Kelly Burner is Anticipating a Profitable Holiday Season

By Duane Plank

With the Holiday season quickly approaching and, cross your fingers, the COVID-19 scourge continuing to abate, businesses big and small are looking to the Holiday selling season to bounce back after the virus put a damper on most companies’ profits during the Fall and Winter of 2020.

El Segundo’s Kelly Burner, the founder, and owner of Kelly’s Beach Hut: Coastal Gifts and Such, is one such entrepreneur who is anticipating the possibilities of the next three months.

I dropped by Burner’s store, which is located at 204 West Grand Avenue in our downtown district, on a recent warm, “beachy” afternoon, and spoke to the mother of five about the genesis of her store.

The first iteration of Kelly’s Beach Hut began in January of 2016 when she ran a small boutique out of her back house. She said her wares were available for sale at a kiosk in the Manhattan Village Mall the next year. Continuing her trajectory towards owning and running her own brick-and-mortar business, she returned to El Segundo and next ran her burgeoning business from “a small space” in the back of Tyler Surfboards.

Finally, in September of 2019, Burner moved into her own store space, right as the holiday shopping season was heating up.

Although Burner was able to make the deal for the brick-and-mortar store, she knew she had tough sledding ahead, because the space that she was settling into was in a state of disrepair, “disgusting,” Burner said. Burner noted that the building she currently resides in had been vacant for the prior two years and needed more than a cosmetic touching-up.

Once the building was spruced up, and the doors opened to the public, “We had a great Holiday season,” Burner said, “and then COVID happened.” Some small businesses have been able to weather the COVID storm, embracing innovative strategies to satisfy their customers in a time of jabs and masks. And some have relied on juicing sales through creating a robust Internet presence.

When COVID started shutting down businesses all over the map, she said that instead of keeping the doors open every day, her daughter Erin, who just had a baby on Sept. 9, making Burner a first-time grandmother, came up with the idea to leverage the power of the Internet. To keep the customer traffic flowing and adhere to social-distancing requirements, potential customers were able to book one-hour in-store appointments online.

Erin’s idea worked perfectly to drive business in a trying environment. “We got slammed,” Kelly said. She said that the success of the 2019 Holiday sales season carried the business through the darkest COVID hours. She said last holiday season was “really, really good,” but then the Delta variant of the virus reared its ugly head, and LA County pivoted, and the powers-that-be felt that more severe restrictions and mandates were again warranted.

Burner said it has been challenging for her to stay ahead of the retail game, as businesses big and small are whip-sawed by the ever-changing regulations they are forced to work under. Unlike some businesses, Burner said that, while she has an online presence, an exceedingly small percentage of her customers order online. This is OK with her because when an online order is placed and fulfilled, Burner said, the resultant “shipping kills me,” slicing and dicing her profit margin.

For her type of store, she said, people want to see the product in-person, not peer at a picture on a website. She feels her customers are loyal to her because her products are “quality. Everything in here, I pick.” She does collaborate with vendors like Mudpie brand home-and kitchen goods, as well as Huntington Beach’s California Seashell. But she is always looking to help out local artists, and she allows them to display their wares in her store and hopefully generate sales, which equates to a solution where everyone benefits.

“I feel good supporting local, I really do,” she said, “and it is good karma for me.”

Jodie Davies of Next Session and Buff Junkie is one such local artisan who places her wares at the Beach Hut, selling both rings made from recycled wetsuits and resin and items from the Buff Junkie clothing line.

Davies, an El Segundo resident, said Burner is adept at highlighting the talents and efforts of local creators. “She is a friend now, for sure. Just a good person, what you see is what you get,” Davies said. “She is all about her family, all about her community. I owe a lot to Kelly.”

Benny Au is the President of Operations of Improper Etiquette. His company sells hats and T-shirts at the Beach Hut. He said that his environmentally conscious brand “really cares about sustainability” and that displaying their

Six Incredible New Films You Have to See in October

By Ryan Rojas, cinemacy.com

Whether having their theatrical release dates pushed back or switched to day-and-date releases on streamers, nearly all of the originally-planned openings of this year’s films have been affected by the ongoing shake-up to the movie-going experience. However, we’ve finally arrived in October. And since it’s my most anticipated month for seeing new movies this year, I compiled a list of what to watch in October that I’ll be seeing, and that you hopefully will too.

