Kyle Myers Enjoying his Fun Life

By Gregg McMullin

In every graduating class, you'll find some very influential students. They will be standout students who get involved with the ASB. Others will be active in drama, the band, choir or clubs. Then there are those who made their mark as outstanding athletes. Kyle Myers is one of those students who was influential in an all-around way. A friend to all, he will be remembered as a down to earth person who was funny.

When you first meet Kyle, you'll notice he is not flashy, outspoken, or one that craves attention. You are drawn to his innocence and his shy demeanor that lightens the room with his funny disposition. Kyle reminds you of someone you need to be friends with because he makes everyone around him feel important.

Kyle says his favorite class is AVID, which stands for Advancement via Individual Determination. AVID helps prepare students for college by getting them to try more challenging courses, and by getting them to think more in-depth about their future. He's been in AVID all four years and says it was the best decision he's ever made to enroll. He says the class was so important to him that it was like a second family, and he made life-long friends. "My favorite teacher was Mr. (Jim) Whalen in AVID because he has taught me a lot about school and life."

Kyle is like other students going through these uncertain times. He stays in touch with his friends online and the typical social media outlets. He says he's been using voice calls more and more these days too. He admits to playing an online game with friends, "We play Call to Duty for entertainment and stay connected."

Kyle has been a good student throughout his four years of high school. He will take an impressive 3.6 GPA to San Marcos State to study Business Management. His AVID teacher, Mr. Whalen, says, "Kyle embodies the AVID spirit, which is to bring your determination to succeed but to do it in a team framework. Kyle is a key component of a strong AVID class of 38 graduates this year. I cannot imagine his classmates feel anything but respect for him because he is a guy who shows care and concern for others."

Kyle comes from an athletic family, so naturally, he was interested in sports. His grandfather, Jerry Filson, was one of his class' top athletes. He was a two-year starter for the baseball team that won back-to-back CIF championships. In his only year of playing baseball as a freshman, Kyle became the lead-off batter and played centerfield. Kyle also played basketball, football and ran track.

Kyle played basketball and football for all four years and ran track his sophomore year. Kyle's love for basketball was noticeable, and he was one of the team's leaders on each team he played on.

His basketball coach, David March, was impressed with Kyle and said, "He was one of the hardest working and toughest players I ever coached. Kyle epitomizes what El Segundo basketball is all about." Kyle was the team's Defensive Player of the Year his senior year.

On the football field, Kyle, a two-year starter, used his speed and knack for being a defensive standout. His legendary football coach, Steve Shevlin, says he could always count on Kyle. "Kyle's football IQ was high, and he stood out because of his competitiveness." Coach Shevlin went on to say that Kyle was as intense as an athlete he's had and, "he embraced competition."

Paul Pondella couldn't fill out a job application.

His dyslexia was too overwhelming, and at the age of 18, he was kicked out of high school. Two weeks later, in 1978, he was arrested for growing marijuana. Standing in front of the judge, he was given a choice: get a job or go to prison.

Paul played baseball during school. He was an all-star for 12 of the 13 years he played, and remembering that McDonald's was one of his team sponsors in the past, he found a contact and met for an interview. The manager was happy to see him. Right away, he gave Paul a free meal and an application to fill out, but panic set in.

"I was so embarrassed that I couldn't read the application," says Paul.

"I snuck out of the restaurant and left the food there, too. Then I went back home and the only place I knew where to go next was outside. I couldn't apply for a job, but I had enough courage to go and knock on neighbors' doors to ask if I could mow their lawns and clean their yards."

So after a failed interview at McDonald's, Tree King Tree Service was born and it evolved from there.

Film Review

Yes—You Should be Watching Netflix's New Jazz Drama Series, The Eddy

By Ryan Rojas,
Executive Editor, Cinemacy

Note for note, The Eddy nails how life, in all of its free-spirited, surprising—and at it's darker core, chaotic and uncontrollable—moments, is like the beautiful harmony of jazz music.

