Rare Solar Eclipse Captures the Fancies of Photographers

Though it didn't fully darken the South Bay skies, Monday's solar eclipse was still a sight to behold — provided you had safe viewing equipment. This photo of the event was taken by Herald Publications' own Gregg McMullin.

Aircraft Noise Complaints Soar Under New System

By Rob McCarthy

When asked how they deal with the sound of jets arriving and departing around-the-clock at Los Angeles International Airport (LAX), area residents will shrug and either say they don't hear the noise anymore or it comes with the territory, so why complain? Living in the flight path of an international airport has a desensitizing effect on the eardrums, though that's not true not for everyone. Neighbors upset about plane noise are a small, yet vocal lot.

LAX a year ago installed a new reporting system for neighbors of the surrounding communities to file complaints about jet noise, low-flying planes, changes in flight paths and other annoyances. In that time, the number of monthly complaints and individuals contacting airport authorities about planes flying too low or over their houses has increased dramatically, according to an analysis of the community response reports from LAX.

Last month, the public filed 5,287 complaints about planes operating in LAX airspace. The most recent number of grievances was nearly 1,100 higher than a year ago in July, which is the height of the summer travel season. Four communities--Culver City, Santa Monica, Monterey Park and Los Angeles--topped the list and those residents, in some cases, complained 30 times apiece to airport authorities either by phone or online.

Neighbors who used the LAX noise disturbance reporting system last month complained most about unusually loud planes (2,008) and low-flying planes (1,156). Late-night or early-morning flights drew 535 comments, which LAX officials say is to be expected because the international airport operates 24 hours a day. Another 457 airport neighbors objected to planes flying over their homes, but LAX responded to those commenters that the flight paths of incoming and outbound planes are determined by the Federal Aviation Administration and not the airport.

Under the year-old noise-reporting system, airport administrations investigate and reply to five complaints registered per person in a month and include their findings in month reports posted at the LAWA.org website. The policy limits the number of public nuisance investigations by LAX, but that hasn't stopped residents from Culver City to Palos Verdes from filing multiple complaints, most of which are about daytime air traffic.

An analysis of July's community response to LAX aircraft points to hot pockets in South Bay where residents who see something, say something. Behind Santa Monica and Culver City, it was Inglewood residents who had the most problems with plane noise. LAX reported 161 complaints from 22 Inglewood residents.

Nine people in Hawthorne generated 40 noise complaints last month. Seven Manhattan Beach residents lodged 24 complaints about planes, followed by Playa del Rey where four people made 18 comments about disturbances coming from the airport. The average number of complaints per resident in those cities was between three and four, compared to one per month for El Segundo, Lawndale and Torrance residents, the data showed.

Redondo Beach residents weren't as quiet as their neighbors to the north and east. The beach city generated 153 aircraft complaints last month coming from 45 individuals. Overall, the number of noise complaints coming from area residents has increased steadily since January. LAX officials who prepared the July noise and disturbance report have seen a 30 percent jump in public complaints compared to a year ago, July 2016.

Some of the bothersome issues caused by jets are out of the airport's control while others are maintenance-related as LAX continues its modernization of terminals and runways, administrators say in their comments left for individuals who have complained about night flights and planes using the outer runway close to Imperial Avenue. "The FAA has ultimate authority over aircraft flight patterns and regulates virtually all aviation activity with the major emphasis on safety," airport administrators charged with investigating public comments repeat often in their findings when aircraft deviate from normal flight patterns or circle the airport at a low altitude.

Fog and low clouds can amplify the noise of aircraft inbound or leaving LAX, and neighbors are often advised that the weather was likely the reason why planes were louder than normal on a given day. It's not always a matter of perception when plane noise gets reported. Last week, LAX closed the south inbound runway nightly for five hours to complete construction on the runway's safety area. Beach city residents to the south of the airport were warned to expect more noise overnight from 1 to 6 a.m. because the outer runway would be busier with inbound and outgoing air traffic.

LESD Modernizes Campuses for New School Year

Over the summer, Lawndale Elementary School District (LESD) undertook several projects to improve facilities and provide students with high-quality learning environments.

Two of the major projects were funded by Measure L, a general obligation bond approved by Lawndale voters in November 2016. Measure L will provide the District with $27 million to improve outdated and worn facilities. Thanks to the community’s support, LESD’s facilities have undergone a major makeover, which includes:

– New Paint: The Addams, Rogers, Anderson, and Green campuses received fresh coats of paint. This project has had a significant visual impact on the schools and improved the look of the surrounding community.

