Rinaldi's Italian Deli Keeps El Segundo Location Original

Story and Photos by Chase Maser

Laura Chen scrolls through pictures on her phone of different meals she makes for her husband, Bill. They've been married since 1991, and as she flips through photos of cooked fish and stews, she ends on a picture of Bill seated at their dining room table. On his plate is a huge mound of rice, meats, and a large smile.

"I cook Malaysian-Singaporean food. That's my background. Bill is Chinese-Cambodian." Yet, somehow, these two run an Italian deli in the South Bay. The Original Rinaldi's Italian Deli Cafe is located on 323 Main St, right across from the El Segundo Fire department. The Chens have owned and operated the business since 1996, but how they came upon it is no typical affair.

Growing up in Malaysia and Singapore, Laura eventually moved to the U.S. and studied business at Cal State Dominguez Hills. At first, the plan was to go to America, earn a degree, and then go back to Asia to help her family's business, but life quickly got in the way. "My family has a palm oil business back home, but once I arrived in California, I took to it like a duck to water," says Laura.

Soon enough, she wound up meeting Bill in Torrance—he grew up there and made lots of friends in the area. One of those friends was a guy named Michael Rinaldi, and after Bill and Laura got hitched, Michael was ready to sell. "So we bought the deli from him, and we've maintained his standards ever since," says Laura. "Big sandwiches. Everything made fresh—we're very much a New York deli and we carry on Rinaldi's tradition."

By tradition, Laura means quality meats and cheeses imported straight from New York City. Everything is homemade and made to order—nothing sits out for days on end, and along with their dedication to freshness, they have fun putting together some wild menu items.

The "Fat Boy" is featured as an "epic" sandwich that's the only one of its kind in the South Bay area. The meatball sub—filled with sausage, pepperoni, and loaded with marinara sauce—has been featured by Eater LA three years in a row (since 2018) as one of LA's top epic sandwiches to order. And their menu highlights a lot more than just mainstream favorites.

Rinaldi's is all about creating a personal, small-town connection, too, with its customers. If you take a look at their menu (which spans across the back wall), you'll see all kinds of items named after favorite customers, personal friends, and even top-ranked colleges.

One menu item that sticks out is the "Chevy Andy"—a House Special that pays homage to one of their favorite customers who retired from the Chevron plant down the street. "Chevy Andy was made for a friend of ours who would come in all the time and place big orders for his team," Laura explains. "His name is Andrew, so I created Chevy Andy. It's very easy, you know? Chevron-Andrew—put them together and you have a special. And he still comes in and orders it (oven-roasted chicken). He's retired now, but we still keep it going. We've seen three generations of families coming through here."

The menu has stayed the same, but the Chens have certainly seen the town change throughout their 24 years of service.

"When we first opened, we had the first

Other Music Helped Cultivate Indie Bands Before Being Forced to Close Their Doors

By Morgan Rojas for Cinemacy.com

Benicio Del Toro called his visits to the record store a religious experience. Jason Schwartzman was constantly inspired by its hyper-knowledgeable staff. It's also where Ezra Koenig of Vampire Weekend "literally discovered new genres of music" because of how everything was uniquely and specifically categorized. Any music buff will tell you that Other Music in NYC was nirvana (pun intended).

connection. They hosted in-store performances from No Age, St. Vincent, Conor Oberst, and Neutral Milk Hotel to name a few, which the film shows with great nostalgia. If you're a fan of any of the bands I've mentioned, including Animal Collective, Interpol, Yeah Yeah Yeahs, William Basinski, Sharon Van Etten, and The Rapture, you'll find so much joy in watching this film. Physically, Other Music is no more but its spirit lives on. After a canceled theatrical run due to COVID, the

Other Music, courtesy Factory 25.

The self-titled documentary from co-directors Puloma Basu and Rob Hatch-Miller follows the last 6 weeks of this iconic and legendary indie record shop before they were forced to close their doors for good in June 2016. Increasing rent prices in Manhattan's East Village made it impossible to stay afloat and the trend towards streaming was a battle that shop owners Josh Madell and Chris Vanderloo knew they couldn't win. It's such a shame that culturally significant safe havens like Other Music aren't invincible, and their loss hits hard. Interviews with devoted customers and artists like Matt Berninger of The National, Tunde Adebimpe of TV on the Radio, and Regina Spektor all speak from the heart about how Other Music influenced their careers and lives for the better.