And no other current filmmaker makes that musical leap to film better than Damien episode follows a different character). But beyond all that, The Eddy is really at its best when the story builds to a musical sequence, at which point it stops to sink into the best jazz jams you've heard, and all from the walls of a real Parisian nightclub (and really, is there anything better than being transported to the heart of Paris while we're all locked down right now?). From the band's on-stage

Chazelle, who first splashed onto the scene with 2014's Whiplash, only to follow that with the Hollywood musical throwback La La Land, which made Chazelle the youngest Best Director winner in Oscars history. With his newest project, Chazelle side-steps narrative features to get into the mini-series game, here making an 8 episode story for Netflix (now streaming). Centered around American nightclub owner and previously prodigious pianist, The Eddy (the name of the club) tells the story of Elliot (André Holland) trying to save his Parisian nightclub, as well as his band and singer (Joanna Kulig) from going under. Throw in a newly transplanted daughter (Amandla Sternberg) and a mob that's come around to settle their debts, and you get a show that's exciting, gripping, dramatic, and visually stunning (the series was shot on 16mm film, which lends a grain not typical for Netflix or any streamer).

Fans of the director will have already noticed how Chazelle centers his stories around gifted artists whose attempts to achieve greatness through their craft often consume their realities, and audiences will be happy to see similar themes here, with Holland's heartfelt performance driving the show (although each jams, to spontaneous musical moments that sprout up like weeds on the streets, you're going to find yourself rewinding, sitting breathlessly, and snapping to the rhythms from the comfort of your couch.

The Eddy proves that life is just better in the key of Damien Chazelle. 'The Eddy' is now streaming on Netflix. Ryan is an El Segundo native and is the Executive Editor of Cinemacy, read more of his reviews, features and interviews at www.cinemacy.com. •

Your Neighborhood Therapist

Dear Neighborhood Therapist,

I have been at my job for eight years. I used to really like it. When I first started, I was doing the kind of work I had always hoped to do. I still do some of that work, and I like my clients, but there has been a lot of turnover in these eight years, and it is an entirely different workplace from the one I joined. Now, the atmosphere is poisoned with backstabbing careerists, and that's just not me. The idea of talking to my boss and some of my co-workers terrifies me. I get actual nightmares. My income and the health insurance my job provides are both important to our family, but I don't know if I can take the stress anymore. It's affecting my physical health and our family life. It breaks my heart that the company I used to love has changed so much. I don't know what to do.

— Between a Rock and Hard Place, El Segundo

Dear Rock and a Hard Place,

Sometimes, if we are lucky in our work and career, we hit the trifecta: a job that pays the bills, offers work we find fulfilling, and has co-workers whom we like and respect. We too often undervalue this last aspect of our work life. Work you love can be ruined by the wrong people around you. Having the right people around you can make hard jobs more tolerable. You were lucky and caught lightning in a bottle, but organizations change just like people do. It sounds like you entered this job in good faith, and willingly gave it a part of yourself only to be betrayed years later. This stinks.

It is also something that happens with human relationships, and thinking of this as a relationship is a helpful way to consider your dilemma. People often stay in relationships because so much of their identity is connected to what used to be the good parts. Eight years ago when you joined, you were happy to associate yourself with the job you did and the people around you. Now it's toxic. How can you square that? You can't. Nobody can, but we all try because we have invested so much, and it adds to the anxiety.

You hit on something important. Keep hammering at this: the place has changed. The place has changed. The place has changed. You are not the organization you work for. You don't share values. This is not what you signed up for. It is not who you are.

Only you will know if you should stay or quit. You may be stuck in a situation that you are powerless to change at least in the short-term. People stay in bad relationships or bad jobs for all kinds of reasons, including survival. You may find that in today's uncertain work environment, leaving is too risky, even in spite of the damage the job is doing.

Many of us, at some point in our lives, find ourselves in situations where none of our options allow us to be our best selves. No matter what, remember you said this about your situation: "That's just not me." You know who you are, and this job is not it.

It's also not forever.

ZOOM FAMILY GATHERING

Want to spend time with family without the dangers of the pandemic spreading between family members? Zoom is the perfect place for this. If you haven't yet heard of Zoom, this is a downloadable program where you can have a virtual meeting with other people from around the world using your camera and microphone. This is a good time to try something new in regards to social gatherings and make it online. All you would have to do is go to Zoom.com on your computer, or download the Zoom application from the Apple store or Google Play store, and follow the instructions on setting up your account and program. This past Mother's Day, I created a Mother's Day virtual gathering with several of my family members. There were a total of 10 of us connected and everyone had a great time sharing personal stories and laughter together. I highly recommend this to be your next family arrangement or to simply stay connected together.