Lamb (A24)

What it’s about: A childless couple, María and Ingvar discover a mysterious newborn on their farm in Iceland. The unexpected prospect of family life brings them much joy, before ultimately destroying them.

Why we’re looking forward to it: Every new A24 release is an exciting movie-going event. However, a new horror film from the studio behind such mind-bending films as Midsommar and The Lighthouse makes us even more excited. If that doesn’t sell you on checking out Lamb, the devilishly delirious trailer surely will.

‘Lamb’ is in theaters Friday, October 8.

The Rescue (National Geographic)

What it’s about: Follows the story of the Wild Boars youth soccer team who got trapped and their dramatic 2018 rescue.

Why we’re looking forward to it: The next high-adrenaline, live-action documentary from directors Jimmy Chin and Elizabeth Chai Vasarhelyi looks just as intense and heart-pounding as their last Oscar-winning film, Free Solo.

‘The Rescue’ is in theaters Friday, October 8.

Dune

What it’s about: Feature adaptation of Frank Herbert’s science fiction novel, about the son of a noble family entrusted with the protection of the most valuable asset and most vital element in the galaxy.

Why we’re looking forward to it: Are we more excited to see the visionary director Denis Villeneuve’s epic big screen piece, or Timothée Chalamet and Zendaya (and an incredible ensemble cast) share the screen? It’s... a draw.

‘Dune’ is in theaters and on HBO Max on Friday, October 22.

The French Dispatch (Searchlight Pictures)

What it’s about: A love letter to journalists set in an outpost of an American newspaper in a fictional twentieth century French city that brings to life a collection of stories published in “The French Dispatch Magazine.”

Why we’re looking forward to it: Wes Anderson’s latest feature film. Enough said.

‘The French Dispatch’ is in theaters Friday, October 22.

Last Night in Soho (Focus Features)

What it’s about: An aspiring fashion designer is mysteriously able to enter the 1960s where she encounters a dazzling wannabe singer. But the glamour is not all it appears to be and the dreams of the past start to crack and splinter

Kings of the Wyld by Nicholas Eames

By Teen Reviewer Maxwell Stahl

While stuck inside because of COVID-19, I had a lot of time to read. Kings of the Wyld, by Nicholas Eames, was one of my favorites. The story follows Clay Cooper, an aging retired mercenary who was a member of Saga, the most famous mercenary band in the empire of Grandual. Over time, since Saga’s disbandment, Clay and his friends have “grown apart and grown old, fat, drunk, or a combination of the three”. Nineteen years after they separated, Clay’s ex-bandmate Gabriel shows up at his door, begging for help rescuing his daughter from an unimaginably huge horde of monsters. It’s a suicide mission through and through, but eventually Clay accepts, “It’s time to get the band back together”. Clay and Gabriel slowly recruit all of their former bandmates, and Saga traverses the dangerous wilderness of the Heartwyld once again, fighting off chimeras, cannibals, and everything in between.

Kings of the Wyld is written with a focus on comedy, designed to make the readers laugh. But along with the jokes, the book holds an interesting plot, with tense, sad, and mysterious moments mixed in. Another interesting thing about this book is that the author (Nicholas Eames) modeled the mercenaries and their band structure off of famous rock bands and musicians. Throughout the story, there are subtle comparisons and references to famous musicians such as Elvis, Neil Young, and Eric Clapton. Kings of the Wyld is one of my favorite books I’ve read this year, and my only big criticism is that a certain subplot was resolved in a rather predictable and anticlimatic fashion, causing me no surprise when it was revealed. The book is fairly long, with a page count clocking in at about 500 pages. I highly recommend that you read Kings of the Wyld, as it was one of my favorite books I’ve read so far in 2020.

If you would like to contribute a teen book review, please visit the El Segundo Public Library’s Teen page, www.elsegundo.org/services/teens, or contact Senior Librarian Kristina Kora-Beckman at kbeckman@elsegundo.org.

Effective Job Hunting In Pandemic 2021

(BPT) - Whether you're actively looking for a job or are simply curious about a new career, you're not alone. Millions of people nationwide are open to work, but it can be hard to know the most effective methods for finding the right job for you.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, almost half of all American job seekers are currently looking to transition careers, according to a new Morning Consult job-seeker insight survey commissioned by Amazon. Many of those job seekers (43%) identified better pay and benefits as the top reason they are looking for new work.

