Graduates Across the South Bay Celebrate their Special Day!

Jane Addams Middle School Hosts Seventh Annual Bengal Bowl

By Cristian Vasquez

Tires, inner tubes, water drills and music were just part of the day's activities at Jane Addams Middle School during the Seventh Annual Bengal Bowl. "When we became a middle school seven years ago, we sat down as a PE department and we decided what would be best with the space that we have and what kind of field day would be best for the kids," Physical Education teacher Laura Schneider said. "We started brainstorming and each year it has been a bit different. Most of it is the same. The core of it is stable and we try to come up with things that kids will enjoy so that they can have that memory that they will have with them the rest of their lives."

The Bengal Bowl is a competition between the different grade levels, sixth through eighth, which are split into teams named after some of the country's most prestigious universities. Sixth graders are represented by Harvard, Yale and Princeton while the seventh grade is represented by USC or UCLA. Eighth grade students are part of Stanford or Cal.

"All of our kids, when they come on our campus during the sixth grade, know about the three colleges that represent the sixth grade," Schneider said. "When we start telling the kids about these colleges, we start putting in their heads that there is a step after high school that we want to prepare them for."

The day's activities begin with relays and races between the teams where the students must work together in order to try and win the competition and bragging rights for the year. The students are then served lunch and given time at the end of the day to play on inflatable jumpers.

"On this day, we have them compete like if it were a picnic contest--you want to be able to study hard and play hard," Jane Addams Principal Frank Noyse said. "These are memorable days for kids and if you think back to your own experience, you remember the field days and the fun days. This is motivation to get the kids to keep coming back and wanting to be here. We want to make this a place where they want to be and days like these make that happen. It is a great day for kids."

The students know what team they are on from the beginning of the school year. They begin their preparation for the event five weeks before the Bengal Bowl, during which time they are required to be on their best behavior. They have to get all homework turned in and avoid receiving strikes in the classroom. Three strikes from anywhere throughout the school will eliminate a student from participating. Of 900 students, only 20-25 were excluded from the activities for not fulfilling the requirements. The Bengal Bowl is a fun-filled annual tradition for the students, but there is a strong academic emphasis in the day's event.

"I think that it [Bengal Bowl] is important from the standpoint that they know college is an option. I personally believe it is an option that is there and if you want it, then you have to work and study hard for it," Math teacher Louie Pastor said. "It is an answer for some, but may not be the answer for others. Some of these kids might want to be mechanics or pipe fitters or pilots or something where you don't necessarily need a [college] degree. It gives them the option and reminds them that if college is what they want to do, then it will take work."

While there is a winner every year, there is no pressure imposed on the students or teams to go out and win at all costs. Organizers want students to compete and be happy if they win, but without causing disappointment in those who don't.

"We want them to handle losing and winning in the true spirit of sportsmanship and to just enjoy the day and the relays," Schneider said. "The entire two-hour block, there was a lot of cheering and it makes it exciting. It is a fun day for the kids. They leave their backpacks at home and they just come have fun. They are always looking forward to the event and it is the best event of the school year."

For Pastor, the event allows kids to have fun with all the physical education they have been involved with all year while providing a lesson for the future. "The good thing about this is that we push that you must have a work ethic," Pastor said. "Through physical education, we also tell them that it [health] has long-term implications because of how much healthcare costs. I tell my students that if they are in worse shape than the other person, then they will pay more for insurance. The Bengal Bowl at the end of the year takes all that physical stuff that we did all year and we can have fun with it."

While Schneider is credited for spearheading this event, she is quick to mention that it would not be possible to coordinate the Bengal Bowl without Ms. Carter, Pastor and the rest of the staff. "This is not something I do by myself," Schneider said. "Mr. Noyse has been wonderful in helping planning this event. All the teachers and staff members have been great in preparing the kids and getting them together to come out and participate. It is amazing. It is a whole school coming together." •

News for the City of Good Neighbors

Coming in Second – Not So Bad

If you are a golfer you most likely watched the US Open Golf Championship this past weekend. One of my favorite golfers is Phil Mickleson. He came in second place for the sixth time in this major championship. He has never won. Yes, he was disappointed, but what makes him so popular is the way he graciously handles losing. He has life's priorities straight. He attended his daughter's graduation ceremony and missed out on valuable practice time. His wife and mother have had breast cancer and he took time off to attend to them. He knows there are bigger things in life than winning a golf tournament. Of course it helps that he has made millions on the tour. The average golfer can relate to not winning. Golf is a humbling game. Just when you think you have it figured out, you hit a terrible shot after terrible shot. Much of life is like this. Just when you think you have it all together, God throws you a curve when you least expect it. I think he does this to keep us humble. Most of us could not handle winning the lottery, although it would be fun to try. Most of us would not be the loving person we are if everything was given to us on a silver platter. When you are the champion you lose some of that hunger to strive to be better. Maybe by being second best it motivates us to strive to get better. I know I will never be a professional golfer, but it sure is fun trying.

