The Outside Matters for WWOO in El Segundo

WWOO Kitchen and dining

By Chase Maser

Over the past 25 years, Gina Hoffman and her husband Gregg have been proud members of El Segundo, serving the city in more ways than one.

On a regular basis, Gina is a well-known realtor throughout the community. As the team leader of The Hoffman Group, she represents homebuyers and sellers across the South Bay and parts of Los Angeles. But when she's not selling real estate, her and Gregg get creative with outdoor living spaces inspired by Dutch designers.

"My husband and I own WWOO Concrete Outdoor Kitchens and we also own Outside Matters Landscaping, another staple of El Segundo for the past 25 years," Hoffman explains.

Based at 129 Bungalow Drive, the Hoffman family became licensees of the Dutch-based company, WWOO (pronounced wōō)—created by Dutch designer Piet-Jan van den Kommer. Essentially, WWOO helps homeowners across the country enjoy their garden spaces anytime throughout the year by transforming them with the addition of a functional and stylish outdoor kitchen while still maintaining the openness to the yard. From backyard BBQ layouts to storage areas for firewood, a sink, and cutting boards, WWOO brings style and functionality to homes that typically lack any outdoor appeal.

After all, homes in El Segundo have the tendency to lineup side-by-side without too much room for scenery. Any outdoor space that does remain gets commandeered by weeds or mulch, maybe an aloe plant or cactus—Hoffman aims to inspire a change.

"The product is versatile, durable and affordable," says Hoffman. Not to mention, it's a great way to revitalize current backyard eyesores that put your landscape in a chokehold.

Peter Kahane, a local resident and BBQ enthusiast, was "struggling with a built-in BBQ island that had a massive footprint in [his] backyard" before hiring WWOO to give it a facelift.

"The space was overwhelmed and it left no area for guests," says Kahane. "Working with their team, we came up with a fantastic design that completely transformed my backyard. It's so much easier to prep, cook, serve and entertain. The entire experience was painless and installation was a breeze. Everyone who comes over can't believe it exists and asks where they can get one."

Before WWOO, Kahane's monster BBQ island sat in the middle of his patio, suffocated by chairs and a shrub wall only a foot or two away. During a get-together, it makes the grill master look like a ringmaster taming steak and chicken breasts. After WWOO, the entire island was broken down and refashioned into a garden wall complete with all the necessary equipment. Three rows of shelves open to the air and easy to access. A Big Green Egg kamado-style grill is set into the shelving for a seamless look. The adjacent counter provides space for food preparation and presentation, and is completed with a WWOO cutting board and the movable WWOO towel rail which attaches itself anywhere on the kitchen by sliding onto the counter's front edge. The shelf below also gives extra storage room for outdoor accessories and dishes.

In fact, Kahane's design is only one of an endless number of possible layouts that WWOO has to offer.

The modular WWOO system allows for customization of height, color, orientation, and size. Heights range from a low bench seat to a full 6-and-a-half foot kitchen wall, and is available in the standard colors White, Light Grey, and Dark Grey. Though, if you have a favorite color, WWOO is happy to accommodate.

The kitchens are also compatible with a variety of outdoor amenities whether it be a Big Green Egg or other kamado-style grills, gas grills, fridges, sinks, lighting, or fireplaces. The WWOO team can help find a way to make it work.

The idea behind minimalist Dutch aesthetics is to be compact and linear to free up valuable space, maximizing the outdoor layout to its fullest potential. For Hoffman, she follows that same mindset whenever meeting interior and exterior client needs.

The Hoffman's other business, Outside Matters Landscaping, specializes in hardscape services (patios, decks, walkways, driveways, fences, gates) and softscape services (flowers, plants, shrubs, trees, sod) to make homes and businesses even more attractive to the community.

Although Gina is the one to serve as real estate agent and landscaping business guru, Gregg is no stranger when it comes to making art out of landscaping in disarray.