"Whether you've been out of the job market for a while or have been working and want a change, this is a fantastic time to be looking for a new opportunity," says Luli Chaluleu, hiring expert at Amazon. "Many companies are hiring, and with the right search tactics you'll find a job that you not only love, but has ample benefits."

Amazon is included in that list of companies eager to hire. Despite the pandemic, in 2020 they hired over 400,000 employees in the U.S., of which, more than 60% are now paid more than they were paid at their previous job. Competitive benefits include health insurance, up to 20 weeks of parental leave and company-funded career advancement opportunities.

If you want to find a new job, knowing current job search strategies can help, including updating your resume and conducting virtual interviews. Research career events that allow you to learn, network and even apply for positions of interest. Career coaching can help as well.

To help supercharge your job search efforts, Luli shares these important tips:

- Explore the company website: One of the best ways to learn more about an organization is through their digital presence. Look at the website, including careers pages, news sections and any applicable departmental information. If you know where you want to work or what role you'd like to pursue, have that information ready when you apply or speak with a recruiter.

- Keep your resume short: Resumes should be compelling and concise. Think about skills you gained at previous jobs and how they apply to future positions. No matter how long you've been working or how many positions you've had, a resume should be no longer than two pages. Focus on the facts, communicate essential skills and highlight career achievements. When you interview, you can go into more detail.

- Customize with keywords: Many companies use technology to discover and track the best candidates for open positions. These applicant tracking systems look for important words and phrases within a resume to filter candidates, so be sure to use keywords in your copy. The job description is a good source for potential keywords. If you need more ideas, look at resumes and profiles for other people who have a similar position.

- Apply even if you're not 100% qualified: If you see a job post of interest, but hesitate to apply because you don't have all the qualifications, think again. Hiring managers know that oftentimes candidates may lack experience in a few areas. If you have the majority of the skills listed and a willingness to learn the ones you don't, apply anyway and then convey your enthusiasm about the opportunity during the interview.

- Stay positive: Job searches take time and you may have to apply to many positions and interview numerous times before getting an offer. Don't be discouraged, because if one role doesn't pan out, there are plenty more opportunities to explore. • locally made products meshes with the beach vibe of Burner’s store.

Au grew up with one of Burner’s daughters, Emma, who happens to sell her own line of handmade bags, BurneD, made from recycled denim, at the store. And when his company was looking for a venue to sell its merch, he knew the Beach Hut was a perfect fit.

“I grew up in El Segundo,” he said. “I think about the heritage of El Segundo,” noting how the Burner’s are a very tuned-in family to the pulse of the city. “They know everyone,” he said, mentioning how “growing-up, Mrs. Burner always had an eye out on us, making sure we stayed out of trouble.”

Friends with Burner for more than 20 years, Tracy Weaver, the City Clerk of El Segundo, patronize the Beach Hut, sometimes looking for “last-minute gifts,” or host gifts, or something to add a decorative touch to one of her kids’ apartments, or her own home.

Weaver related that after Burner and her youngest kids graduated from high school, she issued a sigh of relief. No more volunteering, Weaver happily noted. But, Weaver said, Burner had other plans, following her passion to continue developing the Beach Hut. “She has so much energy,” Weaver said. “She just loves it. Kudos to her for starting a second career. She never stops.”

So here is the Kelly Burner backstory. She came to El Segundo in 1988 after attending San Pedro High school, moving on to El Camino Junior College, and ending up at Chapman College, where she picked up a business management degree.

Before moving to El Segundo, Burner lived in Hollywood Riviera, noting that she was “fabulously happy there,” citing her proximity to the Strand where she could run for exercise or walk to shop at local markets. When she married her husband Greg, the couple decided that buying a place in Hollywood Riviera was, at the time, a little out of their price range.

So, they moved to Huntington Beach, but, alas, that experience lasted for all of three months. Greg was working in the South Bay for Hughes Aircraft, and his “commute was horrible.” They flipped the Huntington Beach home for a profit, and Greg suggested they look to buy a home in El Segundo. A town that was not on Kelly’s radar at the time. “Why?” she said and burst out laughing.

Greg had lived in an El Segundo apartment after college and was familiar with the charms of this quaint town. Kelly somewhat reluctantly began house hunting in El Segundo and, to use a hackneyed phrase, “the rest is history.