It's Carnival Time

The Hawthorne Kiwanis Club began hosting a youth parade and fair in 1947 and it has been going on ever since in one fashion or another. The parade doesn't run down Hawthorne Blvd. any longer, but the carnival will be held again this year at the Betty Ainsworth Center parking lot on El Segundo Blvd., just east of the Memorial Center. The carnival runs from Thursday thru Sunday, June 20-23. All proceeds go back directly to the community in the forms of scholarships and donations to charitable causes.

High School Graduations

All three of the Centinela Valley Union High School District high schools will conduct their graduations on Thursday, June 20th. That is also the last day of classes for all district students. Now, you can travel the streets of Hawthorne around 3 p.m. and not encounter a big traffic jam when the high school students are being dismissed. Have a safe and fun summer.

Looking for Participants

Good Neighbors Day is right around the corner. Our third annual event will be held on Saturday, July 20 at the civic center. We are planning on having some fun with just an old fashion picnic fair theme. We are looking for participants to compete in our competitions which include both water melon and pie eating contests, a balloon toss, a sack race, a want-to-be Beach Boys singing contest, a wife-calling contest and an arm wrestling contest. We will be taking entries in the next couple of weeks, so watch for details on how to sign up. Service organizations and non-profits are encouraged to enter a team to compete for the title of "Hawthorne Champion".

Papa Again

My daughter is due to deliver our second grand child today, Thursday, June 20. It will still be exciting even if we know when and what time the delivery will take place and that it will be a boy. Being a papa to my two year old grand daughter is great, being a papa to her baby brother and her will be that much better.

City Council Hears Citizen Complaints, Concerns about Fireworks

By Nancy Peters

Lawndale citizens have apparently made their opinions known over the years in at least two ballot measures that approved the allowance of safe and sane fireworks to be sold and then used on July 4 each year. Illegal fireworks are banned from the city as they are from Los Angeles County and beyond. Of course, illegal fireworks are able to be obtained by those who know where to buy them and these loud, smoky and dangerous charges still are heard and fired off each year. On Monday evening, the Lawndale City Council heard the concerns of two citizens, one of whom could rattle off every municipal code that is violated, including the one that says no noise after 10 p.m. on any night without fine. Unfortunately, the safe and sane fireworks code says these can be used legally until 1 a.m. on July 5.

Both citizens were concerned with the remnants of not just the safe and sane fireworks being found in yards and on the streets and in gutters for weeks after July 4, but also pointed out how fireworks affect pets and small children and also can cause the elderly to become frightened when the loud noises pierce the evening air. Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department will have extra deputies on duty all day and all night on July 4 and into the middle of the night on July 5 to conduct proactive work on violators of the fireworks use code. Fines will be levied and arrests will be made of anyone found using illegal fireworks.

Citizens are reminded that any block parties or closure of streets can only be done with a City-issued permit, as the municipal code does not allow certain streets, which are through streets for emergency vehicles, to be blocked off--and only acceptable streets can have a permit issued.

The Council recognized the Rotary Club Firefighter/Paramedic of the Year Robert Currier and the Sheriff's Department Deputy of the Year Troy Hilliard for their service to the community of Lawndale.

The consent calendar items included the approval of the dedicated left turn traffic signal at the intersection of Manhattan Beach Boulevard and Firmona Avenue bid process with PTM Engineering Services, Inc., being designated from the submitted bids, with work to begin on August 12, with a projection of completion by December 2013.

Also included was the approval of a letter to Metro filing the comments the Council has on the extension of the Green Line project, opposing use of the Measure R funds for any Metro projects as these funds belong to the individual cities for which the voters approved the measure and uses of the funds in 2011. Lawndale and other cities of the South Bay are filing notice opposing the diversion of these funds as well as the expansion of original boundaries in the Crenshaw/LAX District for the Metro Extension project.

