High Schooler Holds Guinness World Record Through Music

By Kiersten Vannest

Eighty countries. Eighty languages. One powerful voice.

Capri Everitt, a seventeen-year-old star on the rise and recent citizen of El Segundo, traveled the world at twelve years old to sing the national anthem of eighty different countries in their native language, giving her a Guinness World Record and making her an international singer.

Originally from Canada, Everitt began singing at the age of five years old. Wanting to cultivate the things she liked to do, her parents put her in singing lessons. Her skills blossomed, and she picked up piano and guitar. Inspired by strong singers like Christina Aguilera and Mariah Carey, she developed her voice to be clear and strong.

When Capri wanted to sing around the world, her parents supported her by home-schooling her for a year and picking up and traveling

Whether it was people nearby or in foreign embassies, Everitt found native speakers of each country's language to go over the national anthem with her for accuracy and make sure that she was singing anthems in a way that would be politically acceptable. She learned all eighty anthems before her trip and spent about three to four days in each country.

But winning a world record wasn't on her radar when she set out. "Kind of the whole point of the journey was to raise money for SOS Children's Villages, which gives homes to orphaned and abandoned children," she says. SOS Children's Villages is a nonprofit organization that uses a combined model of short-term aid and long-term guidance to provide for impoverished children, vulnerable children, and children at risk of growing up alone. This guidance includes education, life skills training, family building and strengthening, and more.

"I immediately connected with the charity because what they do is, they build homes. So, they'll have an adoptive mother and about eight to ten kids, but the kids that are grouped together are now siblings, and so it's really incredible," she says. Everitt stayed in the Villages in about forty of the countries she traveled to, so she got to see the organization's work firsthand.

On her trip, Everitt was featured on over one hundred media news articles, spreading the message of SOS and spurring donations globally. She succeeded in getting the program some major donors, such as the prime minister of Iceland.

The Guinness World Records didn't become a part of her journey until they made their way to England. The official office for the World Records happened to be nearby, and her dad agreed to take her in, just to ask if there was a record being made with her travels. Initially being turned away by reception, Capri asked for just a couple of minutes. An executive came down, and after hearing their story, brought them upstairs and made things official.

Everitt's musical inspirations come from artists like Justin Bieber and Taylor Swift. She writes her music in the same sort of personal, authentic way that made these pop artists famous. She writes her songs based on her feelings and things that have happened to her, so she most hopes that listeners take away a feeling after listening to her music. If it's happy, she wants them to get up and dance. If it's sad, she wants them to feel that too and connect with her.

One message that she wants to stay consistent in her work is that of women's empowerment. "I feel like it's really important to stick with a message of girls are equal to boys because you'd be surprised, a lot of people would be surprised, at the way girls are treated in countries like Cambodia and Laos," she says. Much of her music is drawn from her experiences abroad, and she hopes to inspire generations of young women to stand up. Although she did not sing in the countries with the strictest restrictions on women, she sang with the Children's Villages for her safety and theirs in the countries that were not as accepting of women.

Currently, Everitt releases music on stream-

How The Velvet Underground Uses Avant-Garde Filmmaking To Tell Its Story

By Ryan Rojas for Cinemacy

To say that The Velvet Underground was just a rock band from the 60s would not be the full picture. To know the legendary rockers—fronted by songwriter Lou Reed—is to also know the scene where they were birthed.

This was New York City in the 1960s. Poets, painters, filmmakers and artists brought radical, challenging visions of art to popular culture. It led to a new movement in art and culture called “avant-garde.” This new way of thinking the Velvet Underground became so famous for: a single droning, harmonic note.

John Cale discovered how using a viola to sustain a single note over long periods of time could produce a hypnotic effect. However, there are also numerous moments where amplified feedback is the center of attention. I saw the film in theaters, and the heavy distortion caused a lot of people to cover their ears.

Not everybody will take to this documentary, since it is a fairly challenging watch. And that’s produced work that defied convention and dared to be dangerous—which The Velvet Underground did as well. In the new documentary, The Velvet Underground, now streaming on Apple TV+, director Todd Haynes uses a variety of these same experimental techniques from the avant-garde to tell the story of this band.

Most conventional documentaries use a standard formula. Digging up images and video of the subject and simply placing over talking heads interviews. But Todd Haynes isn’t here to make a traditional documentary. In his first doc feature, Haynes uses a variety of mixed media to tell the story of The Velvets. Montages of fragmented clips that loop in dizzying array produce a whirlwind effect. Haynes does use talking head interviews to tell the story, but he uses a split-screen format to combine interviewees with artfully edited mixed media, making for a unique viewing experience.