The Burners have raised their five kids here, with all of them taking the Center Street School to the ES Middle School to the El Segundo High School pathway, which seemed to work out quite well for the Burners. “They all got to good colleges from here,” she said, “I can’t complain.”

She has a fondness for her adopted hometown. “I personally love it,” she said, while wryly noting that, when her children were rising through the ESUSD school system, “they hated it, because everyone knows everyone else’s business. But it does not bother them now,” she said, “because they have all moved back.”

“You can walk everywhere,” she said of El Segundo while noting how some outsiders do not see it as a true beach community, like the neighboring towns to the south in Manhattan Beach and Hermosa.

Since she had five active children attending school, participating in sports and other extracurricular activities, she spent her child-rearing years being a Mom, and a chauffeur. As for work outside the home at the time, she did not have a lot of spare time for drawing a paycheck as her kids grew up. “I dabbled in some things,” she said, with selling real estate being one of them. Her heart was not really into real estate, she said. “I probably liked looking at the houses more than anything,” she said, as opposed to brokering a deal.

“As the kids got older, and it started to slow down, I thought, ‘what am I going to do?’” She said she has always been one to shop for coastal décor type items that her shop displays.

She would visit niche-type shops in Hollywood Riviera and Manhattan Beach, securing beachy items for her home. The thought occurred to her that “maybe I could do something like this,” selling beach products, and started running a little boutique at her house.

So, where does Kelly Burner hope to be in five years? “I was looking to expand, but the way things are now,” she said, “I just don’t know,” citing the anxiety of trying to keep a new business afloat in the era of an epic pandemic. “I feel lucky that I am still here.” She does envision a future where she might “have a couple of stores, and do all of the shopping,” and allow someone else to run the day-to-day store operations.

For relaxation, Burner said she creates “sea-glass art,” which she sells in her store, does her best to keep physically fit, which has been more challenging since the gym that she belonged to, the El Segundo Athletic Club, closed its doors more than a year ago.”

She walks the town, works out four days a week, and enjoys reading.

Overall, life appears upbeat for the new grandmother, who continues her mission to “bring the beach to your home.” •

This year in celebration of Hispanic Heritage Month, the City of Inglewood recognizes the Hernandez family and owners of La Michoacana Ricas Nieves, an authentic Mexican style ice cream and snack shop located in the City of Inglewood. Founded by Jesus Hernandez in 2016, La Michoacana has quickly become one of Inglewood's most popular ice cream shops. Jesus grew up in Mexico and worked as an ice cream maker alongside his father who taught him the trade. After moving to California and sustaining a career in the construction industry, Jesus' wife Maria, and other family members encouraged him to open his own ice cream store. HAWTHORNE PLANNING COMMISSION

Public Hearing Notice

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that the Planning Commission of the City of Hawthorne will hold a public hearing on the proposed project as follows:
Day: Wednesday
Date: October 20, 2021
Time: 6:00 p.m.
Place: Via Virtual Meeting
Project Title: City-initiated amendment of Chapters 17.29, 17.87 and Appendix B of the Hawthorne Municipal Code
Project Location: City-wide
Project Description: This project is a City-initiated amendment to Title 17 (Zoning) addressing mixed-use standards and guidelines, as contained in Chapter 17.29 Mixed Commercial Classification), 17.87 (Mixed Use Overlay Zone) and Appendix B in the Hawthorne Municipal Code.
In the interest of maintaining appropriate social distancing and to protect the health and safety of the Commission, staff and public from exposure to COVID-19, this will not be an in-person meeting and the Council Chambers will not be open for this meeting. Members of the public may observe this meeting on the City of Hawthorne website or on YouTube. The Planning Commission encourages public comments by submitting written letters at 4455 W. 126th Street, Hawthorne, California 90250 or by sending comments via phone and/or written email on the agenda or any topic, which also includes public hearings. Members of the public who wish to participate in the meeting by making comments can participate by calling the Planning Department at 310-349-2970 before the close of the oral communications or a public hearing. Please note that you may be put on hold or get a busy signal if there are speakers making comments to the Planning Commission ahead of you as the call will be answered in the order received. In addition, you may offer your comments through email at planning@cityofhawthorne.org. Emails must be received prior to 5:30 p.m. on the day of the meeting and the comments will only be read up to the 3 minute duration allowed for public comments.
PURSUANT TO the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) Guidelines Section 15061(b)(3) of Title 14 of the California Code of Regulations, staff has determined that it can be seen with certainty that there is no possibility that the adoption would have and significant effect on the environment as there is no change in use, density or intensity of uses, nor would amendment of Chapter 17.87 and Appendix B result in direct physical development of the project areas. In addition, future development within the project area was anticipated and evaluated within the scope and analysis of the Draft Environmental Impact Report for the Mixed Use Overlay Zone and R-4 (Maximum Density) Zone project, certified by the City Council on May 24, 2011 (SCH #2009061099), for changes to Chapter 17.87 and accompanying Appendix B.
PLEASE NOTE that pursuant to Government Code Section 65009: In an action or proceeding to attack, review, set aside, void, or annul a finding, determination or decision of the Planning Commission or City Council, the issues raised shall be limited to those raised at the public hearing in this notice or in written correspondence delivered to the Planning Commission or City Council at or prior to the public hearing.

