Chase Waite Keeping Others Happy, Hopeful and Positive

For the past four years, when you roam the halls of El Segundo High School, you were bound to run into Chase Waite. There are many adjectives to describe Chase, but the best may be the kindest person you'll ever meet. His charm, friendly demeanor and smile he greets each person with are the qualities of the well-known boy next door.

Chase has many interests, and he makes each day count. Unlike many teens these days Chase takes each day seriously and makes each one of them count. He knows that the best impression is the first impression. He's a good student and very athletic, but those who know him say he's a great friend who likes to make others smile.

These days Chase wakes up each morning to check his email for his school work, and he stays in touch with his teachers and friends. His four year overall 3.6 GPA is a tribute to his academia. Of all of his classes, Chase's favorite is the Drama class, which he's been in for four years. "My favorite class is the Drama class because of my teacher Mr. Sidwell."

Chase got involved with Drama in his freshman year and he was addicted. "I joined Drama in my freshman year because one of my friends asked me to be in it." According to him, it was one of the best decisions that he had ever made. Chase added, "The class is amazing and I feel like I have another family."

Chase has been in seven shows since his freshman year and he loved each one of them. One of his favorite shows was called "Brothers Grimm Spectaculathon." In the show, he had a total of nine roles, with one of the scenes having him switching through six characters. The numerous characters he played would have been a challenge for most to remember all the lines but not for Chase. He said, "For me, it's a little easier because I have a method of going over the lines multiple times until I remember the lines without having a script in hand." He added, "Mr. Sidwell is an amazing director and he has truly made me a better actor and person in life." He stays involved and active in the school's Drama Club by being elected it's Vice President. He says it's his way of giving back to the club and his second family.

He plans on attending El Camino College using the South Bay Promise pathway for two years to attain his Associate's degree. "The plan is to transfer to another college to finish my degree. I don't have a Major yet, but I am interested in pursuing Sports Broadcasting and doing acting on the side."

Your Neighborhood Therapist

Dear Neighborhood Therapist,

I am one of the lucky ones who still has a job. My company cut salaries across the board, mine included, and even though I'm home and able to work from home I am now working harder than ever, twelve hours a day, six or seven days a week, and I'm exhausted physically and mentally. Even though I have no commute, I feel like I see my family less than before. My job pays most of the bills, so my husband cares for our young child, and I feel like an inadequate mother. On top of this I feel guilty for even thinking this way, knowing how many people are hurting right now. Is there some way to reduce this anxiety?

– "Lucky" Me

Dear Lucky Me,

You have lamented that you don't get to spend time with your family, so I'm guessing that family togetherness is something that you value. You have noted that your job pays most of the bills, so I'm guessing that being a provider is something that you value. You have noted your interest in being an adequate mother, and while we know that society unfairly critiques mothers' parenting much more than that of fathers, I suspect you value having a close and loving relationship with your child. You mentioned you feel guilty that you are employed while others are not, so I would bet that you care about your neighbors and your community.

If I'm right - if you are a family- and community-oriented, loving person with a sense of responsibility - then a lot of things that you value are being tested right now. To make it worse, there is an entire movement dedicated to "leaning in" that insists that working mothers can "have it all" if they get with some imaginary program that includes having time and money and energy and a worthy partner. Any one of those stressors is enough to invite Anxiety to charge in like a schoolyard bully. Together, the problems can seem to invite a whole gang of Anxiety Bullies.

Are you planning to suddenly turn into a bully yourself? Will you cause so much trouble that you'll scare the Anxiety Bullies away? Will you stop caring and lose interest in the well-being of your family and community?

No, no, and no? No bully likes being called out, and the Anxiety Bullies are no exception. Take them on one by one. Give them each a hard stare and tell them that you know exactly why they are here, how long they can stay, and what will make them leave. Remind them they're not strong enough to get your lunch money. You may find they are more bark than bite.

If you need help, or have the ability to help others, please reach out and I will coordinate. If you or someone you know needs to talk to someone, please reach out and I will take as many people as I can during this crisis, regardless of ability to pay.