– New Roofing: The Green, FDR and Anderson campuses received new roofs. While the visual improvement is not as drastic as the paint job, there will not be as many leaks as the past few years!

In addition to the aforementioned Measure L projects, the District also completed the following projects:

– Installing a sound fence along Marine

Avenue for FDR Elementary.

– Projector Installation: Interactive projectors have been installed in all LESD classrooms.

– New Water Fountains: One new water fountain per campus will be installed at Mitchell, Twain, and FDR Elementary Schools. They will include a chiller, water bottle filling station, and upgraded filter. Students and staff will be well-hydrated.

– Fencing/Gates: New fences and gates have gone up at Mitchell and Green Elementary schools to improve the appearance of the campuses and support student needs.

– Grounds work: LESD maintenance team worked throughout the summer to keep campuses looking clean and inviting.

“All of this work would not have been possible without our Business Services Department’s concerted effort to support our students—a huge thank you to our Accounting, Purchasing, Maintenance, Food Services, and Technology teams! None of this work could have been completed without their perseverance. We are excited for our students and families to enjoy the updated facilities!” said Dr. Betsy Hamilton, LESD Superintendent. – Source: LESD

Safety Improvements Completed at LAX Runways

Los Angeles International Airport (LAX) has completed mandatory safety improvements to all four of its runways, and those are once again operating at their full length. The U.S. Congress required all the nation’s airports to undertake Runway Safety Area (RSA) improvements that provide an extra margin of safety for landing and departing aircraft. RSAs provide a buffer zone should an aircraft overshoot, overrun or veer off a runway while landing or taking off. RSAs are typically 1,000 feet by 500 feet at each runway end and 250 feet from the runway centerline. The RSAs are not runway extensions.

The RSA improvements at LAX began in March 2015, and were phased in to limit impact to operations. The RSA work also provided an opportunity for LAX to perform other airfield improvements and runway maintenance.

Airport officials consulted with airline partners, the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), and neighboring communities on flight management plans to minimize impacts to surrounding communities and air travelers during construction.

The final RSA improvements on Runway 7L-25R were completed last weekend, and the runway reopened at its full 12,091-foot length on Monday. Work on Runway 7L-25R began in October 2016, following completion of the RSA construction on Runway 6R-24L.

Runway 7L-25R remained operational starting in October 2016 in a shortened configuration while its east end and adjoining taxiways were reconstructed. It then closed in late April to allow for maintenance and rehabilitation work, electrical revisions and the start of RSA improvements on the west end of the runway. The runway reopened in a shortened configuration in late May while west end RSA work continued, before completion this weekend and reopening today full length. – Source: Los Angeles World Airports

Pancreatic Cancer: Know your Family, Know your Risk

(BPT) - Pancreatic cancer is one of the most deadly cancers, with a mere 29 percent one-year survival rate. In 2016, pancreatic cancer became the third leading cause of cancer death in the United States, surpassing breast cancer.

The time frame between diagnosis and death is often short. Only 7 percent of people diagnosed with pancreatic cancer survive five years. This is incredibly small compared to prostate cancer or breast cancer, where more than 90 percent of patients survive for five years after diagnosis.

“Most people are unaware of how deadly pancreatic cancer is,” says Jim Rolfe, president of Rolfe Pancreatic Cancer Foundation. “These chilling statistics can serve as an eye-opener that motivates people to learn more about their risks and contact their health care professional.”

Early Detection Is Important

Although pancreatic cancer is one of the most deadly cancers, early detection can significantly impact survival rates. The five-year survival rate for pancreatic cancer approaches 25 percent if cancers are surgically removed while they are still small and have not spread to the lymph nodes.

Know your Family, Know your Risk

Family history is a risk factor for pancreatic cancer. When you know more about your genetics and which members of your family have been affected by pancreatic cancer, you can better manage your own health.

To make the process easier, the Rolfe Pancreatic Cancer Foundation has introduced a new series of online tools. Visit www.KnowMyRisk.org to download a worksheet and access other helpful tools that let you explore your family history and become your own health advocate.