The Justice Assistance Grant (JAG) funding for the payments for extra deputies on duty on July 4 and the Youth Day Parade costs, for a total of $14,616 to be spent over a four-year period beginning in 2013, was initially presented in a public hearing. The JAG funding was then approved for the two presented uses, as the funding has been used in previous grants. More than $4,600 will be used for extra deputies.

Emergency roof repair for City Hall and the City Yard buildings was continued until the Council meeting on July 15. In addition, an item for repair of Hawthorne Boulevard Street Lights and invoices from Southern California Edison Company was continued until the July 15 meeting.

The Health, Safety and Pet Fair will be held this Saturday, June 22, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the Civic Plaza at 147th Street and Burin Avenue. Pet vaccinations; pet licensing; vendors for free screenings of eyes, blood pressure and hearing for humans; and information on safety from various agencies will be available for the public. Food vendors will also be available.

During the Public Safety Report from Sheriff's Department Captain Eli Vera, it was reported that despite several shootings that have occurred within the city limits in the month of June, statistics indicate that violent crime is trending downward in Lawndale. The shootings appear to all be unrelated. A report of drug sales in Hooper Park is under investigation and deputies have been conducting random checks of people loitering in the park. There were no drug sales observed, although an arrest was made of an individual who had seven outstanding warrants. The report of a known gang member moving into Lawndale resulted in the finding of an AK-47 machine gun and ammunition.

City Manager Steve Mandoki announced that all painting of the exteriors of the Lawndale Community Center is complete and the metal lettering signage has been installed on the front of the building.

The American Cancer Society Relay For Life of Lawndale is scheduled at Leuzinger High School on June 29 and 30. Participants are encouraged to sign up for the 24-hour walk to raise funds for cancer research. During opening ceremonies at 9 a.m. on Saturday, June 29, all cancer survivors will be honored. At 9 p.m. the Luminaria Ceremony will honor all those who have lost their battle to the disease with lighted decorated bags lining the walkways. The closing ceremonies on Sunday, June 30 at 8 a.m. will honor those currently fighting the disease and encouraging them for the future.

The Lawndale City Council has cancelled the regularly scheduled meeting on Monday, July 1 and will not meet again until Monday, July 15 at 6:30 p.m. •

Improving Women's Financial Literacy, Worldwide

By Jason Alderman

Are the 70 percent of the developing world's adult population with no formal bank account doomed to a life of economic uncertainty and financial illiteracy? If a woman's culture dictates that she should always put her family's financial needs ahead of her own, can she learn to set aside money for her own retirement without feeling guilty?

These are just some of the complex issues raised at the seventh annual Financial Literacy and Education Summit hosted by

On the question of whether financial literacy hinges on access to traditional bank accounts, Egyptian Journalist Amira Salah-Ahmed said roughly 90 percent of the Egyptian population is unbanked, meaning most of their transactions are unregulated and therefore more risky.

Mexican Journalist Adina Chelminsky added that many third-world people have much easier access to credit through informal lending channels than to bank products. "The idea is not to formalize

"The key is for governments, financial institutions, educators and entrepreneurs to work together to devise financial tools and educational materials that can reach the female half of the world's population."

the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago and Visa Inc. Renowned U.S. and international financial experts and journalists led a lively discussion -- and fielded Twitter questions from roughly 2,000 participants -- around the theme, "Improving Women's Financial Literacy & Capabilities Globally."

Fascinating details revealed include:

Richard Cordray, Director of the U.S. Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, noted that "a large majority of K-12 teachers say that personal finance should be taught in school, yet less than a third say they've taught lessons about money, and more than half feel unqualified to teach their state's financial literacy standards."

Linah Mohohlo, Governor, Bank of Botswana, emphasized that it's not only important to teach women about money management, but also to teach them activities to avoid -- such as Ponzi schemes or lending money to people without setting repayment and interest terms.

Bernie Ripoll, Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasurer, Australia, added that women should feel empowered to ask questions or say no if they're asked to invest in something they don't understand.

According to South African Financial Journalist Maya Fischer-French, among the biggest financial hurdles an overwhelming number of women in her country face is their status as single mothers -- around 56 percent. Of those, only about 21 percent can rely on financial help from their children's fathers.

all this informal lending, but rather for banks and governments to think outside the box and develop new products that cater to women who have minimal savings," she said.

The panelists shared some alternative financing methods that are already in place and thriving:

Microfinance, where organizations like Kiva make small loans to people who can't get credit from traditional banks, is helping women achieve financial stability in many underdeveloped nations. For example, a young woman in Pakistan or Mexico can now take out a microloan to buy a sewing machine, thereby creating her own thriving business.