Please write to tom@tomandrecounseling.com or text to 310.776.5299 with questions about handling what is affecting your life, your family, the community or the world. Film Review

Endings, Beginnings, An Observation of Complicated Love(s)

By Morgan Rojas for Cinemacy.com

"Everything might not be ok, but that's ok. You're exactly where you need to be." It's a sentiment that's exceptionally fitting right now, and a beautiful takeaway from Endings, Beginnings, the latest feature from director Drake Doremus. In these times of self-isolation and social distancing, I'm finding his films to be more therapeutic Shailene Woodley portrays with incredible honesty. Her performance is raw, selfish, and, admittedly, relatable. Co-stars Jamie Dornan and Sebastian Stan meet her level of artistry, creating scenes that cut right to the heart.

Endings, Beginnings is made up of an abundance of subtext and that is partly fueled by the film's soundtrack and Frank's "Music To Suffer To" Spotify playlist. Moody tracks than ever. Although we may be watching from within our homes on VOD, we will still be connected through its message that: We're allowed to give ourselves the room for personal exploration without judgment, and the vulnerability to admit our universal human desire: to love and be loved.

Daphne (Shailene Woodley) is fresh off a breakup with her long-term boyfriend (Matthew Gray Gubler) and currently calling her sister's Los Angeles pool house home. After four years of struggling to find contentment in her relationship – "Searching for a yes, and never finding it" – the only commitment she is looking forward to having is the one with herself. Daphne romanticizes her future; full of travel plans, bold expressions, and wild adventures. But her intentions are tested when she meets Jack (Jamie Dornan) and Frank (Sebastian Stan), two men who light up Daphne in very different ways, and who also happen to be best friends. This unexpected and complicated love triangle forces Daphne to re-examine past traumas and dependencies and re-prioritize the future she had envisioned for herself.

Scrolling Instagram during personal moments of self-inflicted sappiness, I recently came across a saying that's stuck with me, "The timing isn't wrong, the person is." In this case, Daphne finds compatibility and is attracted to two men, one providing passion and one stability. This sexual vs intellectual chemistry provokes an emotional crisis that from Beach House, Hayden Thorpe, Lawrence Rothman, and more act as musical poetry that embellishes every scene. Additional subtext and emotional catharsis swirl throughout the film and let the audience fill in the blanks with occurrences from their own lives. Blue-toned cinematography by Marianne Bakke and imaginative editing by Garret Price also gives the film its dream-like quality.

Triangles have sharp edges, and when it comes to love, someone's bound to get hurt. Endings, Beginnings, now streaming, is a reminder that even with earnest intentions, life doesn't always go according to plan. The sooner we are able to accept this reality with love and grace, the happier and more fulfilled our crazy, chaotic, and beautiful lives will be. •

Huber's Hiccups

News for the City of Good Neighbors from an Old Guy named Norb Huber

WAITING

I hate waiting in line. Am I impatient? Sure. I always have felt like it's a big waste of my time whenever I've had to wait to check out at the grocery store, deposit a check at the bank, stand in line to purchase a ticket at a baseball game, or worse yet, waiting to get into the men's room at Dodger Stadium. None of us really look forward to hurry up and wait. I haven't even mentioned the congested 405 freeway "stop and wait" syndrome. Maybe that's why this period has seemed so long. All of us have been in a holding pattern. Air traffic control has not given us permission to land yet. Who really knows how long we will have to circle the landing area? Just like my roller coaster phobia, I don't do well when turbulence starts bouncing our jumbo jet around when we are passing through some air pockets. We keep waiting to get the "all's clear" signal from our captain. Some of us are getting a little antsy to get off of our plane ride and hit the ground running. But, our leaders say that's not going to happen. It's going to be slow, really slow, much like when we disembark from our plane's economy section. As soon as the flight attendant tells everyone that it is safe to unbuckle, every passenger stands up to get their luggage out of the overhead compartment and then waits for twenty minutes for people ahead of them to leave. Our "reopening" is going to be methodical and our adjustment to the "new norm" may take some time getting used to. Even in our troubles and our bumpy ride we can take heart. In his letter to the church in Rome, Paul writes, "We also have joy with our troubles, because we know that these troubles produce patience.

