Residents Give Thumbs Up to City Management in New Poll Results

By Rob McCarthy

Hawthorne residents like how the city is being run, and they'd be even happier with more parking and knowing there'll be money in the future to pay for essential public services. That's the consensus of a survey of registered voters done right before summer.

A polling firm asked nearly 400 registered voters how satisfied they are with the current city management and the services to residents. Both English- and Spanish-speakers from a cross-section of neighborhoods and political views had positive things to say.

The results indicate that the City Council and staff have Hawthorne going in the right direction. By a landslide, 78 percent of residents expressed confidence in how the city is being managed. The future looks bright both citywide and from the neighborhoods, where 70 percent of residents gave a thumbs up to their local neighborhood councils. "This was probably the highest percentage of right direction I have seen in a city in this state," John Fairbank of fm3research told the City Council Aug. 24 during a presentation about the poll results.

Pollsters with fm3research also measured residents' satisfaction with the city services. Fire protection received the highest overall satisfaction rating, with 75 percent of residents saying they approved of the Los Angeles County Fire Department. It received a 5 percent disapproval rating. Close behind was police protection with 72 percent approval.

Residents say the 911 emergency response system is the service they value most in Hawthorne. The 911 system and its operators got a 68 percent approval rating in the survey. People appreciate the work being done by graffiti removal crews, yet the survey indicated the public thinks more can be done to remove the handiwork of taggers. Two-thirds of the residents are pleased with the graffiti removal efforts, while 20 percent said they were not.

The survey results pointed to an overall satisfaction with City Hall and the Council, but it also revealed a list of issues that Hawthorne residents find unsettling. Four rose to the top of the list: lack of affordable housing, a lack of parking, homelessness and crime. Residents in the survey said they feel safe during the day. It's the nights that worry them, they say.

Street gangs, violence and drug trafficking within the community is another major concern among residents. So are protecting local water supplies from contamination, and pollution from cities and county areas that flows to the ocean and trashes the South Bay beaches.

Residents admitted they are concerned about money, specifically the sources of revenue to continue to run the city and fund essential services. Three in four voters want the city to secure more funding, including 38 percent who called the need "strong."

Traffic and street repair merited a mention in the survey results, with 50 percent of residents calling traffic an extremely or very serious concern. That ranked slightly above climate change and extreme weather as a key contributor to quality of life in Hawthorne.

Affordable housing for middle-class families and a shortage of parking are considered an extremely serious problem by 44 and 41 percent of the residents surveyed. Home burglaries and car thefts made the most pressing list of local issues, with 54 percent of survey takers labeling these types of property crimes an extremely or very serious issue.

The public parks are generally well maintained, people said. Six in 10 people surveyed approve of the way local parks are being maintained, with 23 percent not happy with the upkeep. Potholes and street repairs generated the highest unfavorable rate at 39 percent.

The City Council in March approved the contract with fm3research for the public opinion polling. The survey cost just under $25,000 and was Hawthorne's first time using the pollster whose clients include the California League of Cities. •

Ms. Purple is a Visually Stunning Sibling Drama

By Morgan Rojas for Cinemacy

“373 backers pledged $73,634 to help bring this project to life.” That’s the impressive take-away from director Justin Chon’s Kickstarter page for his third independent feature film, Ms. Purple. Chon, who stunned audiences and critics alike with his sophomore film, Gook, once again brings a heartfelt story of Asian American cultural identity and the basic human desire of belonging to the streets of Los Angeles in Ms. Purple, now playing at relationship with my own brother. Visually, Ms. Purple is a dreamy concoction of Wong Kar-Wai, PT Anderson and Barry Jenkins’ Moonlight all rolled into one. The collection of colors, from sharp neon lights of the karaoke club to the naturalism of the morning sunrise, is exuberant. These pitch-perfect surroundings amplify the powerful performances from the whole cast --especially Tiffany Chu, whose raw emotions are felt bubbling to the surface throughout

Ms. Purple, Courtesy of Oscilloscope Laboratories

Landmark’s Nuart Theatre.

Ms. Purple centers on 23-year-old Kasie (Tiffany Chu) who unexpectedly finds herself the sole caretaker of her bedridden, comatose, dying father. Abandoned by her mother as a child, Kasie has always struggled with isolation and feelings of low self-worth, as depicted in the film’s beautifully shot opening montage where she wanders alone and aimlessly down Koreatown streets. To make a living, Kasie depends on the seedy Soop Sok karaoke lounge, a local hotspot in the K-town pay-for-play market, where she works as a “hostess” (among other favors male customers may ask of her). Just as she feels like the world is caving in on her, Kasie’s estranged brother Carey (Teddy Lee) agrees to return home and help with their father. Here begins the slow process of bridging the fractured familial gap between sister, brother and father.