Doug Sersun, the owner and of the El Segundo Athletic Club shares how Gregg's work is "turning heads."

"[The] staff did a remarkable job...the design and materials are all top notch. That said, I am most satisfied with [their] customer service. [Their] team was professional and courteous and completed the project on time and on budget. Thanks Gregg!"

Another important selling point, too, for Hoffman and Outside Matters is their commitment to sustainable building throughout their work.

Not only do they prioritize green roofing and sustainable wall installations, but they also infuse cutting-edge design techniques to create outdoor projects with more efficiency. Helping customers realize their outdoor potential is only half the battle. The other half requires education and awareness to help improve landscaping upkeep and promote conservation in ways that bolster the environment.

The Hoffmans invite anyone to visit their showroom at 129 Bungalow Drive, open 7 AM to 5 PM Monday through Friday, to check out their WWOO kitchen and shower displays and their selection of Big Green Egg grills and accessories. Feel free to call them at (310) 648-8030 to schedule an appointment if you would like to come by on the weekend, and visit their websites wwoous.com or outsidematterslandscaping.com to connect with Gina and Gregg and start cultivating your outdoor living spaces.

Danish Journalist Investigates a Questionable Death in Cold Case Hammarskjöld

H. Nelson Tracey for cinemacy.com

The true crime documentary Cold Case Hammarskjöld (pronounced Hammer-Scold), now streaming on Hulu, follows Danish director Mads Brügger as he and investigator Göran Björkdahl attempt to investigate a long-dormant case: the mysterious death of UN General Secretary Dag Hammarskjöld in a plane crash in 1961. The event happened in the Congo and quickly ruled an accident, but Hammarskjöld’s controversial support of African autonomy from their previous colonial powers and outside forces (including but not limited to the UK and the US), combined with some sketchy handling of the situation at the time, indicate this may have been more than an accident. Chillingly unbelievable yet undoubtedly real, it is President Kennedy who expresses his sympathy for the unexpected death of this leader – imagine how that plays knowing what became of Kennedy two years later.

The unfolding narrative plays out with elements reminiscent of The Keepers, or even The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo. Brügger knows how to draw in his audience. He begins with some breaking the fourth wall components that work as a series of hooks that require us to sit up and pay attention, as the information in the film is densely layered. Like Werner Herzog, Brügger becomes an onscreen persona, leaning into the subtle comedy of his European mannerisms contrasted with the foreign atmosphere of Central and Southern Africa, though by no means pandering to their differences. Part of Brügger’s strength that is visible onscreen is that he is willing to listen. He diligently follows any possible lead, as well as captures it on camera.

The research enthusiast in me is inspired by the tenacity in finding a story very well hidden, and dormant for over 50 years. The film enthusiast in me is inspired by how well crafted a story about such research is so well compiled. It’s a dense project, as you can imagine, and at times it doesn’t slow down for the viewer to keep up with the names of subjects and conspirators. Ultimately, though, it’s worth your time to focus and keep up with every step of the way. The role Brügger plays pays off as we get a front-row seat to the challenges and frustrations of researching such a challenging story. Not every lead is successful; the film wisely includes some false trails so that we never know if a particular moment will be fruitful or futile.

The culminating film is a masterful and compelling story that has larger and deeper implications that are endlessly debatable. Suffice to say, Cold Case Hammarskjöld was one of the best documentaries of 2019. •

GET YOUR TAX RETURNS DONE FOR FREE

AARP Foundation Tax-Aide helps taxpayers — especially those age 50 and older — file their taxes at nearly 400 sites across California. We use volunteers certified by the IRS, and e-filing from Feb 1 to the end of tax season each year. We use computers and professional tax preparation software supplied to us by the IRS and the AARP Foundation. We work with taxpayers to help them get all the deductions and credits they deserve, using an IRS Intake/Interview sheet that covers every possible area of the tax return. That includes the California expanded Earned Income tax credit (EITC).