And patience produces character, and character produces hope. And this hope will never disappoint us, because God has poured out his love to fill our hearts." I don't know about you, but I'm tired of building character. I'm getting impatient. But, we all could use some hope. Every day we need to be reminded of who is pouring his love out for us and all the blessings He bestows upon us. One of these days we will be able to grab our bags at baggage claim, walk straight out of the terminal, and give our loved ones a big hug celebrating our arrival back to the wonderful world of cars, smog and congestion. Won't it be great to be stuck on the 405 in traffic for an hour getting home from LAX to Hawthorne?

Social media platforms are an excellent and efficient way to share the availability of resources amidst times like this, but unfortunately most senior citizens are not yet connected to online social media platforms. One of the programs made available is

Participants must call the Recreation office at 310-349-1640 to register and receive details on when delivery dates will be. If you are a senior (or know of a senior) that would like to participate, the requirements are as follows: you must be of age 60 or above and a resident of Hawthorne. Chase Waite

If he doesn't go into sports broadcasting, he might think about being a public address announcer. He did some P.A. work at the Eagles football games. He wasn't intimidated by something he'd never done before and learned very quickly.

Chase stays active these days by shooting baskets, playing the keyboard and staying involved in the Special Effects Club. Though he hasn't played basketball for the Eagles, he recently made the Los Angeles Elite Basketball club team. He would play every day after school with friends, but now he's been shooting by himself. He got involved in the Special Effects Club, thanks to his best friend, Ray. They are currently working on a scary horror movie.

Chase's greatest passion is making others smile. So when he's not studying lines for a play, you can find him in writing funny and entertaining rap lyrics. "I love to write funny and entertaining rap songs that I post on my YouTube Channel called 'The DAWG Vlog.'" He added, "it's fun to make my friends smile and laugh by recording the songs."

Chase is very close with his family and you can be sure they have plenty of family nights these days. They do so by watching movies, playing board games together and listening to Chase play the keyboard.

Chase is upbeat about the world and life, in general, these days. He, like the rest of us, sees the challenges and misses going out to eat with his family, having the freedom to hang out with his friends and attending school in general. But he says, "This bump in the road of history will soon be a memory."

When the class of 2020 has their reunions, they will most likely reminisce about their four years in high school, especially their senior year. Many people will be remembered, but few will stand out for what they meant to the school and their classmates. Chase Waite is one of those who will be remembered as a best friend who made them smile and feel good about themselves. He said, "I love to make people laugh and I hope everyone remembers me as a happy and positive guy." No doubt, Chase has left his imprint of keeping others happy, hopeful and positive. •

Maintaining Social Distancing with Family and Friends

(BPT) - Bob Dylan once sang, "For the times they are a-changin'," and that has perhaps never been more true than it is today. The COVID-19 pandemic has introduced new phrases like social distancing to the general population, and has also redefined both work and family life, creating a new normal.

This adjustment is not an easy one, keeping most folks from daily interaction with family and friends. The good news is there are ways you can still spend time with those you care about, all while practicing the nuanced art of social distancing.

Start New Traditions While Supporting Those in Need

While traditional dining out is not currently possible, it's the perfect time to start a new tradition around mealtime. Noodles & Company now offers family meals that you can conveniently order online and pick up either via quick pick-up or the new curbside pick-up, which is available at nearly 350 locations nationwide. Additionally, you can also enjoy free delivery through April 30 when ordering directly from Noodles.com or by using the Noodles app, which makes staying at home even easier.

Plus, for every family meal ordered, Noodles & Company will donate one regular entrée to a healthcare worker in an effort to give back to those who deserve it most right now. So, it's time to get menu-browsing and pick which tasty option your family can enjoy for lunch or dinner today. Cultivating connection is now more important than ever, and the new family meals make it easy to connect with loved ones over a warm and delicious bowl of noodles, whether they're miles away over a computer screen or across the table. No matter the distance, Noodles can help your family focus on what matters most: company.