Print out the worksheet and call or visit your grandparents, parents and other extended family members. You may not be aware that someone a few generations removed from you was affected by cancer. Having this conversation can be empowering, because once you know your risks you can take charge of your future.

Consider Genetic Counseling

When considering how personal a cancer or disease diagnosis can be, it is no surprise that medicine is looking at our DNA to uncover information. This makes genetic counselors an important part of the health care team, helping you ask the right questions and uncover familial genetic risk factors.

If you learn you have a history of pancreatic cancer in multiple family members, you should consider meeting with a genetic counselor to assess your level of risk. From there, the counselor and your doctor can decide on a course of action.

To learn more about genetic counseling and find a local certified genetic counselor at the National Society of Genetic Counselors’ database, visit www.KnowMyRisk.org. •

Hawthorne Happenings

News for the City of Good Neighbors from an Old Guy named Norb Huber

DESTINATION OR DEPARTURE CITY?

As I sat and listened to the Boring Company and several environmental attorneys present the case for the Hawthorne test tunnel to be dug under 120th Street last night, I realized I was witnessing history. The preliminary agreement was approved. As City Clerk, I sign off on any agreements. My John Doe is there for the record. I was witness to the start of a new way to travel. While thinking of all of the fame this will bring me, I came up with the solution to our “mall problem”. The end of the two mile tunnel is at Hawthorne Blvd and 120th Street. Just south of the termination point is a vacant plot of land that has been waiting to become something great. Turn the Hawthorne mall property into the transportation center of the region, the country, the world. What in the heck am I talking about? Let's go for it. Let Elon dig tunnels all over SoCal. Make the mall property the grand central station to enter and exit this web of connected tubes. Dig one over to LAX and shoot people over on a train directly to the terminals. People would park in Hawthorne and jet to anywhere in the world. Dig a tunnel to the NFL stadium. Dig a tunnel to the beach. What the heck, why not let SpaceX build a launch pad on top of the parking structure and start selling tickets to Mars. Since the tunnels are only designed for electric cars, I think that we could solve our parking problems if every Hawthorne resident would have access to a shared, new Tesla to commute to work with. Bingo! No more parking problems. Let's go for it. Hawthorne has always been a launching pad to greatness; let's blast off and leave poor old MB and Torrance in the dust. I really think Elon would like my idea.

WHO'S GOING TO TAKE MY PLACE?

I'm excited about the upcoming school year, which begins next week for me. That's because I can see the end of the tunnel. I only have 180 more days in which to mold young minds. (But who is really counting?) This will be my final year in education after forty years of teaching. I received my class schedule and I get to teach one period of Physical Education and two periods of Math. I have not taught PE in over thirty years, but because I have a credential in that subject, it automatically qualifies me to teach kids how to stretch and move. My question is who will take my place when I retire? If you have not heard, there is a big teacher shortage in America. Forty nine states do not have enough qualified Math instructors to fill our classrooms. Young people are not entering the teaching field. Math and science majors receive a much higher salary in the tech field. Next year, we will be short over 100,000 teachers to teach the next generation of kids. Closing the education and economic gaps between the top and low performing students is difficult. Most of the time the low performing schools get less qualified or non-certified teachers who are new to the profession. Which leads me back to my question. Maybe sometime in the past you have considered being a teacher. Maybe you sat in a classroom years ago and thought that you might enjoy being the one in charge, the one making the difference in the lives of kids. YOU are needed. There are many programs designed for making a career transition into teaching a smooth one. Email me and I can hook you up with a counselor who can let you know what it would take. If you are a young person, please consider being a teacher. Yes, it is a lot of work, but there are perks to the job and the bottom line is that you can feel a real sense of worth knowing that what you have done has “made a difference”. You have an opportunity to make America better. So, let me know if you want to take my place. While you are at it, let me know if you want to be City Clerk when I'm gone. Let me know if you want to write a weekly column that five of your relatives read if they have nothing else better to do. Let me know if you want to spend your leisure time telling others to have a cold one. I won't last forever, none of us will. I just hope they have cold ones in that place I'm headed. If Jesus can make wine out of water, he should be able to make a mighty fine brew.

BOTTLE OR BOX?

Speaking of wine, here is another tip I received from one of my readers: Wine in a box may get a bad rap compared to its bottled brethren, but there is at least one distinct advantage to pushing that rubber spigot to fill your glass with red Franzia. Boxed red or white wine can stay good for four to six weeks after opening, thanks to vacuum-sealed bags that prevent air from getting in and spoiling the wine through oxidation. My only question is why would anyone wait four to six weeks to drink the thing?

