Dr. Jeanie Nishime Helms the ESUSD School Board During Unprecedented Times

By Duane Plank

When Dr. Jeanie Nishime took over the reins as the new El Segundo Unified School District School Board President late last year, the District was on an upward trajectory. El Segundo voters had passed a $92-million general obligation bond in November of 2018, and that funding was going to be front-and-center as the ESUSD began accelerating the implementation of its Long-Range-Facilities-Master Plan

The District was reaping the benefits of the 2016 sale of the surplus Imperial Street School which garnered more than $22 million for District coffers.

Then, the pandemic COVID-19 virus that would decimate and shut-down much of the world was nowhere in sight. Then the killer coronavirus hit America, and the world as we knew it was thrown into tumult.

Classroom education was shut down in mid-March, with educators, students, and parents scrambling to implement distance learning. Nishime said that the District's distance learning program is progressing about as well as expected, noting that the ESUSD had presciently implemented a 1-to-1 iPad initiative at both the high school and middle school as introducing Chromebooks at the elementary level. All this made it easier for the ESUSD to hit the ground running when the mandated shelter in place orders came down from Sacramento. With many teachers, students, parents, and administrators educating on the run, Nishime said the District would be implementing "changes for the fall to address the deficiencies we experienced this spring."

Nishime has been an El Segundo resident since 2007. Her more than 30 years in education, mainly at the community college level, included stints at Fullerton, Riverside and Pasadena city colleges. She also served for ten years as the vice president for student and community advancement at El Camino College.

Nishime, born and raised in Japan, received a bachelor's degree in psychology from Point Loma College in San Diego, Master of Science in counseling from Cal State Long Beach, and Ed. D in institutional management from Pepperdine University.

She said she was encouraged to run for an open seat on the El Segundo school board in 2011 by Dr. Ray Gen, who was on the El Camino school board at the time and is currently the English department chair at El Segundo High School. Nishime did not know what she was signing up for. "I was so naïve," she said but figured that with a lessened commute time with her landing the El Camino job, she had more time to give back to the El Segundo community. Nishime said that her previous jobs involved arduous, time-consuming commutes. "When I first moved (to El Segundo), it was the first time that I lived and worked in the same community." Husband Spence Bauer served as her campaign manager, and Nishime became immersed in political campaigning, seeking resident endorsements, knocking on voters' doors, and distributing lawn signs. Six weeks later, she was elected to a four-year term on the ESUSD school board.

The school board has been meeting virtually since mid-March, which, Nishime said, has worked out well, considering the circumstances. She said she has heard "horror stories" from other South Bay school board presidents about tech glitches that have plagued their meetings, but the ESUSD has been able, for the most part, to navigate the technology highway. She said that she misses the "comradeship" of seeing her fellow board members in person, and laments that the final graduation and promotion ceremonies that she will attend as a member of the ESUSD will have to take place in a virtual format.

Nishime said that now more than ever, the District is steadfast in adhering to accomplishing their goals for the upcoming school years. Those goals include ensuring high-quality learning; promoting the social well-being of all students; recruiting and retaining high-quality employees; promoting parental and community engagement; and maintaining fiscal health while focusing on school safety.

Those goals, Nishime said, "have taken-on new a whole new meaning in light of this pandemic," noting an expected 3-million dollar hit to the District budget for the next school year.

ESUSD Superintendent Dr. Melissa Moore touts the leadership of Nishime, emailing that Nishime "possessed not only a wealth of educational knowledge and expertise but also her thoughtful consideration in examining the issues. Her intelligence, compassion, and pragmatic approach have contributed to the school district's tremendous success with student achievement and social-emotional well-being of students during her tenure."

Loving Tells the Story of America's First Inter-racial Married Couple

By Ryan Rojas for cinemacy.com

As seen in a recurring set of events throughout the film Loving, Richard Loving (Joel Edgerton) strives to build a house for his soon-to-be wife, Mildred (Ruth Negga). At first, his brick-laying is fast and sloppy, slapping cement in between bricks at a thoughtless speed. It's not long after Richard and Mildred – an inter-racial couple in 1950s Virginian South – move to Washington D.C., and encounter profound racism against them over their relationship. In building this new house and aware of the hate spewed his way, own relationship, and whose judgments and opinions they wouldn't care for.

