Davis and DeRosa Aim to Take the Ache out of the Headache

By Duane Plank

The definition of "headache" is very straightforward: "a continuous pain in the head." But the age-old treatments to alleviate the headache have typically revolved around taking a dose of aspirin or Advil, maybe drinking a glass or two of water, and then waiting for the pain to subside. Very passive, wait-and-hope treatment.

The therapists at El Segundo's Davis and DeRosa Physical Therapy, Inc., located on Main Street, believe in taking a more aggressive approach to mitigating a headache, revolving around treatments for the neck and cervical spine area that hopefully pinpoint the specific cause of recurring headaches.

Co-owner Chris DeRosa recently shared that his cadre of twelve therapists had taken part last summer in a course taught by the American Headache Institute, based in Rochester, Michigan, that touts an innovative process to combat the all-too-common headache. The AHI posits that many headaches emanate from issues related to the neck, and that, by treating the neck region with gentle manipulation, headache relief will follow.

DeRosa said that once the perceived problem area in the neck has been isolated and treated, he has seen dramatic results in many of his patients.

"In the big picture of things," DeRosa said, "we are trying to make people aware that your neck and cervical spine area can cause a myriad of symptoms, headaches being one of them." The AHI training system notes ten specific cervical spine symptom areas, which can lead to what is termed "referred pain" in other areas of the body. By isolating the ten centralized symptom zones on the patient, the therapists at Davis and DeRosa can design a treatment protocol that is both corrective and specific to that patient. DeRosa said that he had seen a quick abatement of symptoms in some of his patients in just a few office visits.

Once the patient returns home, the goal is to have the patient proficient in self-treatment so that he or she can practice pain-relieving techniques learned in the office visit in the comfort of their own residence.

Quick aside, but DeRosa did confirm that the innovative headache treatment was not going to help someone suffering from the dreaded, self-induced hangover headache. "That is a different type of headache," laughed DeRosa. "Those types of headaches, I am not going to be able to cure, though I would make a million dollars if I could cure hangovers."

El Segundo resident Jen Ralls, who has been a patient of Davis and DeRosa, off-and-on for 15 years, swears by the treatments she has received. While not suffering from headaches, she said she was experiencing "weird mouth symptoms" for the past year-and-a-half, including dry-mouth. Symptoms are so bad that she had to sleep with a washcloth in her mouth. She had visited experts, as well as an ear-mouth-throat specialist, but "nobody could figure it out." She went to see DeRosa, who started Ralls on a protocol of "gentle neck stretching." He developed a treatment for Ralls, which she can implement at her home, that would position her neck in a way that would stop her symptoms and discomfort. Game-changer, Ralls said. "It's an amazing thing."

Davis and DeRosa have plied their trade in El Segundo since 2003. Troy Davis and DeRosa started the business in 2003, occupying a spot-on Richmond Street for the first couple of years, then re-locating their business to its current Main Street address in 2005.

DeRosa, originally from New York, says physical therapy was a logical career choice for him because making people feel good has always been a part of his DNA. "Following physical therapy allowed me to interact with people on a daily basis and provide them with help to feel better and live their lives fully," he said. He received his Bachelor of Science in Exercise Physiology in 1994 from Adelphi University in New York, followed in 1998 by his Bachelor of Science in Physical Therapy from the Robert Gordon University in Aberdeen, Scotland, and then began his career as a physical therapist in New York.

He later settled in El Segundo because he found the town not only financially affordable but also because he was drawn to the area that he equated to a small town in the Midwest or upstate New York. DeRosa said that before moving to El Segundo, he was working in Manhattan Beach and Downey. Still, his local patients bemoaned the fact that there was not a convenient physical therapy treatment option in El Segundo. So, the co-owners took a shot, establishing their company on Richmond Street. He touts El Segundo as "a tight community, and business-friendly."

Davis and DeRosa strive to give back to the community that has supported their endeavors for nearly two decades, supporting myriad community events, like the Run for Education.