One of the challenges that rock docs face is needing to make the music shine in such a way that shows how powerful it was, and Haynes uses a variety of sonic techniques to evoke the band’s presence. Of course we get the hits like “Waiting For My Man” and “Venus in Fur.” But Haynes also features a sound that why it’s perfect in form for its subject. All of these choices make the documentary something that you think could play in a gallery or museum. It challenges you to stay with it. I don’t believe that everyone will. And that is what makes avant-garde artistry: challenging the norm, to push people out of their comfort zones, to be enlightened in a way that they otherwise wouldn’t have. The Velvet Underground knew this and Todd Haynes clearly does, as well. •

If It’s Tuesday, This Must Be...

Article and photos
by Ben & Glinda Shipley

Travel is expensive. And in the modern, fractured, post-911, post-COVID era, wandering about can be complicated. It used to be that travel agents took care of all that, but they’ve been replaced by opinionated strangers on social media and sales pitches on government websites. You know you don’t want to be led around by the nose on some slick, superficial bus tour by a millennial reciting a carefully programmed list of forgettable sites and jokes. But to strike out on your own, where do you start? How about with...

A Plan:
It makes sense to carefully plan out any complex activity that requires such an investment of resources. Airfares, lodging, ground transportation, and food can range into the thousands for a long weekend in Charleston or Mexico City. Triple everything for a week in Barcelona or Copenhagen, and double down again for a jaunt to Asia. If you’re going to spend your hard-earned cash on travel instead of a reasonably priced used car, you need to know where to start. And we usually start, even today, with the question...

Why?
Why are you travelling?
Are you looking to connect with your ancestral roots? With long-lost family? Are you looking to dip your toes into the same surf where your great-great-great waited in abject poverty (or religious indignation) for a boat to his and your future?

Are you going on a pilgrimage, religious or otherwise? Rome, Athens, or Constantinople for the ancients? Lourdes, Jerusalem, or Benares for the devout? Lidice and Auschwitz for the gates of hell? Appomattox, Normandy, or Vietnam for the heroics of your heritage?

Are you looking for the essence of some favorite childhood story? We’re thinking Sherwood Forest for Robin Hood, Tennessee for Daniel Boone, Troy and Ithaca for Ulysses, the Alamo for Travis and Crocket, central Switzerland for Heidi.

Is there some theme from your education that still puzzles your imagination? How the entire continent of Europe could come to blows in a world war that sacrificed millions of lives without trading a postage stamp’s worth of real estate? How one man could bankrupt an entire country in Versailles to build a monument to his personal power? How another wealthy prince on the other side of the world could erect the Taj Mahal as a monument to eternal love?

Are you looking for a change from everyday life? A place where no one looks, speaks, or thinks like you? Where every word you hear can be a learning experience? Where the memorization of a few simple phrases can help you cross a divide as eloquently as Lincoln at Gettysburg?

Are you looking to win an argument? Are the French really that rude? Did the Austrians invent skiing? Is Indian cricket as boring as it looks? Is it safe to cross a Paris street? Does every Muslim on the face of the earth love us or hate us (or even think about us to begin with)?

Is there some question about life that you’ve never fully resolved, that you can only approach by planting your own two boots on the ground? How Jesus, godly or not, could summon the strength and courage to walk up the stations of the cross to Calvary and still forgive the rest of us? How the politest people on earth, the Indians, could have fallen into some of the nastiest arguments in history? How innocent wives at Pearl

LIFE AND DEATH

Some people treat a loss in the playoffs like it was life or death. My dear Giants lost to the Dodgers last week. Congrats to the Dodgers. They beat us in a playoff series. There are some people that have to be reminded that it’s just a game played by some millionaires who are lucky enough to be selected in a draft and work their way up to the major leagues. Rooting for your team is entertaining, but it’s not life and death.

On the other hand, my 95-year-old uncle Russ passed away last week. Now, that is life and death. He lived a good life. He was a husband, father, grandfather and great grandfather and treated everyone else like they belonged to his big, loving, family. He sang hymns in church service really loud. He led table prayers at restaurants loud enough for everyone to hear. He was not ashamed of his faith in Jesus. His obituary read: “Bert Russell Waetzig born March 11, 1926 - died October 10, 2021. Jesus Loves Me (and you too). So Don’t Worry” He did not want anything to be said about him. He wanted no testimonials. He wanted others to know Jesus and that was it.