You do NOT need to be an AARP member to use these services, and they do returns for people of any age. And it’s completely free.

JOB INTERVIEW WORKSHOP- HAWTHORNE POLICE DEPARTMENT

The Hawthorne Police Department will be hosting a job interview workshop on January 23rd from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. The Police Department understands how nerve-wracking a job interview can be. As they say on their website, "Rather than just going into your next oral interview 'HOPING' you do well, come on down and see what we have to offer. Your future just might end up being a bit brighter for it." The workshop will be instructed by Lieutenant Ti Goetz and Detective Kenny Craig of the Hawthorne Police department. Many have attended this event before, more than satisfied with the outcome. It is very common to have a fear of being interviewed and unsure of one's own skills. This workshop will help anyone overcome those obstacles and be the best candidate they can be. This workshop will be held at the Hawthorne PD Community Room. For more information and to register for the event please visit: hawthornepolice.com/interview-workshop

UFC MCGREGOR VS. CERRONE

FLIGHTS Sports Bar will be showing the premiere of the UFC McGregor vs. Cerrone match. Huber's Hiccups

News for the City of Good Neighbors from an Old Guy Named Norb Huber

HAPPY NEW DECADE?

Did you miss me? Did you think I had quit? Were you hoping that I had quit? Have you sent my email address to spam or to the trash on your computer? Have you stopped looking for the newspaper since I haven't bothered writing any of this stupid stuff lately? No one is forcing you to read this. It really doesn't hurt my feelings if some of you 12 loyal readers give up and drop out. Do you really think I care? I would love to think that at least some of you care, some of you like my jibber jabber. Is there a point to all of this? No. That is the point. I write about you and me and how we have this relationship but neither one of us knows the other. I don't know if you read this, you don't know if I know you read it. So, maybe this is perfect. We can have a relationship with one another and not really bother one another. That seems wonderful. I don't know if you know that God loves you a lot or even if you like cold ones. So, happy new decade, except it's not really a new decade for one more year. Why don't we just wish each other the best in 2020, call it good, and have a cold one.

WHEN IS IT THE RIGHT TIME?

They say timing is everything. But, how do you know if it's the right time? Is it the right time to buy a house, the right time to sell our stocks, the right time to retire, the right time to quit thinking you're young enough to still play in the NBA or NFL and stop getting hurt playing weekend pickup games. When do we really know for sure? For many of us hindsight is when we are at our best. We look back and say if only we would have sold those shares of GM when they were at the top. If only we would have invested in property back in the 60's and 70's we would be living the good life right now. "If only", are two words that lead us to a regretful state of mind. We regret and we look back at all the mistakes we think have made. For Christians we lean on and have peace knowing that Romans 8:28 says, "And we know that for those who love God all things work together for good, for those who are called according to his purpose." No regrets, look forward, stop looking back, use your God given brain to make the best decisions you can and relax. And the peace of God which surpasses all understanding will keep your hearts and minds in Christ Jesus. That is what you call peace and contentment. No worries, just peace of mind.

HOW DO THESE THINGS HAPPEN?

My youngest daughter has had quite a year. A little over a year ago, Katie started dating a fine young man, named Paul. They fell in love. Paul was baptized and confirmed at our church. He proposed to Katie, she accepted. They planned a wedding in five months, got married, went to Disney World on their

Vietnam 19 June 1967 A Day at War

By Milford E. Traber (PARENTAL WARNING:
Graphic and Violent Content)