PLAY AN ONLINE GAME

Do you have a drive to play against others in a little good old fashion competition? Try out some online games where you can play against real people in virtual matches. To find a game you are interested in, go to your Apple store or Google Play store on your mobile device, search for a game you are interested in (Words with Friends, UNO!, or several online card/board games), read over the game's description to check if it's an online game, and download it to your phone! Once downloaded, give it a try. If you end up not being interested in the initial game you've downloaded, you can always uninstall it and try something else! Online games is a great way to pass the time while having fun playing against other people from around the world. It's a great way to keep you occupied as well as keep you mentally sharp as you look for ways to outsmart your opponent and win.

JOSH'S THOUGHTS

Hello Hawthorne! My name is Josh and I am one of several interns working for the City Clerk's office of Hawthorne. I am twenty-four years old and I am going to be transferring to the University of California Santa Cruz this coming fall! I've written once before when Brissa (our previous writer) was just starting, and now that she is moving towards the next stages of her life we are already missing her kind personality and creative thinking that she shared with us at the office (or at least our virtual office these days). With that said, I just wanted to remind everyone that staying positive is the single most important thing we can do during these times (in addition to keeping good nutrition). Positive thinking will keep a healthy mind that will help to make good health decisions for ourselves and our families. I've seen a lot of positive things come out of communities all around us. For instance, I saw on the news there was (or possibly still is) an urban safari created in a SoCal community where people have large inflatable animals on their front lawns for display and families can drive around searching for these animals using a map they are able to print from an online website. What an idea! Even in our own Hawthorne community, several homeowners agreed to put up a stuffed animal bear in their front window last month for parents to go around the neighborhood with their children and do some 'bear spotting' or 'bear hunting.' Simple and fun for the family! What an amazing job we are doing, and we should all keep up the good work on supporting one another since it still looks like we'll be in this for a while. As always, stay safe out there. •

WHAT I LEARNED IN KINDERGARTEN MIGHT NOT HAVE BEEN ALL I NEEDED TO KNOW

I was a late bloomer. I didn't talk until I was four years of age and had to stay after dismissal in kindergarten to work with my teacher on speaking. Ever since then, I have never been one to keep my mouth shut as demonstrated by being a long winded politician during my nine year stint as City Clerk. Speaking was not the only thing I was taught during my first year in public education. Like most all of us, I was told to keep my hands and feet to myself, raise my hand if I wanted to ask a question or go to the bathroom, wash my hands after going, be nice and respectful to my peers and teacher, clean up after myself, and study hard. If we did all of these things, then we would surely succeed. Yes, that all sounds like a winning formula but as we all know, even if we followed all of this wonderful instruction, things don't always turn out the way we envisioned them to. Instilling the American Work Ethic in a generation or two did not guarantee a "live happily ever after" life for everyone. From our experience, we know that we learn from our failures, grow when we are faced with challenges, and gain confidence when we overcome our doubts and anxiety. Life has not been what we envisioned the past two months. Just nine weeks ago, it seemed like we were all doing the right things. America was employed. People were enjoying the fruits of their labor. Just like those kindergartners learning their life lessons on Zoom today, we never could have envisioned what life would throw at us. A big lesson that we did not learn when we were five years of age is that we are not in control of our lives. Life happens, and we have to deal with it. The center of the universe is not me, myself and I. Does all of this stuff happen by chance? Is there a rhyme or reason to life's melody? Are we all just a haphazard of nature? My answer to all three questions is no. There is an Almighty Being, God. He is in control. He provides what we need, not necessarily player. He was a unanimous first-team All-Ocean League Defensive team selection his senior year. He was also voted his team's Most Versatile Player with his Special Teams skills as a punt and kick returner; he was also a receiver on offense.

Each of his baseball, football and basketball coaches said essentially the same. Kyle could be counted on to make a difference when the game was on the line. Kyle says that more than anything, "Playing sports has taught me responsibility, teamwork, and integrity. Also, to be successful, you have to work together as a team."

The hardest thing for any high school athlete is when it's all over and knowing they won't be playing competitively anymore. Kyle says he'll miss his teammates, coaches, the discipline of being an athlete and the bonds of friendships he's made with so many. Those friendships he's made will last a lifetime, he says.

