Poinsettias Came a Long Way to Become a Floral Tradition

By Rob McCarthy

This is the story of the Christmas poinsettia, which came a long way from growing wild in Mexico before an American botanist and U.S. ambassador changed all that forever. The beautiful red poinsettia now associated with Christmas even has its own holiday.

December 12 was National Poinsettia Day in honor of Joel Roberts Poinsett, an American botanist, physician and a minister to Mexico. In 1828, he was dazzled by the beauty of the crimson red flowering plants that grew wild on the hillsides in Southern Mexico. So, he sent cuttings of the plant to his home in Charleston, South Carolina.

Poinsett died on this day in 1851, and the U.S. Congress honored him for his contribution to Christmas and the American floral industry. While Poinsett introduced the potted flower to the States, California botanist and plant breeder Paul Ecke, Jr. is considered the father of the poinsettia because he developed breeding techniques that allowed greenhouse growers to produce millions of poinsettias here and around the world.

Poinsettias are not only the number one-selling floral product at Christmas. No other flower or flowering plant is bought more by consumers in the United and Canada. A common misconception about poinsettias is that the colorful, pointed leaves are the flowers. The flowers are the yellow clustered buds in the center, while the colored leafy parts are actually modified leaves that turn vivid colors depending on how much sunlight they receive.

Each poinsettia plant starts as an unrooted cutting, which greenhouses receiving the starter plants during the summer. Though the plant gets its start during the longest days of the year, it needs total darkness up to 16 hours each day to be ready to burst onto the scene in late November and early December. Even the faintest amount of light during the night will result in a duller color.

Worldwide, growers of poinsettias know the Ecke family name. An immigrant from Germany in 1906, Albert Ecke settled in the Hollywood area. His family grew its own fruits and vegetables, but within a few years was selling cut poinsettias at a stand on Sunset Boulevard. That was 1909 when poinsettias grew wild in that area of Southern California.

Ecke and his son Paul “had the idea that the ruby flowers would sell well around Christmas,” according to a history found at the web site, poinsettiaaday.com. The Eckes scraped together some money to buy five acres in El Monte and expanded the family business. The business grew, and by 1917 the Hollywood-grown nursery plants were being shipped to Chicago and New York. Soon after, success led to some major changes.

Development pressures in Hollywood in the early 1920s pushed the poinsettia growers to look elsewhere for land and opportunity. The Ecke family bought 40 acres in Encinitas, along what today is the I-5, and their first year was a complete disaster. Santa Ana winds tore through the fields of red flowering plants and ruined Christmas in 1923.

But, the family business bounced back. The production moved indoors to greenhouses in the mid-1950s at the suggestion of the founder’s grandson, Paul Jr., who learned about modern horticulture techniques at Ohio State University. Not only was he a grower, but the young Ecke was an early adopter of product placement. By getting his family’s crimson plants in front of a national audience, television viewers who tuned in for Bob Hope’s annual Christmas specials came to associate poinsettias with Christmas cheer.

How the Eckes grew poinsettias was a family secret until 1991, when a botany student published a university research paper that spilled the beans. Now, European greenhouse owners and nurserymen understood the technique and they began in earnest to tap into the global demand at Christmas. The overseas competition drove down prices, and the Eckes and their Encinitas compound eventually became ground zero for breeding research. They created the pink and white poinsettia, and the marbled look of the leaves.

There is quite a coincide to the plant’s holiday and its place in holiday celebrations in Mexico. The poinsettia is displayed around the Feast of Our Lady of Guadalupe also celebrated today by Mexican Romans Catholics. The church celebrates the appearance of Mary, the mother of Jesus, to the Mexican peasant Juan Diego in 1531. This is also the day that former U.S. ambassador Poinsett died.

There are more than 100 varieties of poinsettias in production, but red is still the most popular color with consumers. Salmon, apricot, yellow, cream and white can be found too. They come in almost all colors of the rainbow, with one exception: blue. There are blue poinsettias for sale, but they are a “designer color” created with dyes, according to the University of Vermont, which provides some fun facts about today’s horticultural honoree.

- Poinsettias can be grown in a backyard. In the wild or planted in tropical climates, the poinsettia can reach heights of 12 feet.

- The botany community originally dismissed the poinsettia as a weed. It wasn’t until the 1960s that researchers were able to successfully breed plants to bloom more than just a few days.

