Robotics Team Earns Top Prize

The Inglewood-based South LA Robotics team earned a first prize at the World Education Robotics competition held last month in Rizhou, China. Local Robotics Team Builds New Friendships at International Meet

By Rob McCarthy

The newest youth sport doesn't require a bat, a ball or involve much running. However, boys and girls on local robotics teams are in a league of their own.

Robotics is described as a new sport for young minds. Leagues and teams are popping up around Southern California, and winning requires the same dedication to training, mechanics and teamwork that propels elite South Bay athletes and championship teams. A robotics team from the South Bay recently made a huge impression in China.

Three boys from South LA Robotics, based in Inglewood, were the lone U.S. representatives at the World Education Robotics competition held in the coastal city of Rizhou. The Chinese translation for Rizhou is "sunshine," and the trio of Donald Beatty, Edgar Elias and Erick Arias shone brightly during the two days of competition.

The club's founder and organizer, Jennifer Lashley, accompanies the boys and their parents to the competition where the South LA team won a first prize for their mechanical and programming skills -- both of which they learned over the summer and in weekly meet-ups at the club's Inglewood classroom. They faced high school teams from provinces all over China, South Korea, the Philippines and the United Kingdom, according to Lashley.

The sport of robotics resembles NASCAR because there's a driver, a crew chief and the mechanic. The South LA team went into the China competition knowing the judges would ask them and their machine to demonstrate four tasks on the first day. On Day 2, each team received three surprise tasks and two hours to program and improve their droids.

They have to make changes to their robots to increase strength or flexibility to perform it and then they create the coding for the robot to cooperate, explains Lashley, who started the South Bay club last summer because robotics is a practical way to apply STEM skills taught in schools. STEM stands for science, technology, engineering and math. "The only way you're going to get to know this stuff is to do it every day and apply it," said Lashley who ran a STEAM lab for two years with the Los Angeles Unified School District. Her club has grown to 30 members, and includes boys and girls ages 6 to 17.

Robotics clubs have formed at El Segundo, Inglewood and Hawthorne high schools and those teams compete in a Southern California league. The First Tech Challenge leagues, or FTC, hold four local meets per year. Each team builds a robot, or bot, that weighs up to 125 pounds from parts bought or donated by tech companies that sponsor the league. The competitions put a high value on design, building skills, coding and project management. The entry fee for FTC teams is $300 per season, which is now underway.

El Segundo has two teams in the A1 League, both comprised of students from the Vistamar School. There are 16 teams from the South Bay to Ventura County in the A1 Marlborough League, including West High in Torrance.

Two squads each from Inglewood and Morningside high schools compete in the B Division. City Honors College Prep School in Inglewood is involved this season, and has two teams in the competitive Compton League. The league has 18 teams, including one from the Girls Academic Leadership Academy in Los Angeles.

Robotics clubs at South Bay high schools also compete in VEX events, which are held nationwide. VEX is open to elementary, middle and high schoolers, and Lennox has two middle school teams this season facing off against older students in the Compton

A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood Sparks Joy

By Morgan Rojas for cinemacy.com

One didn't need to grow up watching Mister Rogers' Neighborhood to understand his impact and contribution to making the world a kinder place. With some creative liberty at the helm, A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood, now playing in theaters everywhere, tells the true story of the evolution between America's most lovable man and jaded journalist Tom Juno, a relationship that has become infamous in the life and legacy of Mister Rogers. Both misunderstood in their own way — one for being too empathetic and the other for being too selfish — the beauty of Marielle Heller's biopic lies in showing how a little love can go a long way.

Lloyd Vogel (Matthew Rhys), an agitated investigative journalist at Esquire magazine, is notorious for writing excessively critical articles about his subjects. When he is assigned a "puff piece" — a 300-word assignment on Mr. Fred Rogers for the magazine's American Heroes feature — Lloyd is both baffled and intrigued. His intentions to go deeper than the request and uncover any scandals that may be hidden about the nicest man in the world upsets his wife Andrea (Susan Kelechi Watson), who idolizes the TV personality. Upon their first meeting, Lloyd isn't convinced that Fred Rogers (Tom Hanks) is being authentic, questioning his ability to connect to any man, woman, and child. As the duo spends more time together, first out of obligation and then out of desire, Lloyd begins to see Mister Rogers in a new light, opening up his mind and heart in the process.