Of course, the real magic in Loving comes from the performances between Joel Edgerton and Ruth Negga, who compliment each other wonderfully as Richard and Mildred Loving. With his bleached hair and yellowed teeth, Joel (in a career-best performance), tenderly shapes the character of Richard to be a pure-hearted Southerner, whose puppy-dog innocence doesn't consider that choosing to be with a woman whose skin colors will threaten his life as well. Ruth Negga as Mildred captivates

Loving courtesy Cinemacy.com

Richard now lays the bricks and measures much more concordantly, much more aware and precise of how he must live overall to ensure his and Mildred's safety if they choose to be together, and as a married couple.

Based on the true story of Richard and Mildred Loving, Loving tells the real-life story of America's first interracial married couple, a romance that invited jail time and threatened their civil liberties. As a film, Loving doesn't intend to falsify sentiment, or play to vapid conventions. The quiet yet committed path of love that Richard and Mildred Loving take while their enemies – being the local townspeople, state police department, or Supreme Court – hurl at them, is a road paved with grace and dignity, and serves as a template for how one can live in this day and age.

Writer and director Jeff Nichols crafts this movie to play like a love story unlike most; it's not a sweeping Hollywood romance like The Notebook, and it's not a suspenseful courtroom drama, either. Nichols shows how this pure-hearted love pushes all other struggles to the periphery. It's as if even the film itself is an unwarranted intrusion of their

the screen with her enormous watering eyes and total grace. Every moment of commitment between them – whether whispering nighttime love admissions to each other, building a house together, or just the quiet looking into each others eyes, shows how love will always win in the end.

Loving is rated PG-13 for thematic elements. Available to stream on HBO and to rent on Amazon. •

Your Neighborhood Therapist

Dear Neighborhood Therapist,

My partner and I have been living together for a year now. Some habits they have really do bother me. I find myself saying nothing and "just taking it." Eventually I "get over it" and I'm not angry anymore, but I worry that if I keep "just getting over it" in the long term that this will lead to resentment that will be terrible for our relationship. Is this way of handling things unhealthy?

– Should I be Angrier?

Dear Should I be Angrier,

Think of rain falling on a garden. If the rain doesn't come too quickly, the soil can absorb it without flooding or washing away. If the layer of soil is thick, and if the garden has a robust root system, the land can absorb more rain. If the soil is thin, with little to hold it in place, it will erode easily, washed away by even a soft drizzle.

A garden can be a useful metaphor for relationships. If problems or bad habits are like rain showers, then the questions become, how bad is the storm, and how deep and fertile is the soil of your relationship? Most "healthy" gardens not only handle the occasional rain shower, but they need and expect them in order to grow. If your relationship is otherwise solid and can absorb the problems, then it may just be worth it to grumble to yourself, your friends and your therapist, and then move on. Take a stand when you have to – but not everything is worth fighting over, especially if the soil is thick.

The good news is that as long as it's not illegal or harmful to your physical health, then you get to be the one who defines what is healthy or unhealthy for your relationship. If your relationship can absorb it, then allowing your relationship to do so is probably not "unhealthy." We can all handle different amounts of discomfort. Do you have a sense of how much discomfort you can tolerate and still have the relationship be worth it?

If you live long enough, you will probably have a chance to experience many of the small and large humiliations and inconveniences life brings us. So often when we come into contact with people or entities more powerful than us, we are forced to bite our tongue for fear of bigger consequences that are not worth it.

If – in your mind and in your heart – the relationship is more powerful than you as an individual, then you are both sometimes going to have to give up precious little pieces of yourselves in order to remain in it. You – and only you – have every right to decide if doing so is unhealthy or not.

