $12.9 billion to the nation's economy and are responsible for farming more than 301 million acres.

More women are seeking careers in agriculture, and they're breaking stereotypes about what their roles can be. Many women in the agriculture industry are farmers who grow crops and raise animals, while others are helping advance agriculture by fulfilling non-traditional roles:

Megan Moll grew up working on her family's farm in central Michigan. Today, as a sales representative for Syngenta, she supports a network of independent seed advisers who sell the company's corn hybrids and soybean varieties. She started with the company as an intern. "If you want to go after it, go after it," Moll advises women who may be considering a career in agriculture. "Don't let anything stop you."

In 1999, Brenda Wolgamott and her husband, Duane, entered the wine-growing business; and in 2002, they created their own label - Marin's Vineyard - named for their daughter, Marin Wolgamott. At age 14, Marin began delving into the science of winemaking, learning how to test grapes for sugar and pH levels in a lab, so she could provide the service to neighbors who would otherwise have to send their grapes to far-off labs for testing. Today, she is the winemaker for the vineyard. Marin's experience and career path demonstrate "there are different avenues to get in," she says. "Whether you want to do chemistry or love to get your hands dirty in the cellar, everyone's job in the winery is always appreciated."

Born and raised in rural Iowa, Marj Guyler-Alaniz graduated from Grand View University with a bachelor's degree in graphic design, photography and journalism, and immediately went to work in agriculture for a crop insurance company. Inspired to draw attention to the roles of women in agriculture, she founded FarmHer, an online social community for women farmers. She now hosts the award-winning television show "FarmHer on RFD-TV." "I think showing women who are successfully farming or ranching plants a seed in the younger generation," Guyler-Alaniz says. "Younger girls who are interested in getting into agriculture or carrying on a family tradition can see for themselves that they can do it."

At a time when few women went to college, let alone pursued a higher degree in a scientific field, Mary-Dell Chilton, Ph.D., had the curiosity and drive to bring about major change. When one of her students turned in a paper suggesting bacteria that caused a common plant disease could actually transfer a portion of its DNA to the afflicted plant, Chilton thought his theory was wrong. In the spirit of the scientific method, she tested it and instead found her student's theory to be true. Her research laid the groundwork for transforming how scientists conduct plant genetic research. Her work in plant biotechnology has significantly affected the global agriculture industry. "I give young people today the same advice I've given throughout my career," Chilton says. "Pursue what you love and what fascinates you, and the rest will follow."

Jack Tripper

Every second of every minute of every day, a helpless animal is put to death just because no one was there to take them home. Saving one animal may not change the world, but it will change the world for that animal. Give one of these kitties a second chance for a lifetime of love in a new forever home with you.

Jack Tripper, like his namesake, is quite handsome and extremely popular with the ladies, but also kind-hearted with a sweet disposition. As a very curious kitten, he loves to check out absolutely everything. He is very calm with nothing much bothering him. Jack enjoys hanging out with both kitties and humans. He does need to be adopted into a home with another kitty. If possible, Jack would love to be adopted with either his sister Chrissy Snow or his brother Larry Dallas, who are both also looking for their forever homes.

Chrissy Snow is a beautiful kitten with the sweetest disposition. She is a little ditzy like her namesake, but that just makes her even more endearing. Mellow and low key, Chrissy is also quite fearless. She can't get enough of playing with her trackball toy and loves chasing mice, running up the cat tree and playing with feathers. Chrissy does need to be adopted into a home with a feline friend or with one of her brothers, Larry or Jack.

Larry Dallas is a gorgeous young boy who is very charming with lots of energy. He wants to play all the time and loves all sorts of toys including balls, mice, trackballs and, of course, the laser pointer. With his sweet and loving personality, Larry enjoys interacting with people. He often wants to be in the middle of things and certainly expects to know what is going on everywhere. Larry needs a kitten playmate and would love to have one of his siblings in his new forever family. Now and then, a few pups join the Kitten

Rescue family. Rescued from the streets of Lorenzo, Puerto Rico, Princess Leia and her brother Luke Skywalker were brought to Los Angeles after the hurricane. Although she is a little shy at first, Leia is very playful and loves stuffed animals. She loves to be picked up and cuddled. Leia will cling to you like a cat. Her brother Luke Skywalker is a very playful and feisty. He will definitely be the top dog. These four-month-old pups play together all day and cuddle all night. We would love to place them together with their new family. But if you have another young playful dog who wants a new best friend, they could also be adopted separately.

Bella (not pictured) is a gentle, older feline (15 years) who is generally very quiet and enjoys human company. She has spent her whole life in the same house and is accustomed to having other felines around. She is still very healthy, but just not as active as other younger cats. Bella loves to have her long fur brushed or petted. She likes being part of a family and will soon become your best friend.

Tommy is a very sweet and gentle boy. He is quite playful and loves to put both his feet on your shoulders and give you kisses and head butts. Tommy enjoys playing hide and seek with his foster mom, and also loves catnip and fetching kitty toys. Tommy is fine with dogs once he gets to know them, but has shown a bit of dominance to other cats. This may be remedied with his recent neuter surgery -- time will tell. He loves people and has a very calm personality when he is not having fun playing. He is also well-mannered and will stop what he is doing if you tell him to since Tommy is a very smart kitty. Come and meet this sweet boy and you will see how special he truly is.

Rascal is a darling and handsome young black/white tuxedo boy. This playful kitten is a curious, energetic, happy little boy and is also very much a lap kitty. Rascal is a smart, well-mannered sweetheart. He loves to wrestle, play soccer with toys and chase wand toys. Rascal would be best with a playful, friendly, beta companion. After playtime, he likes to snuggle on your lap. At night, he wants to be curled up by your side. If you are looking for an exceptionally happy, fun kitten, little Rascal is your guy.

These kitties are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org or email us at mail@kittenrescue.org. •
