Main Street Mainstay Dornblaser is Still Loving His Stylistic Life

By Duane Plank

When El Segundo hairstylist Joe Dornblaser, owner of Dornblaser's Hair Design, was contacted to set-up an interview with an El Segundo Herald scribe for a possible profile for the paper, he hesitated a bit, then agreed. And then nothing happened — no communication for a lengthy stretch. Finally, almost two months later, Dornblaser, who has been cutting hair for more than four decades, returned an email and said he was still interested in the interview. He apologized for the delay in answering the email, writing that "I'm not on my computer very often (my world is mostly low tech) and I've been putting in a lot of extra hours at work."

In the COVID-19 era, with face-to-face interviews deemed somewhat problematic, the old-school Dornblaser, who proudly sports a rotary telephone in his store, asked if we could do the interview in person, as opposed to on the phone. So, we did.

Dornblaser said his grandparents moved to El Segundo around 1930 because they wanted to "get out of a big city" environment. As a third-generation resident of El Segundo, Dornblaser attended El Segundo High School, where he played football and baseball, at times being coached by the legendary John Stevenson in both sports. He graduated in 1977, then, prompted by his father, Bill, picked-up his cosmetology degree at El Camino College, and began cutting hair in his father's shop located at 137 Main Street, in 1978, and bought the business from his father in the mid-90's.

Bill Dornblaser was quite an athlete himself, taking part in the 1952 Summer Olympics as a member of the men's water polo team that garnered fourth place in the tournament, and was coached by El Segundo icon Urho Saari, stacked with members of the El Segundo Swim Club. As a youth, Joe followed in his father's aquatic footsteps, swimming for the El Segundo Recreation Park Swim Club, but, he said, rebelled against the family swimming tradition when he entered high school, focusing on football and baseball.

On being coached by Stevenson, Dornblaser said that while Stevenson was a great baseball coach, "I had a better experience with him as a football coach. He was an amazing coach. He taught us tackle football from the ground-up." Dornblaser said that Stevenson was a stickler for detail, instilling into his players that they must not only know their position responsibilities, but also the assignments of the rest of the players on their side of the ball.

On the baseball diamond, Dornblaser called Stevenson a "good commander on the field, (who) got the most out of his players." Dornblaser gained some notoriety around town when he was selected as a member of the 1974 World Series Championship El Segundo Babe Ruth team that took the 13-15 title in the tournament that was played in Abbeville, Louisiana.

As part of his "give-back" to the community, Dornblaser has served as the Babe Ruth Beavers manager for six seasons. A big proponent of youth sports, Dornblaser has also served stints managing and coaching teams in the El Segundo Little League and Girls' Softball programs and volunteering his time in the American Youth Soccer Association soccer program, working as a referee.

He is a big proponent of local sports programs and laments that outside club and travel teams often siphon off young El Segundo athletes. He yearns for the days of yore when local youths would bond together, playing in-town recreational sports for a decade before departing for college. "You get to play with friends in a small community," he said regarding in-town sporting opportunities. "There is nothing better than beating your buddies. I believe in youth sports," citing his

Animated Folklore Wolfwalkers is Visually and Spiritually Spellbinding

Morgan Rojas for cinemacy.com

I'm calling it now: Wolfwalkers will take home the Academy Award for Best Animated Film.

Even though I sit here manifesting a win for a film that turned out to be a breakout hit during this year's unusual film festival landscape, Wolfwalkers most likely won't need any metaphysical help from me to be recognized by even more critics and audiences alike.

Directed by Tomm Moore and Ross Stewart, the film is a reimagining of an Irish folklore tale about the mythical creatures called

A beautiful friendship develops; secrets are shared and vulnerabilities are embraced. Robyn has never felt more seen, but this forces her to make a decision. Torn between her judgmental upbringing towards the forest creatures and her loyalty to save Mebh and the wolves, Robyn must decide if protecting her newfound tribe is worth losing her father's respect and trust for good.

Wolfwalkers, the latest film from award-winning studio Cartoon Saloon, has a darker undertone than the typical "cartoon." Touching on topics like deforestation, man vs. nature, and spirituality, the film puts a child-like

Wolfwalkers. These half-human/half-wolf hybrids have special powers that allow them to communicate with—as well as transform into—wolves when their human form falls asleep.