Besides being a standout athlete and student

Kyle is a talented singer, according to choir teacher Gianna Summers. With his busy sports schedule, he didn't have the opportunity or time to pursue his vocal talents.

Kyle is succinct when it comes to his goals after high school. "I'd like to finish college and have fun doing it." He says he knows the college environment will be a challenge, and he's ready to embrace the next chapter of his life. He added that he's hoping to be successful and live comfortably after getting his degree.

What will his classmates remember about him at future reunions? He was a down-to-earth, nice, friendly, and funny guy who had fun enjoying his life. •

Wolves

Shadowland Foundation—a non-profit that hosts on-site events and programs to educate people about wolves.

Colette serves as Co-founder and Program Director of Shadowland, but her affinity for wolves began when she met Paul outside of a spiritual center.

“We were friends for about a month,” says Colette, “but we had similar stories of how our marriages ended and I felt bad for him.”

Before crossing paths with Colette, Paul went through a whirlwind of trauma despite becoming an arborist and building a successful business.

As a young man, he struggled with alcohol and drug addiction, but that didn't keep him from working hard. Out on the job, he would often get calls from clients to remove cats and iguanas from trees. Even the SPCA would enlist him to help with rescue efforts in the Angeles Forest, and one day in the early 1980s, he got a call to rescue a wolf-husky mix that was sick with Canine Parvovirus.

“Everyone said to have it put down, but I took it to a veterinarian that I knew and he treated her—she lived. Her name was Panda and she was amazing, but time with the four-leggeds expires way too quickly,” says Paul.

After Panda died, Paul was called once again to the Angeles Forest in the early 90s to rescue a timber wolf named Kiva.

“We rescued her and I asked animal control what I was supposed to do, but they just turned and walked away,” Paul explains. “Now, I don't know if that's what they were supposed to do or not, but the energy of the forest spoke to me and brought Kiva and I together. That's when I realized, too, that this was something I needed to bring back to the community to educate people about.”

There are four different programs that the Shadowland Foundation has to offer:

Playing with Wolves: Wolf Education for Children of All Ages—children have the opportunity to learn about the true nature of wolves and interact with them up close to help understand their beauty, majesty, and ensure their survival for the future.

Wolf Pack: Teen Motivation Programs—using the unity and power of the wolf to educate teens about community and self-acceptance. Teens are introduced to the wolves to help develop their individuality, passions, and purpose.

Power of the Pack: Successful Teams and Organizations—reserved for groups and organizations to develop and attain their highest potential. Wolves embody strong leadership qualities and true interdependence that others can learn from to build their own success.

Wolves & Warriors—designed for service members to help process and understand trauma developed from PTSD. Like the wolf pack, servicemen and women epitomize the safety and survival of everyone—this program reminds them of their courage and strength of spirit.

Within all of these programs, Paul and Colette lead by two principles: FAITH and HOPE.

“If you spell the word faith, F-A-I-T-H—Finding Answers In The Heart—and when you learn to live from the heart's energy, you can then ask yourself, ‘Okay, how do I make this work?’ From there, you then move onto hope, H-O-P-E—Helping Other People Evolve,” says Paul.

One of the most nurturing wolves in the pack is Freedom. Paul and Colette describe him as a “Wellness Wolf” that doesn't see flaws or judgments.

what we want. We are here on Earth because God created us in His image and has given us vocations in which to serve him and others. All of us have value. God cares and loves his creation. The comfort that I am reminded of during times of challenge is found in Romans 8:28-29, which reads: “For I am sure that neither death nor life, nor angels nor rulers, nor things present nor things to come, nor powers, nor height or depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord.” God loves us, and there is nothing that can cut us off from that love except ourselves. If we still think we can control everything, if we think we are God, then there is no room for God to love us. Why not just relax, have a cold one, and let God love you? We try so hard to get others to love us, we don't have to try to have God love us, we just have to allow him to love us. We learned a lot way back in kindergarten. We continue to learn life lessons every day. God is our teacher, and he loves us. How much better and easier can it get? Be safe my loyal readers.

HAWTHORNE, CA SIMPLY AMAZING!