Other Music was the quintessential place for people in NYC who appreciated music to spend hours racking the shelves for otherworldly discoveries, rare gems, and human filmmakers partnered with record stores and theaters for a Virtual Cinema run.

Distributed by Factory 25, Other Music is available to stream on Amazon Prime. •

CTE and the New Me: Two Traumatic Brain Injury Experts Provide Keys to Survival

Traditionally, people associate traumatic brain injury with athletes, pro-ballers, grade school/high school/college athletes but never construction workers, veterans, cheerleaders or someone you may know who sustained a major concussive accident during their lifetime. The problem becomes exacerbated when people don't realize they have such a condition or even worse, choose to ignore that they do, which becomes the elephant in the room.

Through CTE and the New Me, a program created by and hosted with former NFL player, George Visger (San Francisco 49'ers) and renowned Alzheimer's care practitioner/certified cognitive care manager and founder/owner of Family Connect Care, Lauren Mahakian, participants, through this zoom Seminar platform, will be empowered to find the "keys" to unlocking a productive life after a traumatic brain injury.

Visger articulates this best with, "Having not only survived nine brain surgeries in 12 years, but thrived these last 38 years since the 1st in 1981, I feel obligated to pay it forward. CTE and the New Me is a platform that allows survivors, family members and medical providers an opportunity to 'pick my brain' and learn some of the coping mechanisms. I will share with participant information on successful, non-pharmaceutical treatments I've used; everything from family and psychological counseling and the impact drugs and alcohol can have when compounded with a TBI, to legal issues."

As for Mahakian, who has spent over 25 years dedicated to changing lives of the cognitive impaired and finds healing for traumatic brain injured simply an extension of her specialty, "I have spent my career committed as a care manager for the memory impaired. I have created and implemented successful programs and always knew one day that I would expand my approach to those people who are affected by traumatic brain injury."

This new journey which will aid those who are fearful of diagnosis or haven't even realized they are carrying such a health burden and will begin its mission to tear down walls and misconceptions and work on the healing in this area of cognitive health starting, Thursday, September 17, 2020 at 11:00 AM. There will be an invaluable "Q & A" facilitated by these experts at the end of the seminar.

To register for CTE and the New Me and find out more about traumatic brain injury, please call: (310) 383-1877; or go to FamilyConnectCare.com •

Your Neighborhood Therapist

Dear Neighborhood Therapist,

It has been a hard few months for my amazing, brilliant 10-year-old daughter and her younger sister. Their grandfather died of Covid-19 earlier this month. They were very close. I also had Covid-19 and had to isolate myself from the kids for three weeks. Both their father and I are recently remarried, and we share custody of the kids, so they split time between two blended families, and the kids do not all get along perfectly. We have formed a bubble with another trusted family, but they do not have any kids close to her age, and we haven't seen any other friends since March. We are also in the process of moving, so she is starting a new school online. She has been having meltdowns every few days, crying uncontrollably for an hour or more. I hate to see her this way. I would do anything I could to take away some of her troubles. Is there anything you can think of?

— Worried and Stuck at Home

Dear Worried and Stuck at Home,

I'm glad you wrote. We spoke by phone together with your daughter, and we agreed on a number of things. We agreed that all of us, adults and kids alike, could easily find ourselves curled into a ball and sobbing for an hour in such a situation, and that your daughter's response seems entirely consistent with its seriousness. We agreed that, wow, you were right - your daughter has some serious brain power, and we noted that in addition to this brain power she possesses a number of additional qualities and skills. For example, you pointed out that she is so skilled at protecting and caring for her little sister that her sister has hardly noticed how difficult things have been. Your daughter agreed, taking pride in her abilities and affirming her commitment to her sister despite the cost to her. We agreed that this was extraordinary courage.

We agreed that it was fortunate that she does indeed possess so much talent, because she's going to continue to need it. Not even J.K. Rowling wrote Harry Potter into such tough circumstances: Harry, at least, had friends he could see, a door he could close, and an entire magical world he could escape to where he was already powerful, rich and

Upcoming Young Artists of 2020

By Samantha Schmidt
INTRO

Hello Hawthorne! Just like many of you, I enjoy art - music, graphics, photographs, paintings, etc. I love finding new local bands and musicians who are attempting to make it to the music industry and following their work. However, because of the spread of COVID-19 throughout many of our communities, many artists, such as photographers and creators have been hit especially hard. This is because many of them rely on ticket sales from local festivals and swap meets in order to support themselves. Because of this, you may want to find ways to support local artists. I picked two of my favorite personal creators and asked them a series of short questions. I am sharing these two specifically since I feel that you may enjoy their work the way I do.