Wolfwalkers, however, are feared by the townspeople of Kilkenny, Ireland, which is where our film's young heroine, Robyn (Honor Kneafsey) lives with her father. As the town's newly appointed head wolf hunter, Robyn's father commits to conquering more land for the King by ridding the surrounding forest of the beasts. One day, defiantly ignoring her father's orders to stay home and out of trouble, Robyn enters the forest armed with her bow & arrow, determined to prove that she has what it takes to hunt these problematic creatures, too.

An unexpected kerfuffle leads to an encounter with a young Wolfwalker, Mebh Óg MacTíre (Eva Whittaker), and Robyn ends up bonding with, rather than capturing, the forest-dweller. Mebh, a free-spirit with bright red hair and an even louder personality, introduces Robyn to her enchanting world—the world of the Wolfwalker (in a beautifully choreographed scene set to the film's anthem, «Running With The Wolves» by Norwegian singer-songwriter AURORA).

filter over a mature world that is very much happening around us today.

Perhaps the purest of the film's intentions, however, is the belief that we all have a wild spirit animal inside of us, which can only be accessed when in tune with the natural world. Wolfwalkers is an entertaining hour and a half, sure; but its commentary on compassion, environmentalism, and genuine friendship is the film's greatest gift.

Wolfwalkers is available to watch on Apple TV+ this Friday, 12/11. •

Save Money With These Holiday Shopping Tips

(BPT) - The holiday shopping season may look a little different this year, but one thing that hasn't changed is the importance of saving money. Whether you're shopping online or in store, these tips can help you spend less and set you up for long-term financial success.

Know when to use credit or debit.

"The answer to this depends on your individual financial situation," said Shazia Virji, Vice President at Credit Sesame. "Purchasing items with cash or a debit card can help prevent you from overspending or going deeper into debt, but paying with credit now allows you to save your cash for expenses that don't allow you to pay with credit, like rent or loan payments." If you have a credit card that offers reward programs, you may benefit from the additional points and discounts during the holiday shopping season. One of the potential downsides to using your credit is that you may rack up more debt. If you aren't in a position to pay your entire balance each month, you'll likely end up paying more in interest over time.

"Your cash and credit are intertwined when it comes to your overall financial health, so it's important to find a balance between using the two," said Virji. "In fact, Credit Sesame helps emphasize the relationship between the two by rewarding customers with cash rewards when they improve their credit score."

Be aware of the downsides of retailer credit cards.

If you've shopped at a major retail chain or department store, you've likely been asked if you want to save 10 percent on your purchase by applying for their credit card. Before you apply for any credit card, there are a few factors to keep in mind. First, you should make sure that you could pay off the balance in a timely manner.

"Oftentimes, retailer credit cards have higher interest rates and could cost you more in the long run if you don't pay them off in full," said Virji. Another consideration is whether you'd benefit from the perks of having this store credit card. If this is a store you shop at frequently and would use the bonus points and discounts, then it may be a good option for

How You Can Afford A Retirement Community

(BPT) - Are you retired or approaching retirement age? You may be thinking about the best options for where to live moving forward. Perhaps your house has become more than you can handle, or you have health concerns that require more care - or maybe you'd just like to live in a warmer climate. Whatever your reasons for considering a change, you're probably concerned about the cost of such a move.

You may be surprised to learn that there can be financial advantages to moving to a retirement community.

Here's what you need to know:

Choosing a "continuing care retirement community" (CCRC) means that you will have options within a continuum of care, so you'll be taken care of no matter what your needs are, and how they may change over time. This can make it much easier - and much less costly - to transfer from an independent living situation all the way to receiving any level of care that you may need in the future.

For example, within one single community like The Spires at Berry College in Rome, Georgia, your options include Independent Living, Assisted Living, Skilled Nursing & Rehab and Memory Care.

While many CCRCs require a significant entrance fee, most of the time that fee is almost fully refundable at the end of the contract, meaning that you get money back if you decide to move somewhere else or your family inherits money when you pass. It's important to review the different types of contracts that are available to you within the CCRC model.

The sale of your home can help pay the entrance fee for this model, and if you add up all the costs of living in your home now, you may find that a retirement community is actually much more affordable than you thought - especially if you need or may soon need in-home care as well.

Your current expenses probably include items like:

- Homeowners insurance
- Property taxes
- Utilities
- Lawn service
- Home maintenance and repairs
- Mortgage and/or association fees
- Cable, internet and phone
- Recycling and sanitation

Once you total up these costs, remember that at a retirement community you won't have any of these expenses or worries.

Everyone's situation is unique, so you should always consult your personal tax advisor for specific advice before making a move. However, there are potential tax benefits you should be aware of when making your decision.