Schedule Virtual Activities

While it may seem easy to connect with family and friends while homebound, many have found it to be quite difficult.

Instead of trying to find additional time in the day to connect with those you love, a great alternative is to leverage the existing time you once allocated to other activities before social distancing took effect. This time can then be spent with loved ones by enjoying activities via video chat.

For example, if you used to take lunchtime walks with coworkers you can now spend that time enjoying a virtual workout class together. If you used to attend happy hours or other group activities with friends or family, you can now take part in online games, courses or virtual book club meetings instead.

Commit with your friends and family to stick with your favorite activities and routines and you'll be reunited together in person before you know it.

Switch Up Story Time

If you have little ones at home, they are likely missing the loved ones they are used to frequently seeing in person. One of the easiest ways to incorporate these people into your children's lives in a meaningful way is to reinvent the story time portion of their bedtime routine. Instead of tackling the story yourself, have a loved one read to them instead via video conference. Whether you flip the pages for your guest reader or they read a book from home across the screen, it's a simple activity that's sure to bring everyone closer together.

Embrace Traditional Communication

In times like these, the communication you send with a personalized touch will resonate with loved ones the most. Writing a letter or sending a care package creates a one-of-a-kind nostalgic feeling the recipient is sure to appreciate. Plus, you don't have to live entirely in the present. Using letters to plan for future events and vacations can be a great way to reduce stress during uncertain times and can be a promising light at the end of the tunnel.

Social distancing shouldn't mean isolation. Employ the tips above and be proactive in your efforts to connect with loved ones to strengthen the relationships that matter most. •

Directions

- Step 1: Heat the oven to 400°F. Line 2 baking sheets with parchment paper.
- Step 2: Sprinkle half the brown sugar on the work surface. Unfold the pastry sheet on the work surface. Sprinkle the pastry with the remaining brown sugar. Roll the pastry sheet into a 14x10-inch rectangle. Cut the pastry sheet in half lengthwise. Cut each half crosswise into 18 (3/4-inch wide) strips, making 36.
- Step 3: Cut the bacon slices in half lengthwise, then crosswise, making 36 (about 5x1/2-inch) strips.
- Step 4: Place 1 bacon strip on each pastry strip. Twist the pastry and bacon together and place on the baking sheets, pressing down the ends. Stir the cheese and cayenne pepper in a small bowl. Sprinkle the pastries with the cheese mixture.
- Step 5: Bake for 15 minutes or until the pastries are golden brown and the bacon is crisp. Let the pastries cool on the baking sheets on wire racks for 5 minutes.

PETSPETS Pets PETSPETS

Purrrfect Companions

Lanie

Every second of every minute of every day, a helpless animal is put to death just because no one was there to take them home. Give them second chance for love when you adopt one of these precious kitties. You can also check out their friends on our website – www.kittenrescue.org

Lanie was brought to a shelter by her owners. They had lost their home and had been living in their car. They felt she deserved more perfect indoor family pet. This sweet boy gets along fine with other cats and dogs, as long as they don't bully him. Romeo is a lover, not a fighter!

Who would love a pair of adorable puzzling kitties?! Roy and Tippy Tail were rescued from the city shelter as bottle babies. Roy is incredibly affectionate and loving, always sleeping on the bed or climbing on top of other kitties. He loves to squeeze himself is observant, calm and playful. She prefers to come to you and sit near or above you, not a lap cat, at least not yet. She will watch you as you move about and race you to her favorite play spots to engage you in play. Wand toys and strings are her favorite and she is quite athletic. She currently loves to play with her son and housemate, Marlon. Although Sydney is not too shy, she needs a quiet household where she can feel safe so she can strut about contentedly.