The brother/sister relationship between Carey and Kasie is an enviable one. They have much love for each other, and their dynamic reflects an undeniable sibling bond where things are often silently understood without the need to speak. It’s clear throughout the film that the relationship between Kasie and Carey is very tight-knit, and I couldn’t help but reflect at how fortunate I am to have a similarly close the entire film. Ms. Purple is an all-around electrifying visual experience, from the production design to the soundtrack (available on Note For Note Records) and of course, the authentic and confident directorial choices. Justin Chon has made another powerhouse film that feels far bigger than the result of a modest Kickstarter campaign. Support true independent film by catching Ms. Purple this weekend. No doubt you’ll leave the theatre inspired by both the film’s message and the future of such new, diverse voices in filmmaking. •

How I Remember 9/11

On Wednesday, September 11, 2019, the world commemorates the 18th anniversary of the horrific attacks of 9/11. I moved from Indonesia to the Unites States in 2008 so it did not directly impact me. But when I immigrated here, I could see how Muslims and other minority groups who look like them were subjected to hate crimes. Despite of that I am optimist. There is so much love in this world that will prevail over hate and prejudice.

Islam teaches me not to create disorder. We share common values of humanity, love, and tolerance and we all desire peace. That is why the Ahmadiyya Muslim Community launched the campaign Muslims for Life and organized blood drives across the country to honor the 2977 men, women and children killed in the attacks at the World Trade Center site, the Pentagon, and aboard Flight 93 over Pennsylvania.

I recognize there are those who claim to be Muslims but kill innocent people or create disorder. So you might ask, how can one Muslim save life while the other take one? There is a difference between how a person acts and the true essence of the teachings of the faith. It will be ignorant if we consider all whites are racist or KKK represents American value. Thus I invite you to ask a Muslim about Islam. After all, we share the common value of love, unity and peace.

Council Gets Aye Vote from Ballmer as Clippers Arena Gears Up

By Haleemon Anderson

With the council chambers packed at Tuesday’s meeting, Inglewood City Manager Artie Fields reported the details of a community investment plan that is all but signed, sealed and delivered. Los Angeles Clippers Owner Steve Ballmer gave his approval late Tuesday evening, leaving only a formal Inglewood City Council vote to usher in the largest commitment of funding to a municipality by a sports team ever.

“Prepare to be wowed,” said Fields, as he unveiled color renderings of the Clippers arena, along with the nuts and bolts of a funding package that includes $75 million to support affordable housing developments.

“Housing was key,” said Mayor James T. Butts, who had come under criticism for steering a development boom that seemed to overlook the rising housing crisis in a city of 65 percent renters. Butts said the City spent a good deal of time and money launching focus groups and researching other similar developments to determine what citizens wanted and needed.

And while Ballmer has been very vocal about his intentions to be a good neighbor, the specifics of his pledge to invest in Inglewood as a community were largely unknown until recently.

The announcement of the deal left the community buzzing and Butts celebrating the victory in the wee hours Wednesday morning. “Ballmer affirmed [our proposal],” said Butts. “It’s something that has never been done, with no public funds committed.”

The total pledge of $100 million in benefits to Inglewood residents represents the largest community investment package of its kind, according to Fields. “The Clippers organization plans to be a real game-changer in the city of Inglewood,” said Fields. “Not only are they going to build the most magnificent basketball arena the world has ever seen... but the community benefits package could end up being the most generous in sports history.”

Affordable housing is the top focus in the proposal. “This was a $75 million ask,” said

Butts, explaining the funding plan was not intended to build affordable housing directly, but is rather an incentive-driven mechanism to help facilitate entities that do want to build affordable housing by providing upfront capital on a rotating basis.

Other aspects of the City’s ambitious benefits deal with the Clippers include funding for youth programs and job training; homeowner and rental assistance; City use of the arena; grant support for college advisement and tuition support; funding for renovation of the Inglewood library, parks and senior facilities; and a host of other community engagement projects.

Set-asides have also been written into the plan, targeting a percentage of construction contracts for minority and women-owned businesses based in Inglewood, and guaranteeing jobs to Inglewood residents. Construction has not begun on the arena, but the Clippers could be playing ball in Inglewood by 2024 when their contract with Staples Center in Downtown Los Angeles is set to expire.

The development area, known as the Inglewood Basketball Entertainment Center (IBEC), borders Century Boulevard at the corner of Prairie Avenue, with four stand-alone buildings, including a retail plaza, team offices, a hotel and a sports medicine clinic.