Pandemic Spurs Innovation For Small- To Mid-Sized Businesses

(BPT) - As COVID-19 continues to disrupt normal day-to-day operations of small- to mid-sized businesses and nearly half of the U.S. workforce hangs in the balance, employers are taking creative measures to reset their go-to-market strategies and offerings. By changing their operations to meet the demands of their customers, businesses can not only stay relevant but keep their staff employed and thrive in the new economy.

This pandemic offers business owners, investors and solopreneurs the opportunity to take a critical look at their overall business model, offerings and operations and reset the entire business structure, creating new opportunities to serve and prevail. This is the perfect time to explore new legal solutions to the most common business obstacles to help companies preserve and protect their brands and prosper for generations to come. There are great examples of resets happening within many industries.

With the pandemic closing summer camps throughout the country, ACA-accredited Adventure Links, a 23-year-old summer camp in Virginia, has found a way to replace its usual summer adventure camp programs with The CampCloud(TM), an experiential online alternative. The company is now offering its virtual camping programs to individuals and employers to assist employees working from home by keeping their kids engaged, learning and delighted all day from virtually anywhere. The program is being offered to other camps as a customizable, online option for their campers.

Ensuring the health and safety of employers when stay-at-home orders are lifted, and business resumes, is critical. Thanks to a team of entrepreneurs, Disinfect & Shield(TM), an FDA-registered, EPA-approved and eco-friendly disinfectant used in surgical suites for the last decade, is now available to businesses worldwide to kill SARS-CoV-2, the virus that causes COVID-19 and other dangerous organisms. It works by creating a permanent anti-microbial shield, preventing the virus from attaching to surfaces where it has been applied without risk to humans, animals or crops. With Disinfect & Shield(TM), employees, customers and visitors can feel safe knowing that their space has been properly disinfected and treated for optimum health and safety.

Clint Coons, founder of Anderson Business Advisors, offers 5 financing and entity creation tips to help entrepreneurs and small business owners:

- Know how to use loans: CARES Act loans have specific guidelines like having to use at least 60% of the loan within 24 weeks of receipt for payroll expenses. Concerned that money would dry up, many small business owners applied with no way of utilizing them because their business cannot reopen under the strict guidelines imposed on the industry.

- Alternate cash sources: Borrow from a 401(k) or IRA to keep businesses afloat, as it does not need to be paid back for at least 3-6 years. However, pulling money out of a retirement plan comes with some risk, such as if the business does not see profitability, then retirement funds were wasted on a failed business venture.

- Beware of increasing liabilities: Because insurance will not cover claims brought under COVID, reopening comes with risk and business owners are wondering how they will operate under strict COVID-19 related guidelines and

GET OUT AND DO SOMETHING

God didn't create us to be couch potatoes. He doesn't want us to vegetate or hibernate all of our lives. He made us to be active. He wants us to work and play and eat and drink and then rest. After three or more months cooped up inside, our urge to get outside is just too much. Activities that have been approved in whatever stage we are in are booming. Golf participation has increased by 50% on some courses. Our golf group has had make a tee time to insure that we can get on our course during these post pandemic peak days. Hiking, camping, RV travel and anything that can be done with minimal socialization are all popular. Just as exercise is good for our bodies, recreation is good for both our physical and mental fitness. We need to get away from the day to day worldly problems. Yes, I might be advocating escaping. Leaving our worries and anxieties behind us for a while and enjoying the outdoors without our phones, computers and televisions is one of the best things we can do. We must realize that we can not solve the world's problems, so why not be the person that God wants us to be in our little worlds? The things that we can control are our emotions, thoughts, and actions. The simple acts of concern, care and love for other people that are around us can still make a profit. Now is the time to pivot and reset.

• Consider restructuring: Set up your business in the right entity and state. Mistakes in formation or taxation can have a lasting negative impact on business growth and viability. Before starting a new business, consider the best structure for asset protection and tax minimization. For example, a limited liability company (LLC) gives business owners time to operate at a loss for the first few months and write off the loss on their individual 1040 forms against other forms of income. There are different entity funding options with protection ramifications.