Marielle Heller's character-driven drama is rich in emotional tension and hits far deeper than traditional surface-level biopics. She examines the yin/yang of human behavior and subtly shows how no man, including Mister Rogers, can be happy all of the time. Lloyd leads with his anger and pessimism, and so his outbursts are expected. However, the darker, mysterious side to Mister Rogers is only touched upon. The final scene tells so much through the simplicity of playing piano keys, making it perhaps one of the most powerful moments in a film this year.

As expected, Tom Hanks is magnetic as the lovable Mister Rogers. It would be a huge disservice to classify Hanks' performance as an "imitation." He fully embodies every little detail and mannerism that made Fred Rogers iconic. The slightly uncontrollable body trembles that come with aging, the deeply-set eye wrinkles from smiling so large and so often...all these and more aid in Hanks' transformation into the beloved TV personality. Matthew Rhys, arguably the protagonist of the film, gives a stellar performance and nails every emotional arch. His vulnerability as a man who is lost and then found is unmatched.

For those who didn't have the pleasure of growing up with Mister Rogers on television, it might be beneficial to first watch Academy Award-winning director Morgan Neville's documentary, Won't You Be My Neighbor? Neville's film paints a more intricate portrait of the man behind the persona, including

A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood, Courtesy of Sony Pictures personal anecdotes and character-building circumstances that are omitted in Heller's biopic. However, one doesn't necessarily need context to enjoy this film. We all know a good man when we see one and A Beautiful Day in the Neighborhood is a truly remarkable film about a truly remarkable man. •

The Lost & Found by Katrina Leno

Reviewed by Kim Harris

The Lost & Found is a story about two teenagers, Frances and Louis, who live on opposite coasts of the United States. They met when they were younger through an online chat group for those coping with trauma. Frannie lost her parents (one is in jail, the other is in a mental institution) and Louis feels responsible for the accident that cost his twin sister Willa the use of her legs. Frannie and Louis use online names in their chats and have never met each other, but they know they understand each other better than anyone else. They look forward to their chats every day and long to meet each other or at least learn the other's real name. Both have a tendency to lose things: important papers, tennis rackets, objects that mean a lot to them...The things aren't lost, but they just vanish with no explanation. When Frannie and Louis both get surprising news in the mail, they talk to each other through the chat site and then decide to reveal their real names. After talking in real life, they decide to go to Austin, Texas to find answers and meet each other.

Frannie travels to Austin with her cousin Arrow because she got letters from her mother that claimed Frannie's real dad was a famous TV actor. Frannie wants to go meet him and find out if anything her mother said was true. Louis goes to Austin with Willa because he is offered a tennis scholarship at the university there and he wants to check it out. Louis is scared at first to tell his parents about his scholarship because Austin is so far away from home and he feels guilty leaving the family materials and garment business and his sister.

I really liked the book because it was about Frannie and Louis' journey. The book has magical realism in it, but also explores what it is like to be a teenager and wanting to find out who you really are. While Frannie and Louis are driving to Texas, each finds important objects that belong to the other. Frannie finds Louis' favorite tennis racket and Louis finds the tip of the fountain pen that has been lodged inside of Frannie since she was little. When Frannie and Louis finally meet, they realize how much they really like each other and want to continue their relationship. Frannie and Louis bring hope and possibilities to each other and decide to no longer be a part of the support group. Although both suffered tragedies, they now have hope for a brighter future.

Fire Safety Corner

Thanksgiving Fire Safety

By James Carver

Happy Thanksgiving! Today is a holiday with family and friends, watching the Macy's Parade and some football, having a Thanksgiving dinner with turkey, potatoes, and the stuffing. But what about the turkey? Are you deep frying it? Oh, a deep fried turkey is great and rather tasty, but improperly done, a mismanaged deep fried turkey can destroy your house and holiday. Some fire dangers associated with deep frying a turkey include:

- Units can easily tip over, spilling hot cooking oil over a large area.
- An overfilled cooking pot or partially frozen turkey will cause cooking oil to spill when the turkey is inserted.
- A small amount of cooking oil coming into contact with the burner can cause a large fire.
- Without thermostat controls, deep fryers have the potential to overheat the oil to the point of combustion.
- The sides of the cooking pot, lid and pot handles can get dangerously hot, creating severe burn hazards.