Also in Pakistan, a large telecommunications company has partnered with a microfinancier to provide "branchless banking" via mobile phone technology to people far removed from banks. "We've got 45,000 agents transacting this kind of business now compared to only 13,000 in the branch network," explained Yaseen Anwar, Governor, State Bank of Pakistan.

Bottom line: Women throughout the world face unique economic and financial literacy challenges. The key is for governments, financial institutions, educators and entrepreneurs to work together to devise financial tools and educational materials that can reach the female half of the world's population -- the younger, the better.

wallet without hesitation. Unfortunately you've just become a victim of a scam that is happening across the country. Known as the "grandparent scam," this type of fraud involves bogus calls from people claiming to be relatives in trouble. The personal nature and urgency of these calls causes people to let their guard down, and act quickly without verifying the validity of the call.

"Criminals often target older people, but in reality anyone of any age can be a target of a scam," says Phil Hopkins, vice president of global security with Western Union. "With more people sharing personal information online, such as through social media websites, it's easier for criminals to learn details of personal relationships so they can imitate loved ones by name. Newspapers and obituaries are also good sources of personal information, providing detailed relationship information."

Con artists may also impersonate attorneys, police officers or bail bondsmen to create a sense of urgency and legitimacy. Add in loud background noises, muffled voices or fuzzy phone lines, and it's easy to believe someone is calling from jail or a remote location, where he or she may be in trouble.

In addition to calling victims, hackers use similar strategies to target victims through email. Tapping into a person's address book, scammers send emails or instant messages directly from the person's email account alerting friends and others of the "emergency" and requesting funds. Do not respond to the email and confirm the situation by contacting

Hopkins recommends you follow these tips to avoid becoming a victim of the emergency scam or other types of fraud:

1. If you receive a phone call or email claiming a friend or family member needs cash, take a moment to review the situation. Does it make sense? Can you verify the emergency?
2. Call the person at a known telephone number, not a number given to you by the caller. Or, call a mutual friend or another relative and find out if he or she is aware of the situation.
3. Let your friend or family member know that you have received a call or email from the person requesting help. If the request turns out to be fake, contact the police immediately.
4. Regardless of whether you are contacted by phone, email or some other means, be suspicious of requests to send money to "help a friend or family member out" unless you can verify the information you've been given with 100 percent confidence.
5. If you did send a money transfer through Western Union, and then realize that it was for a scam, contact the Western Union Fraud Hotline at 1-800-448-1492. If the transaction has not been picked up, it will be refunded to you.
6. Never send money to someone you have not met in person.

Holly Park Minor, Major Teams Advance in Magee Classic

By Joe Snyder

Two Holly Park Little League teams from Hawthorne advanced in the Carl Magee Memorial District 37 Tournament of Champions after wins last week. In the Major Division last Saturday at Carl Nielsen Youth Sports Field in Westchester, the Holly Park Giants slipped past the Sportsman Angels from Inglewood 2-1. In the Minors on Friday at Wiseburn Field in Hawthorne, the Holly Park Red Sox downed the Lennox Diamondbacks 7-1.

In the thrilling Major game, the Giants broke a 1-1 tie with a run in the bottom of the fifth inning and then winning pitcher Kenyee Buyard held the Angels scoreless in the top of the sixth, enabling Holly Park to advance to last Sunday's semifinal against the Lawndale Marlins. Holly Park scored the winning run with one out in the fifth when Atin Wright singled home Eric Ortiz, who began the inning with a walk and then went to second base on an error. Each team scored a run in the first inning.

Sportsman scored first on a bases loaded walk to Brandon Mercadez, bringing home Julian Williams. In the bottom of the first, Buyard also scored on a bases loaded walk to Dorian Echols. Buyard was able to go the distance, allowing one run on three hits. He struck out 10 batters, walked six and hit two batters. Williams also pitched well, allowing only three hits in five innings. He struck out 10, including six in a row in the second and third.

BIG INNING LIFTS RED SOX

The Holly Park Red Sox spotted the Diamondbacks a run in the top of the first inning and then took the lead for good with five runs in the top of the third. Holly Park then added two more in the fourth.

After Lennox pitcher Justin Lopez held the Red Sox scoreless through the first two innings, Lopez struggled in the third, giving up three hits and four bases on balls. The inning started with back-to-back hits by Dilliw Render and Keith Moore before Jecgon Doss walked. Render scored the tying run on a single by Justin Roulsten, Vance Williams walked to bring home Moore. The struggling Lopez gave up three more walks to bring home three more runs.