SOUTH BAY'S ARTISTS

The first artist I will introduce to you is a 19 year old, Hawthorne based, Latina shoe artist/designer Myah Alvarado. She's locally known as the founder of "Papaya Customs." With just her markers and old pair of Vans, Alvarado was able to build her artwork and become seen as a well-known artist in her community.

"I always loved art", Alvarado says, "but I didn't take my art serious until my senior year in high school. I had an art teacher named Mr. Jennings who was an amazing art teacher. One day, he gave the class a shoe template to design and I instantly fell in love with putting designs on shoes." After this project, Alvarado grabbed her own pair of Vans and started customizing them herself. She claims that throughout her creative journey, her family and friends became her biggest support and pushed her to start her own business. "What's your favorite thing about pursuing this business?" I asked her. Alvarado with joy says, "It's surreal to see someone wearing something I made. It's a feeling I can never get over."

With only a paintbrush, an old or new pair of Nike Air Force 1 shoes (or Converse shoes), she was able to build a community of 1,300 followers on Instagram! She hopes to one day open her own store where she can sell her shoes. Towards the end of the interview I asked "What advice do you give to those who want to start a business like yours?" Alvarado advises "To anyone who wants to start a business like mine, is to be patient with their artwork, not compare your work to others, and to push yourself to be better."

The second artists I interviewed is South Bay's local creator Karina Tran. This interview lasted approximately 45 minutes. At only 20 years old, Karina was able to grow her platform throughout all of social media, going from 100 followers to now being sponsored by companies using only her camera and creative mind!

"What's your name and what type of art do you do?" I asked. Tran responds, "My name is Karina Tran and I'm a creator, with my forte being portrait photography." At just 13 years old, she realized she was blessed with a talent when she got a chrome blue

LABOR DAY

Back in the day when things were more normal, the end of summer was marked by a holiday weekend named Labor Day. It signaled to Americans that it was time to get back to school and work. Fall was on its way. Football would be starting, days would be getting shorter, and families would be settling into their regular Fall routines. But, these are new times. Nothing is normal. Things are changing fast. We can't be accused of being "set in our ways" any longer. Our traditions have been shaken. Some of this change has been good. Families have had more time together rather than rushing around to piano lessons, soccer practices, yoga, and grabbing a Chick-fil-A sandwich to eat in the car on the way home. All of this change is also causing a lot of us some anxiety. A recent survey of Californians showed that 41% of us are anxious or have some gloomy moods due to the virus related lockdowns. This would seem to be expected since we have gone from go, go, go, to stay home and chill. No bars to go have a cold one at. No events to attend. No indoor church services. No indoor eateries. No barbershops until this week. We've had a lot of extra time on our hands. Some of us are making more money on unemployment than when we were in the labor pool. It makes us wonder about our self worth. There is a lot to be said about working and feeling a sense of pride in what we do. We look forward to a future time when our economy is back up and running and people are fully employed. We can be thankful for any work that we are given. What words of encouragement can I offer you if you are in need of a lift, a laugh, a chuckle, a smile? "This too will pass." "Have no anxiety about anything." "Relax, have a cold one." "Keep your eyes on Jesus." "Count it all joy!" Romans 5:3-4 says: "Not only that, but we rejoice in our sufferings, knowing that suffering produces endurance, and endurance produces character, and character produces hope" We all have to deal with the pitch that has been thrown at us.

iPod music player for Christmas. She then explains, "It was the first device I ever had that had a [decent] camera on it...Whether it's like 'whoa! the color of that fire hydrant looks really cool against the color of the grass,' or the sunset, I'll photograph it so I can hold onto that moment." Tran felt as if the whole world around her was beautiful and it inspired her to show others what her eyes saw. With the help of her friends and followers, Tran was inspired to continue with her art to become better at what she started.