• Utilize Privacy Shield Protection by creating anonymity with trusts.

COVID-19 has shown that many businesses aren't prepared for worst-case scenarios and make common mistakes that can affect their ability to grow and borrow money. If approached strategically, small- to medium-sized businesses can take this time to implement changes and help their operations succeed and thrive. • make a big difference. We all may not be employed right now. We may not be back to our regular routine. But, all of us have a vocation to work at. We have a job to do. We can get out and serve our families, friends, neighbors and our community by simply showing respect for each other. In these crazy times, there are people all around us who could use someone to talk with. Don't get trampled by the onslaught of negative news. Don't get angry over things going on that you can not control. Know that God loves you. Know that He is still in charge of all things. "Even though we walk through the valley of the shadow of death", the Lord is our Shepherd. The key word in that Psalm 23 verse is "through". That means that there is a destination. That means we are moving on. What ever we are faced with, God will get us through it. Our destination might be a new, different normal, or it might be a mansion in heaven. With this reassuring comfort, we can be happy in the midst of struggle and uncertainty. Have a cold one and relax. Who cares if the world is falling apart, as long as we have a cold one and each other, life is good.

STALE BEER

This is the worst news that I have heard concerning our recent lockdown. Can you image all of the cold ones that have to be thrown away? This is from Bloomberg News.

"Millions of Gallons of Stale Beer Is One Hangover From Lockdown" By Naureen S Malik. "In the concert halls, stadiums and bars across the U.S. that have fallen silent during the coronavirus pandemic, an unusual problem has emerged: what to do with the vast quantity of beer that's gone past its sell-by date. In March, even before the lockdowns became widespread, about 10 million gallons of beer held by retailers had already expired, according to estimates from the National Beer Wholesalers Association. As thousands of kegs are now being returned to distributors daily, Vanguard Renewables in Wellesley, Massachusetts, is among companies seeking to make use of it by turning the beverage into natural gas for electricity generation. Others will use it to make hand sanitizer, but a great deal of the beer will simply be decanted and dumped.

"This is a tsunami of kegs," said John Hanselman, chief executive officer of Vanguard, which will take about 60,000 gallons a week to feed expired beer to micro-organisms in biodigestors that release methane, the primary component of natural gas. Coping with a waste of beer is just one of the many unforeseen knock-on effects of pandemic-related lockdowns that have shut down swathes of the global economy." Wow! What a waste!

Board member Nancy Cobb, who has decided not to seek reelection in the fall, said that she enjoys collaborating with Nishime, calling her a "dedicated professional who brings years of relevant experience to the job. She acts in the best interest of our students. Cares about their academic success, safety, and well-being, and never lost sight of the big picture," Cobb emailed, "including maintaining an excellent staff, communicating with parents, and the larger community, and ensuring the financial well-being of our school district. She listens to all opinions, asks relevant questions, and seeks solutions. Most importantly, for the COVID-19 era, she stays calm in a crisis."

Asked to gaze into her crystal ball and posit on how education will evolve, when the students hopefully return to the classrooms on Aug. 26, Nishime said that she foresees an educational system that will involve a hybrid learning model, including classroom and distance learning, with student and worker safety paramount. "The big disruptor," she said, "will, of course, be the state budget. The budget is brutal...but knowing this District, we will make sure that any cuts are kept as far as possible from the classroom." She said that currently, District administrators are looking at employee attrition as opposed to lay-offs to tighten their financial belts.

Nishime, who has announced that she will not seek reelection to the Board on Nov. 3, is looking forward to "full-retirement" mode. She loves to travel, which she has done extensively in Europe and Asia, fostering a great interest in culture and international education, and looks forward to spending to spend more time with her kids, and hopefully, she said, possible grandkids, as well as focusing on her church activities.