Damian Blake came in for Lennox and gave up two runs in the fourth behind a run-scoring single by Roulsten. Roulsten second and third bases before coming home on a grounder to third by Williams. The Diamondbacks scored in the top of the first when Ricardo Navarro singled, stole second base, went to third on an error and came home on a ground out by Blake.

Moore was the winning pitcher for Holly Park, going three innings and allowing one run on four hits. Williams and Embre Kelly finished for the Red Sox.

MARLINS HOLD OFF A'S

The Lawndale Marlins broke a 1-1 tie with two unearned runs in the top of the sixth inning and held on for a 3-2 win over the Tri Park Athletics in the Carl Magee District 37 Tournament of Champions Saturday at Westchester. The sixth started with Josh Carrillo getting hit by a pitch. Arturo Perez then hit a ball that was bobbled by A's first baseman Jose Aceves. Two more miscues by Tri Park shortstop Bryan Sanders and third baseman Joel Duran brought home Carrillo. Yopez gave Lawndale a 3-1 lead when he scored on a wild pitch.

Down in a two-run hole, Josh Guzman tripled and scored when Aceves hit a ball that bounced over the right field fence for a ground rule double. Errol Gray then walked before Joel Duran hit to third baseman Brandon Garcia. Aceves started out trying to score, but seeing the ball go to catcher Roman Pech, Duran was caught in a rundown. As he tried to go back to third, Pech threw to Garcia who tagged Duran out. Marlin relief pitcher Emilio Barrera, in relief of starter Tory Ruiz, struck out Andrew Godinez to end the game as the Lawndale players jumped for joy after their key victory over a very good A's squad.

The Carl Magee Classic will run through today before the All-Star Classics begin next week.

SMITH DRAFTED IN FIRST ROUND

Former Hawthorne Holly Park Little League baseball standout Dominic Smith was drafted in the first round of the Major League Baseball Amateur Draft by the New York Mets on June 6 and then signed with them on June 11. Smith, who led Gardena Serra to its first CIF-Southern Section Division III championship with an 8-1 win over Manhattan Beach Mira Costa on May 31 at Dodger Stadium, is currently playing for the Mets' Gulf Coast Rookie League squad in Port St. Lucie.

Smith was the 11th pick overall. He was also named Southern Section Division III Player of the Year. •

Politically Speaking

One Man's Opinion

By Gerry Chong

The darkest places in hell are reserved for those who maintain their neutrality in times of moral crisis.

—The Inferno by Dante Alighieri

Thus begins bestselling author Dan Brown in his newest novel, also called Inferno. The author of The Da Vinci Code places all of mankind in a mathematically inevitable doomsday scenario. While a theoretical solution is possible, it would be considered immoral by most. No one can, or should, stay neutral. That is the challenge.

“The distrust of an all-powerful government is the very foundation of our government. How astounding is it that our President, a Constitutional scholar, rejects the basic premise on which our government is based?”

In the real world, the relationship between Americans and their government could not be more clearly drawn. On one side, we have President Obama speaking at the May 5 Commencement at Ohio State University, at which he said:

“Unfortunately you’ve grown up hearing voices that incessantly warn of government as nothing more than some separate, sinister entity that’s at the root of our problem, and they do their best to gum up the works.”

And “they’ll warn that tyranny is always lurking just around the corner. You should reject those voices.”

Really? Those voices that Obama disparages are the voices of our Founding Fathers that filled Independence Hall and gave rise to our Constitution. The distrust of an all-powerful government is the very foundation of our government. How astounding is it that our President, a Constitutional scholar, rejects the basic premise on which our government is based?

To give added credence to the warnings of our Founding Fathers, this administration fills our news cycles with violations of public trust every day.

Clearly the Administration, State Department, and CIA concocted a fairytale to feed Americans in trying to defend the indefensible tragedy at Benghazi.

Would a benevolent administration throw a few low-level IRS employees under the bus by blaming them for targeting political opponents of the Administration? Those employees have denied responsibility, insisting they were following orders from their superiors in Washington.

Would a benevolent government surreptitiously hack into and monitor reporters’ phones and electronic records from the Associated Press and Fox News, violating the “freedom of the press” and earning outrage from even the New York Times?