I write this stuff on Tuesday evening, so I don't know if the SpaceX rocket carrying two astronauts up to the International Space Station was able to launch with the impending bad weather hovering around the Florida Cape site. Regardless, President Trump and VP Pence both plan to be there in person to witness the ceremonial “reopening of America” that was designed and made in HAWTHORNE, CALIFORNIA! Wow! The astounding history, legacy, and the weird and wild unique past of a relatively flat, 5 mile square piece of land south of LA, covered with concrete and apartment complexes continues to astound those who know what has gone on in the City of Good Neighbors for the past 98 years. Several years ago, when I was part of the Hawthorne Historical Society, I wrote a long article about all the people who have called Hawthorne home. With SpaceX in the house, Hawthorne continues to amaze.

Summary of Ordinance 2202 Enacting Chapter 2.3 of the Hawthorne Municipal Code ("HMC") Re: Elected and Appointed Officials Disclosure of Ex Parte Communications.

Pursuant to Government Code section 36933(c), the following constitutes a summary of Ordinance No. 2202 which will be considered for adoption by the City Council at its regular meeting on June 9, 2020 at 6:00 p.m. Pursuant to California Government Code section 36933(c) (1), the City Council has previously directed the preparation and publication of a summary of Ordinance No. 2202 which enacts Chapter 2.3 of the Hawthorne Municipal Code requiring disclosure of all Ex Parte Communications of elected and appointed officials as follows:

Purpose of Ordinance No. 2202. Enactment of Chapter 2.3 will promote transparency, accountability, and full disclosure of attempts to influence City officials making decisions on legislative, administrative, and quasi-judicial matters. The reporting of and disclosure of certain communications by City officials shall be required.

A City elected or appointed official shall disclose all ex parte communications with any interested person defined as any person who engages in promoting or influencing any administrative, legislative, or quasi-judicial action or any person with a financial interest in any administrative, legislative, or quasi-judicial action before the city council or any other city commission.

Ex parte communication shall mean any direct communication between an interested person and a City elected official attempting to influence administrative, legislative, or quasi-judicial action that is not public testimony or made part of the public record. The following are not ex parte communications: 1) any communication between a staff member acting in his or her official capacity and any City elected or appointed official or interested person; 2) any communication which occurs on the record during an official proceeding of a state or local agency that involves a City elected or appointed official who also serves as an official of that agency. In addition, Chapter 2.3 will prohibit any interested person from doing the following:

A. Do anything with the purpose of placing any City official under personal obligation to the interested person.

B. Deceive or attempt to deceive any City official with regard to any material fact pertinent to any pending or proposed legislative, administrative, or quasi-judicial action.

C. Attempt to create a fictitious appearance of public favor or disfavor of any proposed legislative, administrative, or quasi-judicial action or to cause any communication to be sent to any City official in the name of any fictitious person or in the name of any real person, except with the consent of such real person.

D. Represent falsely, either directly or indirectly, that the interested person can control the official action of any City official.

E. Accept or agree to accept any payment in any way contingent upon the defeat, enactment, or outcome of any proposed legislative, administrative, or quasi-judicial action.

The City Council finds and determines that there is no possibility that the adoption of this Ordinance will have a significant effect on the environment. Accordingly, this Ordinance is not subject to the requirements of the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) pursuant to Sections 15061(b)(3) and 15378 of Division 6 of Title 14 of the California Code of Regulations. A certified copy of the entirety of the text of Ordinance No. 2202 is available both on the City's website and also in the office of the City Clerk, 4455 West 126th Street, Hawthorne, California, and is open for public inspection. Pursuant to Government Code section 36933(c), the summary Ordinance No. 2202 was published at least five (5) days before the ordinance was considered for adoption on May 26, 2020 at a duly convened regular meeting of the Hawthorne City Council.

Happy Tails

We are so fortunate here at spcaLA to have a strong team of caring and compassionate volunteers. That passion for animals goes outside of their volunteer hours, too. A volunteer from spcaLA South Bay, Antonio, had found a stray orange Tabby cat and brought him in to us. The cat, later named

Roger, during his lost pet holding period, he received food, medical care, and TLC. During that time, Antonio called regularly checked-in on Roger, wanting to make sure his little friend was doing okay. Well, today Antonio made it official and adopted Roger! Seems like it was meant to be from the beginning. •

Congratulations to Roger and his new family.