The main arena, which Fields describes as “an architectural must-see for anyone visiting Southern California,” has a capacity of 18,000-plus, with more than 4,000 on-site parking spaces, all just across the street from the new NFL stadium that will house the Rams and Chargers.

“It’s very contemporary in design, with a very indoor-outdoor feel and takes advantage of the perfect climate here in Southern California,” said Fields. “It creates a very dynamic and open space for visitors.” The Council is set to formalize the agreement at its next meeting.

The Inglewood City Council meets every Tuesday, unless otherwise noted, at 2 p.m. in the council chambers on the 9th floor, Inglewood City Hall. •

A Special Two-Wheel Surprise

Last weekend's 6th Annual Picnic and Chili Cook-Off hosted by Councilman Alex Padilla (second from right) was another example of how people truly give in this community. The three ladies in the back left witnessed that the little girl who hoped to get her ticket called for the bike raffle was unsuccessful in her endeavor. This hurt her little heart when the ladies won the bike. She bowed her head and accepted her defeat. Little did she know that they would surprise her and gift her the bike! When she realized that she was getting the bike, she broke down crying. When asked, the young ladies -- Amaya and Kennedy Williams -- said they "felt bad for her and wanted to give it to her to make her happy." Photo: City of Inglewood

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: FRANCISCA BACALLA PRICE AKA FRANCISCA B. PRICE CASE NO. 19STPB07338

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of FRANCISCA BACALLA PRICE AKA FRANCISCA B. PRICE. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by STEVE SEBIAL in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES. THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that STEVE SEBIAL be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The WILL and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) Purrrfect Companions

Shallot

Every second of every minute of every day, a helpless animal is put to death just because no one was there to take them home. Give them a second chance for love when you adopt one of these precious kitties. You can also check out their friends on our website – www.kittenrescue.org up for hugs and kisses. If you're looking for a comical little muppet that's always getting himself into a twist but also has a warm, cuddly side, Shallot is a purr-fect match for you. He is a leader of the pack-type personality, but not overly dominant with his buddies. This energetic boy integrates with new cats easily and loves to play hard with everyone. Since he is young and playful, Shallot will need to be adopted with a buddy or placed into a home with a friendly companion pet. He is friends with Provolone.

Provolone is a very sweet, snuggly little boy who loves to bury his face in your chest and be showered with hugs and kisses. He has an incredibly soft, downy coat with a swirly classic tabby pattern. He can be a little shy at times, but will climb in your lap or snuggle into any spot where he can be up against you to enjoy time together. Provolone has a wonderful personality, is very gentle and non-dominant with other animals, and finds a way to blend well and engage with everyone. Provolone has tested positive for FIV, but we suspect he was just exposed to antibodies and will test negative soon. This playful little guy needs to be adopted with a buddy (consider Shallot) or into a home with a playful companion.

These cats and kittens are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org or email us at mail@kittenrescue.org. Your tax-deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 914 Westwood Blvd. #583, Los Angeles, CA 90024.

On Saturdays, we have adoptions from noon to 3:30 p.m. in Westchester at 8655 Lincoln

Rumble is a sweet young boy who has a purr that becomes a rumble when he's content. Angel face, cute meow, soft fur, playful attitude and smelling like butterscotch, there isn't much he doesn't offer. Rumble was left behind when his family moved and he desperately wants a new forever home. He needs to be the only male cat in the household, and he doesn't like dogs. Rumble has a quiet voice when he talks and likes to sit next to you for pets. He's playful and sweet and loves kisses too! Getting love is number one for this guy! Gus Gus and his brother Jack Jack are almost identical...identically cute, that is. Gus Gus was so cute they named him twice. Jack Jack is his twin brother (except for that cute little lock of white on his chest). He is also slightly smaller, but every bit as handsome. Sweet and playful, the boys are both so perfect and would make an excellent pair of kittens. They don't have to be adopted together, but they each do need to have a cat or kitten in their new homes. If you don't already have one, we can recommend one of their feline friends here at the Adoption Center where Gus Gus and Jack Jack live.

Boots is an interesting character. She was in a home with someone until she was seven years old and was then returned to Kitten Rescue when her human decided to move to a building that didn't take pets. It was a very upsetting event for Boots. She hissed and growled at everyone and for a long time we thought she hated other cats too. Boots initially bonded very strongly with one of our caretakers. Recently, she has taken to others and is able to be out and about with the other cats at the sanctuary, but she is still not very happy that they exist. Boots would love to have her own home again, ideally with a person who will take the time to let her adjust to a new home that preferably has no other cats.

Shallot is a very affectionate and hilariously playful little guy who is always up for some fun. He purrs to the touch and loves to get scooped