And would a benevolent government now create the most egregious violation of public trust by secretly gathering information on millions of phone and Internet communications at home and abroad? Edward Snowden, a former technical assistant to the CIA, revealed, “I can’t in good conscience allow the U.S. government to destroy privacy, Internet freedom and basic liberties for people around the world with this massive surveillance machine they’re secretly building. I am not going to hide. Allowing the government to intimidate its people with threats of retaliation for revealing wrongdoing is contrary to the public interest.”

So there you have Dante’s challenge: Should we trust in the good intentions of an all-powerful government, or should we adhere to the rule of law, as Russia’s president has admonished President Obama to follow? Will you sit in the darkest places in hell by staying neutral, or will you speak out? •

Another Man's Opinion

Celebrating the Constitution is A Friendly Reminder of its Importance

By Cristian Vasquez

Given the recent controversy unleashed by NSA scandal it seemed fitting to bring up an issue that State Senator Ted Lieu presented in August of last year. Through SCR98, Sen. Lieu sought to commemorate the 225th anniversary of the signing of the United States Constitution. SCR98, which was a measure approved by lawmakers without the need for the governor’s approval, commemorated the 225th anniversary of the signing of the United States Constitution. Through SCR98 the Senator was attempting to remind Americans of the value and importance of the Constitution while taking the time to celebrate its influence and value to the country.

In the past I have defended the President Obama’s actions on a wide-range of issues but on this topic I have to take a step back. Just like President Bush’s proposal for warrantless wiretapping made my stomach turn, the news that President Obama is defending the actions of federal agents who seized the telephone records of more than 100 million Americans and the email and and their meaning. The vision our Founding Fathers had of equality, justice, rule of law and limited government is as strong today as it was more than 225 years ago. Nobody; not the president, not the NSA is above the constitution. If there is a compelling reason to spy on an individual,

The President made the claim that people’s phone calls and emails are not being monitored but if so, why is the NSA collecting data related to all phone calls, both foreign and domestic made Verizon’s network? Why is the NSA’s program PRISM gathering Internet data from foreign users? Justifying such intrusions on private citizens’ lives by claiming issues of national security is an insult to the American people. Does the administration believe that more than 100 million Americans are involved with terrorist activities? If so issue warrants and go after specific individuals. Going through the files of 100 million plus Americans with no real evidence of wrongdoing is unacceptable and a violation of our Constitution’s fourth amendment. Just like we would not approve of our local police department coming into texting records without a court order is just as disturbing. President Obama and his aides can defend the NSA phone and Internet intercept programs, by claiming that they prevent terrorist all they want but the fact is they acted in secrecy.

“It is simply a rule to ensure that gun owners are being responsible with the storage of their weapons by setting guidelines that will restrict access of such weapons to people who have lost that right.”

While Senator Lieu proposed SCR98 almost a year before these actions by the administration came out, it is a great reminder from somebody in the president’s party that the rules and laws set by the founding fathers apply to everyone. The reason our Constitution has withstood the test of time is because there have been people who honor its words our home without a warrant, we should not be okay with the federal government tapping into our electronic conversations just because they feel it is necessary.

I have nothing to hide and if my calls are monitored or emails are read, they will realize the average, boring life I have. But in the end, it is my boring and average life, which I can choose who to share with. Someone should take a copy of SRC98 to the President and remind him that some people in the Democratic Party still believe in the words written down on our Constitution. No President or federal agency is above the law. •

DELIVERY IN LIMITED AREA AT BOTH LOCATIONS

I'm going home to buffalo to visit my 92 year-old Mom and I can't wait to see her. But more importantly, I can't wait to have all of my favorite foods from my youth. Buffalo has such great local specialties that I have not been able to find anywhere else in the world. Yes, we all know about Buffalo wings, but even the famous wing has been bastardized by the fast food industry. We in Buffalo don't call wings, subs or hotdogs fast food. We call them "specialty" foods. Fast food is a manufactured, processed product. Specialty foods are still made with real ingredients and in a style of the past. One of my cravings will be for the riccotta cheese and brown sugar rice pudding from a small Greek coffee shop on the west side of Buffalo. It's light, but supper rich. Here is my rendition of this Buffalo classic.

The Chef

Riccotta Cheese and Brown Sugar Rice Pudding

- 3 cups heavy cream
- 4 whole eggs
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup chilled & cooked white rice (I like to use sushi rice or a short grain sticky rice)
- 1 cup riccotta cheese
- Pinch salt

Mix together all ingredients and place in a buttered casserole dish. Bake at 325 degrees for 30 to 45 minutes or until firm to the touch and golden brown on the top. Can be eaten hot or cold. Have this summer and be safe.