Steps You Can Take to Manage Heart Failure

(BPT) - Managing a chronic condition like heart failure (HF) can be challenging, especially as our society adapts to a new sense of normalcy. But with HF, management is crucial at all times. The good news is that people with HF can still participate in many of the activities they love and lead fulfilling lives when following a treatment plan.

HF generally means that the heart can't pump enough blood to meet the body's needs. It changes the structure of the heart so it does not work as well. This can eventually lead to serious health complications or even hospitalization. In fact, HF accounts for nearly 1 million hospitalizations each year - that's two every minute. An HF hospitalization is a sign that the condition is worsening, and many patients have to return to the hospital repeatedly throughout their lives.

For this reason, it's especially important for people with HF to maintain heart-healthy routines as directed by their health care provider. "This includes following a low-salt diet, engaging in regular physical activity, routine follow-up with their health care team, and taking medications as prescribed," said Beth. "These steps are an important part of HF management and can help reduce your risk of hospitalization."

Checking in with your health care provider is an important way to stay on top of your condition and maintain a treatment plan that works for you, which may include evaluating medication options. For example, Entresto® (sacubitril/valsartan) is a medicine prescribed by most cardiologists to treat adults with long-lasting, or chronic, HF to help reduce the risk of death and hospitalization. While Entresto has been helping patients with a certain type of HF for over 5 years, it was recently approved by the FDA as a treatment option for even more people with chronic HF.

Entresto works better when the heart cannot pump a normal amount of blood to the body. To learn more about Entresto for HF patients, go to Entresto.com.

HF symptoms increase the risk of death and hospitalization, but they often go unnoticed. When the heart isn't pumping normally, some parts of the body may not get the blood they need to function properly. For this reason, people with HF may experience symptoms like shortness of breath, fatigue and swelling - often in the legs, ankles, feet and/or abdomen - making it difficult to do everyday tasks such as walking or climbing stairs.

"Many of the symptoms of HF or worsening HF can be mistaken for signs of aging, such as weakness and fatigue," said Beth. "It's important for people living with HF to be on the lookout for signs of worsening HF that may not be obvious."

Try taking a walk during the day. Two thousand steps add up to approximately 1 mile of walking, and every step helps. You can also be active during your downtime, like when you're watching television. Start by stretching during commercial breaks and keep your muscles moving while seated by rolling your shoulders or squeezing a ball.

For people with HF, a key element of a healthy diet is monitoring how much salt you consume. Too much salt can cause the body to retain water, which can create an added burden on the heart. It's easy to cook low-salt recipes with foods from the pantry - just remember to check the label on frozen and canned foods, since many can be high in sodium (salt).

Together with adding heart-healthy routines and finding a treatment plan that works for you, people with HF can continue to live a happy and meaningful life as they adapt to new routines. • into something darker.

Why we're looking forward to it: I would've already been all-in if Edgar Wright's new film was simply a stylish throwback to London's Mod scene (in the same way Tarantino wrote his 60s love letter to Los Angeles with Once Upon a Time... in Hollywood). But Last Night in Soho also promises some sort of time and mind-bending horror ghost story to boot. Oh, and Anya Taylor-Joy.

'Last Night in Soho' is in theaters Friday, October 29.

'Antlers' is in theaters Friday, October 29.

The Souvenir Part II (A24)

What it's about: A young film student in the early 80s becomes romantically involved with a complicated and untrustworthy man.