MUSEUM WORK CONTINUES

This Saturday starting at 9 a.m. we will be working on the new Hawthorne Museum. You are welcome to join in on helping to display our rich history. The museum is located at 14100 Prairie Avenue. Good Neighbors Day and the museum's grand opening will take place on Saturday, September 16th at 10 a.m. Come out and get involved. •

Finance

(BPT) - If you're in the market for a used vehicle, the car-buying process can be both an exciting and daunting experience. Whether you are a first-time buyer or looking for a different model, a car is one of the largest purchases you will ever make. It's not only important to make sure you have the right car for your lifestyle, but one that makes the most sense for your personal financial situation.

If you are one of the millions of Americans looking to buy, here are some tips to consider.

Get Pre-approved

Similar to buying a house, it's important to know what you can afford before you start hunting for your dream car. If you will be financing a vehicle, getting pre-approved for a car loan may save you a lot of heartburn during your car search.

Interest rates continue to be at historic lows, but it's important to check in on what rates you may qualify for and how it will affect the price of what you can afford.

“It's easy to get caught up in the excitement of looking for a new car and forget about the affordability piece,” says Renee Horne, vice president of Consumer Lending at USAA. “Before you even begin your search, give your lender a call to see what you can actually qualify for and what will fit in your budget.”

A good tip to keep in mind is to not let your car payment exceed more than 15 percent of your monthly net income. While you don't have to stick to it, this rule will help give you a rough estimate of what you may be spending each month.

Know What you Can Afford

Knowing what you can afford reaches beyond your car loan payment. Although used cars are typically less expensive, they may have more maintenance and ownership costs.

“It's important to look at the total cost of ownership,” says Heather Pollard, vice president of Auto Experience at USAA. “Everyday expenses such as gas, insurance, taxes, maintenance and future repairs are all associated with owning a vehicle.”

Knowing a rough estimate of these expenses will help you stay on budget in the long run. Simple online loan calculators, like this one at USAA, can help give you an idea of how much you can afford.

Narrow your Choices

With countless choices available, finding the right car for you can be a challenge. Your budget should help narrow some of your choices, but consider your lifestyle as well.

Do you have young children or plan to start a family soon? Then you might want to consider the highest IIHS safety ratings. Do you frequently travel for work? In that case, improved gas mileage and reduced emissions are important factors. Remember, all those extra upgrades come with a higher insurance price tag and are depreciating assets once you drive off the lot.

Although you may be more inclined to go after a new car with the latest cutting-edge technology, a pre-owned vehicle may be the better alternative for your lifestyle and budget. Better still, used car prices are the lowest they have been in years. Even if you opt for a slightly older version of the model you're interested in, many used models still offer similar advanced features while saving you thousands of dollars in the end.

Need help finding the right car for you? The USAA Car Buying Service can help. •

PETSPETS Pets PETSPETS

Wowser Schnauzers

Stormy

We are looking for volunteers to help with our pet adoption fairs that are held every Saturday at the Petco located at 537 N. Pacific Coast Highway in Redondo Beach, from noon-3:30 p.m. If you are interested in volunteering and can commit to at least one Saturday a month, please contact us at info@msfr.org. You can also visit all of our Miniature Schnauzers & Friends rescues at the adoption fair or check out our website, www.msfr.org. If you have any questions about a particular dog's availability you can email us at info@msfr.org. Schnauzers! Bet you can't adopt just one!

"Hi! They call me Stormy and I guess that's because I've weathered everything life has thrown my way and I'm still here to tell my tale. I'm an adorable, two-year old, female, purebred Miniature Schnauzer with natural ears and a docked tail. I was rescued---albeit not from a shelter, but... wait for it... the streets of Tijuana! While another rescue group was there to pick up strays and they decided to take me along for the ride. They contacted MSFR and thankfully MSFR was delighted to add another petite 14-pound lady to their group of rescues. While I'm thrilled to be around other Miniature Schnauzers, I believe it's time for me to find my forever home. Some folks would say I'm a bit 'needy' because I really enjoy spending time with my people. However, I also get along great with other dogs. In fact, I get along well with just about everyone. To be truthful, I really don't like being alone--so I would probably do best in a home with another dog. If that's not doable, a home where someone is there most of the time will also work for me."