I was active with The 9th Infantry Division Company B 3rd Battalion 47th Infantry in the Mekong River Delta from 28 January through 31 December 1967. Our duties were to search for, route out and destroy the Vietcong and North Vietnam Regular Divisions who had operated for 40 to fifty years unchallenged and firmly implanted in the rural areas around and south of Saigon. On this particular day, we were targeting an area around the town/hamlet by the name of Tan An located just 18 miles southwest of Saigon. The operation was a search and destroy mission. We were looking for a division of NVA (North Vietnam Army) regulars and their VC (Viet Cong) support groups, which were estimated at about 10,000 people. There were about 2000 (two Battalions) of us (3rd battalion 47th infantry and 4th battalion 47th infantry). We were to be assisted by a battalion of 101st airborne (Screaming Eagle) and a Battalion of ARVN (Army of the Republic of Vietnam), which brought us to about 4,000 men. Soon after we left the village contact was made with the enemy. Company A 4th battalion 47th infantry was the first. While in the process of clearing an extremely large rice paddy, they came under fire by a hostile and numerically superior force.

The NVA were entrenched in the wood line, and Company A was standing knee-deep in mud and water. The NVA used a couple of snipers to lure them into the killing zone. When Company A 4/47 was standing in the middle of the killing zone, the NVA opened up with everything they had. Company A was slaughtered in less than 90 seconds. Everyone was hit, and only eight people came out alive.

The Battalion Commander gave orders for Company B and Company C 3/47 to attack from our position, which was slightly to the west and north of A-Company's 4/47 position. We literally ran down trails that were marked Tu Dai, which was a warning to locals that this trail is booby-trapped. I was carrying the M60 machine gun and just happened to be the first one in our group to go down that trail. Everyone who followed did so by stepping exactly in my footprints. I got lucky and did not step on or fall into a booby trap, and as a result of everyone wading in my tracks, nobody got hurt on that trail. We hit the rice paddy and jumped in the mud up to our knees and came on line for what is known as a final assault (i.e. everybody shoots laying down a base of fire sufficient to make the enemy keep their heads down long enough for us to walk over the top of them and then eradicate them). We started shooting and walking toward the enemy as fast as the knee-deep mud would allow us. The enemy watched as we advanced, and when we were in their killing zone, all hell broke loose.

The enemy opened up on us with everything they had, and people started dropping like flies. We had to keep moving because we were out in the open with no cover or concealment. Our only chance at this time was to walk over the top of these people, route them and kill them. I had already gone through most of my ammo when my assistant gunner brought the last belt. I deliberately left about six rounds hanging out of the gun to make it easier and faster to clip on another belt. I had the gun over my arm and knee to keep it out of the mud. My assistant gunner clipped on the last belt and then took a round from an AK47 in the chest, did a backflip, and landed face up in the mud. I immediately yelled for a medic.

As I looked around, I noticed that everybody else was about 40 to 50 yards to my rear. At least half of our force was either dead or wounded, and the rest were pretty much out of ammo. I saw the Doc coming, so I stood up and began to shoot some more. The Doc started to work on my assistant gunner while I provided cover fire. I was raking the field shooting from the hip and following my tracers when I was hit in my left hand by an AK47 round that tore my hand from the machine gun and rendered me useless. I immediately fell back to lower my profile and screamed at the Doc that I was hit. The Doc asked me where, and I told him in the hand. He asked me “what do you want me to do?” I, realizing that he was working on a far more serious injury than mine, said nothing at the moment, but “I can’t cover you anymore.” The Doc said, “then get your ass out of here.”

I looked around and spotted a bomb crater that our platoon leader, platoon Sgt. Bush, and a rifleman Merrill Suedemeyer were holed up in. I started to do the low crawl towards the crater, and I thought the world was coming to an end. Bullets were hitting in the mud all around me. I got lucky and made the hole. When I rolled into the hole, I found it provided concealment, but not cover. The top was wet mud that bullets could come through, and the rest of the hole was leech-infested water up to your neck. The Lieutenant ordered Suedemeyer to get the machine gun and bring it back to the hole. Suedemeyer set the gun on top of the hole and started to shoot. He lasted about six to ten rounds before he was shot in the neck, fell over me and died.