Linal Harada, the high school's college and career advisor, said that "Chris DeRosa and his team have been supporting ESHS students for nearly over a decade. They have hosted student interns each semester, providing skill development, work-based learning, as well as valuable hands-on experience. This internship is especially popular with our PLTW biomedical pathway. Also, Chris has been a regular participant at the ESHS College and Career day each spring. We are thankful for the kindness, professionalism, and generosity we have received as community partners."

DeRosa acknowledges that the devastation that the COVID-19 pandemic has unleashed

Film Review

No Justice, No Peace in The Hate U Give

Morgan Rojas for cinemacy.com

This review originally ran on October 19, 2018. Starr Carter (Amandla Stenberg) is a high school teen stuck between two worlds. At her home in Garden Heights, a rough and predominantly black neighborhood littered with drugs and gangs, she is seen as an outsider. At her private high school in the wealthier and white part of town, she is seen as a diversity statistic. Despite her personal struggles, the support from her family never falters. From a young age, her father (Russell Hornsby) always told her about the power and pride she and her brothers should feel as a young black person in America, despite the injustice their people face every day. When Starr witnesses the shooting death of her unarmed best friend by a white police

The Hate U Give, an adaptation of the YA novel written by Angie Thomas, is a hard watch, especially as white woman who is critically aware of being in the fortunate position of not being faced with violence and a cultural identity crisis on the daily. Just being female in a male-oriented world can come with its own set of restraints and hurdles. In this case, director George Tillman Jr.'s exposé is an eye-opening account of an all too familiar scenario, but just because we may not like what we see, doesn't mean we should turn away and pretend it's not happening.

A timely conversation centering around the Black Lives Matter movement and the injustice of racial profiling within law enforcement and beyond, The Hate U Give, available to rent on VOD, is a heartbreaking and emotional officer, her world is turned upside down. As the only witness to Khalil's wrongful death, Starr feels pressure from the community to testify against the officer in court, and is faced with a life-changing decision: stay quiet and let life pass her by, or stand up and speak her truth.

Amandla Stenberg gives a groundbreaking and emotionally stirring performance as the young protagonist, Starr. In nearly every scene, tears stream down Stenberg's face and we can't help but feel our hearts break along with hers. Her range as an actor is on full display as she brings life and powerful charisma to every moment. Equally as affecting is Russell Hornsby's performance as her protective father. His tough exterior protects his gentle heart as he puts his family's well-being above his own, claiming that family is the only people he lives and dies for.

account of one young African American woman's struggle of living in America and the burden she carries as a result. •

Your Neighborhood Therapist

Dear Neighborhood Therapist,

How do I talk to my kids about the difficult news they see on TV?

– A Loving Parent, El Segundo

Dear Loving Parent,

I want my son to spend summers swinging from a rope into a lake and biking around the neighborhood with his friends. I want him to have weekends full of sports and picnics and playdates. I want our evenings to include family time of conversation and laughter as we sit around the dinner table.

Of course I want to hand him all the tools he needs in order to reach his full potential. I want him to feel confident and secure in his interactions. I want him to make the right kinds of mistakes - like breaking an arm falling out of a tree that was just a little bit too tall for his admirable ambitions - where he learns a lesson and has a good story, but no permanent damage.

We all have our visions of what a perfect childhood looks like, and it is almost always a romanticized golden age unblemished by the outside world. It's also not the way the world works, and we all know it. Both traditional psychology and Disney endings have popularized the idea we will inevitably mess up our children if we give them anything less than a perfect childhood. That's false. Plenty of people with traditionally imperfect childhoods end up with deeply satisfying lives. Plenty of people with "perfect" childhoods run into big problems later on.

The excellent World War II museum in Gdansk, Poland does an excellent job of illustrating the horrors of war to children. In the children's section, visitors pass three times through the same family dining and living room: the first time is at the beginning of the war, where food is plentiful, the newspapers are delivered and tell the truth, and life looks "normal." The second time, the room is the same, but the small luxuries are missing or replaced with something simpler. In the final version of the room, towards the end of the war, one of the walls has been destroyed and the room is stripped nearly bare. The message - war is terrible - is clear, but the children have been spared the gory details that adults so often seek out (if you don't believe me just ask Stephen King or Wes Craven).