Dakota is a chill dude with a short, crooked tail. He likes to hang out and observe his environment, but he always down for playing with any type of string toy. Dakota tolerates brushing and petting to an extent, being more on the independent side vs. wanting to glue himself to a human. Dakota's ideal person would have some experience with cats and would give him a chance to relax into his environment. Though we haven't seen him get involved in mutual grooming sessions, he does get along with most cats and could do well in a home where he was the only kitty or could share the space with other cat tolerant cats. Dakota is waiting for his special serious eyes and is very talkative. He has the loudest purr you'll find from a young kitty. He loves to play, allows nail clippings and is a lap cat. Although he still has big kitten energy, The Professor is not destructive, and only scratches on posts, not furniture.

These cats and kittens are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. Temporarily, adoption events are suspended. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org or email us at mail@kittenrescue.org.

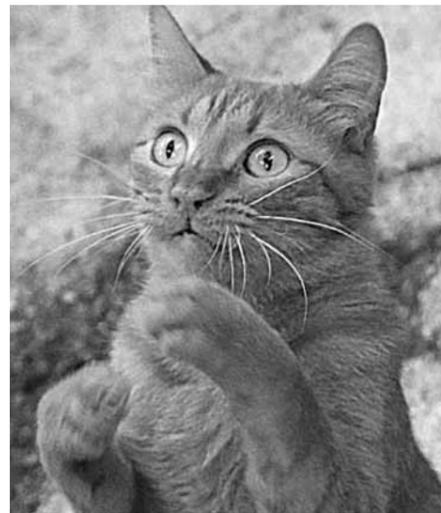

With our city and state shut down, we are faced with the delicate balance to protect our fellow humans from the spread of COVID-19, while continuing our mission of saving the most vulnerable victims of the homeless cat crisis. We know that these are hard times for everyone. If you can give a little, it will go a long way. They are still counting on us during these difficult times. Your tax-than they could give her and Kitten Rescue stepped in. We think she's around 15 years old and has had some extensive dental work, having had 9 teeth pulled, but since then has had no health issues. She came to her foster home very depressed and overweight, but after a few months of love and attention, she has blossomed into a happy loving kitty. Lanie is just so happy to be around people and has learned to tolerate the two young male cats in her foster home. Her ideal situation would be to be as a solo kitty. She loves a lap and a snuggle in bed and wants nothing more than chin scratches and kisses. Can you give her the retirement home she deserves?

Romeo is such a lover! He's a gorgeous boy who loves to be pet and cuddled. Truly, he is one of the sweetest kitties you'll ever meet. Romeo was living in a coyote filled neighborhood outdoors for the past two years; it's a miracle he's still alive. He is very social, affectionate and loving, and will make the between kitties, always wanting to be the center of attention. Roy loves to roll around on his back and will follow you to every room. He loves other cats and would adore a feline buddy in his home. This great, lanky boy is sure to make someone's home extra special! Tippy Tail is an adventurous, boisterous, leader of his litter. As the biggest kitten, he has always been the first one to explore, the first to try something new, and the first to claim a toy. Tippy is hilarious with toys, growling over them and carrying them around the house. He will purr like crazy when pet, and sleeps on the bed with you. Tippy Tail is both independent and gets along great with other kitties. Both would love a feline buddy in their home and can be adopted together or with any of his siblings or foster friends. Tippy Tail and Roy would be a great addition to any family.

Sydney is a young beautifully elegant steel grey cat with amazingly soft fur. She person to take him home.

Born in a car in Gardena, The Professor was a loved street kitten for the first five weeks of his life until he and his siblings got an upper respiratory disease. Along with their mom Dale, The Professor and his siblings were rescued their foster mother so they could be medicated and loved. The Professor has big deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 914 Westwood Blvd. #583, Los Angeles, CA 90024.

Saving one animal won't change the world, but the world will surely change for that animal. •

Happy Tails

Rescued as babies from a city shelter, Elric and Caramel were kittens featured for adoption in the Herald newspapers. Last week they went home with their forever family. These two snugglers are loving life with and have an adorable six-year-old little girl to love.

Their foster mom Cynthia sent a fond farewell, "Bye babies - have a wonderful life!!!"

When you adopt a "pet without a partner", you will forever make a difference in their life and they are sure to make a difference in yours. •