Why we're looking forward to it: When we first saw The Souvenir, we were absolutely floored. Further, we couldn't believe our eyes when we saw in the credits that Part II was planned to release. Well, Joanna Hogg's follow-up film, starring Honor Swinton Byrne (Tilda Swinton's daughter) is coming out to complete the devastating story.

'The Souvenir Part II' is in theaters Friday, October 29. •

Cats can live up to 20 years or more...and very actively at that. So even a cat who is five years old or older still has many years ahead of them. Are you ready to take on a 20-year responsibility? If so, a kitten might be great choice for you. If you aren't, then an adult cat who might be five or 10 may be a better choice. Waiting for adoption are cats and kittens of every age, color and personality. When you adopt, you save a life... and in turn enrich your own.

This sweet momma is ready for her own home and to be a “kitten”! Atlantis was a stray who had six kittens and is ready for the spotlight. She loves to cuddle and get belly rubs as she is probably grateful that she does not have babies going for milk anymore. Atlantis would love to be an only cat, but maybe another independent furry friend would be nice. She would thrive with space to run and do her own thing. This girl is so sweet and was the best momma, but now it is her time to find a home; we hope it’s with you.

Brie is so lovable and sweet. She is independent loves to play and explore. At first, she may be timid, but will warm up quickly. Brie runs around and will find the tiniest hiding places, then will run out to check you out once she hears you. Brie is a foodie and waits patiently for her yummy kitten food. Brie and her sister, Cheddar, love each other and it would be best if they are adopted together.

Cheddar is extremely affectionate kitten who loves to play and explore. She is the most lovable kitty and purrs all the time. This little talker will meow at you for attention, food and some loving. Cheddar and her sister Brie would be a great addition to your forever home!

Spring loves to play, especially when you bring out the feathers. Like most of us in 2021, Spring may keep her distance. Once you have passed her arbitrary checklist of “things she requires in a friend,” she will let you pet her. Spring also loves sunbeams and lunchtime.

Mojo JoJo is our miracle kitty! He and his two sisters were rescued from the city shelter where they were about to be euthanized. Mojo's legs were completely stiff and he was unable to walk at all. It was quickly realized that he has a condition called Cerebellar Hypoplasia. We have a lot of experience with caring for cats with this condition, so we immediately knew we had to rescue him. Cerebellar hypoplasia (CH) is a neurological condition where the brain does not develop properly; it causes cats to be wobbly when they walk and sometimes lose balance. In Mojo JoJo's case, this was severe as he was unable to walk at all. Mojo was provided with physical therapy and stimulation to try to get him to sit, crawl or even walk. He became fast friends with one of our nursery residents, Cupid, who helped so much with his physical therapy, that one day Mojo decided he was done with laying around and started walking, much to the surprise, shock and delight of all of his caregivers. He loves to snuggle, wrestle, and play with his BFF, Cupid, so we would love to see these two boys get adopted together, especially as we strongly believe that Cupid really helped with Mojo's recovery. They are a purr-fect pairing.

Steve is the definition of a gentle giant; his heart is as big as he is! He demands to sleep with you at night and will knock at the door to remind you in the unlikely event you forgot. Steve is very sweet and will calmly ask to be pet. This big guy is good around older children who do not have too much energy and adults that just want to cuddle and chill. He would love a home with a non-dominant buddy cat, preferably female. At our partner adoption lounge Tail Town, Steve makes sure all the other cats stay on their best behavior and all the kittens put their best paw forward. Steve is the unofficial Mayor of Tail Town and hopes to see you real soon! Steve is FIV+, but this does not impact him at all. Given proper care and attention, an FIV+ cat will live the same lifespan as an FIV negative cat. The disease is extremely hard to transmit from cat to cat, requiring direct blood contact (typically from a deep puncture wound). It is not transmissible to humans or other species.

These cats and kittens are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org.

Our Adoption Center is temporarily closed. In the meantime, we are still conducting contactless adoptions using all the online tools at our disposal. To virtually browse our adoptable cats, please visit our Adoption Gallery where you can find photos and profiles of all the cats and kittens we have up for adoption from our network of foster homes and from the Sanctuary. At the end of each cat's profile is a link to the email address of the foster parent or adoption counselor, and you may reach out directly with questions or to arrange a virtual meeting.