But until her retirement, Nishime will continue to steadily guide the El Segundo school board through these unprecedented times. •

PETSPETS Pets PETSPETS Purrrfect Companions

Phoenix

With "kitten season" upon us, there is an urgent need for foster parents. Whether you care for one or many, once or frequently, Kitten Rescue would love for you to become a foster parent. They offer training, guidance, medical care (if needed) and lots of moral support. Fostering brings you the rich reward of knowing you personally saved this kitty's life in providing a safe, loving home while waiting for adoption. Interested?.....please email them at foster@kittenrescue.org for more information.

If just 2% of the pet-owning households in America fostered one pet a year, we could stop euthanizing healthy pets in shelters.

Here are a few of the precious cats and kittens waiting for their fur-ever homes.

This handsome devil is Phoenix. He is a six-year old, stunning smoke tabby with the personality of a Bengal. He is smart and inquisitive and will hop in the shower with you. Phoenix is looking for a cat-experienced guardian who appreciates a cat with a strong personality. He is very affectionate but can also be quite opinionated. If you would like an intense but loving cat and are willing to listen when he declares his feelings, then Phoenix could be your soulmate.

Tippy Tail was rescued from the city shelter with his sibling Roy as bottle babies. Tippy Tail is a hefty kitty, pushing 12 pounds but has no idea he has that much weight to throw around. A clumsy goofball, he tends to fling himself on top of his brother or romp around the house with one of the resident cats. He loves to chirp and chatter with you when he wants attention. Tippy Tail needs a feline buddy in his home and would love to be adopted with his brother Roy.

Roy is incredibly affectionate and loving, always sleeping on the bed or climbing on top of other kitties. He will start to drool when he's nuzzling his face into another cat and kneading his paws. Roy loves to squeeze himself between kitties, always wanting to be the center of attention. He loves to roll around on his back and will follow you to every room. He's very easy going and likes to chat with you when he wants attention. At nearly 12 pounds, Roy is a big, lanky boy!

Roy and Tippy Tail both love other cats and must have a feline buddy in their homes. They really adore one another and would love being adopted together – they are a purr-fect pair, the ultimate dynamic duo! Tippy Tail and Roy have sensitive stomachs and cannot have kibble; they are on a wet only, poultry-based pate style Friskies. Other foods upset their systems and they must remain either on this Friskies wet only diet or a raw cat food diet. Adopted as a pair or individually, Tippy Tail and Roy cannot wait to find their forever families!

Bear is an amazing grey kitty with soft green eyes. He loves love to explore and romp and play with other kitties. Bear likes people and can't wait to have one of his own! Being raised with his brother and sisters,

Bear

Bear would also enjoy having a kitty pal in his new family. He is waiting to come home with you and be your best new buddy.

Chance is a sweet little orange tabby. He was found wet, cold, and hungry on a rainy day in a cardboard box. Chance loves to chase wand toys, balls, the laser light, climb everything and zoom through his tunnels. He will run to greet you when you walk into a room and make the cutest little coos when he sleeps. Chance loves to curl up with you at bedtime and wake you up with kisses. He's a very active and rambunctious kitten who would love to liven up your home with playful antics. He is a bonded pair with his sister and best friend, Sassy.

Sassy is a stunning little calico girl. She's loves to curl into your arms or against your face for some nuzzles and kisses. When Sassy is not purring at your side, she loves to wrestle with her brother and chase balls and anything she can bat around. Sassy is a great climber and loves to find new adventures and places to explore. She also adores dogs and other cats. Bonded with her best friend and brother, Chance, together they are waiting to become a part of your family.

These cats and kittens are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. Temporarily, adoption events are suspended. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org or email us at mail@kittenrescue.org.

With our city and state shut down, we are faced with the delicate balance to protect our fellow humans from the spread of COVID-19, while continuing our mission of saving the most vulnerable victims of the homeless cat crisis. We know that these are hard times for everyone. If you can give a little, it will go a long way. They are still counting on us during these difficult times. Your tax-deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 914 Westwood Blvd. #583, Los Angeles, CA 90024.

If you remember Tricia Helfer from the TV series Battlestar Galactica, she has a special message for you on the Kitten Rescue Facebook page about "Giving Tuesday".

Saving one animal won't change the world, but the world will surely change for that animal. •