The El Segundo Fire Department want you to be fire safe and have an enjoyable Thanksgiving. Some safety precautions you can take if deep-frying a turkey include:

- Fryers should always be used outdoors, on a solid level surface a safe distance from buildings and flammable materials.
- Never use a fryer on a wooden deck, under a patio cover, in a garage or enclosed space.
- Do not overfill the fryer, always read and follow the instructions.

- Make sure the turkey is completely thawed before it is placed in a fryer.

- Never leave the fryer unattended because, without thermostat controls, the oil will continue to heat until it catches fire.

- Never let children or pets near the fryer when in use or after use as the oil can remain hot for hours.

- When putting the turkey in or taking it out of the fryer, use well-insulated potholders or oven mitts and wear long sleeves and safety goggles to protect your eyes from oil splatter.

- Keep an all-purpose fire extinguisher nearby. As with any fire, please call 9-1-1 immediately if a turkey fryer fire occurs.

Other hazards to attend to include to not use frayed or repaired extension cords and if you are using extension cords, do not overload the electrical outlet and do not run extension cords in walkways to help prevent falls. If using a portable electric heater make sure it is a listed unit, has a tip over shut off switch and keep the heater at least 3 feet from nearby combustibles. Never use a fuel fired portable heater or hibachi indoors.

Again this year, the El Segundo Fire Department, with fire departments throughout the Southland, is participating in the Spark of Love Toy Drive. We collect toys and sport equipment and distribute to non-profit organizations to help provide a happier holiday for a deserving child. You can bring your new, unwrapped toy or sport equipment to Fire Station 1 during normal business hours until December 17th. •

“Thanksgiving is a time of togetherness and gratitude.”

Robotics

League. These competitions combine the excitement of sport and the knowhow of engineering. A winning formula is having team members with the right skills sets.

The El Segundo High School club says on its website that robotics meets are "as close to real-world engineering as a student can get." Local teams face the same constraints as South Bay aerospace and flight engineers: limited resources and time to design and create a machine that is dependable and durable.

Alas, fundraising to attend meets here and internationally is a task that can't be assigned to the robots. South Los Angeles Robotics needs to raise $15,000 to send two teams to the world championships on Dec. 14 and 15 in Shanghai, China. The kids have set up a GoFundMe campaign to raise the money for their travel, lodging and entry fees.

SOLA Robotics reached a milestone in Rizhou at the two-day competition in late October, winning a first prize and being voted the most popular presenters among all of the competitors from Asia, North America and Europe. The Inglewood team delivered a presentation about artificial intelligence that had all eyes of them, according to Lashley.

Many of the Chinese people who attended had never met anyone from outside China before, which added to the Southern California team's "rock star" status at the teen tech event. "Our kids loved it, and they got to bond with kids from the U.K and the Philippine teams," Lashley said.

The SOLA club members left China having made many new friends living around the world, and they continue to stay in touch with their likeminded bot buddies over social media and phone apps. To advance to the world championships, the area teens and their droid took on all-comers at the U.S. competition held in August in Orange County.

South LA Robotics, which had just opened its club doors the month before, stole the show despite Beatty, Elias and Arias' short time together. The club took first and second prizes in the high school division, and with it they qualified for the trip of a lifetime to Rizhou.

For the world championships, SOLA is adding a fourth member -- a girl - who is a superstar programmer. The club will enter two teams to put their bots up against the best.

Lashley doesn't think her teams will be nervous in Shanghai next month. "The kids were pretty relaxed" at the last competition, and "they were excited to work with kids from other countries, all of whom spoke English." Her team, she says, work really well together. "They have to be pretty good to do this."

Contributions to help SOLA get to Shanghai can be made at the club's GoFundMe page. Type in South LA Kids Go to Robotics World Championships, or contact Lashley at the club at 424-352-1931 with a text or phone call. As of Saturday, the club was $14,000 short of its fundraising goal for the world competition in mid-December.

The other robotics clubs and teams from South Bay high schools also gladly accept donations of money, parts and equipment. To find a local team to support, go to first-techsocial.org/ or visit the school websites for the El Segundo, Inglewood and Hawthorne high schools. •