You do not have to share the worst of everything with children. Instead, try talking about the effects of the bad things - especially if other kids are affected - and invite your child to reflect on how her own experience may be similar or different. Then - and here is the most important part - ask her opinion about those effects. If she is old enough to think about right and wrong, then she is old enough to tell you what she thinks. Is it fair or unfair that some kids have more than others, and why? Is it good or bad that some parents work longer hours than others? And so on. You may find that instead of tiptoeing around what to say and what not to say, you end up having a rich conversation about what your child values in this world.

Lauren Davis Looking Forward to Her Future

By Gregg McMullin

For several weeks, I've introduced our community to some interesting, intelligent, and well-grounded seniors of the class of 2020. Lauren Davis is one of those individuals who once you meet her, you can't get enough of her time. You get the feeling that one day she could lead a Fortune 500 company with her leadership skills and articulate outlook.

Lauren says she is dealing with her senior year by not dwelling on what was missed. "Every student dreams of their senior year of high school, from the first-day-of-school with our friends to the final culmination of the past thirteen years as we walk, in cap and gown to claim our newfound membership into the rest of the world." She says she was looking forward to her senior prom and graduation ceremony but believes that this absence cannot break true friendships of physicality. "We are instead strengthened by the challenges it poses."

School has been important to Lauren. She has been active in her class, the school, and the extracurricular activities. "I will miss my friends terribly, from our daily conversations at lunch to the fun we had in class."

With an exceptional 4.38 GPA, Lauren enjoys all of her classes, but her favorite class is Choir, though she readily admits to not being a singer. Course teacher, Mrs. Summers, allowed her to perform as the accompanist for the past two years. "Being a

Huber's Hiccups

News for the City of Good Neighbors from an Old Guy named Norb Huber

Remember when we were concerned about our kids and grandkids being exposed to too much sex and violence from watching TV shows or movies? We came up with a rating for movies that warned us about content that was not suited for kids under the age of 14 or 16. In the last several months and especially this past week, almost every channel or news outlet have broadcast content that we've had to screen from or at least explain difficult topics to our youngsters. My two grandkids were over this weekend and they were asking why so many people were protesting and rioting. It's sad that our kids have to grow up so quickly and be exposed to these really tough issues. Not only should we be screening what our children take in, we should be sensibly selecting what we view ourselves. Even pre-virus and pre-protest/riots, if we chose to watch the news channels, we might have been totally disgusted or upset by what one political figure said or did. Now we are watching first hand acts of violence and destruction all across our country, in big cities and smaller ones. This total disregard for the values we share as Americans, makes me angry and frustrated. I'm frustrated that I can't do anything to help but write a few words down and send them out to 25 loyal readers. I'm preaching to the choir when I say that I love my country and I don't want it destroyed. We are not racists as a whole. For 41 years as a high school educator, I preached to all of my students that there is nothing in America that is holding them back or preventing them from succeeding. It hurts me to hear people condemn our dear country. Do we have our faults? Sure. Can we improve our relations? Sure. But, the American dream is still very much alive. Why do so many people from other countries want to come here to live and work? Law and order must be restored before we have improved relations and changes can be made.

The Apostle Paul writes in Ephesians 4:26 - "Be angry and do not sin; do not let the sun go down on your anger". It's okay to be angry, but do not use it as excuse to hurt or harm another person or their possessions. Subdue and submit your anger to God. Let Him take care of it. Another passage from Paul seems to be appropriate here. Philippians 4:8 reads: "Finally, brothers, whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is commendable, if there is any excellence, if there is anything worthy of praise, think about these things." We can fill our brains and lives with things that make us angry. We can watch the news all night long. We can get depressed by what we see and what we hear. This is not good. This is not healthy. Just like taking a walk to clear our minds, reading or mediating or enjoying a cold one can remind us of who we are. When the world seems to be out of control and we feel helpless, that is when we realize that God is still there for us. So, turn off the news, turn off the television. The Bible is full of comfort. The Word of God is life changing. If you don't know where to find some comforting passages, then just do a computer search. It's never been easier to find biblical help to get us through these troubling times. Rather than getting angry with all that is going on, think of the things that are true, honorable, just, pure, lovely, commendable and excellent, think of those things. Life will be better. Relax and have Chalk Walk organizer and art teacher Anne Marie D'Agostino, said she had no idea in March that she would be, "digitizing my art room," but adapting to the pandemic has had an upside. pianist, I quickly realized that even though there were so many voices, there was just one piano." She added, "It wasn't the numbers that mattered but rather the feeling conveyed through every instrument in the room."