Sgt. Bush jumped on the gun and fired until the ammo was gone. At this point, a hell of a lot of artillery started landing on the enemy’s position. Then there was almost quiet as the enemy waited for the Dust Off chopper. During this time, the Doc crawled over to the hole and told us that my assistant gunner was dead. Shortly thereafter, my ammo bearer got up and made his way through sporadic fire to get to the hole. When he rolled into the hole, a round came through the mud at the top of the hole and struck him in the left arm. Had that round not hit him, it would have hit me in the head and I would be dead. The Doc started working on his wound and I noticed he was going into shock. I talked to him continuously and shook and slapped him as necessary to keep him from going into shock. He somewhat stabilized, but it was a struggle. It also provided me something else to focus on besides my own wound, which could send me into shock.

When the Dust Off chopper started to come down and take our wounded, the enemy opened fire again, and the chopper aborted his mission. During the next few hours, that scenario happened about four more times. Finally, just before sundown, the chopper pilot radioed that this was the last chance today, so get ready. When the chopper came down, the enemy once again opened up with extremely intense fire. All of the wounded were loaded onto the chopper as bullets rained on it. After all the casualties were loaded, the chopper took off.

The enemy forces kept shooting at the chopper until we got out of range; however, the chopper was so shot up that it became apparent that we were not going to make it much further. It started smoking and sputtering and losing altitude. The pilot spotted a remote MASH outfit by the name of Tain An, which was not too far away. Everyone was praying to God that we would get there before we all lost power.

This, unfortunately, did not happen. Just before we got over the landing strip, the chopper started to fail. The pilot initiated what is called an autorotation crash landing. He cut power to save fuel and allow the rotors to just barely spin and we started to fall like a rock. Just in the last few seconds, the pilot gave full power to soften the landing, and when we hit the landing strip, we skipped like a flat stone across water. We bounced about three to four times and came to a rest on the landing strip. It was a miracle, but everyone lived through it. I was 17 days in the MASH unit, and two surgeries later, I was released to return to combat. •

PFC Traber was a combat infantryman, who served one tour of Vietnam. He is an El Segundo resident and an American hero.

DULCE’S THOUGHTS

NEW YEAR’S RESOLUTIONS

We are now in a new decade—the 2020s—and just saying it just sounds surreal. I never thought I would make it this far. As an eighteen-year-old, my life experiences (even though they are few) have shaped me into the person I am today. I’m looking forward to what the future may hold. However, having said that, I’m not necessarily looking forward to making a New Year’s resolution. I decided to skip out on making one this year, for many reasons, but mainly because I know myself. I have never once followed through on a New Year’s resolution. For many years, I habitually made resolutions, and every year it was the same thing. To be better, do better, and act better. But like I said, I never lived up to it. I know many people who have also told me that they never follow through with their resolutions. So, this year I decided to stop making promises that I know I won’t keep. What needs to happen this year will happen. I can’t predict the future. Instead, I will take life one day at a time and focus on what I need to do that day. Being able to do that is my primary goal for 2020. In my life thus far, I have learned a lot from the many role models that surround me every day. My role models include my family, co-workers, professors, as well as my main supervisor. They have all taught me a lot and I still have more to learn and discover. I guess I just have to be patient and see what the future has in store for me. I don’t need a New Year’s resolution to decide that for me—I just need to be open to learning and aware of the opportunities around me. •

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF:
ROSEMARY HEBERT AKA ROSEMARY COTNER
CASE NO. 19STPB11874

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL, or estate, or both of ROSEMARY HEBERT AKA ROSEMARY COTNER. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by BETINA NEWKIRK in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES. THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that BETINA NEWKIRK be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 01/22/20 at 8:30AM in Dept. 29 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012. IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk. Attorney for Petitioner: BRUCE M. Summary of Adoption of Ordinance 2195 Enacting Section 2.41 of the Hawthorne Municipal Code ("HMC") Re: the Establishment of the Reserve Police Officer Program.