We are only here for the dash between our birth and death. We are born one day and then we die on another. The question is what we do during the dash. Since we leave this world just the way we came, with nothing, why worry? Losing a close relative forces us to reflect on what life is all about. God in his infinite mercy and grace has given us the miracle of life. He has given us a wonderful world to live in. Everything we have is on loan from God. Uncle Russ knew that without Jesus he would be lost. Without Jesus there would be no meaning to life. Russ found joy and happiness in knowing that God loved him. Russ’ singular wish was for others to know that same joy. Whenever we went to visit Russ, when he first saw us, he would raise up his long arms and let out a loud scream. We always knew a big hug was coming; one you could tell was genuine and full of love. That’s how God treats us when we allow Him to love us. He is there with arms raised full of love and acceptance for us no matter how far astray we have wondered. An earthly death is a separation from our loved ones. Eternal life has no end and that is what God has promised. We read in I Corinthians 15: “Death has been swallowed up in victory.” “Where, O Death, is your victory? Where, O Death is your sting?” Okay, at my funeral, people will remember me for trying to write

Across platforms like Instagram, TikTok, and YouTube, Everitt consistently posts content, conscious of keeping a respectable and authentic image.

One thing she says she’s noticed, particularly in America, is the quickly growing pressure for young girls to grow up. She says she knows people in the industry, who are ten years old and below who pile on the makeup and adult clothes, and her hope is that girls can learn to take their time and realize that social media is not always representative of real life.

Her younger brother currently attends El Segundo High and hopes to work at Capri Everitt has performed in 80 countries, and her music has over 2M streams on Spotify.

investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. Notice To Tenant: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (800) 280-2832, or visit this internet website www.auction.com, using the file number assigned to this case 18-0771-11 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. - Love You Lots, Mom

PETSPETS PETS PETS PETS PETS PETS

Purrrfect Companions

Waiting for adoption are cats and kittens of every age, color and personality. When you adopt, you save a life... and in turn enrich your own.

Perry is a wonderful kitten who is on his way to being one chubby kitty. He is exceptionally loving and cuddly, never hesitating to come running when called. He has a loud purr but almost never meows. Perry is great with his littermates. His ideal adoption would be into a home with other cats or with one of his buddies.

Adzuki is a high energy, confident little girl, who is as social with humans as she is with other cats. Like her brother, Fava, she plays

Perry hard and then rests hard by climbing onto your chest or lap for some snuggles and a super loud purr of affection. “Zuki” excitedly responds when you call. She will run up to you to engage in a game of chase if she is in a playful mood, or willingly accept a snuggle when she is getting sleepy. She has an epic purr and always wants to relax near or on her human friends. If you don’t have any other pets, please consider adopting Adzuki with her brother, Fava. They adore each other!

Orville is the sweetest little boy who was rescued from the street with a very bad eye infection. Unfortunately, he lost an eye but that does not slow him down. Orville runs around and plays with our other cats and kittens. He loves attention and loves to snuggle with you. He’s a love bug who will sit in your lap and Adzuki purr and purr. Orville would love a home with another kitten. This sweet boy deserves a loving home after a rough start on the street.

These cats and kittens are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org.

Saving one animal won’t change the world, but the world will surely change for that animal. •

Orville

(Revisions are underlined. Strike through lines represent deleted text.)
WHEREAS, on July 7, 2021 the Planning Commission conducted a public hearing for the matter and approved Resolution No. _____ entitled: A RESOLUTION OF THE PLANNING COMMISSION OF THE CITY OF INGLEWOOD, CALIFORNIA, APPROVING AND RECOMMENDING TO THE CITY COUNCIL FOR APPROVAL OF ZONING CODE AMENDMENT ZCA 2021-001 TO AMEND CHAPTER 12 OF THE INGLEWOOD MUNICIPAL CODE (IMC) TO ESTABLISH REGULATIONS FOR SMOKE SHOPS. (Zoning Code Amendment ZCA-2021-001)
WHEREAS, On September 21, the City Council scheduled a public hearing for October 5, 2021; and,
WHEREAS, notice of the time and place of the hearing was given as required by law and,
WHEREAS, the City Council afforded all persons interested in the matter of the proposed amendments to the Inglewood Municipal Code, or in any matter or subject related thereto, an opportunity to address the City Council and be heard and to submit any testimony or evidence in favor or against the proposed Code amendments; and,
WHEREAS, after taking public testimony and considering the issues, the City Council determined that certain changes specified herein, should be made to the text of Articles 1 and 6 of Chapter 12 of the Inglewood Municipal Code; and,
NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF INGLEWOOD, CALIFORNIA, DOES ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:
SECTION 1.
1. That the proposed Smoke Shop amendment supports the intent of the Inglewood General Plan in that it:
a. Additionally, the SUP requirement will allow these uses to be adequately conditioned.
b. Helps promote economic development and employment opportunities for the City’s residents by responding to changing economic conditions because the code amendment will provide distance requirements that will restrict the number of new Smoke Shops and allow a greater diversity of new commercial uses.

2. The changes to the text of Chapter 12 regarding Smoke Shops does not constitute an establishment of unique standards, offering special privilege to a particular individual or group of individuals because the code amendment will apply citywide.
3. That the proposed amendment to establish regulations for Smoke Shops is exempt from further review under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), therefore a notice of exemption (EA-CE-2021-020) has been prepared.