- The poinsettia is not poisonous, despite what people say. The National Poison Center in Atlanta and the American Medical Association have tested the plant and debunked the myth. Cats and children also may choke on the fibrous parts, however, and keep poinsettias out of reach of animals and toddlers.

- The best way to prolong the life of the plants is to avoid hot or cold drafts. Keep the soil moist, and keep poinsettias near natural light and in temperatures of 60 to 70 degrees. Water when the soil begins to dry, and avoid soaking the potting soil.

Now, you know the origin of this Christmas flower. Now, you know the origin of this Christmas-time flower that reappears each December. The flower is an American holiday tradition, with a red and white color palette and its own holiday, just like jolly St. Nick. •

Secret Rescuers series by Paula Harrison

Reviewed by Kristina Kora-Beckman, Librarian, El Segundo Public Library

Growing up, I loved reading fantasy books about faraway lands, magical powers, and characters that were tested to prove their worthiness. Lately, I've gotten to share that passion with my daughter, and one of our favorite new series is Paula Harrison's the Secret Rescuers. Each book focuses on foxes that camouflage so well they seem to disappear.

I like that the series imparts values of caring for others, particularly those with different, often wondrous, abilities, who are often misunderstood. The stories teaches tolerance, working together and not giving up in seemingly impossible circumstances. They also promote empowering every day kids a magical creature that is in danger from those that distrust them, and the girl (or boy) that cares about them. With the help of magical speaking stones, the children find a way to rescue and protect them from future harm. The creatures are inventive, including storm dragons, who can control the weather, star wolves, with magical singing voices and

Greta Gerwig's Little Women Proves An Empowering Remake

Morgan Rojas for cinemacy.com

I am generally not a fan of remakes/reboots; I believe the reliance on doing what has already been done distracts from the discovery of new and inspiring voices in cinema. Greta Gerwig, however, has changed my mind. Did society need another rendition of Little Women, the Louisa May Alcott novel that was first published in 1868 and has been remade over 14 times? Will this be the quintessential female empowerment film of the year released at a perfect time? Are we all the better for it? A resounding yes! To all of the above.

This interpretation of the life and times of the March sisters stays faithful to the novel while the characters, Gerwig takes some creative liberty in her storytelling by jumping through the timeline, with the only distinction between past and present being the more saturated color palette of the past as opposed to the more bleak and gray reality of the present. It's a stylized decision that works wonders.

Aside from being a directorial knockout, the assembly of this all-star cast is an exciting who's who of legendary and iconic artists. Laura Dern provides an emotionally moving performance as Marmee, and Meryl Streep is unmatched in her cattiness as Aunt March. Saoirse Ronan is fierce as the protagonist, Jo, but perhaps the film's biggest surprise is Florence Pugh, whose embracing Gerwig's charm and quick-witted charisma. A story of love, loss, and coming of age, these four sisters – Jo (Saoirse Ronan), Meg (Emma Watson), Amy (Florence Pugh), and Beth (Eliza Scanlen) – rely on each other to navigate life's unpredictability and hardships. All independent thinkers with unique personalities, the women are headstrong in their quest to find personal fulfillment, which means different things to each of them. Jo, the outspoken feminist of the group, is committed to her work as an aspiring writer. Despite her admiration for her wealthy neighbor, the charming and confident Theodore 'Laurie' Laurence (Timothee Chalamet), she turns down his marriage proposal in favor of a life she can call her own. Her views on love and marriage stand opposite to Meg and Amy's, who find love in very unexpected partners. The youngest and more reserved sister, Beth, finds happiness through music but, as we learned 150 years ago when the novel was released, even her passion and purity can't protect her from contracting an incurable illness.

Despite being set in a post-Civil War era, the script, which was adapted for the screen by Gerwig, feels fresh with sharp, sassy humor. The dynamic between Jo and Laurie feels like any modern-day teenage couple trying to figure out their relationship through the ups and downs of tears and laughter. In addition to modernizing hypnotic voice and measured understanding of comedic timing both enhances the ensemble cast while simultaneously stealing every scene.