If you're interested in Stormy, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

"Did you know that the origin of the name Berkeley is of Old English and means the birch tree meadow? I can't think of a more perfect name for me because you know how we dogs love our trees! Yep, I'm Berkeley--a two-year old, male, purebred Miniature Schnauzer that was also rescued from the streets of Tijuana. Don't ask me how I ended up there. I have no idea... but since I'm not bilingual, I couldn't get any information on how to get back home. Another rescue group actually picked me up as a stray and contacted MSFR, who were kind enough to take me in, clean me up and find me a foster home. If I have to say so myself, they sure did an excellent job on my makeover which now shows my best attributes--natural ears, a docked tail and a most striking coat. Not a bad outcome for this 18-pound package of personality. I'm considered outgoing and friendly, but honestly I just love everyone--people, dogs...and I would be the best addition to your family that you could ever make."

Berkeley

If you're interested in Berkeley, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

"Hello there. My name is Paisley and I think they named me that because of my coat. You see, it's various shades of gray, black and white with highlights of the same colors. Since I'm a Yorkie/Poodle mix, the colors are swirled and curled just like a paisley pattern. I'm a three-year-old gal whose previous owners surrendered me to an LA county shelter without any explanation. I have no idea why they no longer wanted me as part of their family because I was a very good girl. Maybe they're moving and couldn't take me or maybe they just stopped loving me, but I have to admit it left me a bit heartbroken. Consequently, I'm a little shy and a tad timid--but on the plus side, I'm also quiet and very loving. At eight pounds, it's easy to pick me up and take me with you wherever you go and I would love to be your constant companion and a member of your family."

If you're interested in Paisley, please email info@msfr.org for more information. •

Congratulations Watkins!

Congratulations to Watkins and his new family. Watkins is our late April rescue with the deformed front leg that adapted remarkably well to his condition. His new family had a 10-year-old Scottie that they recently lost to cancer and wanted to find a special dog to share their life. They came to our pet adoptions to do a meet and greet with Watkins and the rest is "history." He joins his family in Long Beach and we're certain there will be many joyful adventures for all of them. •

The inner runway was expected to reopen on August 21, the airport said.

LAX also assured South Bay residents that nighttime air traffic will continue to use an eastbound approach from the ocean between midnight and 6:30 a.m.

The Los Angeles airport authority launched the LAWA Noise Management comment system on August 1, 2016 to allow the public to submit noise concerns and for the airport staff to collect and study the issues reported by individuals. People as far north as Thousand Oaks and in Huntington Beach to the south have filed noise complaints through the LAX system over the past 12 months. In most cases, the comments from far-reaching comments are found to have no connection to activity at LAX.

Often, a single event will trigger multiple complaints at the LAX noise-reporting site. Officials ask anyone filing a noise complaint to provide their address and city to allow staff to identify disturbances and trends in specific neighborhoods surround LAX. There are four ways to report aircraft disturbances to LAX administrators, who are required to follow up and make an investigation based on aircraft that were in the air at the time of a reported incident:

--Complete a noise complaint form at www.planenoise.com/lawa/nR9k3pXb/lax/.

--Log on to LAX WebTrak Site to track flights in real time. Users can view, identify aircraft operations and perform self-investigation, according to LAX officials. Click on the online comment form tab at the top left hand corner, then the "Comment Form" button.

--Download the LAX Mobile Web App from an iPhone or Android mobile device at the link: <http://www.planenoise.com/mobile/lawa/nR9k3pXb/lax/>

--For those who prefer to call and speak with an airport staff member, there is a 24-hour LAX Aircraft Noise Comment Line at (424) 64-NOISE or (424) 646-6473. LAX "makes every effort to answer the line whenever possible," it says. Callers who can't reach a staff person should leave a detailed message, including the date and time when an aircraft created excessive noise, was flying low or performed a questionable maneuver in LAX airspace.