Lauren will be attending the University of Pennsylvania in the fall, pursuing a major in Fine Arts and a minor in Creative Writing. Her athleticism helped in the decision of her college with her running attributes and successes. Lauren intends on running on the track team for the Quakers in a highly competitive Ivy League.

She says her father introduced her to track at a young age that can be traced back to second grade running on the blacktop. Years later, she and her older brother would train for track under the guidance of her father. She was hooked and became more serious and dedicated as she got to high school.

She is the school record holder in the 100-yard dash, the 200m, and part of the 4x400m school record group from 2019. She is in the top three for all sprint/hurdle categories and was a top ten finisher at the California Winter Championships. Though her season was cut short, her track coach Marcos Bolanos says she was primed to break all sprints records. She will leave ESHS as one of the most decorated and significant athletes in school history. She helped the Eagles secure their first girls' league title in 2019.

With all the successes and meets she's run in, she says her favorite meet was the Ocean League Finals of 2019. It was the last time she and her entire team ran together. It marked the triumphant success of the girls' varsity team. "Even though I was tired from running the 4x400m relay, there was nothing that could have dampened my spirits after rejoicing with my teammates and coaches on the field. The trophy in Coach B's hand, representing the hard work and dedication of all of us, was a highlight of my four years in high school."

As to Lauren's immediate goals, she aims to solidify her passions, extending her knowledge and craftsmanship in both writing and art in preparation for the years ahead. "I do not plan to limit myself to these endeavors but rather explore the various other interests I possess as well, including archaeology, ancient mythology, and astronomy."

Lauren's future goals are limitless, and she won't predict exactly how things will work out. She intends on building a career as a poet/author and artist or potentially becoming a video game designer. Travel could be in Lauren's future too. Since she was a child, hers was her dream to travel to Italy and Greece, two globally-known centers of the arts. "Expanding my knowledge and skills through more than just the many books I've read countless times."

Lauren is grateful to many people for where she is in life. "I would like to thank my teachers, my friends, my coaches, and my family for building me into whom I am now."

Lauren says there have been many people who have been an enormous influence in her life. She says her brothers were very influential growing up. "Being the middle child, a girl with two brothers, their interests certainly merged with my own. It was their accomplishments that have pushed me to be a better me."

Lauren's teachers were also very important to her and influenced her. Her sixth-grade teacher, Mr. Brandlin, was her Social Studies, Literature, and Language teacher. "He was the person who pushed me to pursue my poetry. It is now one of my absolute biggest passions, so thank you, Mr. Brandlin."

HAWTHORNE PLAZA AND SPACE BEYOND

Well, good news, we don't have to worry about our mall being looted since it has been closed for the past 20 some years. The only ones that have to worry about social distancing over there in the rubble are the cats that have taken over. All of this unrest reminds me of the 1992 King riots. Our Lutheran High Thrift Shop on Prairie Avenue was torched on April 30, 1992. It was the only store in Hawthorne to be firebombed during those three nights of rioting. We would hope that the current lawlessness would be wrapped up soon. You would think that people would get tired of being out there every night. We have had our fair share of looting and protests up here in Sacramento and beyond. This has become a worldwide event, just as that virus supporters have always been her dad. "From teaching me tennis when I was little and to watch me at every single tournament. He introduced me to track and was my hurdle coach at school." She added, "he helped me achieve what I believed I could." What she'll cherish remembering is, "My father going to work every day then coming home and watching Jeopardy with me every night. Thank you for everything—I love you, Dad." • thing was. The great news event that got swallowed up in this weekend's mess was the successful flight of our SpaceX rocket and crew. It might have been the greatest day in Hawthorne history considering the magnitude of what it all meant to our country. Hawthorne was the nerve center and last Saturday was the time when we started a new era of space travel. The moon is next and then on to Mars. We watched it all happen in HD clarity. "Good Vibrations" keep on coming out of the City of Good Neighbors. "Wouldn't It be Nice" if these good vibes could somehow allow all of us to be "Surfin' USA". So, as usual, I have been "In My Room" these past few months. I really don't "Wish They All Could Be California Girls" and I really don't know any "BarbarAnns", but I do wish I had a "409" or a "GTO". There simply is no place like Hawthorne.