I then asked Tran "What's your favorite thing about photography?" She responded by saying she loves everything about the field of photography. She added, "At the top of my list would probably be the community that [her artwork] creates." She says, "Portrait photography by nature is [mostly] an intimate experience. You are capturing the essence of other individuals and are trying to find the best parts of them". She finds it meaningful and widely important that she gets to know her clients before any photoshoots she does with them that day.

"Most people are uncomfortable in front of the camera," Tran describes, "so the conversations you run through in those first moments are crucial in establishing an environment of comfort." She closes her response by expressing "the community between other photographers and creatives is like continuously discovering long lost family members that you kind of just click with, and I love that about being a photographer."

"What do you want to accomplish while you're doing photography?" was the main topic question of my interview. Tran said she "grew up in an environment and society where creative careers are frowned upon because of monetary things and it took [her] a long time to fully embrace her love for the arts." Being a creator makes her feel vibrant and alive and she hopes to share her experience with others. Similarly to Myah Alvarado, Tran desires to start her own business where it is surrounded by nothing but a community of profound creators who want to bring positivity, not only to our local creators, but our society. For her, she claims this will help her grow as a creator through engaging with other modes of art.

To conclude this interview, I asked her "What piece of advice would you give to those who are starting their own photography business?" She right away responds by saying "there's going to be so many times where you just want to give up because it feels like there's no point...but let me tell you...we're in this amazing transitional period in time where the importance and dedication of creatives is becoming more recognized".

Unfortunately, we live in a world where sometimes more high level creators are too selfish to share their tips because they want to stay and feel entitled. Eventually, that can discourage upcoming artists to feel stuck or unmotivated and not continue the art that they are meant to do. She encourages upcoming creators to not get too involved in those toxic parts of the community that they potentially might hold.

In closing, Tran aspires and urges upcoming artists and creators "to remain true to yourself," she continues, "it's common that many photographers don't like sharing their secrets because everyone is in competition... I will continue to learn and to teach as long as I am able to, in the hopes of seeing us all succeed."

If you want to contact either or both artists, you can download the Instagram app from your Apple Store or Google Play store for free! Just go to your favorite mobile device, open the application store you have access to, and search 'Instagram' in order to download it! Once you download this app, you can search @papayacustomsss to give your boyfriend/girlfriend or yourself a new pair of custom shoes! But, if you are looking to have some graduation or wedding pictures taken, or to simply model, send a message to the Instagram account @transpectrum to set up your next photoshoot!

MY THOUGHTS

You hardly ever easily see shoe designers, photographers, or any creator in our community. I honestly never once felt inspired to do some type of art until I saw Karina Tran everywhere on my Instagram. I remember seeing her photos and telling myself "wow! I want to do something like that," and I did just that. In high school, I did photography and absolutely loved it and many of my old school friends loved my art too. I would go out with friends, see something that would catch my eye, and capture the moment. My school eventually knew me as 'the girl with the camera' and started asking me for prom photoshoots. After a few years went by, I've seen so many other creators, such as Myah Alvarado, and amazing local musicians in the South Bay who desperately want to be in the industry of art. However, many of us living in the South Bay can't afford music or painting classes. We have to rely on ourselves to learn new skills, but I see that as an opportunity of self-exploration and searching of what you are meant to be in this life. •

I receive a wide range of response to my attempts at using the written word to enlighten, brighten, and heighten awareness to the need to drink a cold one, relax and enjoy life. Who knows what I'm trying to accomplish here every week? I let all of this crap roll off my back, but I do smell it for awhile afterward. Here are just a few comments: Fake news. They are calling you out big time. Need fact checks. You are putting out b.s. Need a copy editor. Your column provides zero information and only laughs and chuckles for intelligent readers. No information for undiscerning readers. Many readers have contempt and disdain for the insipid drivel. A good time to put a stop to this. "I can't believe you don't tell him to stop." (That last quote was from my dear mother-in-law and she has been dead for close to a year.) On the other hand, I have a handful of loyal readers who have not tested positive, still are kicking, and telling me to keep on writing. Until the roosters come home to roost, until the fat lady stops singing, as long as the big guy up in the sky allows me to turn on my computer, I will continue. I will just hold my nose and keep on typing away.