Pursuant to Government Code section 36933(c), the following constitutes a summary of Ordinance No. 2195 which will be considered for adoption by the City Council at its regular meeting on January 28, 2020 at 6:00 p.m. Pursuant to California Government Code section 36933(c) (1), the City Council has previously directed the preparation and publication of a summary of Ordinance No. 2195 which adds Section 2.41 to the Hawthorne Municipal Code establishing the Reserve Police Officer Program. The Hawthorne Police Department supplements its complement with the Reserve Unit, which consists of police officers who are civilian members of the community, and who receive limited compensation in return for performing the functions of sworn police officers. The reserve police officers assume all duties and privileges which are vested in regular police officers while on assignment. Reserve police officers are not exempt from the responsibilities charged to regular police officers by the Department, and are held to standards of conduct enumerated in the Hawthorne Police Department Policies and Procedures Manual. California Penal Code Section 830.6, et seq., sets forth authority to form a reserve unit, and provides guidelines and requirements for the designation of reserve officers. These designations govern the scope of authority and duties of reserve officers. Section 830.6 requires a duly enacted ordinance that grants the Chief of Police the authority to appoint reserve officers to certain level designations. Ordinance 2195 fulfills the requirements of Section 830.6. The City Council finds and determines that there is no possibility that the adoption of this Ordinance will have a significant effect on the environment. Accordingly, this Ordinance is not subject to the requirements of the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) pursuant to Sections 15061(b)(3) and 15378 of Division 6 of Title 14 of the California Code of Regulations. A certified copy of the entirety of the text of Ordinance No. 2195 is available both on the City's website and also in the office of the City Clerk, 4455 West 126th Street, Hawthorne, California, and is open for public inspection. Pursuant to Government Code section 36933(c), the summary Ordinance No. 2195 was published at least five (5) days before the ordinance was considered for adoption on January 28, 2020 at a duly convened regular meeting of the Hawthorne City Council. A black and white photograph of a black kitten. The kitten is looking upwards and slightly to the left. It has large, light-colored eyes and prominent whiskers. The background is a light, textured surface.

Abby

Abby came to her foster family as one of three healthy active kittens. Starting as the shyest of her siblings, Abby quickly came out of her shell to show that she is one of the sweetest kitties her foster family has ever had. She is curious and playful but is careful to observe before she “jumps” into any situation. Like most black kitties, she is ultra-affectionate and loves spending time on her human’s lap. This is one of those kitties who will win you over instantly because her sweetness oozes until your heart overflows from her unconditional

Rocky

Rocky is one-of-a-kind...a dog in a cat's body. When the doorbell rings, he runs to the door so he can be the first to greet visitors because he loves people. Rocky is a hunk of love that will quietly sleep beside you at bedtime and will be your cuddle bug when

These kitties are available for adoption

After the initial online post, Kitten Rescue was contacted by a wonderful couple who were just perfect for him. Banksy wasn't ready to go to his new home just yet, as he still needed to get vaccinations, tested for FeLV/FIV, microchipped and neutered. Thankfully,

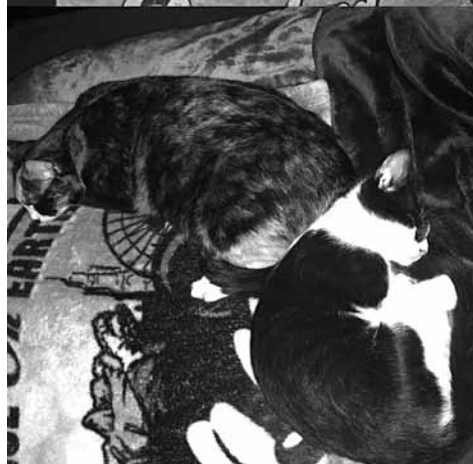

A black and white photograph of a black and white cat with large, expressive eyes, sitting on a textured surface. The cat has a white face with black patches around its eyes and ears. It is looking directly at the camera with a calm expression. The background is dark and out of focus, showing some light spots.