Summary of Adoption of Ordinance 2203 Enacting Chapter 9.71 A to Title 9 of Division VI of the Hawthorne Municipal Code ("HMC") Re: the Establishment of Eviction Moratorium During State of Emergency.

Pursuant to Government Code section 36933(c), the following constitutes a summary of Ordinance No. 2203 which will be considered for adoption by the City Council at its regular meeting on Tuesday, June 9, 2020 at 6:00 p.m. Pursuant to California Government Code section 36933(c)(1), the City Council has previously directed the preparation and publication of a summary of Ordinance No. 2203 which adds Section 9.71 A to the Hawthorne Municipal Code establishing an Eviction Moratorium During the State of Emergency. On March 4, 2020, the Governor proclaimed a State of Emergency to exist in California due to the threat posed by the novel coronavirus and the COVID-19 disease resulting therefrom. On March 13, 2020, the President of the United States of America declared a national emergency and announced that the federal government would make emergency funding available to assist state and local governments in preventing the spread of and addressing the effects of COVID-19, and on March 15, 2020, the Hawthorne City Council adopted Resolution N o. 8175, proclaiming the existence of a local emergency.

On March 27, 2020, Governor Gavin Newsom issued Executive Order No. 37-20, enacting a moratorium on the enforcement of eviction orders for renters affected by COVID-19 through May 31, 2020. The proposed ordinance protects the public health and mitigates the economic impacts of COVID-19, avoids displacement of residential and commercial tenants by temporarily prohibiting the eviction of tenants impacted by COVID-19 beyond the moratorium imposed by the Governor of the State of California. Governor Newsom also enacted a suspended "[a]ny provision of state law that would preempt or otherwise restrict a local government's exercise of its police power to impose substantive limitations on residential or commercial evictions" of certain tenants affected by the COVID-19 pandemic. Therefore, the City of Hawthorne has the discretion to enact the proposed ordinance. The proposed Ordinance No. 2203 adds Title 9, Division XI, Chapter 9.71 A to Title 9, Division XI of the Hawthorne Municipal Code, which places a temporary moratorium on eviction for non-payment of rent by residential and commercial tenants impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic upon fulfillment of certain requirements by the tenant. The tenant remains obligated to pay the full amount of the missed rent upon expiration of the moratorium, and is given six months to pay the back rent. The City Council finds and determines that there is no possibility that the adoption of this Ordinance will have a significant effect on the environment. Accordingly, this Ordinance is not subject to the requirements of the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) pursuant to Sections 15061(b)(3) and 15378 of Division 6 of Title 14 of the California Code of Regulations. A certified copy of the entirety of the text of Ordinance No. 2203 is available both on the City's website and also in the office of the City Clerk, 4455 West 126th Street, Hawthorne, California, and is open for public inspection. Pursuant to Government Code section 36933(c), the summary Ordinance No. 2203 was published at least five (5) days before the ordinance was considered for adoption on June 9, 2020 at a duly convened regular meeting of the Hawthorne City Council.

Purrrfect Companions

Legacy

With “kitten season” upon us, there is an urgent need for foster parents. Whether you care for one or many, once or frequently, Kitten Rescue would love for you to become a foster parent. They offer training, guidance, medical care (if needed) and lots of moral support. Fostering brings you the rich reward of knowing you personally saved this kitty’s life in providing a safe, loving home while waiting for adoption. Interested?.....please email them at foster@kittenrescue.org for more information.