Finally, we all agreed that if your daughter was the main character in a movie, we would line up to see it, because there is nothing quite as compelling as seeing a hero face a difficult test, and circumstances have set it up perfectly. We have seen that she is tough. We have seen that she is clever. We have seen that her heart is true. Together with a strong supporting cast, your daughter has embarked on a harrowing journey. Summary of Adoption of Ordinance 2207 Amending Section 1.08.030 of Title 1 of the Hawthorne Municipal Code ("HMC") Regarding Use of the City Seal Pursuant to Government Code section 36933(c), the following constitutes a summary of Ordinance No. 2207 which was adopted by the City Council at its regular meeting on August 25, 2020 at 6:00 p.m. Pursuant to California Government Code section 36933(c) (1), the City Council has previously directed the preparation and publication of a summary of Ordinance No. 2207 which clarifies when the City Seal may be used. Ordinance No. 2207 makes changes to section 1.08.030 (C) by adding "an elected official of the city" to person and entities prohibited from the use of the City Seal in an activity not directly connected with the official city business. It also adds (G) through (J) to section 1.08.030 summarized as follows: G. Except where required by law or approved by a resolution of the city council, neither the City Seal or its copy, reproduction, or limitation thereof may be printed or applied to any award or certificate. H. Except when approved by a resolution of the city council as provided in section 1.08.030, neither an elected official, appointed official or employee of the city or any person, firm or organization may use the City Seal or its copy, reproduction, or limitation thereof, on any website or social media account of the City. I. Subdivision (H) does not apply to prohibit any reproduction of a document or electronic publication, such as an event announcement, that has otherwise been produced in compliance with this section. For example, subdivision (H) does not prohibit the posting of a complete copy of scan of an official City of Hawthorne event announcement on a private website. J. Nothing in this Section is intended to prohibit any use of the City Seal, or any copy, reproduction, or imitation thereof, that the City is required by state or federal law to permit. The City Council finds and determines that there is no possibility that the adoption of this Ordinance will have a significant effect on the environment. Accordingly, this Ordinance is not subject to the requirements of the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) pursuant to Sections 15061(b)(3) and 15378 of Division 6 of Title 14 of the California Code of Regulations. A certified copy of the entirety of the text of Ordinance No. 2207 is available both on the City's website and also in the office of the City Clerk, 4455 West 126th Street, Hawthorne, California, and is open for public inspection. Pursuant to Government Code section 36933(c), the summary Ordinance No. 2207 was published at least five (5) days before the ordinance was considered for adoption on August 25, 2020 at a duly convened regular meeting of the Hawthorne City Council. STATE OF CALIFORNIA COUNTY OF LA CITY OF HAWTHORNE I, Diana Cuzalco, the duly appointed Acting Deputy City Clerk of the City of Hawthorne, California, DO HEREBY CERTIFY that the foregoing Ordinance No. 2207, was duly adopted by the City Council of the City of Hawthorne, CA, at their regular meeting of the City Council held August 25, 2020, and that it was adopted by the following vote, to wit: AYES: Councilmembers Awad, Valentine, Monteiro, Tallea and Mayor Vargas. Meet Callie! She is a two-month-old DSH female kitten looking to find her place in her forever home. She's as playful and sweet as she is cute! Make her part of your family today. <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=20-04360>

Woof! The name is Chato, I am a 5 year old pit bull mix boy.....a little shy but I am optimistic that I can find a gentle friend that is perfect for me! I know I will make a warm and (obviously) handsome partner. Some yummy treats and ear scratches really get my tail going. Come see me! <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=20-02810>

Meow, my name is Serafina! I am a lovely 6 year old DSH calico girl who wants to be your Friend for Life. Let me snag a seat next to you on the couch while you watch the Food Network. All I know how to make are biscuits. Maybe you can teach me more recipes? Ask about me! <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=20-03870>

Hey everyone! My name is Danno. I am a 3 year old Jindo male mix who is smart and playful. I would love to find a home with loving and patient Friends for Life. I prefer to be the only four-legged individual in the home. Ask about me today! <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=20-04533> •

Happy Tails

When Los Angeles County Fire Department fire fighters found this little guy in the fire engine of Station 170, they intended to bring him to spcaLA South Bay Pet Adoption Center right away. Before they could, the station received a fire call. So what's a kitten to do? He went along, of course! His rescuers named him Cutter, and since he's only a month old, he's on his way to Foster Care until he's ready for adoption. We can't wait to see what's next for Cutter! •

Congratulations to Jacqueline and her new family.