For example, residents of entry-fee retirement communities may be eligible to deduct a portion of the entry fee and possibly monthly

CHRISTMAS CHARACTERS (PART 1)

We all have played "Santa" at this time of the year when we go out of way to "gift" all those special people in our lives who made our list. It sure is a lot easier to "receive" then to "give" when it's hard to buy things online and wait three weeks before it arrives on our porch and we rush out to bring it inside so it doesn't get stolen by the package thieves.. Maybe some of us have felt like Rudolf with a red nose, an outcast, but comes through in the clutch. Now, putting ourselves into the nativity story gives us a whole new way of looking at the "real" Christmas story. Let's start with the cows and the donkeys, who are sometimes referred to as asses. That's exactly what we have been called or felt like many times in our lives, lowly, no good for nothing beasts. Consider the little boy, dirty shepherds who were just trying to do their job by counting their sheep at night. When out of nowhere some bright angels woke them up to start singing and telling them to go see some baby lying in some messy stable outside some innkeepers shack. Have you ever felt like Joseph? He's the guy who is engaged to this sweet young thing and she tells him that she's pregnant. He says to himself, I can't remember that night, I must have had too many cold ones and my urges got the best of me. Any way rather than being the disgrace and gossip topic of the entire village, he just wanted to send Mary away to have this child and cover it all up. Have you ever been accused of wrong when you know you never did nothing? We feel so mad when we take the blame for crap that just happens. I don't have the copy space or time to talk about the other people in this real nativity story, part 2 and 3 are for future weeks. The bottom line is that Joseph, the shepherds, and even the asses never anticipated what was happening to them at that time and place. They really could never been prepared for any of the events that they played a part in. Haven't we felt the same way during 2020? Who knew? We are simply at the mercy of God's divine intervention to live through this life and world. I like what I heard recently, "Some of us are people living in this world trying to make it to heaven. Not so. Because of God's mercy and grace, we are citizens of heaven serving God and man in this crazy world." We are all lowly, dirty, asses needing divine intervention. We have no clue what 2021 will bring. All we can do is relax, have a cold one and try to count all of our sheep at night. Don't get too dirty as we roll around in this muddy, mucky, monstrosity called 2020. Look to the hills, that's where we hear good news of great joy of a Savior who has been born. Christmas joy to you my friends and loyal readers!

My Cause My Cleats Brings Pride and Hope to Inglewood Unified School District

Thank you Jared Goff for selecting IUSD for the "My Cause My Cleats" initiative. Through the "My Cause My Cleats" campaign, which the league started in 2016, players can bend uniform guidelines and wear cleats designed to represent a cause of their choice. Inglewood is so excited and can't wait to see Jared wear the cleats pictured on Thursday, December 10th when he plays against the Patriots. Having him represent our district and wear our colors at SoFi Stadium will be amazing. Go Rams.

belief that youth sports provide an avenue to "give kids the chance to learn a lot of self-respect, take care of themselves, take care of the team."

Bob Motta is the chairman of the El Segundo Recreation and Parks Commission and runs the Babe Ruth program. "When his son Cam was 13 and ready for Babe Ruth," Motta emailed, "I asked Joe to manage a team. He, along with best friends Bob Gilbert and Bill Nusbaum jumped at the chance and have been a tremendous asset to the program. By the way, they were both on that same World Series Championship team with Joe."

"He continues to manage a team even after his son moved on from the program. He enjoys sharing his knowledge of the game with the young players, and they really enjoy his coaching methods. He is such a good guy that will do anything for anybody. Your profile on him is an honor that is well deserved and long overdue."

Longtime El Segundo High School educator and coach Craig Cousins is another Dornblaser supporter. "I have known Joe and his family for around 50 years. I got to know Joe more as a student/athlete during his high school years. Joe was a very good baseball/football player, especially as a running back. As Joe got older, we even spent some great summer days surfing together. It was great when Joe chose to take over his dad's hair salon.

"Joe is the type of person that gives back to his community," continued Cousins. "I also had the pleasure of coaching his son in baseball and couldn't say more about what a great kid he was. A lot of that comes from Joe. (He) is a well-rounded, great person who loves our little town and shows it through his community service."