If just 2% of the pet-owning households in America fostered one pet a year, we could stop euthanizing healthy pets in shelters.

Here are a few of the precious cats and kittens waiting for their fur-ever homes.

Legacy is a funny, affectionate, loving, quirky boy with a head tilt that increases his adorable factor. To meet Legacy is to love him because he is just so darn loving and friendly. He enjoys meeting and making new friends because he knows it means more pets for him. Legacy would do best in a home without young children because the noise and excitement from little ones sends him running in the opposite direction. He tolerates other cats, but he would be happiest in a single-cat household. Legacy has seen a couple of different vets to find out why his head tilts like a puppy dog; they both concluded that he had an inner ear infection at some point that did permanent damage. Other than a super cute head tilt, Legacy is not in any pain and is a healthy, playful kitty.

Poppy is the brother of two adorable sisters, Lupine, and Buttercup. They are too young to be adopted as solo kittens, but would love to be adopted as a pair, or even a trio. Or if you already have a kitty, waiting for a friend, one of them would so happy to become a part of your family. Poppy is Mr. Personality. The way he looks at you makes you think he understands what you are saying. He’s so smart, so engaged and extremely playful and cuddly. Poppy is all the best qualities in a kitten. Buttercup is an angel kitty. She’s very snuggly and likes to cuddle in your lap and reach up to your face for kisses. Buttercup is beautiful kitten who will make some lucky adopter incredibly happy. Lupine is absolutely stunning. She’s a beautiful, sweet kitty who loves to play and cuddle. She has the most beautiful eyes that you will ever see on a kitten.

Sherry is such a sweetheart. She is very people friendly and will purr as you approach her. Sherry is energetic and fun and loves to explore and try new things. She is the Ying to her brother, Whiskey’s Yang. She would love to be adopted with Whiskey as they make a great pair. Sherry will be a terrific companion and friend.

Lupine

Whiskey is a homebody. He loves to lounge about and be loved on. He is the purr-fect couch potato and binge-watching buddy. Whiskey is a mellow guy who doesn’t let things get to him. He is happy to be with you and his sister, Sherry, who he would like to be adopted with. They make a great pair! He is chill and she is adventurous. Whiskey is the pal you’ve been looking for.

Mom is a relaxed one-year old youngster and is a great kitty. She recently had a litter of kittens and was the best Mom on the planet. Now she is ready for her forever home. She loves a good brushing and chirps to tell you how happy she is. She also loves her afternoon treats, belly rubs, and mealtime. Mom wants to sit next to you and keep you company. She may be a little shy for the first couple of days in a new place but will warm right up to be your home companion. Mom is a very social girl, super curious and very smart.

These cats and kittens are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. Temporarily, adoption events are suspended. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org or email us at mail@kittenrescue.org.

With our city and state shut down, we are faced with the delicate balance to protect our fellow humans from the spread of COVID-19, while continuing our mission of saving the most vulnerable victims of the homeless cat crisis. We know that these are hard times for everyone. If you can give a little, it will go a long way. They are still counting on us during these difficult times.

Your tax-deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 914 Westwood Blvd. #583, Los Angeles, CA 90024.

Happy Tails

Two things that we are rich in at Kitten Rescue are kittens and amazing volunteers. This is a story of how a foster mama and her bottle baby survived COVID-19 together.

Little Elton was only around a week old when his foster mom got the call that he had been turned away from the city shelter and the person who found him needed help.

Elizabeth is one of our most skilled bottle baby feeders, so Elton was in good hands. A few days after Elton arrived, Elizabeth and her husband came down with the COVID-19. Since bottle babies need to be fed every few hours throughout the night and Elizabeth and her husband needed rest, we offered to place Elton into another foster home. But Elizabeth would not have it. She and her husband took turns taking care of Elton and he brought them comfort and joy during their recovery and isolation. Kitten Rescue volunteers brought groceries and medicine to Elizabeth’s door during this time.

We are happy to report that Elizabeth and her husband are doing well, and little Elton is growing at a record rate!

Rescue does not stop for pandemics and Elizabeth and her husband are true heroes in this time of crisis. #quaranteenies. •