The vibrancy that radiates from Little Women feels reminiscent of Gerwig's past both as a director in Lady Bird and as an actor in Frances Ha. What all of her films have in common are strong female leads whose confidence in themselves and their dreams surpass any societal expectations. No matter if it's 1868 or 2020, the timelessness of Little Women, now playing in theaters everywhere, is undeniable; there will always be women who strive for personal fulfillment and love on their terms. •

CLAY AND MIXED MEDIA SCULPTURE BY VERLOCAL

Verlocal will be hosting another "Clay and Mixed Media Sculpture" class on January 11th, 2020, at 10 a.m. This class is for the beginner or advanced artist. People will be able to learn to sculpt in figurative or abstract, terracotta or plasteline, and create large or small projects with or without an armature. You can sculpt from your own imagination, drawings, or even a photo. There will be sculpture artists available that are more than willing to guide you through the process, using either terracotta or plasteline clay. In this four-hour studio workshop, you will be able to work in the media of your choosing. The instructors have the ability to help any sculptor further develop their eye, intuition, and imagination. If you plan on creating a grander piece of work, Verlocal recommends booking 4 classes/sessions for any specific project in mind. The cost of the session will be $75, not including the cost of materials.

NEW YEAR'S EVE PARTY AT THE COMMON SPACE BREWERY

The Common Space Brewery would like to invite all to join them in celebrating the welcoming of 2020 with a New Year's Eve Party! The party is going to be a fun-filled, colorful extravaganza to brighten up your first day into the New Year! End 2019 with a bang as you dance under the disco ball to all your favorite songs. The DJ will keep the party going on the dance floor all night until the ball drops. An assortment of a one-time special edition crafted beer and cocktails, as well as fresh and tasty LB Tacos will be sold. They will also have a photo booth to help capture the final joyous memories of 2019 and the beginning of 2020! The best part of the night will be the countdown to 2020, which will be accompanied by a balloon drop at the stroke of midnight! The event will start at 7 p.m. on December 31st. You must be at least 21 years of age to enter the event. For more information or tickets, visit: commonspace.la/events/nye

SARA'S THOUGHTS RESPECT THE GRIND

When I was about 14 years old, I started writing music. It had been a dream of mine to be a professional singer, so you can understand my excitement when I got a guitar as a Christmas gift from my parents that same year. I started writing short songs as soon as I could—I didn't care if I only knew two or three chords. They were about my everyday life. I wrote a couple of songs about growing up, my friends, and even a song when I lost my dog. It was an emotional and artistic outlet that I greatly connected with. I enjoyed "grinding out" a song, which included finding rhymes, getting stuck, and then finally finishing it. I never thought anyone would hear them. I was happy to sing melodies of my own creation.

Fast forward ten years to my current age of 24. I have reached the end of this decade and realized that my songwriting is nowhere near as exciting to me. After years of hearing about "vision casting" and "goal setting," I get more excited about the idea of writing music for crowds of people to hear than the actual process of writing. I want the confetti and recognition, but I'm no longer as passionate about the means to that end. I've lost my first love of the craft. As an artist, this road leads to burnout faster than you can imagine. But when you believe something is your calling, you don't give up that easily.

It will take a lot of discipline to undo the years of damage that society (and its obsession with performance) has done on my creative spirit; but this upcoming year I will take personal responsibility for my artistic rehabilitation. I'm not very inspired by New Year's resolutions, but I am inspired by the childlike wonder that is in all of us. This upcoming year, my "goal" is to get it back. Here's to enjoying the grind once again in 2020! Who's with me? •

Mark Twain Elementary School is Honored

Mark Twain Elementary School is among the best in California. Superintendent of Public Instruction Tony Thurmond announced that 323 elementary schools are being honored under the 2020 California Distinguished Schools Award Program. The program recognizes schools that are awarded for closing the achievement gap among student groups and for "exceptional" student performance. Schools are evaluated on test scores, suspension rates, and conditions and school-climate ratings.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: ALBERT RENE PARTIDA CASE NO. 19STPB11621

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of ALBERT RENE PARTIDA. A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by ALBERT RENDON PARTIDA in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES. THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that ALBERT RENDON PARTIDA be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 01/15/20 at 8:30AM in Dept. 29 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012 IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk. Attorney for Petitioner JAMES DREW LAWSON, ESQ. - SBN 170710 426 W. your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk. Attorney for Petitioner ALEX R. shown above. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (714) 730-2727 or visit this Internet Web site www.lpsasap.com, using the file number assigned to this case S.477-055. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.