For unexplained reasons, the number of individuals reporting aircraft noise and activity to LAX has jumped 135 percent in the past year, from 113 in July 2016. Last month, 331 people lodged complaints with the airport. One individual in Calabasas, northwest of Malibu, complained 36 times last month. Two Palos Verdes addresses accounted for 73 complaints to the airport. That paled in comparison to one annoyed household in Rosemead, sandwiched between the Pomona Freeway and the 10 Freeway. A single address in the community east of downtown Los Angeles objected 64 times last month to LAX traffic. •

Dodgers Adding More Key Pieces for October Playoff Run

By Adam Serrao

What's most amazing about the Los Angeles Dodgers may not even be their record, which is by far the best in baseball and could wind up being the tops in Major League Baseball history. The team that is dominating the National League West and all of baseball is doing so without its best pitcher and without a few key pieces of their lineup. With just over one month of the regular season left to play, the deepest lineup to maybe ever play the game of baseball is poised to get even deeper and more explosive, if that can even be fathomed.

What was supposed to be the most glaring hole in the Dodgers' lineup is revving up to get back into action. Barring an unforeseen setback, Clayton Kershaw should be back in the starting rotation sooner, rather than later, for the first time since a lower back strain sidelined the ace on July 24. Kershaw threw a 35-pitch simulated game last week and will presumably throw against live hitters sometime this week. "Once he passes that marker right there, then we'll see where he goes," Dodgers manager Dace Roberts explained. "It's probably going to be a start either in Tulsa or OKC."

Don't tell the Dodgers or their fans, but it's looking like the team doesn't even need Kershaw. Since his departure to injury, the Dodgers had only lost four games in his absence dating back to last Sunday, while putting together a 21-4 record in that same time frame, if you count the game from which Kershaw was removed.

What has become the scariest part about Kershaw's impending return is imagining the Dodgers rotation once the starters are all fully healthy. Beginning with Kershaw, the rotation would also boast a variety of starters including the recently acquired Yu Darvish and a mix of Alex Wood, Rich Hill, Kenta Maeda and Hyun-Jin Ryu. That combination is as good as, if not better than any in the entire league. The numbers prove that fact to be true as well. With a team ERA hovering right around 3.10 as of last weekend, the Dodgers' overall ERA amongst starting pitchers was the best in all of baseball.

Pitching isn't the only thing that the Dodgers have been bulking up on lately. Adrian Gonzalez returned to the batting order for the first time in 57 games last Friday, adding even more depth to an already elite lineup. "I feel great," Gonzalez said after being activated from the 60-day disabled list. "Last year was when the whole issue started with the back. Right now, I feel like I'm before that, before it all started. So hopefully this is the end of the back issue." If his play has anything to say about it, it certainly looks like it is the end. Gonzalez doubled in his first at-bat since June 11 and went on to knock in the first run of the game last Saturday afternoon in what wound up being a 3-0 Dodger win.

The run that Gonzalez knocked in just so happened to be his new Dodger teammate, Curtis Granderson. The Dodgers traded for Granderson last Friday night and in doing so immediately upgraded offensively over Joc Pederson, who was sent to AAA to work on his swing before his inevitable recall in September. Granderson, previously of the New York Mets, learned of the trade just after midnight Saturday morning on the East Coast. He was in Detroit to start in right field for the Dodgers when they took on the Tigers later that day. Granderson got to work right away, scoring the first run of the game for his new team on Saturday in a 3-0 win. The very next day, he broke up Justin Verlander's no-hit bid with a home run in the sixth inning for the first run of the game (and the Dodgers' only run that day).

Granderson's arrival, combined with the reemergence of Gonzalez and the looming reinstatement of Andre Ethier, will give Roberts a very good problem to have. Those players, together with the likes of Cody Bellinger and Chris Taylor (who can play just about anywhere) will not only give the Dodgers an extremely deep bench, but also allow the team the versatility to move players around on the field. Heading into the playoffs, Los Angeles will continue to have the strongest pitching staff in the entire league, combined with one of the most powerful batting orders and deepest lineups that baseball has seen in quite some time.

The Dodgers may not break the record for most wins in an entire season. They may even break their trend and go on a mini-slump heading into the playoffs. What's important, though, isn't how the team finishes the regular season. The Dodgers and their front office have done everything that they can to set their team up for postseason success. A roster that is only getting healthier by the day should be primed to perform both down the stretch in September and well into the playoff months of October and November. Now, the machine that is the Dodgers simply needs to keep on grinding. It's not the postseason yet, but this Los Angeles squad is showing the most promise of any other Dodgers team in recent history of bringing home a World Series title. -- Asixlion@earthlink.net •