Emailed longtime Dornblaser customer Don Brann: "Joe Dornblaser has cut my hair the better part of the past 30 years. I am one of his many satisfied customers. Joe is a loyal El Segundo native, a part of our town's fabric. Through his network of customers, friends, and neighbors, he has helped shape ES culture. Joe has his finger on the pulse of this city. He is a lifetime resident and longtime local business owner, and a family-first community volunteer. Joe Dornblaser makes a difference in representing the best of ES."

Dornblaser, who met his wife, Lisa, at the now-demolished Thrifty Wash Laundromat in the Rite Aid parking lot in April of 1992, has seen the evolution of establishments and commerce on the South stretch of Main Street. He said that when he was cutting hair in the 1970's, he felt that he was working in "the forgotten end of Main Street," and that the city fathers did not show much inclination to develop that area of town. He noted that the annual Christmas Parade ended at Franklin Street, disregarding the establishments located south of Franklin Street.

Well, a lot has changed over the years, with the influx of a vibrant eating and drinking scene (pre-pandemic), making south Main Street a destination spot for residents and out-of-towners. With Dornblaser's shop located smack-dab in the middle of the action, Joe chuckled and said, "now everybody wants to buy my building!"

Although Dornblaser has made a nice living cutting hair for more than four decades, he related that, in his younger days, he was really into woodshop, with aspirations to be a cabinet maker, but his father "talked me into doing hair." He said part of his father's sales pitch was that Joe could "meet some girls, have some laughs." Well, at least, Dornblaser said, he has had a good time over the years, but "to be honest with you," he said, "I really didn't meet any girls, but I love the business, working with my hands. I have the best job ever!" •

Continuing care retirement communities may offer financial assistance

Many CCRCs can help you find bridge financing to help bridge the time between the sale of your current home and moving in to the community, among other possible financial resources.

“Check with the community you’re interested in to find out about financial options they may have that may not be advertised,” advises Jill Trapp, marketing director for The Spires. “For example, we work with potential residents on finding creative solutions to help with their financial needs.”

Over the long term, the sooner you make your move to a CCRC, the less expensive it will be. Many communities offer an easy-to-use online calculation tool that can help you determine if moving there would be a good financial fit for you. To evaluate your situation, try out the Affordability Calculator offered by The Spires at Retireatberry.com/pricing/affordability-calculator.

Making any move can be challenging, but continuing care retirement communities are focused on helping you relax and enjoy this time of your life to the fullest. To learn more about some of your options, visit RetireatBerry.com.

you. It’s also important to keep in mind that applying for any credit card may temporarily lower your credit score with a hard inquiry.

Free shipping doesn’t always pay off.

You’ve found the exact gift you’re looking for online, and you’re ready to check out. Unfortunately, you’re about $15 short of the minimum total to qualify for free shipping.

“Don’t feel pressured to throw another item in your cart just to save $5.99 on shipping charges,” said Virji. “Chances are, you’ll end up spending more than you’d save in free shipping for something you didn’t need. If you’re shopping from multiple online stores, adding a few things here and there can really add up and blow your budget.” Instead, try to match up your shopping list to retailers offering promotions that don’t require a minimum purchase. Your credit or debit card may also provide exclusive discounts, like Credit Sesame’s Cash Back Offers, where you can receive up to 15 percent instant cash back from thousands of national and local retailers on qualifying purchases.

“Remember, you don’t need to jeopardize your financial health to show your loved ones that you care this holiday season,” said Virji. “By managing your cash and credit together and sticking to a budget, you can buy quality gifts and keep your debt at bay.”

I am learning that humans are good and will give me hotdogs! I am Blue, a young, 1 year old Pit Bull mix spirited fella who needs an experienced and loving owner who will continue training me with positive reinforcement methods. I am smart and love learning new things. <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=21-00846>

Just like my name, Magenta, I am vibrant! If you are looking for a 2 month old male domestic short hair kitten, look no further. I will grow into a beautiful cat. <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=21-00761>

Meow meow! My name is Gilbert and I am a 2 year old domestic short hair, black, and white male. I am looking for a forever home I can spend my days playing and napping. Will you be my Friend for Life? <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=21-00765>

Happy Tails

Oreo came to spcaLA in September and was adopted and returned in October. Luckily, a great family from Temecula fell in love with Oreo in November. Oreo's new dad is a veteran. Adoptions for veterans and members of their family were free thanks to the Animals

For Armed Forces Foundation. spcaLA has partnered with AFAFF for almost ten years to offer no fee adoptions for military, typically twice a year – on Memorial Day and Veterans Day. That means a happy adoption for dozens of animals including Oreo. •

Congratulations to Oreo finding a new family.
